Tribe Cagers In Home Opener

Larry Block

Let's Fill The Gym

Thursday marks the official opening of the new mil-
...n dollar men's gymnasium when the Seminole basket-
... team takes the court against the Texas Aggies.

It also happens to be the night that the cagers make their debut for the home folks after what might be termed a rather slow start of the '56 season.

The university has gone to considerable expense to provide enough seating capacity for all games, not only for this year, but in years to follow.

But my guess is that it will never be filled.

Last year with the cagers compiling a better than average record, the Florida High gym which served as home court and had a seating capacity of about 850, could only be filled once, that against Miami.

The athletic department, following the Hurricane game, made more seats available to the student body at the expense of the paying public.

But even this move produced practically nothing as the cagers did not play to a full house again last season.

It's not very hard to find a reason for the lack of attendance. Let's face it, basketball doesn't have the draw in the South that it does in other parts of the country such as, the north and midwest.

However, I've seen where high school basketball in Florida does draw fairly nice crowds, in comparison to those attended on the FSU campus.

I'd say they're even better.

This year's schedule has games on Monday (five times), Thursday (once) and Saturday (four times).

Naturally most of the Greeks say they can't attend games on Monday because of meetings, which is a very valid axcuse, so how about the other nights?

The athletic depart ent has to schedule the games when the opposing team can play here,, because of other commitments, just as we can only go on the road at certain times.

Coach Bud Kennedy is trying to give us the best schedule he possibly can, but as the old saying goes "Rome wasn't built in a day."

I hope I'm wrong, and that you'll make that gym shake every time theres' a ball game.

NO MORE GOLA

The Texas A & M coach, Ken Loeffler, is remembered by basketball fans as the guiding hand in developing (if he needed any) one of America's greatest cage players, Tom Gola.

But fortunately for the Seminoles and the other teams on the Aggies schedule, there is no Gola on the A & M squad.

So when Gola graduated from Lasalle after making everyone's All-America team, Loeffler also graduated, if that's the term, and headed for the wide open ...

It seems his lariat did not snare another player of his caliber and the Aggies are rated near the bottom of the Southwest Conference.

But don't let that fool you, any team that's coached by Ken Loeffler is going to make it rough on anyone they play.

Whether the Aggies are going to play possession ball as some of the teams in that section do or run as his teams did in the north is a question open to conjecture.

We kind of think he'll run and make it real race horse type game.

FIBC GETS TOUGH

With a week and a half of the season gone, indications are that this year's Florida Intercollegiate Basketball Conference race may be an entirely different story than was anticipated.

At the start of the season, it was generally figured that the University of Miami Hurricanes or the Rollins' Tars would be one-two in the conference, but neither team has fared too well thus far.

Rollins in fact has already lost two conference games, to Stetson, 88-87, and the Florida Southern 56-50. They have one win to their credit, 95-66 over tampa.

The Hurricanes admittedly won their only conference game to date by beating Southern, 84-69, but haven't set the world on fire on their current road trip.

All right, so they lost to Kentucky 114-75 and Dayton, ...-48, a lot of other teams are going to lose to the Wildcats and Flyers this year.

But they could only get by Toledo by one point, 68-67, and lost to Akron (about equivalent to Steubenville we figura) by the whopping margin of 106-78.

The sleeper of the conference could be either Stetson of Florida Southern we figure. Both teams have already indicated strong possibilities by beating Rollins, though the Southerners had little success with Miami.

The Seminoles' first conference game comes up January 12 against powerful Miami.

Garnet Tops Gold In Swimming Duel

By TOM HALE
Flambeau Sports Writer

The Garnet swim team splashed to a narrow victory over a strong, but outclassed Gold team in their annual intrasquad game last Friday night at the Women's gym.

Going into the final event, a 400 yd. relay, with a slim 6-point lead, the Garnets, with anchor man Jim Julian overcoming a 5 ft. deficit to win easily, swept the meet by a 56½-43½ score.

The individual high point man for the meet was Julian of the Garnet team. Julian pulled down first places in the 50 yd. free style, and 100 yd. freestyle in addition to anchoring down the winning 400 yd. relay team.

Graham Teschke nailed down honors for second high man with victories in the 220 yd. freestyle and 440 yd freestyle. Teschke was also a Garnet team member.

Leading the scoring for the losers were Don Lewis and Joel Jacobs. Lewis placed second in the 100 yd. freestyle and tied for second with Glen Thatcher in the 50 yd. freestyle

Jacobs suffered one of the few losses in his speciality coming in second to Ken Abbott in the 200 yd. breaststroke. Jacobs also paced the Golds to a win in the 400 yd. Medley relay.

One of the surprising outcomes of the meet was the showing of the freshmen against their older and more experienced teammates. Metz placed second to Teschke in the 440 yd. freestyle and Webber outclassed all competition in the diving to take a first place.

Swim Coach Bim Stults commented after the meet, "The boys aren't up to top condition yet." but he added, "The season is young and we have until January 10th to be ready." On January 10th the Seminole tankers take on the University of Georgia.

Freshman Cagers Meet SW Georgia

The Seminole frosh basketball team, like their varsity brothers, will make their first home appearance Thursday when they face Southwest Georgia college.

Game time is 6 p m., the tilt being the preliminary to the Tribe-Aggie encounter

Saturday the freshmen took it on the chin from Jacksonville University 98-76 in their opening game of the season. Last night they faced a rugged Florida frosh team at Gainesville.

Charlie Rogers was high man in the JU game with 13 points, one better than center Mike Williams Jacksonville's center Jim Barker topped the scoring with 16.

Face Texas A&M Thursday—8 P.M.

By BEN BALSER
Flambeau Sports Writer

The victory starved Florida State basketballers engage Texas A & M Thursday in the Men's Gym at 8 p. m. in the 1956 home opener.

This will mark the first regularly scheduled game to be played in the new men's gym The Seminoles will be trying to protect their streak of winning their last 23 home games

The last time the Tribe cagers lost a home game was January 11, 1954 when they were beaten by Loyola of New Orleans 80-76.

On the other hand the Aggies will be trying to prove they are the potential champs of the Southwest Conference This will be the first time FSU and the Texas team has ever met on the court.

LOEFFLER COACHES

Ken Loeffler, who is the ex-coach of LaSalle University where he primed Tom Gola to all-American fame, is going into his second year as the A&M coach.

According to Loeffler the Aggies are very weak in the rebounding department but are counting on a fast breaking attack to overwhelm opponents the main cog for A&M is Ken Hutto. Ken had a 14 7 average last year and led the league in free throws

Other experience is added to the Aggies in the form of 6-4 George Mehaffey who was second in scoring last season. Ted Harrod and Fritise Connally round out the lettermen on the starting team.

Stu Heller, 6-6, sophomore is touted as a very accurate outside shot Heller, Neal Swisher, Al Roberts and Gonzalo Diago all averaged in the double figures as freshmen

The Seminoles are being paced by the accurate shooting of the two little guards Tom Garcia and Hugh Durham Both have scored consistently high in all the games. Bob Williams and Stu Gregory add height to the FSU attack as does 6-6 Larry Strom.

BEST EFFORT

According to head coach Bud Kennedy the Seminoles turned out their best effort of the season last Saturday night when they were outrun by Bradley 90-66

'Whale' Of A Time Had By FSU Prof

A professor of psychology at Florida State University now qualifies as "consultant-at-large on whales."

Dr. W. N. Kellogg is the professor, a student for many years of animal behavior. He teaches psychology classes and directs research in the Oceanographic Institute at FSU. His specialized maritime research the last six years has been financed by such government agencies as the Office of Naval Research and the National Science Foundation.

Since highlights of his research have rated attention in scientific journals, Dr. Kellogg has been sought out by a whaling company in England a government agency in Canada and organizations of fishermen in the Gulf of Mexico.

"They want to know what whales and porpoises might do in certain trouble situations," Dr. Kellogg said.

WHALING FLEET

"A large English whaling company, operating a fleet of whaling vessels in the Atlantic, wants advice on giant blue and finneback whales, the largest animals known to man.

"More recently, the Department of Fisheries in St. John's Newfoundland was advised by our Department of the Interior to get in touch with me on its special problem with pilot whales.

"It seems the Canadians want to guide schools of pilot whales into Newfoundland bays and estuaries, want to know if pilot whales can be called, by broadcasting into the water tape recordings of some of their own submarine sounds."

That, according to Dr Kellogg is "one whale of a problem", but he was happy to offer a few rather technical suggestions.

The fishermen in the Gulf of Mexico seek information on how sounds can be used in water to help them in catching fish, and to prevent sharks and porpoises from getting in their nets.

Dr. Kellogg has spent considerable time listening to and studying the underwater noises made by creatures of the sea including scallops, shrimp, many kinds of fish, and especially the bottle-nose dolphin or porpoise, which is actually a small whale.

His listening and recordings have required a great deal of technical equipment and apparatus, some of which was loaned by the United States Navy.

One of his important finds was that some of the higher animals of the oceans, notably porpoises and whales, deliberately make sounds in water to tell where they are.

The professor has decided whales and their kin knew about and used the principle of Navy sonar millions of years before it was even thought of by man. The big sea animals broadcast repeated sound pulses into the water and listen for the reflected echoes of their own noises.

Dr. Kellogg's conclusion: A whale knows if the echo returns immediately after his original sound signal, the object reflecting the echo is nearby. But if the time between the signal and its echo is longer, the reflecting object is farther away.

ALAN'S AISLE

Talk, No Action In 'Sharkfighters'

By ALAN KASS

Samuel Goldwyn, Jr. has once again tried to follow his father's giant footsteps and once again he has failed and flung himself into a deep dark hole. You must give Mr. Goldwyn, Jr. some credit though, since he comes up with interesting off-beat material for his stories.

Several years ago in the days of 3-D, young G actually filmed a Bodin picture in three days. It was a novel idea, but it flopped with a big thud. In "The Shark Fighters" another interesting idea is displayed, the account of a search for a repellent for flares forced down in shark-ridden waters. You would think young G would have more fun making his show, technicolor musicals like his old man. But he chooses sharks instead of women, so we'll follow along.

Victor Mature is brought to Cuba to help with the experimentation on many possible repellents. Anxious to complete his own method, he insists that his latest development be a sure one. He is proved wrong when one of the crew falls overboard and is shark supper. Another crewman runs up on another solution, Mr. Mature tests it on sharks at his expense only to escape by the same work of the rest of the crew. The best moments of the picture which was very short, were the 3 minute climax. That was the trouble; too much slow dialogue and not enough action.

FILM ARSENAL GRIPES

A recent news story informed us that "Tennessee Williams' own movie, 'Baby Doll,' was having a rough time with the Legion of Decency and the Motion Picture Production Code Board. There are some bitter arguments popping up in regard to this film and we thought we'd pass them along.

In condemning the story the legion claimed the film was "an obvious violation of the spirit and purpose of the cinema." Adding "The subject matter of the film indicates an open disregard by its administrators . . . 'Baby Doll' is morally repellent both in theme and treatment." The Code found it "grievously offensive to Christian and traditional standards of morality and decency."

The story is not pleasant, and while not morally offensive in its treatment of sex, it is one of the strongest in several years. Already one important actor has been asked and several lines a' ter'ed. Even with this the picture has been banned in Atlanta and Memphis.

ISC Schedules Annual Party

American square dancing and gymnastic stunts will add new color to the year's annual International Students Club Christmas party scheduled for tonight, in the main lounge of Lonamire.

The party will begin at 7 p.m. with President Dook S Campbell making an address of welcome. "Silent Night" will be sung by natives of Germany, Siam and Thailand, and finally by the whole group in English.

Biblical readings on the Birth of Christ will be given by students from the Philippines, Peru, Japan and England in their native tongues. Students of Islamic, Hindu and Jewish faiths will discuss comparable holy days celebrated in their own countries.

There will be various features of entertainment including a bamboo dance from the Far East, flute music and Christmas songs popular in different countries sung in the languages of the countries, the club said.

The image of the United States in foreign eyes will be the subject for the series of American Studies lectures during the second semester, Dr. William Randel, director, announced last week.

Foreign students attending FSU and faculty members who have recently been abroad will participate by showing what the world has thought and now thinks of us, he explained. "The image in foreign minds is important at this time when the United States has been forced to accept global responsibility as leader of the free world."

Lectures will be on Tuesday nights from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock at a place to be announced. Lectures may be taken as a unit for two hours credit or visitors at pleasure.

Louis Armstrong Concert Slated For January

ATO Fraternity Books 'Satchmo'

By JIM McINTYRE

Louis Armstrong has been signed to appear in WestCircle Auditorium January 18 according to spokesmen for Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

The fraternity announced this week in the Flambeau that "Satchmo" will perform two concerts that night with profits for the benefit of Campus Chest. Tickets for the show will go on sale after the concert at a dollar per person. The concert will last approximately one hour and ill mark the engine with all the immediate return of the famed trumpet player and vocal artist.

Armstrong, native of New Orleans, is probably one of the most famous musicians in the world today having been a great success in Europe and Africa during the past years. His gravel-throated style in vocalizing has developed into a trademark and has been imitated by entertainers on all sides of the world.

The nickname "Satchmo" is a shortening of his childhood name "Satchel Mouth." He received the name due to the size of his mouth and has prodigious feats on a cornet and horn.

Satch" has maintained his style through all the movements in modern day jazz. He was the advent of both "Bop" and "Progressive" styles as well as other modern influences that he managed to hold on to his own individuality without changing his style too drastically.

Because of the appearance of Armstrong which accompanied the appearance of Woody Herman here a year ago and yesterday that all arrangements have been completed for the appearance of Armstrong and his band here, and said that the tickets would be on sale in the Westcott Building for the students' return from the Christmas holidays.

Plans are also being made to take the concert movies to the new drive-in movie and from there on there is a demand for tickets for WestCircle Auditorium.

Student Petition To Lengthen Holiday Denied

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

A student said yesterday he had secured more than 3,000 signatures to a petition asking the university to extend Christmas holidays but that the petition was denied.

Freshman John Grady said Dean of Students R. B. Oglesby told him the faculty schedule committee voted Wednesday seven to five against an extension

Dr. Oglesby told the Florida Flambeau he didn't personally see more than two and a half pages of signatures but Grady said at that he may have gotten as many as 4,000 so 50 copies circulated over the past weekend in dormitories, fraternities and sororities.

Dr. Oglesby said president Doak S. Campbell referred the request to the schedule committee, whose members gave very careful consideration to it.

Dr. Oglesby said the committee's decision was based primarily on the danger of eliminating even one session from the Tuesday-Thursday sequence of classes.

The dean said it is "risky" to stand by the schedule as announced in the university catalog.

Students who need to go home early to work, at least, can be excused in advance according to a recent decision of the Council of Deans he added.

The administration previously rejected a request from Student Senate that the holidays be extended to January 7 so Vendor Students must return by 8 a.m. January 3, a Thursday. The following Tuesday, January 8 is a holiday for the inauguration of Governor LeRoy Collins.

During the half-time of the game Miss Florida will be crowned by the Lambda Chis. She will be picked by the organization who sells the most tickets to the game. The organizations will in turn receive a trophy. All gate proceeds will go to Campus Chest.

During the half-time a few selected members of the Marching Chiefs will be featured in a show.

Open House, Dance Form Panhel Agenda

Panhellenic weekend, which includes activities by the individual sorority open houses, will be climaxed by the annual formal dance in the Suwanee Room Saturday night.

Music for the dance will be provided by the Commodores, campus dance band, according to Marian Benson, Panhellenic vice-president. Saturday afternoon at 4:00 the band will play a special concert in the amphitheatre at which the Joe Celee and Betty Coed will be crowned.

This is the first Panhel weekend, as such, in the history of the association. In years prior to this, the only activity was the formal dance with no particular emphasis placed on individual sorority functions.

The Saturday night formal will begin at 9 p.m. and last until 1 a.m. During the intermission the new king of Winterville, campus hostess group, will be presented and the annual Delta Tau Delta award to the best sorority of the year will be awarded.

A coat-checking service will be run by the members of Gamma Chi Epsilon, women's leadership honorary. The service will be financialed on a donation basis from 8:30 p.m. until the close of the dance.

Benson emphasized that there would be room for all sorority girls and their dates with no charge to either party.

The open house on Friday night and the concert Saturday afternoon are open to all students.

'Angels From On High' Hit Gothic Towers

Five messengers of the holiday season are arriving on the campus today. This for a Christmas decorations will be five angels descending from Westcott Tower with a star on the top of the tower.

The angels and star were constructed by the Art Education 311 class under the direction of Harold Sutton. The class developed the traditional project for a two-fold purpose—service to the University and as an experiment in group creativity and thinking. Through the project they hope to gain experience that would be valuable in future teaching situations.

The angels were chosen as traditional symbols of the season—bringing word of the first Christmas to the world. The unusual treatment of the traditional theme was the result of the efforts of the group to take a traditional theme and develop it creatively considering materials, time and modern art concepts, Sutton said.

Scholarship Offered For Refugee Student

Presbyterians Plan Award

The Westminster Fellowship has established a scholarship to be awarded a Hungarian student refugee and will try to have it in operation by second semester, a spokesman announced.

Maurice "Sticks" Steinbers assistant director of the Presbyterian student organization, said Fellowship officers have written to the University's registrar for the name of a student to receive the award.

Steinberg said the Fellowship plans to spend about $500 annually for the two years and possibly longer for books, laundry, and other expenses.

Dr. A. B. Martin, FSU vice-president, agreed Wednesday to waive the out-of-state tuition and registration fees, $425 a year, for whoever the Fellowship sponsors.

Steinberg said most of the other 40 Red Hungary students interested in science, according to information he has received, have had little significant preference for a Caucasian. Grady is a member of the parent faith of Presbyterianism, he added.

EDITORIAL

The plans of the Westminster Fellowship to sponsor a Hungarian refugee student is to be commended as truly inspirational. The means they have taken to raise the money, their own funds and the support and cooperation of other interest people show what can be done.

Other religious student houses, fraternities, sororities, and other groups might well follow the Westminster example.

Students and professors in a great country, opening their doors and arms to the victims of a struggle noble in defeat, demonstrate better than any words of weapons what freedom means.

Efforts will be made to find part-time employment but a scholarship may be taken care of by members of the Fellowship, members of the Presbyterian Church of Tallahassee or by a cooperative living organization, Steinberg indicated.

Arrangements will be made regarding vacations and conditions that the student will not feel lost in a hospitable but strange country.

Consulting with the Fellowship are Frank Ben Forgie, student adviser, Dr. Marian Hay of the School of Education, and Miss Ernst von Dohnanyi. Mrs. Dohnanyi and her husband, Dr. Ernst von Dohnanyi, professor of piano and composition here, were both born in Hungary. Fleeing to Austria at the World War II and coming to the United States and FSU in 1944, Dr. Dohnanyi is an internationally famous composer, pianist, and conductor.

Library Lot Rezoned For Student Cars

More parking spaces are available for student parking due to rezoning of the library parking lot, Dr. Harry Day, director of service units, announced.

Extension of the lot originally reserved for Garnet and Gold sticker parking has resulted in the availability of more "unrestricted" parking spaces. Situated directly behind the new library, has been divided into two sections next to the building being reserved for faculty parking while the section of the lot "A" through the middle of the lot, will be enforced, Day has warned.

Efforts to adequately post all restricted areas have resulted in the painting of a broad yellow curb around the borders of the restricted parking area behind the existing ball. Only those vehicles displaying Garnet and Gold stickers are permitted to park in this area, Day added.

BUDDY DESSERT PARTY SLATED

Buddy system members will be treated by their "buddies," student government, at a dessert party Tuesday starting at 7 p.m. in the large lounge of Longmire.

Jan Ramina, secretary of state, said this is the first of a series of parties for the American and foreign students. The secretary's committee is in charge of the informal event.

Curry Named Senator To Replace Williams

Charlotte Curry, candidate who lost the district 14 senate seat to Harold Williams by one vote in the fall elections, has been nominated by Student Body President Dave Bachman to replace the resigning senator.

Williams submitted his resignation to Vice President Bill Cullom last week, explaining that since he has moved from the Kappa Sigma house he is ineligible for the post.

Bachman said Miss Curry is a capable person for the job and thinks she will make a good senator.

District 14 includes Kappa Sigma Alpha Omicron Pi, Alpha Kappa Psi, Delta Zeta, Chi Omega, Pi Kappa Alpha, Siama Nu, Siama Chi and Phi Mu. Miss Curry lives at the Phi Mu house.

Florida State University with 15,000 students?

This possibility was raised Tuesday with discussion before Governor LeRoy Collins on the proposed new state university to be located in Hillsborough County. Dr. J. Broward Culpepper, executive secretary of the Board of Control, told Collins it was possible FSU could handle between 13,000 and 15,000 in 1970.

The plans came up as persons and groups interested in the new four-year institution were date could finance the $12,000,000 Tampa project by 1958.

FOR NEW SCHOOL

Dr. Ralph Miller, Board of Control research director presented arguments in favor of establishment of a new university. He said experts had calculated enrollment in Florida state universities will total more than 30,000 in 1960, as compared with 21,000 in 1955.

Dr. Culpepper added that the state study conducted at the request of the State Legislature, projected the total enrollment in state and private schools in 1970 at 132,000. Private institutions could handle 12,000 more than their present 21,000, he said, while 41,000 could be enrolled in the consolidated university at 4 p.m.

Betty Co-ed candidates include Beverly Brantley, Ann Mumroe, Ruth Johnson, Jane Allen, Linda Bolton, Beverly Lawton, and Jeanni Kitchens.

'Chest Raises $2,000 So Far

"Over $2,000 has been turned in for Campus Chest" estimated Chairman Nancy Lee Young yesterday.

"All money has not been turned in as yet. Also we haven't been able to figure up the amounts" she continued.

Trophies for one of the concluding Campus Chest projects, the Joe College-Betty Co-ed Contest will be presented at the concert in the amphitheatre Saturday at 4 p.m.

Betty Co-ed candidates include Beverly Brantley, Ann Mumroe, Ruth Johnson, Jane Allen, Linda Bolton, Beverly Lawton, and Jeanni Kitchens.

Longer Library Hours Possible

If library officials can appropriate ample funds, Senate a resolution calling for extension of library hours on Saturday and days before exam week may soon into effect.

Don Lewis, chairman of the committee on Labor Student Services and Education, reported to the Senate Wednesday that Senate has budgeted to pay librarians and staff who would be working overtime if the hours are extended.

He said it was not certain how many days before exams week the library would be open until 11 p.m. if the action passes. On Sunday it would remain open from 2 to 10 p. m instead of the 5 p. m. hours now in effect.

The resolution was introduced to Senate earlier this semester by Fred Roberts, and was turned over to Lewis' committee for study.

Senate also discussed the recently issued student directory. Bill Cullom, vice president, said he is studying the matter and why home addresses were not in this issue.

Students are listed alphabetically, with their campus address box number, and division and class indicated. Dr. Reid Montgomery, publications advisor, said the 2,000 directories were paid by state funds and not from the student activity fee. They were printed by a private concern directly from IBM listings and 500 copies sold for 25 cents each at the Student Center.

Be Part Of Student Government, Not A Critic 'On Outside'

Although sarcastic references are frequently made to the value and effectiveness of student government, few of the students who make them realize the true picture.

Actually FSU's student government has accomplished considerable good for its student electorate. Despite some pretty enormous hand caps enforced upon it by the administration, it has emerged as a more-or-less workable champion of students' rights.

And if it is to be compared in effectiveness and worth to other student governments, including the one at the University of Florida, its superiority is clearly great.

This year, student government action has resulted in pay increases of from 75 cents to one dollar an hour maximum for student assistants. Food service employes are entitled to wage boosts as a result of Student Senate labors. Though these gains may seem small, they represent substantial accomplishment. Compare, and you'll see that few other student governments can boast similar effectiveness. We grant that the wages of both student groups are still far too low, but even small increases cannot be discounted.

Most criticisms have stemmed from Senate's sometimes rather pathetic growing pains, but it is not as often conceded that obstacles to its success were great. Senate has now, however, through apportionment of representation, become more democratic, and the results of this improvement are evident in its actions.

Senate did its best to get students an extension of the poorly-scheduled Christmas holiday period, but officials turned it down cold. The effort was a failure, but the student body showed it will not accept such misguided blandishments as the January 3 return date handed down by the schedule makers.

In positive accomplishments, the Senate moved toward getting Library hours extended on Sundays, a great convenience to many students, made the unprecedented decision to send lobbyists to the state Legislature to promote FSU's interests and staged two Billy May Band concerts on the campus as part of a Student Artist Series.

Senate has had to face, in bringing about these things, an extremely distrustful attitude on the part of the administration. Through its power of review over all student government legislation, it can with a word throttle any action taken.

The administration has made some condescensions—it allows student government to apportion a certain amount of money to student activities. This amount was more than $73,000 this year, a sum whose expenditure involves considerable responsibility. Yet the administration wields its usual power to review apportionment.

In summary, student government has for a number of years been on a road toward responsibility and worthiness. In the past year it has taken great strides along this road. It appears that the administration and other officials have moved toward an attitude of cooperation rather than of distrust.

Those who so often criticize student government might better apply this energy toward helping it prosper.

Calling The Card

Writer Sees H-Wood Mole Stampede

By ARNOLD GREENFIELD

Recently I have been spending some time speculating about the quality or more appropriately the lack of quality of the motion pictures coming to our fair city. As if the common run of drivel were not enough, it seems that lately the local exhibitors have been making a special effort to keep people away from the movies. In my case at least they have been successful.

Now I realize that it is unfair to decide in advance that a picture is not going to be very good, but when they start showing little epics entitled "The Mole People" I don't think it unreasonable to assume that Hollywierd has gone too far. There must be some limit beyond which the public will refuse to cooperate with the movie moguls by non-attendance.

WHAT REALLY frightens me however is that quite often the most ludicrous or, if you prefer, hideous, of these distorted attempts at entertainment become popular. Quality of course is judged on the basis of box office success—thus the producers usually attempt to capitalize upon their original success by issuing a series of follow-ups.

For example we might refer to the "Francis" pictures or the "Ma and Pa Kettle" films which have been paraded before the viewing public for several years. In the case of "The Mole People" it is only natural to assume that some of the following titles will subsequently adorn widely circulated pictures: "The Return of the Mole People", "The Mole People Ride Again", "The Wife of the Mole People", "The Mole People In The Army, Navy, etc.", and of course "Abbott and Costello Meet the Mole People". These would be followed after an interval of a couple of years by a musical version perhaps entitled "The Mole People Visit The South Pacific"—starring Red Skelton and Anita Ekberg.

I SLGGEST that it would be somewhat more fruitful for Hollywood to use the tried and true formula of jazzing up previously successful books with big name actors. However in order to be as cultural as possible, they should not limit themselves to popular novels but also indulge in more scholarly works.

In this field the possibilities are endless. We might see such charming titles as "Religion And The Rise Of Capitalism" —starring Rock Hudson as R. H. Tawney. Also "Social Darwinism In American Thought" with Marilyn Monroe as an outstanding example of evolution in the U. S. The public might be exposed to such an opus as "The Critique Of Pure Reason" featuring Alan Ladd as Immanuel Kant, or a comedy version of "Leviathan" costarring Danny Kaye and Ava Gardner. Going back to classical and religious literature is another Hollywood pastime that might be further exploited.

HOW ABOUT "Beowulf" with Bing Crosby in the title role and Elizabeth Taylor as Grendal's mother? Others might be: "David and Bathsheba Meet Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis", and "Noah's Ark" with the recently unemployed Ringing Brothers Circus providing the animals —Tab Hunter and Marjorie Main could be thrown in to sustain the love interest. Well that's enough. I'm off to California to seek my fortune as a studio idea man.

Cuban Students Attempt To Establish Justice

TO THE EDITOR:

In today's issue of the Flambeau appeared an article by Mr. Martin Dyckman, entitled "Revolt Is Student Pastime", in which he makes some comments about a speech that a Florida State University professor made in front of an audience at the English Coffee Hour. Since the article refers to Cuban students I feel it's my duty to explain a few things concerning this matter. I was a Cuban student myself!

IN FIRST place, I don't believe that "revolting" is a students pastime neither that it is a especial "pastime" of the Cuban students. . . . All over the world students do revolt against any government or any organization which is in the wrong side or against justice. This happens in France, as well as in Spain, Argentine, Greece and many other countries. . . . Hungary is the latest example of it! When those students go out and revolt and fight against what they believe is wrong, I am sure that they are not in a pastime or a game! Many of them die for it! If that is called a pastime you must agree then that students all over the world are crazy. And that's a very low credit to them, since they will run this world some day!

IN SECOND PLACE, Cuban young people do not "engage in frequent but one-sided and disastrous clashes with a tyrannical government." . . . They do this as many times as they have to, but not as "frequent" as people may think for they do not follow any schedule or pattern for it. And they do not clash with a tyrannical government only—like the one we are suffering right now—but with any government that do not follow the democratic principles in which we believe! They fight with Batista's government in as much as they fought Prio's in 1948 and Grau's in 1944, and Batista's again in 1940 and they have fought all sort of government (every time they had to) since Spain's domination. As a matter of fact, the first students killed because of a revolt were eight November 27 of 1871 . . . and they were innocent of the charge imputed to them!

NOW, WHY do they fight? Well, when you are a student you read thousands of books, you hear hundreds of people talking about the rights of man, you see justice (and injustice) done and you feel a drive for helping those who need help, a hunger for guiding those who need to be guided and a terrific desire of applying the knowledge acquired to the world in which we live. . . . And you go out into that world and you find that most of the things you think to know are wrong or are not followed by those whose duty is to follow them . . . and you see a man getting rich while hundreds starve to death . . . and you see how the economy of some countries goes up, while your country's goes down (because those whose duty is to look for your country's economic welfare only care for their own pockets thus creating monopolies, and backing up foreign industries and stepping on native's ones) . . . and you see how the law works on the side of the one who has most power, leaving helpless those who have not culture, money or the means to defend themselves . . . (like when the big monopoly of Cuban transport wanted to rise the fare of the old-deteriorated buses without any cause other than the desire of making more money) . . . and you see how gambling and prostitution are spread all over your country and are sponsored by the government (because of the thousands of dollars involved in the racket) . . . And when you see all this happenings, and you have your own opinion based on those books you have read and on those things you have been taught . . . then you wonder why somebody does not do something about it . . . Then you realize that the people—workers, business men, employees, women, etc—do not know what to do, or how to do it . . . That's the moment when we, students of Cuba, go out and tell them how things are . . . and we use the papers, the radio, the T V and all the means of communciations, then we tell them in meetings held at the University (public meetings) . . . and then, when all of our advices and speeches are exhausted, then, again, is the moment for us to go into the streets and spread the word of "wake up" to those who do not want or can not wake up and won't see how wrong things are . . . And it is in those moments when the government (Batista's, Prio's, Grau's, Machado's, etc.) wants to stop us . . . and they sure have the means to do it! As as example I would like for you to read in this week's Life magazine, what happened to some Cuban students that tried to place a wreath in the monument dedicated to the eight students killed in 1871 . . . nine were wounded.

I HOPE THAT you won't think I am for revolting and rioting, but when all the means for making justice and finding truth fail to accomplish its purpose, when all the doors that lead to freedom are closed, then and only then, there is one thing to do . . . fight! This is what Cuban students believe, this is what students from France, Spain, Greece, Chile, Hungary believe too, and I do not think this is a pastime as Mr. Dyckman wrote in his article.

Sincerely yours
RAFAEL LECUONA
F.S.U. student
Former Cuban student

Editor's Note: Both Dr. Paul Stoakes, in his address concerning Cuban students, and the writer of the article were aware that the students' dissatisfication with the dictatorial and corrupt Batista government is a serious and noteworthy matter. To say that something is an extra-curricular activity does not necessarily ridicule it. The Cuban students—and students anywhere who are patriots—are to be commended. It is true the headline on the story, referring to a "Pastime" may have caused some misinterpretation of the article itself. This result was unintentional.

UM To Abolish Sorority 'Spiking'

COLUMBIA, Mo. —I P.—The Women's Panhellenic Council at the University of Missouri intends to eliminate "spiking," weighted parties and upperclass legacy bids extended at the six party rush dates, during the 1956 fall rush year.

Representatives of the 13 sorority houses on campus agreed unanimously last spring to abolish the "spiking" system which is oral bidding of rushees, heretofore permitted at the 4 party dates. Weighted parties whereby one party is given preference over another were also abolished, as were the upperclass sorority legacy bids which permit upperclass sorority legacies to accept bids at 6 party dates and immediately move into the chapter house.

Writer Shows Flambeau How To Think Logically

DEAR EDITOR:

I am grateful to whoever was responsible for the notation above Friday's Flambeau editorial column reminding readers that the insidious deceptive piece of trash entitled CLINTON MOB BETRAYS CRAVING FOR SELF-MADE SUPERIORITY represents the views of the staff and not that of the student body. You see I too am a student but the last thing I want is to be identified as one of your ilk.

As usual you have psychoanalyzed the persons under attack, this time the demonstrators in Clinton, Tennessee and have come up with the amazing professional diagnosis that every last one was afflicted by "cravings for self-made superiority." Apparently what you were clumsily trying to infer is all who oppose integration is a psycho case, a nut, a boob which strictly isn't so.

IT IS REALLY pathetically naive, perhaps sacrilegious, when an attempt is made to connect Jesus Christ with integration. If segregation is a sin my good man Satan probably has his hands full forking our forefathers into the fire.

An editorial column may have certain freedoms, but such liberties don't include the misrepresentation of facts. Let me remind you Rev. Turner didn't get his nose poked for "defending the government of the United States" though he may yet get a medal. Rev. Turner's job doesn't include law enforcement, and escorting doesn't seem to agree with him. As far as the soundness of his faith is concerned, you don't know anymore about it than I. Anyway, you aren't concerned about his faith, you support him because he supports integration.

SO SEGREGATION in the South is a habit pattern? My what a shrewd deduction. What if it is a habit pattern our institution of marriage and family is to . . .

Since the constitution is dwelt on at length, I would like to point out this document doesn't mean the same from year to year, even to the body who is supposed to interpret it. According to the Supreme Court the meaning of some clauses have changed completely in less than eighteen months! Why all we have to do here in the South is wait for another Supreme Court to reread the constitution. They might reverse the reversed decision of 1896. Many people tell us the constitution is a flexible "growing" instrument. After reading the 14th amendment many times I certainly don't doubt it for when "equal protection of the laws" becomes "desegregation" the limits of elasticity have been passed. Things have been stretched.

THE CRAMMING of so much illogical thinking in one editorial is a feat only the Flambeau staff could achieve. So the Nazis were a minority, the Russian hard core communuist are a minority (which I doubt if you know) and it is the minority that "violates the principles of justice and citizenship." Therefore, according to the inferences, something has to be done about the "hoodlum minorities." What is suggested, and on which minority shall we start —editors or the NAACP?

As for the elections in Clinton, let me humbly remind you, neither side spoke against segregation. Apparently it was not so much an issue as purported. An interesting vote would be one on whether the people of Clinton approve integration. In many person's reasoning, however, this would make no difference.

IF IT IS NOT willingly accepted without coercion and pressure integration in the South boils down to one thing—the forced association of one people with another. My interpretation of democracy does not include this.

Judging from the past, the federal government rarely discontinues a right or practice once gained. It is safe to suppose then the pattern established by the government in Clinton will spread —what a sickening thought. What really took the cake in Clinton however was the arrest of a man for handing out pamphlets considered by another man to be "inflammatory literature." I wonder what he thinks of the free press?

EVERY SOUL in Anderson County, where Clinton is located, has been ordered by a federal judge to do nothing to resist integration, thus prohibiting the people to protest. What is to stop the federal authorities from ordering whatever they please in any state and prohibiting protest by ordering nothing done. In effect this is a technique for stifling public opinion—also not democratic.

In conclusion Mr. Editor, let me say I am as American, conscientious, loyal, just, and moral, and support the U. S. and its constitution as much as you, and with all these attributes support segregation as fervently as you support integration.

CHARLES F. ADAMS.

EAT, DRINK, AND BE MARRIED

On a recent tour of seven million American colleges, I was struck by two outstanding facts: first, the great number of students who smoke Philip Morris; and second, the great number of students who are married.

The first phenomenon — the vast multitude of Philip Morris smokers — comes as no surprise, for what could be more intelligent than to smoke Philip Morris? After all, pleasure is what you smoke for, and pleasure is what Philip Morris delivers. Try one. Light up and see for yourself. . . . Or, if you like, don't light up. Just take a Philip Morris, unlighted, and puff a couple of times. Get that wonderful flavor? You bet you do! Even without lighting you can taste Philip Morris's fine natural tobacco. Also, you can make your package of Philip Morris last practically forever.

No, I say, it was not the great number of Philip Morris smokers that astounded me; it was the great number of married students. Latest statistics show that at some coeducational colleges, the proportion of married undergraduates runs as high as twenty per cent! And, what is even more startling, fully one-quarter of these marriages have been blessed with issue!

Now, to the young campus couple who are parents for the first time, the baby is likely to be a source of considerable worry. Therefore, let me devote today's column to a few helpful hints on the care of babies.

First of all, we will take up the matter of diet. In the past, babies were raised largely on table scraps. This, however, was outlawed by the Smoot-Hawley Act, and today babies are fed a scientific formula consisting of dextrose, maltose, distilled water, evaporated milk, and a twist of lemon peel.

After eating, the baby tends to grow sleepy. A lullaby is very useful to help it fall asleep. In case you don't know any lullabies, make one up. For example:

Go to sleep, my little infant,
Goo-goo moo-moo poo-poo binfant.

A baby sleeps best on its stomach, so place it that way in its crib. Then to make sure it will not turn itself over during the night, lay a soft but fairly heavy object on its back — another baby, for instance.

All you need is a little patience and a lot of love.

So, as you see, raising a baby is no great problem. All you need is a little patience and a lot of love. Also diapers, rompers, soakers, crib, mattress, sheets, bumpers, blankets, high chair, diapers, talcum, baby oil, fish liver oil, paregoric, diapers, safety pins, cotton, cotton covered toothpicks, bottles, diapers, nipples, diapers, bottle brushes, booties, diapers, nighties, wrappers, diapers, rattles, teething rings, pacifiers, diapers, and unlimited funds.

When Baby is fast asleep — the little angel! — why not relax and give yourself a treat? With Philip Morris, of course! Made in long size and regular by the sponsors of this column.

'Twas A Madhouse!

Over 5,000 fans turned out at the University of Florida gymnasium Monday night, fully expecting their favored boys to easily steamroller a winless Florida State basketball unit.

Those 5,500 odd fans saw a fired-up Seminole team play as if they never knew the first four games of the year had been played, and they saw the Seminoles scare the living daylights out of the Gators before an unbelievable shot at the gun gave Florida a thrill-packed 64-63 victory.

However, you can read the details of that great game in another part of this page; there is another purpose in mentioning it here.

For while those 13 or 14 athletes were fighting back and forth on the floor to a Florida victory, it was the 5,500 screaming, delirious fans who brought the Gators back.

In my years of watching basketball, high school and college in the state of Florida, I have never seen a more fanatastic, noisier or rabid crowd.

As Joe Hobbs' fatal shot dropped through the cords to bring the Gators a frantic triumph, a surging mass humanity swarmed onto the court, in the most enthusiastic crowd display I have ever seen at a basketball game.

For Hobbs and the 5,500 patrons it was undoubtedly a thrill of a lifetime, and I hate to say it, but I doubt it could ever happen at Florida State.

This is not to say the Seminoles will not enact such thrilling victories, because they are a good solid team and have and will win plenty of games before they graduate.

But believe me, the students and Tallahassee fans who watch Florida State games have never shown a bit of school spirit half equal to that shown on the Florida basketball floor Monday night.

I don't know where that school spirit is, but I think it's about time to bring it out. I doubt if a game with the University of Kentucky or any other of the best teams in the country could bring 5,500 fans to a basketball game on a Monday night in Tallahassee.

A crowd can be a tremendous inspiration to a basketball team, whether they win or lose, and most assuredly if they lose.

Where are those crowds? Only once last season did Seminole fans fill the Florida High gym, with its meager seating capacity of 800.

This year, you have 2,000 or more seats to choose from, and I don't think they'll ever be filled, a good matter of poem.

If Florida State fans would just show half the enthusiasm for basketball that they show for football, it could make the difference between a winning or a losing season.

You won't think you ever will.

Flambeau Art Alan Whitmarsh

NO, YOU CAN'T HAVE IT. Seminole guard Tom Garcia locks hurt as four enterprising Florida Gators try to take the ball away from him during tense final minute action in Monday's Florida-FSU battle. The Gators are Bob Emrick (heading for floor), Jim Smith (24), Joe Hobbs (13) and Burt Touchberry (15). Florida won 67-65.

Guard Tom Garcia Cage 'Quarterback'

By BESS WELLER
Flambeau Sports Writer

A good playmaker, Tom Garcia, scrappy junior guard, is the "quarterback of the team" according to Coach Bud Kennedy.

An in and out starter last season, Garcia scored 133 points This year he ranks second on the team in average points per game with 11.8.

Having played in four of the first five games, he has scored 22 field goals and 14 foul goals, compiling a total of 58 points.

An ankle injury sustained in the Steubenville game kept Tom out of action against West Virginia.

SERVICE BALL

It was mainly through his outstanding performance in service basketball that Garcia was signed by FSU.

Handicapped by his height, the 5-8 cager played only two years of high school ball. Despite this, he made the All Conference team his senior year.

Considered too small for college basketball, he entered the Air Force after graduation.

While in the service he joined his base team, seeking to perfect his game. Playing two years in Japan, he was named on the Far East all-Star team.

Coach Mike Long, assistant basketball coach at Florida State and Tom's former high school coach, had kept his eye on Garcia and contacted him after his discharge from the Air Force.

Tom entered FSU to begin playing basketball where he had left off in the service.

The versatile guard also is a leading pitcher on the varsity baseball team.

The good-natured, easy-going junior says, "My ambition was always to play college basketball." A physical ed. major, he wants to coach college basketball.

Coach Kennedy says, "One of the finest little men in the conference he is playing great ball and we're proud of him."

Frosh Cagers Bow To Baby Gators

Jim Oler's Florida State freshman basketball team went down to its second straight defeat Monday as it lost to the Florida frosh, 65-52.

The Seminole frosh trailed Florida by five points at half time and according to coach Oler played an excellent period. "You couldn't ask any team to play better than my boys did, but they fell apart during the second half."

Tom Munson of Fort Lauderdale led the Tribe in scoring with 13 while Jerry Hohne netted 10 and Jim Savage had nine.

Last night they met Southwest Georgia Junior college in their first home appearance this season.

Tribe Basketballers Meet E. Tennessee

Florida State's basketballers face one of their toughest opponents tomorrow night when they meet East Tennessee State, in the second game in their new gymnasium.

The Tennessee Buccaneers have essentially the same team that downed the Seminoles last year 86-54, according to Tribe head coach Bud Kennedy.

"We're expecting one of the toughest games of the year—they're equal to any team we've played yet," Kennedy commented.

Thus far this season, the Buccaneers have rolled through three straight opponents without too much trouble, including a win over always tough Georgia Teachers.

The Tennesseans reportedly have good rebounding strength, Kennedy reports, and they employ the fast break consistently. Much as do the Seminoles themselves.

LOSE TO GATORS

Still reeling from four successive losses on the road, an inspired Seminole basketball team led a favored University of Florida quintet virtually the entire game only to see its dream shattered in the final second of the game 67-65 in Gainesville, Monday night.

Spurred by a mighty crescendo of groans, screams, and [illegible] our applause 6 foot 1 inch [illegible] guard Joe Hobbs dribbled down the sidelines with three seconds left in the game and the score tied 65-65.

Just as Hobbs crossed the mid-court stripe, he rared back with his left hand and fired the ball in the basket that was the game.

Tom Garcia, Bob Wade, Herb Durham, Larry Brown, and Bob Watts, who played [illegible] the entire game together, [illegible] capably kept a thread [illegible] throughout most of the game. Only in the final minutes after briefly at the first did the Seminoles relinquish the lead.

Forrest Washburn junior reserve Chuck Brewster led the game with 5 [illegible] in the game with his third free throw.

ALAN'S AISLE

'Lust For Life' Is Kirk's Best

By ALAN KASS

Vincent Minnelli, on behalf of MGM, has brought to Tallahassee his company's 1956 chiller-ner for the best American motion picture of the year. It is the Vincent Van Gogh biography, "Lust For Life."

Superbly done and presented in realistic metrocolor, come the end of February this picture should have many nominations for Academy Awards.

"Lust For Life" is a story of one man's search for realistic self-expression. The story is told in raw fury but beautifully expressed. In it over 100 Van Gogh paintings are presented, a great majority of them expertly translated from painting to actual scenery. Incidentally, the scenes is in Europe and the superlative coloring is worth the price of admission alone—you will be amazed to Van Gogh's many still life masterpiece, as well as his famous "Yellow Sky" Self Portrait," "Cafe A-es, etc.

Kirk Douglas is the star and Tour De Force of this picture. Judging from his portrayal, he put in many hours of work, his interpretation is flawless.

In "Lust" Mr. Douglas has reached his peak. He brings a realistic conviction to a man lonely and in need of love and understanding. His many moods of fury, passion, tenderness, is a stirring tribute to his versatility.

A record is a Christmas present that can be whatever you want it to be, depending on who you give it to.

Solve your shopping problems at Baker's this year, with just the right gift for everyone on your list — room-mate, family, friends, and the one-and-only.

If you have a Sound Addict on your list there's an album For Hi-Fi Bugs, a technical and musical sampling including frequency test bands.

Baker's has a store full of all kinds of music — movies and Broadway shows, jazz, dance mood, classical, and popular.

For the jazz enthusiast, get Geide to Jazz. It was issued in conjunction with the book of the same name, which Louis Armstrong calls "the musicians' Bible." Baker's also has half a dozen new Oscar Peterson albums.

The more romantic record collector will like Frank Chackafield's Velvet or Music Until Midnight by Percy Faith and Mitch Miller.

Worry no more about the KA on your list . . . set him The Confederacy.

To really make an impression on somebody, give them the ba Glen Miller or The Kenton Era multi-record albums. Expensive, but worth it.

Nice vocal albums are Beaucoup of Blues with Dinah Shore, Sinatra for Two by Don Cherry, This is Sinatra!, and the brand new Em Pat Morrisey—I Sing.

For a record cleaning cloth or a hi-fi set, Baker's is the place to go.

Short 'Messiah' Oratorio Set For Wednesday

Will Feature Familiar Excerpts

By Dave Ward-Steinman

The Choral Union, under the direction of Herman Zeiger will present its traditional performance of Handel's Messiah tomorrow night in Westcott, beginning at 8:15 p.m.

Handel's oratorio has been given ten times on campus in the last 12 years. Usually performed here with piano or organ, the last four performances have used the University Symphony but this year's presentation will utilize piano and organ together.

Due to the great length of the work all previous campus performances have been cut or abridged in some way; never has complete version been presented. Wednesday night's version will be the shortest to date as it will include the most familiar and popular choruses.

A number of soloists drawn from the Choral Union will sing several arias and recitatives. Featured singers are Jim Rall, Chan Laine-Ralston, Mary Ann Marriott, Harriette Morrill, Jo Verdan and Ethel Donald-

NEW TRADITION

The tradition of performing MESSIAH at Christmastime is a relatively new one. Handel's original London performances which became resounding annual affairs, were always held during the period of Lent, which time theatrical performances were forbidden by law. The fact that THE MESSIAH contained so many elements of Handel's dramatic arias quite undoubtedly contributed to its popularity among theater-starved populace.

The text is divided into three parts representing the respective stations in the life of Christ. The first section, the one most appropriate for the Christmas season, deals with the Prophecy and the Nativity. The second section is concerned with the Story of Christ, culminating in the glorious "Hallelujah" chorus. The final and briefest section deals with the Resurrection and for this Handel wrote one of his noblest and most lyrical musical settings.

MUSIC DIFFICULT

Though written originally for amateur chorus, the music is sufficiently enough to challenge the best of professional choruses yet it has remained a musical favorite with chorus groups both skilled and unskilled. It has stood every test of time and criticism undiminished, even for the two hundred years and more of its existence. THE MESSIAH will be with us for the next few hundred.

Wednesday night's performance is open to the public free of charge.

Ground Course Now Available

A CAA Aeronautics Administration ground school course will be taught at Florida State University beginning January 4, according to Colonel Howard Wittrock, AFROTC professor of air science.

The course will be taught in conjunction with a recently instituted flight training program at Tallahassee Municipal Airport.

The course is open to all students interested in completing ground training toward a private pilot license, Wittrock said.

The course is designed to prepare student pilots to pass the CAA written examination for a private pilots license, Wittrock said.

The course will be taught to student pilots and instructors.

Classes will be held each Friday morning from 8 to 9 for three consecutive weeks in the AFROTC building. At the conclusion of the course, students may apply for CAA-administered test. Subjects include Civil Air Regulations, Air Navigation and Weather. Wittrock said interested students should contact the department of air science at extension 7-2471.

Number Of Students Reported Before Honor Court For Cheating

BY MARTIN DYCKMAN
AND OSCAR JOHNSON

The student Honor Court has within the last several days tried several cases of students caught cheating on an examination, Chief Justice Bill Manning said yesterday.

Manning said he was unable to release further details until the faculty review committee reviewed the Honor Court's action. He would say nothing more.

The faculty review committee held a meeting last (Monday) night, the Florida Flambeau learned.

One rumor was to the effect that one or more athletes had been caught cheating, along with other students.

The Flambeau had saved space in print further details for the purpose of dispelling widespread rumors over the incident, but as of last night was unable to determine the true facts of the matter. The space below is decorated to the story that might have been.

Car Owners Will Need Proof Of Ownership

The Student-Faculty Traffic Committee voted Friday to require proof of ownership from students registering cars.

Chairman Kaz Edwards said that beginning next semester registrants will have to present their drivers licenses, automobile title certificates, and student ID cards. They procedure is expected to make it impossible for someone living on campus to have his car falsely registered on a blue sticker, Edwards declared.

The committee also suggested that the administration establish a staggered class schedule, to become effective next fall, which would allow 15 minutes between classes. This system would relieve congestion on streets and give students having classes in the geology building time to get to or from the building between bells.

Edwards said the committee voted to allow Cawthon residents to park their cars all night on the street between the dorm and the library. They usually cannot find parking places in the Cawthon lot until the library closes at 10 p.m., Edwards explained. Elsewhere on campus except behind Magnolia Hall cars parked all night are ticketed.

Students Plan Integration For Campus Chest

By CHARLET POITEVINT

A student government committee is studying a plan to integrate Campus Chest activities into one big fund raising project, according to Bob Elting, Secretary of Student Welfare.

The present system of raising the $3,000 set as a goal by the charity drive committee has been criticized by various organizations, said Elting.

The new plan will meet or exceed the present goal, Elting predicted.

Fraternities, sororities, dormitories, and religious organizations now sponsor projects throughout the semester to raise money for the fund drive.

Spokesmen for these organizations have complained that the present campaign is too "time consuming." They say Campus Chest activities take time away from studies as well as away from other projects.

The campaign, which is supposed to last for a limited period, has "gone out of proportion" and extended into the spring semester he charged.

Elting and a student government committee consisting of Greta Sims, Evelyn Moll, and Jan Kaminis will meet with the President committee sometime after Christmas vacation to discuss ways to carry out the change.

They will work on a solution which will allow each member of the student body to participate in the drive instead of "certain groups."

As an example of what could be done to revamp Campus Chest, the Homecoming Dance could be assigned to it, Elting said.

Hungarian Aid Groups To Combine Efforts

Staff Writer

Plans were formulated yesterday for the organization of a concentrated effort by FSU students and Tallahassee residents in providing scholarship aid for Hungarian refugee students.

A special committee appointed by student Body President Dave Bachman, gave preliminary reports to the central mission, and mapped the course to be taken in the establishment of scholarship aid for a group of the students.

The committee, heading the drive will bring the students to the campus during the month of January, named the drive "Seminole Hungarian Aid and Relief for Establishment of Scholarships." It will be known more briefly by its initials, SHARES.

Frank Bean, reporting on contacts with the Tallahassee Chamber of Commerce said that the plan had that group's endorsement. He said that he had personally the people of Tallahassee would be willing to help support such a venture.

The committee arrived at an approximate cost of $600 a year for each student, after cutting usual expenses. The administration has agreed to waive out-of-state tuition fees, and the University council is considering providing rooms for male students. It was felt that having a student part time job would help pay for meals and serve to orient the student into the University as well.

The members of the committee are now contacting groups on and off campus for aid, both financial and in the form of materials and support. The Modern Languages Department is being requested to sponsor a plan to acquaint the students with English before they begin scholarship study.

Various Church and private agencies and businesses in the area will also be contacted in an effort to as many students as possible enrolled for the second semester.

IF Nets 600 Lbs. Clothing

Sue Lowell, chairman of a clothing drive for Hungarian refugees sponsored by the Interfaith Fellowship, said yesterday that 600 pounds of clothing has been collected on campus.

Outstanding in their contributions were Gilchrist Hall, North Cawthon Hall, and Jennie Murphree Hall. The boxes of clothing will be sent to the World University Service in New York, from where they will be sent to Austria.

Miss Lowell also said, "I am very grateful to all those that helped with this drive."

An Editorial

There is no room in a university for someone who willfully cheats on examinations; who spends the time he should use for studying in plotting how he shall "succeed" without studying.

Honor and scholarship are so closely related that they cannot be thought of separately. Universities began as places where youth came, inspired by idealism and devotion, to learn all they could possibly absorb. Success was not measured on a numerical or chronological basis. Their school, whether a corner in a marketplace or a magnificent building, was a chapel to the service of mankind.

How profaned is the chapel today, when a few weak individuals cheat and grovel for a scrap of paper in total ignorance of its true meaning! A degree is worth only the amount of knowledge one acquires in getting it.

But in reducing the value of their degrees to meaningless symbols, cheaters also commit a crime against the remainder of the student populace. How can a university attract worthwhile students and distinguished faculty when its reputation is tarnished by dishonesty?

The greatest tragedy is that men enrolled in a university may be raised with so few ethics and values that they can seek a "shortcut." The shortcut of dishonesty can only be a detour to oblivion.

A person, in committing a momentary mistake, may cheat. It is not a mistake but a crime when seven persons plan and perpetuate the "mistake." It is the duty, the obligation, the oath of every student to prevent this.

Beyond that, the university administration must stop and take stock. Has the deplorable trend toward a diploma mill granting "degrees" in subjects remote from academic provinces encouraged dishonesty?

Honor Code Penalty Change Under Study

By JIM McINTYRE

Revision of the University Honor Code, one of the prime projects of student government for this year, is currently underway. The Student-Faculty Committee on Honor is considering changes.

The prime purpose of the changes in the Code is to provide a more equitable penalty system to replace the static penalty system now in use.

Under the present system, any student convicted by the court will be barred from holding offices, receiving scholarships, or participating in teams during the duration of his term in school." This has, in the past meant that students convicted of a minor offense received the same elimination from representing the University that the more serious offender did.

NO MORE AID

Under the proposed revision, the Court "may recommend to the granting authority that no further scholarship assistance be given the offender for the duration specified by the penalty."

It further states, "The scope and duration of penalties shall be dependent upon the seriousness of the particular offense. The Court may recommend disqualification from holding Student Government offices or from representing the University in any way."

CHANGES NOT COMPLETE

The addition of these proposals to the Honor Code is by no means complete. The Honor Code as found in Article five of the Student Body Constitution and therefore may be changed only by the approval of the entire student body in either a general election or special referendum.

The student-faculty committee, headed by Dean of Women Katherine Warren, will submit their recommendations to the student senate. The senate will then if it sees fit, present the proposed changes to the students for their approval. The final word on the revisions will rest with the students.

Arnold Greenfield, Attorney-General in the President's Cabinet, has been primarily responsible for the wording of the proposed changes. Greenfield headed a special committee on revision which was appointed by the Student Body President, Dave Bachman, at the close of last semester.

Working with Dean Warren on the student-faculty committee are Dean Sam Nevi, Dr. Vern Bowen, Dr. Kellogg Hunt, and Miss Daisy Parker, faculty members, and Jim McIntyre, Glenda Bruce, Joyce Weatherup, Manion Ward and Robert Kanaby.

'Slow Down,' Lowflying Drivers Told

Highway patrolmen in the Tallahassee area have been asked to keep homeward-bound students from flying as fast they wind up flying high.

Col. H. N. Kirkman, head of the Department of Public Safety, issued "A special plea to FSU students going home" to drive safely according to Earl Edwards, chairman of the Student Faculty Traffic Committee.

Four FSU students have been killed on holiday trips during recent years, he commented.

Edwards said there is a possibility a sound truck will be stationed on campus to remind students of highway carefulness as they leave.

Edwards said Kirkman told him Florida's Highway Patrol of more than 300 men will be on 12 hour shifts through New Year's, assisted by 400 auxiliary patrolmen, and will use 20 radar units throughout the state to catch speeders.

Coed Chalks Campbell Card

A professor had revenge—in a manner only his class could make possible—yesterday on a student who found the world outside the window more fascinating than his lecture.

A professor of art sentenced an inattentive coed to draw a picture on the sidewalk opposite the north wing of Westcott.

She kept her sense of humor, though. Utilizing convenient cracks in the sidewalk, she drew with colored chalk a picture of a sexy flapper—mother of the bobby-soxer; and wrote under it, "public opinion no longer bothers me."

It just so happened the sidewalk artist did her picture right under Dr. Doak C. Campbell's office window. The FSU president is retiring in June.

Robinson's Removal An Ungrateful Act

Just for the record, let it be known Dodger fans are responsible for this editorial.

The trade of Jackie Robinson to the New York Giants illustrates that there is nothing even remotely resembling sentiment in a baseball organization front office.

All right, so it's a business. But no industry is closer to the hearts of the people and it should behave with a little bit of responsibility.

Jackie Robinson's life will become an American legend. He was the first to break the color line in big league ball, a feat that required almost superhuman courage. Insulted at hotels where his teammates were registered, gouged and injured by opposing players without the umpires seeming to notice, libeled by all kinds of filthy names screamed from the stands, Robinson made all his enemies slink back to their holes.

A sportsman, he took it long enough to prove he could and then fought back. An athlete, his fielding miracles and his powerful bat made those who hated him look like third graders calling names because they couldn't beat the older boys. Incidentally, he sparked the Dodgers to several pennants. His success in a widely beloved sport with traditions of democracy made all Americans stop and think.

Well, they've traded him. For cash and players they've sold him across the East River to the hated Giants. Just like the Giants got rid of Sal Maglie when they didn't think they needed him.

As we said, we're Dodger fans. But nothing could make us happier now to see the "expendable" Robinson, the great champion, lead the Giants to a pennant.

Calling The Card

Ode To Little Town Of Budapest

By JIM McINTYRE

Oh! Little town of Budapest, how still we see thee lie;
Now, while you're deep in fitful sleep the refugees go by.
They flee to leave oppression, Man's cruelty to Man
And while they flee, behind they see the glorious five-year plan.

Hark the filthy red barrage,
Glory to Kadar, down with Nagy,
Human life is cheap and low,
Heretics have got to go!
Peace on Earth! and mercy mild,
Kill the mother, starve the child.
Scatter families far and wide,
'Tis the eve of Christmastide

God rest ye merry Gentlemen, who sit in Kremlin's hall,
Remember, in protest of you, the noble rebels fell,
To show the free world what it means to want freedom for all.
Oh, Tidings of Comfort and Joy.

Sing of Santa sing the tree,
Sing of Clinton Tennessee
Sing the segregation plan
Glory to the Ku Klux Klan
Peace on Earth! and mercy mild.

Human rights are now defiled,
He is black, and I am white.

Black makes wrong, white makes right,
Silent Night! Holy Night!
"Them niggers better hadn't fight!"
Pushing, jeering, taunting pinching,
Do the job as well as lynching
Sleep in heavenly peace

It came upon a midnight clear, that glorious song of old,
And still the world refuses love, and still men's hearts grow cold.
Peace on the Earth, good will to men, seem but two empty dreams,
Wherever men oppresses man, and where the hate tide streams.

Sing of Hate sing of Greed,
Sing the communistic creed,
Sing your song to wake the nation,
To the plot of integration,
Sing it loud and sing it clear,
The day of hatred now is here.

Joy to the world, the tyrant reigns,
O'er fate of black and white,
While preaching his gospel of war and hate,
To everyone in sight!

Sing the Carol once again,
"Peace on Earth! Good Will to Men!"

"I TAKE IT YOU'LL BE LEAVING FOR VACATION DIRECTLY AFTER CLASS?"

Way To Schedule Events Not Known

TO THE EDITOR:

In reply to the editorial in last Tuesday's Flambeau concerning the overabundance of campus activities on the weekend of December 7th and 8th, I would like to clarify a few facts.

FIRST I would like to say that I agree with you completely in your opinion that there were too many things going on. It would have been impossible for anyone to attend all of the things scheduled, and yet all of them were worthy of a large attendance.

I believe the reason there was such a conflict is that the majority of the students do not know the proper way to schedule their organization's activities. In the Office of Special Events in 101 Westcott Mrs. Kathryn Vernon has a university calendar for the school year on which are listed all club meetings, parties, dances, concerts, and speech productions. If a group is planning any activity, they should check with her before they make any other plans, because she can help them pick the time when nothing else is going on so that they may be assured the best possible results. It must be noted here that neither the Junior Class Picnic nor the Campus Chest Dance ever was placed on the calendar.

AT THE beginning of each school year every campus organization will again receive an opportunity to schedule their events early. If this is done perhaps any future conflicts will be avoided. I would like to ask all of the organizations to please co-operate on this.

Sincerely,
JOAN CUNNINGHAM
Undersecretary of Events

Doesn't Think Adams Studious

TO THE EDITOR:

In the letter to the editor column in the December 14th Flambeau, C. F. Adams says he is a student. Reading his letter, I do not get that impression. A student is willing to learn, to change his mind. A student draws his conclusions from facts not prejudice. I don't like the idea of integration. Here, Mr. Adams and I agree. However, I see no sense in fighting it. I recognize that discrimination on the basis of skin color is ridiculous. I am willing to help integration to work here at FSU, and at all other places, too. Mr. Adams and I certainly disagree here.

THE PURPOSES of integration are:

1.) To give the Negro as good an opportunity for education as the whites have. This means good schools, equipment and instructors. Under the "separate but equal" Supreme Court doctrine, the Negroes did not get this. When the Negro is given equal facilities for learning, he will be free to find his place in society, not forced to the bottom.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

2.) TO ELIMINATE discriminatory tendencies among children, so that there will be no integration problems in the future. The gist of one of the songs in the recent Light Opera Guild production, "South Pacific", was that "You've Got To Be Taught To Hate." That is true. White children have no natural tendency to hate Negro children, their parents teach them. Integrated schooling should overcome this to a great degree.

Mr. Adams' views do not represent the beliefs of the majority of FSU students as is borne out by the recent Board of Control integration poll. At both FSU and the University of Florida, the majority of students indicated they would not oppose integration.

I AM SURE that the Flambeau staff did not intend to imply that Mr. Adams is crazy; just that he and the segregationists who advocate violence have the wrong judgement. Lynching, mob attacks, and intentional agitation are or should be illegal. Objections to integration should be voiced in court.

There are psychological reasons, no doubt, for the persecution of the Negroes by the segregationists. Perhaps it makes them feel more important. A sign of subpar intelligence is the desire to appear more important than one actually is. Segregationist reasoning also indicates subpar intelligence. Their claims that one human race (Negroes) actually significantly differs in intelligence from another human race certainly can have no basis in reason.

POOR PEOPLE will have low standards because they cannot afford better, not because they like it that way. Negroes, especially Southern Negroes, are poor because they are not allowed to work in good-paying occupations. They are not allowed to accumulate enough money to better themselves. True, they are often comparatively uneducated, but only because their educational facilities are substandard.

Sincerely yours,
CARL JOHNSON

Editor's Note: The Flambeau inadvertently transposed, or "scrambled", segments of Mr. Adams' Letter, for which it apologized to Mr. Adams. Mr. Johnson, however, who delivered his letter to us in person, said he was aware of the transpositions in the letter and intended to criticize only Mr. Adams reasoning.

Poses Question For Adams

CC Concert Could Show Way

TO THE EDITOR:

The concept that was realized in the recent Campus Composers' Concert has excited me with the potential it bore.

I WOULD BE so delighted if such realms of creative art be given more more more encouragement. Not just in music, but in all the arts, our dancers, painters, writers could be so much more inspired with such further support.

I personally know that there is enough literary material produced now to fill four issues a year of a worthy magazine. I hope that the concert is a symbol of future attentions directed to the fields of art.

Congratulates F-Bo Writers

TO THE EDITOR,

Congratulations to columnist Dyckman for correctly calling the turn on Elvis Presley. One of the best bits of analytical and didactic writing I've seen. Should be made compulsory reading for all the Elvis crowd.

Arnold Greenfield too, along with Martin Dyckman, should get a medal or something for continually writing one of the most entertaining and thought-provoking of columns in this year's Flambeau.

More power!

More And Bigger 'Frills' Needed

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Former Governor Millard Caldwell chose the wrong year to make public, in his hardly timid manner of communicating ideas, his opinions on "frills" in modern higher education.

His judgment that such things as football teams and dormitories are unessential should have been reserved until after the Board of Control selects a new president for FSU. After all, as Mr. Caldwell himself explained, a university president is primarily a business administrator. Such hindrances as policy and educational theory should not come between him and the Board.

THE FORMER governor is an influential man. His recent comments can only set back some inexorable trends in higher education, the thwarting of which would remove us back to a European system of sheer intellectualism.

For instance, higher education costs money. The more students that clamor to be educated, the more money must be spent. This would mean higher fees or higher taxes, both alternatives are best firmly and finally put aside at this point. What will be done is to buy, for a small initial investment, something like the Cleveland Browns or Chicago Bears, scheduling their games in different Florida cities, to raise much money for the university.

MR. CALDWELL's other dislike, the dormitories, where students earnestly discuss philosophy, theology and literature, proving that professors rank beneath residence halls and libraries, are absolutely essential. A university simply has to have buildings. Tall ones. Eleven stories, in fact, even if one must count the basement. To be blunt, FSU isn't building dorms fast enough. Students alone can't pay for them. A grander plan is in order.

Universities must prepare the youth for life. Our world is one of tension and stress. Making ROTC compulsory, then, was but realizing the military obligation of the university. Let's ask the Federal Government to abandon those uneconomical tent camps like Fort Jackson and Benning and send recruits HERE for basic training. The government could help build the dorms, and our students could profit by the military environment. "Education," said an immortal sage, "builds men." "Military service," said another, "builds men." What could be more logical?

IT TOOK universities years to realize the necessity of teaching baking science and restaurant and hotel management. But although we have those courses now, duly awarding the BS, students get little chance to practice. We need a huge hotel on campus! And we must have a bakery to serve it! It is clear that the Circus, Gymkana, the Marching Chiefs, et al must stage monthly pageants to draw tourists from all over the world. The cooperation of the frate[rni]ties and sororities could be [as]sured by guaranteeing the p[ro]ceeds to Campus Chest. W[hat] headlines! Even the symph[ony] and choruses could participa[te].

Between pageants, we co[uld] enlarge our convention progr[am] inviting not just the Florida F[ed]eration but the other 47 f[ed]erations of garden clubs to c[on]vene in beautiful Tallahass[ee]. And we could get the Amer[ican] Legion to meet here by poin[ting] out the advantages of a un[iver]sity right at hand for invest[iga]tive purposes. Money! Fame! [A] cosmopolitan education for [our] students!

A PERFUNCTORY examina[tion] of popular and "quality" ma[g]azines will impress one bey[ond] all argument that many edu[ca]tional functions are being assu[m]ed by probably unqualified co[n]cerns. For instance, the Ros[i]crucians profess to know phi[los]ophy, Arthur Murrey lays cla[im] to eminence in dancing a[nd] other firms offer courses in el[ec]tronics, draftsmanship, crea[tive] writing and the like. We are [ig]noring our noble calling. Let[']s educate them, by mail or other[]wise.

Our conclusion can only [be] that people who oppose nece[s]sary programs as "frills" are [re]actionaries impeding progress.

CC Concert Was Of High Caliber

By LOWELL RODDENBERRY

An appreciative and near-capacity audience filled Opperman Music Hall last Thursday night for Phi Mu Alpha's second annual Campus Composers Concert. Student and faculty composers were represented in a program that was much better organized and contained a higher caliber of music than last year's initial effort. The Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonians are to be much commended for this, perhaps the most noteworthy of their projects.

OPENING the concert with the first movement of a projected piano sonata was Mary Armistead. Sophomore piano major from the studio of Phyllis Rappeport. In the dual role of pianist and composer, Miss Armistead acquitted herself beautifully and aroused an enthusiastic response from the audience. A sensitivity for a lyric sweeping line evinced itself in an idiom that might be termed neo-impressionistic. The form and harmonic structure of the work, as befits a student composer, contained no startling innovations but displayed real craftsmanship and promise.

Dr. Howard Wilson, assisted by mezzo-soprano Chris Bryan, offered two songs, "Purple Iris" and "Little Lamb" with texts by his wife and William Blake respectively. Miss Bryan was called upon at the last moment to perform the songs and did an admirable job. The songs were pleasant and melodious. A longer, more representative piece of his talent will be looked forward to on the next program.

THE MOST complex and inaccessible work of the evening were the first two movements of David Ward-Steinman's piano sonata. On first hearing, the listener is confronted with a completely abstract harmonic idiom of a rather uncompromising nature. The juxtaposition of rhythmic and lyric sections well define the form of the first movement, and its virtuoso qualities, along with its powerful rhythmic drive so much to help sustain attention on first hearing. The second movement seemed to suffer from brevity, but such an impression will undoubtedly be resolved by the addition of a final movement. Ward-Steinman has undergone a distinct harmonic change which this reviewer likes and appreciates. The sonata in its entirety merits many more performances.

Two arias from Carlisle Floyd's recent New York operatic success, Susannah, were tastefully and artistically sung by Edith Kaup. Arias out of their operas however, are less successful in that the text is made somewhat obscure. New York critics have called Susannah great musical theatre, with which we concur wholeheartedly.

THE SONATINA for violin and piano of Dr. John Boda brought a distinguished end to the first half of the program. This two movement work won the 1956 National Phi Mu Alpha award. Deservedly so, for Dr. Boda's sonatina exemplifies great finesse, consistency and a mature handling of his materials.

Ryan Edwards' much heralded one-act opera, "See the Wind" met with overwhelming approbation.

THE GIFT HORSE

The college life is a busy one, especially at this time of year. What with going to classes and studying for exams and pursuing a full social schedule and constructing rope ladders to foil dormitory curfews, the average undergrad is so pressed for time that he cannot do justice to his Christmas shopping.

Therefore, to aid you in your Christmas shopping, I have gone into the market place and selected for you a list of gifts, notable for their originality.

Perhaps the most original gift of all this year is a carton of Philip Morris Cigarettes. "Original?" you exclaim, your bushy young eyebrows rising. "Why, we have been giving cartons of Philip Morris for years!"

True, I reply, but each time you give Philip Morris, it is a new treat, a fresh delight, a pristine pleasure. Each carton, each pack, each cigarette, each puff, is just as good as the first one you ever tried.

Another gift destined for certain popularity this year is a gift certificate from the American Dental Association. This certificate, good at any dentist's office in America, is accompanied by a handsome gift card upon which is engraved this lovely poem:

Merry Christmas, little pal,
Do you need some root canal?
Prophylaxis? Porcelain caps?
Bridgework to close up them gaps?
Shiny braces that will straighten?
Inlays? Fillings? Upper platen?
Merry Christmas to your teeth,
And the rosy gums beneath.

Another gift that is always welcome is a book, especially to people who read. This Christmas the selection of books is particularly attractive. For lovers of anthologies, there is William Makepeace Sharpe's A Treasury of the World's Great Treasuries. For those who fancy inspiring success stories, there is the stirring autobiography of William Makepeace Pemmican entitled How I Got a Forty Pound Monkey Off My Back and Started the Duluth Zoo. For devotees of skin-diving, there is I Married a Snorkel by Lydia Makepeace Watershed. For calorie counters and waistline watchers, there is Harry Makepeace Wildfoster's Eat and Grow Fat.

My own favorite book this season is a pulse-pounding historical novel from that famous author of pulse-pounding historical novels, Daphne Makepeace Sigafoos. This one is called Egad and Zounds, and it tells the poignant romance of two young lovers, Egad and Zounds, who, alas, can never be married, for fiery Egad is but a gypsy lass, while tempestuous Zounds is a Kappa Sigma. They later become Ludwig of Bavaria.

My final gift suggestion is one that a great many people have been fervently wishing for since last year. Do you remember the introduction last Christmas of tiny personal portable radios that plugged into your ear? Well, this year, you will be delighted to know, you can buy an ingenious pick to get them out.

© Max Shulman, 1956

Old Max said it, but it bears repeating: A carton of Philip Morris, made by the sponsors of this column, is a Christmas gift that's bound to please everyone!

Everything's Wrong!

When one things goes wrong, everything goes wrong—an old axiom and it's holding true right along for the Seminole basketball team this year.

It started out that fateful last game in Gainesville where Florida impossible about 20 the Seminoles to a 67-65 win to Florida's Gators.

After then, in the last two the Seminoles just haven't against Texas A&M they did nothing after the first minutes of play to halt the scoring tide, and Saturday against East Tennessee they climbed in a final minute drive but it on the rim for the 7th point time.

There are two theories on what is the matter that Florida one does it, either ills them a great year, or drops them so far as decisively.

Suppose is to have done the latter. Head Kennedy's charges, as in the two games aforementioned. They were mainly the individual club which gave Florida a ferocious battle.

Hits And See

The most surprising development in the Seminole cage scene the last three games has been the leap so soaring high by guard Joe Watts a leaper who is fast coming to be coming into his own according to our unofficial figures Watts tallied just 28 points last year, playing very little behind Jimmy Oler. This year, he has only 16 points in the first 3 games, then suddenly found his range.

He started out with a phenomenal splurge against the Usher. of Florida, hitting eight of ten field goal attempts, and tallying 20 points altogether. Then Saturday against the Aggies, he hit 14 more, and then duplicated the performance Saturday night against East Tennessee.

The Jacksonville senior scores are a steadily set afoot from the foul circle, though he drives well and also scores frequently that way.

His only deficiency at present seems to be that he slows down considerably in the second half, exemplified by the fact that he garnered only four points in the second halves of the Texas A&M and East Tennessee games.

However, he has been steadily creeping up on Seminole scoring leaders Hugh Durham and Tommy Garcia, now standing third with 66 points and an 11.0 average.

If he starts to hit in both halves, three two gentlemen had better take notice, their positions as scoring leaders might be in considerable danger.

Odds And Ends

Coach Bill Odenea's Seminole volleyballers recently claimed the St. Petersburg Invitational Crown, and may be on their way to another good year . . . . Edwin Jenkins of Jacksonville has been named 1958-59 captain for the Seminole golfers . . . . Gymnasts Face Michigan State Here Tomorrow

Florida State's gymnastics team opens their regular season here tomorrow night against Michigan State at 8 p.m. in the men's gymnasium.

It will be the first time the two institutions have met in dual competition. Admission is free.

Buchbone of the gymnastics team are its three earliest champions — Jamile Ashmare, Chick Cleis and Ronald Amaier.

Ashmore a 5-4, 120-pound Texan, won the National Collegiate Athletic Association free exercise title. Amaier the NCAA high bar title and Cleio is holder of the NAAU free exercise crown.

Other gymnasts expected to compete are Joe Gusic, Rafael Lecuona, Roger Webb, Laird Anderson, Don Prosser, Bob Murray, Tommy MacDonald and Don Rosansky.

Michigan State's team includes Donald Less, Angelo Fista, Calvin Girard, James Cook, James Brena and Lee Simpson.

Tomorrow's opener with the Spartans opens a 15-meet slate which will send the Tribe against such teams as Illinois, Western Illinois and Georgia Tech.

Over the forthcoming holidays, FSU will send an 11 man team to the South National Gymnastics clinic at Sarasota, the highlight being the North-South meet, in which teams from all over the nation will be represented.

UP IN THE AIR. Tribe guard Bobby Watts gets off a one hand jump shot against Texas A&M, as an Aggie defender tries in vain to stop it. Under the basket is center Larry Strom (13) in case of a rebound. A&M broke the Tribe's home win streak at 23 with an 83-74 victory.

Only Soph On Starting Five, Durham Leads Cage Scorers

The only sophomore on the starting five, Hugh Durham leads the team in scoring

"Hugh is a fine team man as well as being an excellent shot," says Coach Bud Kennedy.

The 5-11 rager began his athletic career at Eastern High School in Louisville, Ky., where he lettered all four years in football, basketball, baseball and track.

During his last two years the quiet guard was elected to the all-District and all-Regional teams, and in his senior year was named on the all-Louisville Invitational team.

Declining several scholarships offered by universities near Louisville, Durham came to Florida State "just because he wanted to go to school away from home."

NO SCHOLARSHIP

Although he was not holding a scholarship when he came, he earned one through his fine performance as the leading scorer on the freshman team.

This season Hugh is leading the team statistically. Having played seven games, he has scored 37 field goals and 25 foul goals for a total of 99 points.

Averaging 14.1 points per game, Durham also has the individual season high—26 points against Bradley.

According to Coach Bud Kennedy Hugh is "one of the most alert defenders on the team. One of the things I like about him is that he likes to play defensive as well as offensive ball."

SAE Frat Cage Champions; Defeat SN's, 52-37 In Final

SAE dumped SN Saturday night 52-37 at the men's gymnasium to win the fraternity intramural basketball championship.

The SAE's moved into the finals with a win over SC. They got off to a big jump early in the game and went on to win 52-41. SC's big scorers of previous games failed to hit and ended up with only 12 field goals.

Joyner with 18 and Lewis with 16 led the scoring for the winners.

On Friday, Sigma Nu eliminated PDT and moved into the finals with a 45-31 victory. The SN's played deliberately and made good on almost 50% of their shots.

Although Skinner of PDT was high point man with 14, three men had double figures for SN, Brock 12, Poole 11, and Benner with 10.

DORM BASKETBALL

The Feds moved into the final game of the year last night with a slim lead for the Dorm-Independent basketball crown.

They smashed past the Playboys in the decisive game of the year last week 36-25. Both teams were undefeated to that point. The Feds took a 11-5 lead at the quarter and 22-15 at the half, but the Playboys almost caught them at the finish.

Two nights previously the Feds won a sloppy game from the Penthouse 37-31, and sat by the Co-Op House 21-29.

Other game scores since the last Flambeau report: Rebels upset the Penthouse 42-33, Methodists defaulted to Co-Op. BSU beat Bentley Hall 45-34 even though Pasquale dumped in 22 points for the losers. The revisited Vets Club defied the years and beat Magnolia Hall 45-15.

Playboys nosed out Bentley Hall 40-36, BSU beat Magnolia 51-31, Co-Op came from behind to beat the Rebels 38-33.

TOUCH FOOTBALL

The intramural touch football leagues resume play after the holidays with the fraternities shifting to a Tuesday and Thursday schedule at 4:15, and the Dorm and Independent league going to a Monday and Wednesday schedule.

The Dorm-Ind leagues play tonight and the fraternities finish their December play tomorrow night.

In the Frat leagues ATO, SN and TC are sat front with 3 wins and no losses in their respective leagues, with DTD also 3-0 and SAE 2-0.

ATO beat TEP 18-7, PKP barely took KS 13-12, SN ran up a 34-0 score on PKA, TC won a close 14-13 game from PKT. KS defaulted to DTD, PKP beat TEP 41-0. PDT won a well-played game from KA 14-7, SPE fell on PKA 25-7 SAE beat SC 13-0 and PKT beat LCA 31-13.

In the dorm league the Rebels are showing the way with 3 wins and no losses The Co-Op House leads the Independents alone with Methodists, both with a 3 and 1 record.

East Tennessee, A&M Dump Tribe

By BEN BALSER
Flambeau Sports Writer

"These are the times that try men's souls"

This might have been the thought that ran through the mind of Florida State's head basketball coach, Bud Kennedy, as he watched East Tennessee State hand the Seminoles their seventh straight defeat of the season, 62-56, last Saturday night in the men's gym.

Florida State, which is in its rebuilding season, pressed hard for its first win of the year but couldn't keep pace with the Buccaneers. Guard Jerry Wilhoit, a type of basketball acrobat, twisted his body into several indescribable positions to score 21 points for the Bucs and become high scorer in the game.

Wilhoit hit for nine field goals by driving in from all angles and seemed to befuddle the bigger Seminoles under the basket. Herb Weaver also helped drown the Tribe by sinking 13 free throws.

WAITS HOT

Bob Walls, 6-0 guard for the Seminoles scored 16 points to lead the losers. Stu Gregory, FSU forward, hit for 11 and Bob Williams tallied 10. Williams 6-8 center also led the Tribe in rebounds with 14.

The Buccaneers gained a big advantage from the foul line. They scored 31 out of 45 trys to overshadow the Tribe advantage in field goals 21-17. They also chased hands numerous times during the first half and the score at halftime read FSU 34, East Tennessee 33.

The Seminoles came back in the second half and took the lead 38-33 on the strength of baskets by Williams and Gregory. FSU kept the lead until the Bucs pulled ahead 56-46 with about four minutes remaining.

The Tribe did the score at 54-54 but accurate free throws by East Tennessee helped them pull ahead and win Coach Kennedy commented "although the team is losing I think they are improving with every game."

LOSE TO A&M

Texas A&M led by George Mehaffey, hailed FSU's 23 home game victory streak last Thursday by whipping the Tribe 83-74.

Mehaffey 6-5 senior scored 32 points to lead both teams. He fouled out with about six minutes left in the game. Ken Rioto, who was rated A&M's top man, left the game in the first half after pouring in 14 tallies.

Four men hit in the double figures for the Tribe. Hugh Durham led the FSU team with 19 followed by Watts with 17. Bob Williams hit for 13 and also led the Seminoles in rebounding with 11. Guard Tom Gerdis, besides playing a fine defensive game, had 16 markers.

attract, in its nature. Therefore, different standards of criticism must be applied to a work which bears dramatic as well as musical significance. "See the Wind" is frankly, one might say, vulgarity romanticize in its concept. As contemporary music, it invites criticism. As lyric drama unquestionably, it justifies itself.

Half an hour in length, the opera meets the exigencies of chamber opera admirably. The most damning praise is that the opera practically bursts its seams with talent and could justifiably be expanded into a longer work. His work up to the present has been of imitation, and the future will bring with it an ever expanding development and maturity.

Soloists in order of appearance were Phyllis de Kalb as Mrs. Collins, who possesses an exciting voice of professional calibre; Peter Peck's credible characterization of Bill Collins, the funtime and prodigal son who substantiates the plot of the opera, projected consistently and brought his considerable dramatic talent to the fore. Every opera has its inevitable tenor whom Sam Jordan justified with a beautiful performance. See the Wind" became a vehicle to prominence for Mary Jane Marriott, who enthralled and enchanted in her role as Sue Collins.

The lighting which set off the opera so beautifully can be attributed to Barry Laws and George Goldstein.

THE ORCHESTRATION was competent and well-sounding. Another facet of Edwards' talent was shown by his authoritative conducting. He wrote his own libretto and did his own directing. Mr. Edwards is a highly talented person and with the right contacts, will undoubtedly achieve success. Of what degree only time will tell.

A Letter
Indian Student Writes On Nehru's Visit

Editor's Note: The current visit of India's Prime Minister Nehru to the United States by talks with President Eisenhower prompted Prakash Sood, Indian graduate student in the physics department, to write this informative letter to the Flambeau. His country attained independence in 1947 after 200 years of British rule.

BY PRAKASH SOOD

The Indian Prime Minister, Jawaharlal Nehru is now paying on a visit to the United States. He has come with a mission, to understand United States approach and to interpret precisely his country's viewpoint on the subjects of mutual interest. It will be of interest to look up briefly the background of the man and his present mission

THE FIRST picture, that always flashes before my mind as the mension of this name, is the year 1928 when a revolutionary youth, Jawaharlal, president of the Indian National Congress assembled in Lahore once again (all of Punjab, Pakistani declared "Complete independence is our objective". Before that the Congress Party had demanded Dominion Status similar to that one enjoyed by Canada From that day on, Jawaharlal, as a member of a highly aristocratic family of Kashmiri origin, was brought up by European nurses at home and education in the of public schools of England, became the forebearers of the struggle for independence backed by his boundless energy and supreme devotion to the cause He was always true to his guide, Mahatma Gandhi and following Mahatma he dedicated all his personal and family belongings to the nation he does not even own a house. In this process of a total and personal progress he acquired a claim in the whole country, and today he is in every sense, the representative of the whole nation irrespective of the party considerations. In his dealings with the rulers of that to have one glimpse of this man, who through his sacrifice and sincerity, has identified himself with the masses and whose only interest is the progress of India.

AND NOW about his mission. In the international sphere, particularly in her relations with the United States, India's foreign policy has certain apprehensions of the military alliances especially when they affect her borders. Also she zealously guards her self-respect and possibility of the revival of the colonial influences.

To explain this point I may point out that as a boy about in my high school I had to take an oath in the name of "God, King and Country". His Majesty the King of England and the Emperor of India had power for loyalty over the country. Moreover I had to learn somebody the history of Great Britain with all its strange-sounding names when I was just twelve. Naturally I would like every precaution not to see that the coming generation is safe from any such exposures—howsoever far-fetched they may

Speech Department Plans 'Children's Theatre' Production

Members of the Speech Department are working in conjunction with the Tallahassee service frauie on an annual Children's Theater production to be presented January 19, 21 and 22 in the Conrad theater. Dr. Lynn Orr announced

Final try-outs were held last week for parts in "Aladin and His Wonderful Lamp," the play selected for the production. The production, cast and directed by Dr. Orr is produced in conjunction with the Service League for presentation for the elementary school children of Leon County.

"Children's Theater" offers an opportunity for actors to play to an entirely different type of audience than is usually encountered in Speech Department productions, Dr. Orr said. Children often become excited and try to help the actors, shouting warnings to the hero and trying to thwart the villians . . . "It's fun," he added.

ALAN'S AISLE
'Death Of Scoundrel' Is Slick, Fascinating

By ALAN KASS

George Sanders, who appears to have made a profession of portraying heels, clicks effectively in the title role of "Death Of A Scoundrel." Some Eastern viewers may find this picture and death of financial schemer and Manhattan playboy Serge Rubinstein.

The story starts with Sanders discovered dead in his Park Avenue mansion How he came to this end is revealed by Yvonne De Carlo, who also has reason to wealth with Sanders from a past of petty thievery. Sanders' past is told in flashbacks with several young ladies appearing from one minute to the next.

To get his big start in America, he informed on his brother and thus started on many of his lovely schemes. He makes a quick killing on a new penicillin stock, tries to ruin a mail order broom, and trips his charms on several females before he gets his comeuppance

As the villain, Sanders is thoroughly at home in the role He is elegant and deft with the upper and lower crusts of society. Yvonne De Carlo does a solid job as the adoring thief who rises to importance with him. The other sexie, Zea Zea Gabor, Nanee Gates, Coleen Grey and Lisa Ferraday are all interesting attractive and characterizations. As a whole this Hungarian was quite good and so was the musical score by Max Steiner. The picture is in black and white, thus enhancing the dreary mood.

"Death of a Scoundrel" is a slick and fascinating case study of a man too ruthless to enjoy and age.

THOSE WOOLY WESTERNS

It seems that almost every western in the past few years has been reminiscent of "High Noon" or "Shane." Not only do the ads of "Tension at Table Rock" plug these two, but the title is similar to yet another western, "Bad Day at Black Rock." The latter is the one letter short of an exact spelling copy.

Going on with the comparison there was a haunting ballad called seem to be Beyond this India's policy of "Positive neutrality" and "Panch Shila" (five principles of peaceful co-existence adopted at the Bandung Conference) is directed towards peace at home, and peaceful settlement of all problems abroad. Broadly it is the policy adopted by the United States on the Suez issue, though with her wide resources and influence, this has brought another and more concrete results. Whatever be the developments, one thing is certain, i.e. India due to her deep-rooted cultural background, has a fundamental approach which refuses to be biased on human distrust or hatred. It can never compromise with the Communistic ideology. Any realistic appraisal of India's situation points out to this conclusion, and has been brought forth by the reports and public utterances of recent U. S. Ambassadors to India, Chester Bowles and Sherman Cooper. Chief Justice Earl Warren, and others who visited the land and saw things for themselves with our predictive

It is in this direction that the great significance of this visit lies. A first hand thorough analysis of the situation and the personal contact of the heads of the two nations can bring about the understanding of the true motives and the sincerity of the approach. This understanding shall be the cornerstone of Democracy in Asian Countries.

A Kappa Psi Sets Up Model Training Plan

By ARLIEDA RIES

Under the direction and supervision of President Percy Steele, Alpha Kappa Psi, national professional business fraternity, has recently inaugurated an executive training program which could be a model for other campus organizations.

Realizing the difficulty newly-elected club, fraternity on sorority officers have in interviewing or directing organizational policies and responsibilities, Steele first conceived of the idea shortly after he became president of the Delta Alpha chapter.

Obviously the problem was not limited to his fraternity alone. Due to the fast rate of officer turn-over this is true of all other college organizations.

Trainees are selected strictly on a volunteer basis. Each prospective simply volunteers to train for the particular office for which he is interested in obtaining.

As a result of the program the fraternity has several qualified persons in each position from which to select their officers for the next term.

"Though the program is unique and outstanding one, the fraternity does not want to keep the idea" a spokesman commented. "The fraternity is willing to help any interested organization to establish this program within their particular organization."

But, my dear! I just can't stop talking about that wonderful throw pillow selection at Shaw's! It's nothing but fabulous—all sorts of shapes, sizes, colors, and fabrics. SHARES Sets Hungarian Aid Piano Concert

Dohnanyi, Kilenyi To Play Tuesday

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

A Hungarian-born pianist and his protege who studied with him in Budapest will present a joint concert next Tuesday in Westcott Auditorium to raise scholarship money for Hungarian refugee students.

FSU faculty members, Dr. Ernst von Dohnanyi, who is an internationally known pianist, composer and Edward Kilenyi, a renowned pianist in his own right, said their concert will contain entirely of Hungarian music.

Tickets will go on sale tomorrow at $1.50 each, with the proceeds going to SHARES—Students Hungarian Aid and Relief for Establishment of Scholarships.

SHARES, whose chairman is Frank Pain, was established by Florida students to help Hungarian programs and raise money enough to bring as many as 10 refugees from Soviet tyranny to the university.

General Body President Dave Bachman said the average direct cost of bringing a student here will be $696. The university fees will be waived and part-time employment for all the beneficiaries seems assured.

NEED DONATIONS

Bachman stressed that even the proceeds from a filled Westcott auditorium—over $2,000—will not be enough for only eight scholarships. Direct contributions are now asked from those who cannot attend the Dohnanyi-Kilenyi concert or who would like to donate more.

The Tallahassee Post Office has agreed to forward letters simply addressed "SHARES," Bachman added.

The benefit concert, to begin at 8:15 p.m., will feature the sonata for two pianos and percussion by the contemporary Hungarian, Bela Bartok. Dohnanyi is to conduct the work with Kilenyi and Dr. John Boda as pianists, and Dr. Robert Barton, Norman Myers and David Ward-Steinman of the School of Music making up the percussion trio.

Kilenyi will open the concert by playing two numbers from Dohnanyi's "Ruralia Hungarica," following by Dohnanyi's performance of two Liszt compositions, "Consolation" and "12th Hungarian Rhapsody." Kilenyi's Tchetry and Gridley and Baker music stores as well as at Westcott auditorium.

SHARES chairman Pain said the project may be assisted by fraternities and sororities. Interested living quarters for the Hungarian refugees will be investigated. Also all interesting in cooperating will probably be asked to help.

INTERPRETOR FOUND

Rideaurd Wagner, a graduate student in the School of Education department, will serve as interpreter not only for SHARES scholarship students but also for the scholarship established by the Tallahassee Fellowship of Presbyterian Student Organization.

Both groups have said they hope to have the beneficiaries on campus by second semester. The Fellowship has an application on file with World University Service, an international organization, and SHARES can be in touch with them on 72-hour notice, Bachman said.

Participation of Dr. Dohnanyi in SHARES is unique because the musician who for 30 years had been director of Budapest Symphony himself fled from Hungary to Austria in the same year that the Russian oppression during World War II. He came to the United States and in 1948 began his friendship with Dr. Kilenyi, who joined the faculty in 1936.

Shores To Speak At Scholarship Tea

Dr. Venita L. Shores, professor of history, will speak on the importance of scholarship at the Scholarship Tea scholarship tea tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in the Home Economics Building reception room.

Members said all alumnae of the Pi Chapter of Omicron Nu and home economics students are invited. It will be an open meeting at which scholarship awards will be presented to the student in each class who maintained the highest grade average.

Satch' To Play As Symphony Gives Up Date

Tickets went on sale yesterday for the Louis Armstrong Campus Chest concert here January 18. The date, originally scheduled for the University Symphony, was voluntarily given up by that group.

Robert Sedore, conductor of the University Symphony, explained this week that the executive committee of the Symphony reached the decision in the interest of the student body and in an attempt to cooperate fully with the Campus Chest effort.

The symphonic concert will be held on Monday, January 21 in Westcott Auditorium and will feature Frederich Kirchbaner playing the Schumann Piano Concerto as a partial fulfillment of his doctoral requirement. Kirchbaner is working toward a Doctor of Music degree the first such degree ever granted by the FSU School of Music.

The executive committee of the Symphony includes Charles Alley, president; Richard Adams, vice president; Pauline Hecht, secretary, and Bill Taylor and Phil Poore, publicity directors.

The tickets for the Armstrong concert are now on sale in the Westcott ticket booth at $1.25 per person. There will be no reserved seats for either of the performances. Armstrong and his band will present two concerts, each lasting about one hour fifteen minutes. The concert is being sponsored by Alpha Tau Omega with all proceeds going to the Campus Chest.

Student Wages To Be Higher If Budget OKed

Student assistants may have sizable wage hikes in store if the State Legislature accepts the budget of Controller 1957-58 budget.

The new budget includes $115,175 to be used to Florida State University student assistants as compared with the $81,675 which was allotted for the current year. The increase is due, in part, to the maximum wage of $1 adopted recently by the university.

Under the new budget additional money will be handed out to various departments, which will spend it as they see fit. Thus, they may either hire new assistants, pay their present ones more, or both.

Members of the committee on student scholarship and student employment estimated that the average wage paid assistants may so up from the present 85 cents an hour to 75 cents if the budget is passed by the legislature.

The increase in maximum pay for student assistants was authorized by the university last month. In 1956 following passage from student assistants.

In the same move, the university raised the minimum pay from 50 cents an hour to 60 cents, to begin with the 1957-58 school year beginning in September.

As in the past, all wages increases will be based on "individual appraisal of students' work by the departments.

FSU Joins In Festivities

By OSCAR JOHNSON

Florida will today bestow the mantle of office on its favorite citizen, Governor LeRoy Collins, in festive Tallahassee ceremonies.

All classes were to be suspended today to allow students to participate in events which began with a prayer service at 6:15 this morning in Mr. John's Episcopal Church. Ending the day will be the gigantic Inaugural Ball tonight from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. in the men's gymnasium.

Collins, who rode on his record as governor during a two-year unexpired term of the late McCarty to a landslide victory for a full four-year term, will today officially become the first man to serve as governor of Florida for more than four years in succession. His immense popularity was enough to secure him an unprecedented first ballot victory in the Democratic primary over three major opponents.

Actual inaugural ceremonies will begin at the capitol at 10:15 a.m. at the Capitol, with Secretary of State R. A. Gray presiding. Justice Campbell Thornal of the Florida Supreme Court will deliver the oath of office.

PARADE AT 1:36

The Inaugural Parade will begin at 1:36 p.m. at Monroe and Virginia streets, travel south on Monroe to Tennessee street, west one block and then north along Adams street to the Governor's Mansion across Brevard street.

FSU will figure in the inauguration with the Marching Chiefs leading the FAMU Marching Band and the University of Florida band in "Dixie," to be played after the inauguration oath. The Chiefs and Army-Air Force ROTC units will take part in the parade, and a good many students have entered cars on which floats entered by Florida cities.

MANSION OPENS

The new Governor's Mansion will be open to public inspection today from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. It is located on Adams street between Brevard and First avenue, and is still unfurnished.

Probably the busiest event of the day for Florida State University students will be the Inaugural Ball tonight from 9 until midnight in the men's gymnasium. Free to students and public, it will feature the 26-piece Florida State Band and records have been granted late permission until 1 a.m.

Officials expect between 4 and 6 thousand attendance at the ball. No dates will be held. During the last inauguration three separate dances had been held to accommodate the number who attended.

GYM LARGE ENOUGH

Dance Chairman Judd Chapman said during the last inauguration dances were held in separate Tallahassee large enough to hold the total crowd. Because of the FSU men's gym "should be large enough to handle the crowd."

Theme of the ball is "From Call to Colors," and will be decorated a Grand March to be led by Mrs. Collins. Decorations are being handled by Tallahassee-ans faculty and FSU students under the direction of Ivan Johnson head of the arts education department.

THEME DECORATE

The gymnasium will be decorated with six large decorating ornaments against a predominant color scheme of pale blue and white and gold accents. All windows will be swathed with blue and white drapes and ornaments Silhouettes of Governor and Mrs. Collins and the Seminole Symbol will be on call, great arrangements of MGM lions will be used along with greenery of all kinds.

Forty state flags will be distributed in the room and a mammoth green hedge will form the backdrop for the orchestra. Johnson said. All lighting will be indirect.

Governor Collins wanted the decorations to be simple and yet impressive, Johnson revealed, "We feel the ones we have arranged will be appropriate for the gymnasium." He said that mementos of previous Florida inaugurations will be placed in the showcases at the gym.

LEAVE CARS HOME

Persons planning to attend today's inauguration ceremonies and the parade downtown are asked to[illegible] Police Chief Frank Stoddard[illegible] leave their cars at home. The influx of out-of-town cars and the[illegible] parade will cause[illegible] for officials will create a traffic problem, he said.

Trailer Residents Move

By DAVE FLETCHER

West Campus trailer residents are being moved to a new location south of the West Campus area, R. G. Brewer, Director of Men's Residence Halls, confirmed yesterday.

The move, sponsored by the City of Tallahassee, is from the city-owned property, which the University leases, to a new trailer park on university property several blocks south of the old location. It resembles the move the city paid for the installation of sewage and water lines, and provided electrical hook-ups for the new trailer park.

This was done in order to clear the West Campus area of University residents preparatory to the future sale and subsequent construction of the new multimillion dollar City Manager Arch Bryan Knis said. The property will be offered for sale soon, although the University's lease is in effect until early in 1958, he added.

West Campus trailer residents voted to pay for the installation of sewage pipes to accommodate their trailers, Brewer said. An estimate of $54 for each patio was accepted, and the patios were constructed in time for trailers to be moved into the area during the Christmas holidays. Construction was handled by the University engineering department.

Spaces for 35 trailers were constructed, but these have all been assigned to families with trailers, and it is evident that more spaces will be needed in semesters to come Brewer said.

After every occupance of trailer residents, a wash house was constructed. The cost of this will be borne by the students. All of these costs will be incorporate in the space rental which will be slightly higher than previous trailer rental figures.

Trailer spaces which are being rented for $15 monthly until June 30, will increase to $18 on July 1, Division of the rentals is as follows: From the period starting January 1 to July 1, utility payments will claim 10 dollars and payment for patio construction will be five dollars, Brewer said.

Starting July 1, repayment of funds for the construction of the washhouse will necessitate raising the rentals. Excess money will be applied to the maintenance and upkeep for upkeep of the park and its facilities, Brewer added. The old trailer park cost $10 per space.

Plans for the construction of a community center building are being discussed, Brewer said, but present finances limit the scope of these plans. A community center would provide a meeting place for trailer residents, and would encourage social and community projects, perhaps resulting in the formation of cooperative nursery be speculated.

Police Hold Lost Bikes

Two students who perhaps thought bicycles could solve the transportation problem will be walking unless they reclaim their bikes from the campus police.

The police said they found two bicycles on campus during the Christmas vacation. The owners may recover them at the Maintenance Building by identifying them.

The police did not say whether the bicycles had blue or black enamel, nor did they announce whether an over-grown fish would be assessed.

JC's To Get Added Praise, No Salaries

Junior counselors should be given "more recognition" but salaries and free rooms are not feasible, according to a Student Senate committee.

Women's vice-president Carolyn Cline at a recent Senate meeting for the committee whose other members were Chairlia Lawrence and Charles Van Delinder, said neither the women's residence hall nor student government can afford salaries or room compensation.

The committee established by the Senate November 7, surveyed printing of the duties of junior counselors in the Tally-Ho and awarding pins or keys to new counselors when their terms are terminated each spring. The pins or keys should be paid for by Student Government in recognition of their work and service to the university, Miss Cline declared.

A poll of women non serving as junior counselors, seniors who were counselors last year, and this year's Sophomore Council members showed that while 50 percent favor compensation, and 21 percent opposed it, 24 percent feared it would tend to have a degrading effect upon the counseling system.

Apparently three percent who favor compensation were willing to forfeit the possibility of harm to the system.

Nineteen-sixty-two, the committee reported, would prefer free rooms or partial compensation of room rent instead of salaries.

Library Has Typewriters For Students

Additional service for the students has been incorporated at the FSU library—typewriters for the public, it was learned.

Norman Kilpatrick, director of the newly-constructed library, has announced that typewriters are available for student use.

Located at the desks in the various departments—one in science, one in documents, one in reference and—in the humanities, these typewriters are for typing term papers, but rather for making notes.

Students who, wish to use the typewriters may secure them from the librarian on duty in the department area. They may be checked out for use in the library building only.

Junior English Exam Slated For Makeups

Students taking the exam must pick up appointment cards on Saturday at the Registrar's office, 102A Westcott Building. Mrs Martha G Chapman, director of the Junior English program, said no student will be admitted to the examination without an appointment card.

Sophomores who made a grade of 78 or better in English 102 will be exempt from the previously compulsory test they make proper arrangements, Miss Chapman said.

Those qualifying must take a fee for exemption by Saturday in the Junior English office. Room 425 History Building.

Anyone failing to take the exam and desiring to do so will be required to pay a $5 deferment fee.

Required Tests Set January 10

An opportunity to take the American Council of Education psychological examination, California psychological test, the cooperative cultural test, will be offered January 10.

The exams are prerequisites to graduation, making it mandatory of all those who missed them at previous times pay the $5 deferment fee at the Test Service Bureau in the Education building before exam time. All others who are not delinquent exam fees appear at the appointed exam time.

The ACE exam will be given at 1 p.m. January 10 in 306 Science, and the cultural culture test at 8:45 in 124 Science.

KAT Sorority Raises Money For Hungary

The members raised $97.72. Today was sent off to UNRF. In charge of the fund-raising project was Barbara Brodrick.

Honor Court Suspends Seven For Cheating

Exposure of what was called a group organized to cheat on exams resulted in the suspension of two students and suspension, effective when the semester ends, for five others.

Honor Court Chief Justice Bill Manning said the court acted upon "conclusive" proof that the seven had compared answers and papers during eight tests given in one course this semester.

He said a member of Honor Court was present during the most recent test, two members of the class reported the offenses; and the defendants confessed to the charges before the Court just prior to the Christmas vacation.

Two of the defendants were suspended immediately one having been "once before" the Honor Court and suspended once, the other having been on administrative probation when accused of cheating, Manning explained.

FIVE MUST APPEAR

Five were allowed to finish the semester upon recommendation of the Faculty Committee for Review of Student Courts after they had confessed to Honor Code Violations, the Chief Justice stated.

He revealed that two additional students, when called as witnesses, voluntarily admitted they had cheated on the day in question and were placed on Honor Court probation.

All nine were given failing grades in the course.

Manning said the seven who have been or will be suspended from the university were guilty of "conduct unbecoming a Student Body."

STUDENTS REVOLTING

"The situation," he said, "had become so obvious it was just a question of time before students revolting because the curve had been forced so high by the cheaters."

I've heard it said that it would take a gentle-lawlife person to turn someone in," Manning continued, "but the majority of students seem to feel that it is rather the highest expression of loyalty."

These people were taking advantage of not just their classmates but of everyone."

DECLINES COMMENT

Manning declined to comment on rumors that several athletes, including one star football player, were among the seven accused of organized cheating.

"They are students first; athletes, if any, second," he answered.

Students who are suspended upon recommendation of the Honor Court may be readmitted after one semester, but the decision to do so, rather than being the Honor Court, is up to the university administration.

stract, in its nature. Therefore, different standards of criticism must be applied to a work which bears dramatic as well as musical significance. "See the Wind" is frankly, one might say, vulnerably romantic in its concept. As contemporary music, it invites criticism. As lyric drama, unquestionably, it justifies itself.

Half an hour in length, the opera meets the exigencies of chamber opera admirably. The most damning praise is that the opera practically bursts its seams with talent and could justifiably be expanded into a longer work. His work up to the present has been of imitation, and the future will bring with it an ever expanding development and maturity.

THE ORCHESTRATION was competent and well-sounding. Another facet of Edwards' talent was shown by his authoritative conducting. He wrote his own libretto and did his own directing. Mr. Edwards is a highly talented person and with the right contacts, will undoubtedly achieve success. Of what degree only time will tell.

Soloists in order of appearance were Phyllis de Kalb as Mrs. Collins, who possesses an exciting voice of professional calibre. Peter Peck's credible characterization of Bill Collins, the fugitive and prodigal son who substantiates the plot of the opera, projected consistently and brought his considerable dramatic talent to the fore. Every opera has its inevitable tenor which Sam Jordan justified with a beautiful performance. "See the Wind" became a vehicle to prominence for Mary Jane Marriott, who enthralled and enchanted in her role as Sue Collins.

The lighting when set off the opera so beautifully can be attributed to Barry Laws and George Goldstein.

Have Week Vacation

SYRACUSE, N. Y. -I.P.- Tentative four-range Syracuse University calendars indicate a return to spring vacation earlier than "Easter" vacation is in the form. The move, originally discussed by the personnel committee last spring will not affect the 1956-57 calendar.

According to present plans, the change-over will begin in 1957-58 when a week "spring" vacation is again scheduled for the end of March.

A Kappa Psi Sets Up Model Training Plan

By ARLIEDA RIES

Under the direction and supervision of President Percy Steele, Alpha Kappa Psi, national professional business fraternity, has recently inaugurated an executive training program which could be a model for other campus organizations.

Realizing the difficulty newly-elected club, fraternity on sorority officers have in interpreting of directing organizational policies and responsibilities, Steele first conceived of the idea shortly after he became president of the local AKPsi chapter.

Obviously the problem was not limited to his fraternity alone. Due to the fast rate of officer turn-over this is true of all other college organizations.

Trainees are selected strictly on a volunteer basis. Each member simply volunteers to train for the particular office for which he is interested in obtaining.

As a result of the program the fraternity has several qualified persons in each position from which to select their officers for the next term.

Though the program is a unique and outstanding one the fraternity does not want to limit the idea to a one-man operation. It has in mind "The fraternity is willing to help any interested organization to establish this program when a week "spring" vacation is adding their particular organi-

Speech Department Plans 'Children's Theatre' Production

Members of the Speech Department are working in conjunction with the Tallahassee service league on an annual Children's Theater production to be presented January 19 21 and 22 in the Conradi theater. Dr. Lynn Orr announced.

Final try-outs were held last week for parts in "Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp," the play selected for the production. The production, cast and directed by Dr. Orr is produced in conjunction with the Service League for presentation for the elementary school children of Leon County.

"Children's Theater" offers an opportunity for actors to play in an entirely different type of audience than is usually encountered in Speech Department productions. Dr. Orr said. Children often become excited and try to help the actors, shouting warnings to the hero and trying to thwart the villians . . . "It's fun," he added.

Unlimited Absences

FULTON, Mo.—I.P.—By faculty action the absence rules at Westminster College have been modified. The general substance of the new rules that represent changes from the previous rules is as follows:

One absence will be granted for each semester hour of credit given in a course, thus there are three unexcused absences in a three hour course. These are intended for use by the student on his personal business, and shall include absences taken to fill temporary jobs such as working in Post Office before Christmas vacation. However, students who utilize their absences for this purpose only and still need more may get excused absences from the Dean's office.

A Letter
Indian Student Writes On Nehru's Visit

Editor's Note: The current visit of India's Prime Minister Nehru to the United States for talks with President Eisenhower prompted Prakash Sood, Indian graduate student in the physics department, to write this informative letter to the Flambeau. His country attained independence in 1947 after 200 years of British rule.)

By PRAKASH SOOD

The Indian Prime Minister, Jawaharlal Nehru, is currently on a visit to the United States. He has come with a mission, to understand United States approach and to interpret perhaps his country's viewpoint on the problems of mutual interest. It will be of interest to look up briefly the background of the man and his present mission.

THE FIRST picture, that always flashes before my mind on the mention of this name, is the year 1936 when a revolutionary youth, Jawaharlal, president of the Indian National Congress session held in Lahore (now capital of newly Pakistan) declared "Complete independence is our objective." Since that day the Congress Party had demanded Dominion Status, similar to the one possessed by Canada. From that day on, Jawaharlal, as a member of a highly aristocratic family of Kashmiri origin, was brought up by European nurses at home and educated in the public schools of England, became the torch-bearer of the struggle for independence backed by his boundless energy and supreme devotion to the cause. He was always true to his guide, Mahatma Gandhi and following Mahatma he dedicated all his personal and family belongings to the nation he does not even own a house. In this process of giving up the personal property he acquired a stature in the whole country and to-day he is in every sense, the representative of the whole nation irrespective of all the party considerations. In Indian politics he is the only man left to have one ultimate of the nation, who, through his sacrifice and sincerity, has identified himself with the masses and whose every interest is the progress of India.

AND NOW about his mission. In the international sphere, particularly in her relations with the United States, India's foreign policy has certain apprehensions of the military alliances, especially when they involve her borders. Also she jealously guards her self-assured new possibility of the revival of the colonial influences. "To explain this point I may point out that as a boy aroud in my high school I had to take an oath on the name of "God, King and Country." "His Majesty the King of England and the Emperor of India" had priority for loyalty over the country. Moreover I had to learn communicate the history of Great Britain with all its strange-sounding names when I was just twelve. Naturally I would take every precaution now to see that the coming generation is safe from any such exposures—howsoever far-fetched they may seem to be. Beyond this India's policy of "dynamic neutrality" and "Panch Shila" Five principles of peaceful co-existence adopted at the Bandung Conference is directed towards peace at home, and peaceful settlement of all problems abroad. Broadly it is the policy adopted by the United States on the Suez issue. Though, will her wide resources and influence, this has brought another, and more concrete result. Whatever be the developments, one thing is certain, i. e India, due to her deep-rooted cultural background, has a fundamental approach which refuses to be based on human distrust or hatred, it can never compromise with the Communistic ideology. Any realistic appraisal of India's situation points out to this conclusion, as has been brought forth by the reports and public utterances of recent U. S Ambassadors to India, Chester Bowles and Sherman Cooper. Chief Justice Earl Warren, and others who visited the land and saw things for themselves without prejudice

It is in this direction that the great significance of this visit lies. A first hand thorough analysis of the situation and the personal contact of the heads of the two nations can bring about the understanding of the true needs and the sincerity of the approach. This understanding shall be the cornerstone of Democracy in Asian Countries.

ALAN'S AISLE
'Death Of Scoundrel' Is Slick, Fascinating

By ALAN KASS

George Sanders, who appears to have made a profession of portraying heels, clicks effectively in the title role of "Death Of A Scoundrel." Some Eastern viewers may find this picture vaguely reminiscent of the life and death of financial schemer Ivar Rubinstein.

"Do Not Forsake Me" in High Noon which won an Academy Award nomination. That song was heard several times during the picture. In "Tension" the song is "The Ballad of Wes Tancred." In Beard right times during the action, and portions of the refrain pop up thruout the movie. Needless to say, both scores were composed by Dimitri Tiomkin.

In "Shane" Alan Ladd played of little Brandon De Wilde. In "Tension" Wes Tancred's admiration of yet another. To wind things up, there is a gun duel at a certain time in the hero winning out, reminiscent of the gun battle between Cooper and the villains in "Shane" the hero rides off into the darkness.

The plot deals with Wes Tancred coming away from prison. It seems that he shot a man in a western Robin Hood and he is taken over since. He arrives in Table Rock to help a certain Cliff, who is married to a wealthy, out of a lot of certain trouble. The whole picture is rather dull. It stars Richard Basehart, Jean Mitchell and Dorothy Malone only merit a good photographic effort.

After seeing "Tension" I hope that I see "Shane" over television for Christmas.

Trailer Residents Move

By DAVE FLETCHER

West Campus trailer residents are being moved to a new location south of the West Campus area, R. G. Brewer, Director of Men's Residence Halls, confirmed yesterday.

The move, sponsored by the City of Tallahassee, is from the city-owned property which the University leases, to a new trailer park on university property several blocks south of the old location.

To expedite the move the city paid for the installation of sewage and water lines, and provided electrical hook-ups for the new trailer park.

This was done in order to clear the West Campus area of Universities' City Beautiful Association, Inc. Lee Mahon said. The property will be offered for sale soon, although no definite date will be set. The move is in effect until early in 1958, he added.

West Campus trailer residents voted to pay for the installation of a concrete patio to accommodate their trailers, Brewer said. An estimate of $8 for each patio was accepted, and the patios were constructed in time for trailers to be moved into the park during the Christmas holidays. Construction was handled by the University engineering department.

Spaces for 53 trailers were constructed, but there will be only 50 assigned to families with trailers, and it is evident that more spaces will be needed for members to come, Brewer said.

Per the agreement of trailer residents, a wash house was constructed. The cost of this will be borne by the students. All of these costs will be incorporated in the rental which will be slightly higher than previous trailer rental figures.

Manning declined to comment on rumors that several athletes, including one star football player, are among the seven accused of organized cheating.

Two students who perhaps thought bicycles could solve the transportation problem will be disappointed in their search for bikes from the campus police.

JC's To Get Added Praise, No Salaries

Junior counselors should be given "more recognition" but salaries and free rooms are not feasible, according to a Student Senate committee.

Women's Vice-president Carolyn Close, at a recent Senate meeting for the committee whose other members were Cynthia Lawrence and Charles Van Dellinger, said neither the women's residence halls nor student government can afford salaries or room compensation.

The committee established by the Senate November 7, suggested printing a group picture of junior counselors in the Tally-Ho and awarding pins or keys to new counselors when their names are announced each spring. The pins or keys should be paid for by Student Government in addition to their work and service to the university," Miss Close declared.

A poll of women now serving as junior counselors, seniors who were counselors in the past and this year's Sophomore Council members showed that while 72 percent favor compensation, and 21 percent opposed it, 6 per-cent favored a "multi. lend" to have a dreading effect upon the counseling system.

Apparently three percent who favor compensation and the administrative department, will serve as interpreter not only for SHARES petition for the recipient of the scholarship established by the Northwestern Fellowship of American Student Organization.

Both groups have said they hope to have the beneficiaries on campus by second semester. The Fellowship has an application on file with World University Service, an international organization, and SHARES can bring students here on 72-hour conce, Bachman said.

Participation of Dr. Richard Hilgard in SHARES is significant because the musician who for 30 years has conducted the Stanford Symphony himself fled from Hungary to Austria in 1956 during the Red Oppression during World War II and the Czarist Revolution. Florida State University during 1948 to renew his friendship with Hilgard, who joined the faculty in 1936.

Members said all alumnae of the Pi Chapter of Omicron Nu and home economics students are invited. It will be an open meeting at which scholarship awards will be presented to the student in each class who maintained the highest grade average.

SHARES Sets Hungarian Aid Piano Concert

Dohnanyi, Kilenyi To Play Tuesday

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

A Hungarian-born pianist and his protege who studied with him in Budapest will present a benefit concert next Tuesday in Westcott Auditorium to raise scholarship money for Hungarian refugee students.

FSU faculty members, Dr. Ernst von Dohnanyi, who is an internationally known pianist, composer and Edward Kilenyi, a renowned pianist in his own right, said their concert will be a musical eulogy of Hungarian music.

Tickets will go on sale tomorrow at 8:30 a.m. with the proceeds going to SHARES—Semi-side Hungarian Aid and Relief for Establishment of Scholarships.

SHARES, whose chairman is Frank Pyle, was established by Student Government to coordinate all Hungarian relief funds enough to bring as many as 10 refugees from Soviet tyranny to the university.

Student Body President Dave Bachman said the average student can help and no student will be $600. The university fees will be waived for one student assignment for all the beneficiaries seems assured.

NEED DONATIONS

Bachman noted that as even the proceeds of the Nov. 4 Wesley Pipe auditorium—roughly $2,400—would be enough for only eight scholarships. Some contributions have been asked from people who cannot attend the Dohnanyi-Kilenyi concert or who would like to donate more.

The Tallahassee Post Office has agreed to forward letters simply addressed "SHARES," Bachman added.

The benefit concert, to begin at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, will be repeated for two piano and percussion by the contemporary Hungarian, Bela Bartok. Dohnanyi is to conduct the work with Kilenyi and Dr. John Blake at pianos and Dr. Robert Braun, Random Meyer, and David Ward-Steinman at the School of Music percussion to complete the trio.

Kilenyi will open the concert by playing four numbers from Dohnanyi's "Rurala Hungarica," following which Dohnanyi is to conduct two of Liszt compositions, "Consolation" and "Hungarian Rhapsody." The two faculty members will play five of Brahms' Hungarian dances as duets.

CITY SHARES

Bachman said SHARES is primarily a community effort. Students have addressed or will soon address letters to merchants, asking for donation and other civic clubs have been asked to help. SHARES will be on sale at Nick's Toggery and Godley and Baker music stores, as well as at Westcott until 8:30 a.m. Tuesday.

SHARES chairman Pete said the project can be assured by Tuesday this year's Sophomore Council members showed that while 72 percent favor compensation, and 21 percent opposed it, 6 per-cent favored a "multi. lend" to have a dreading effect upon the counseling system.

Apparently three percents who favor compensation and the administrative department, will serve as interpreter not only for SHARES petition for the recipient of the scholarship established by the Northwestern Fellowship of American Student Organization.

Both groups have said they hope to have the beneficiaries on campus by second semester. The Fellowship has an application on file with World University Service, an international organization, and SHARES can bring students here on 72-hour conce, Bachman said.

Participation of Dr. Richard Hilgard in SHARES is significant because the musician who for 30 years has conducted the Stanford Symphony himself fled from Hungary to Austria in 1956 during the Red Oppression during World War II and the Czarist Revolution. Florida State University during 1948 to renew his friendship with Hilgard, who joined the faculty in 1936.

Library Has Typewriters For Students

Additional service for the students has been incorporated at the FSU library—typewriters for taking notes.

Norman Kilpatrick, director of the newly-constructed library, has announced that typewriters are available for student use.

Located at the desks in the various departments—one in science, one in documents, one in general reference and two in humanities, these typewriters are not for typing term papers, but rather for making notes.

Students who wish to use the typewriters must register with from the librarian on duty in that particular area. They can be checked out for use in the library building only.

Flory To Talk At Year's 1st Coffee Hour

For its first speaker of the new year Friday the Student Coffee Hour will feature Dr. Claude Flory.

Dr. Flory, whose chief interest is the drama and novel of America, has his Ph.D. degree from the University of Pennsylvania and came to Florida State University as professor of English in September, 1944.

Students, faculty, and the public are invited each week on Friday to visit the Westminster House, which is located on the corner of Park and Copeland, for the English department sponsored Coffee Hour.

Satch' To Play As Symphony Gives Up Date

Tickets went on sale yesterday for the Louis Armstrong Campus Cheat concert here January 18.

The date, originally scheduled for the University Symphony, was voluntarily given up by that group.

Robert Bodiker conductor of the University Symphony, explained this week that the executive committee of the Symphony reached the concert in the interest of the student body and of the attempt to cooperate fully with the Campus Chest effort.

The symphonic concert will be held on Monday, January 21 in Westcott Auditorium and will feature Frederich Kirchberger playing the Schumann Piano Concerto in A major full-length concert. A local requirement Kirchberger is working toward a Doctor of Music degree the first such degree ever granted by the FSU School of Music.

The executive committee of the Symphony includes Charles Alley, president, Richard Wynn, vice-president, Pauline Bechti secretary, and Bill Taylor and Phil Power, publicity directors.

The tickets for the Armstrong concert are now on sale in the Westcott tickes booth at $1.25 per person. There will be no reserved seats for either of the performances. Armstrong and his band will present two concerts, each lasting one hour and fifteen minutes. The concert is being sponsored by Alpha Tau Omega with all proceeds going to the Campus Chest.

Student Wages To Be Higher If Budget OKed

Student assistants may have sizeable wage hikes in store if the State Legislature accepts the Board of Control's 1957-58 budget.

The new budget includes $115,125 to be paid to Florida State University students employed as compared to the $81,547 which was allotted for the current year.

If the hike is due, in part, to the maximum wage of $1 adopted recently by the Board of Control.

Officials said the additional money will be handed out to various departments which will spend it as they see fit. Thus, they may either hire new assistants pay their present ones more, or both.

Dr. Ralph Hall, committee on loans, scholarship and student employment, announced that the increase will be paid assistants may so up from the present 65 cents an hour to 75 cents. If the budget is passed by the Legislature.

The increase in maximum pay for student assistants was authorized by the university beginning November 1, 1956 following pressure from student employment officials.

In the same move, the university raised the minimum pay from 50 cents an hour to 60 cents, to begin with the 1957-58 fiscal year beginning in September.

Also in the past, all wages increases will be based on individual appraisal of students' work by tje departments.

They will be presented to the student body the following night, Friday, at a semi-formal dance at the Women's Gymnasium from 9 until midnight, said Jim Lewis, Cavalier president.

FSU Joins In Festivities

By OSCAR JOHNSON

Florida will today bestow the mantle of office on its favorite citizen, Governor LeRoy Collins, in festive Tallahassee ceremonies.

All classes were to be suspended today to allow students to participate in events which began with a prayer service at 8:15 this morning in St. John's Episcopal Church. Ending the day will be the g antic Inaugural Ball tonight from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. in the men's gymnasium.

Collins, who rode on his record as governor during a two-year unexpired term of the late Dan McCarty to a landslide victory for a full four-year term, will today officially become the first man to serve as governor of Florida for more than four years in succession. His immense popularity was enough to secure him an unprecedented first ballot victory in December's primary over three major opponents.

Actual inaugural ceremonies were scheduled to begin at 10:15 this morning in the Capitol. Secretary of State R. A Gray presiding. Justice Campbell Thornal of the Florida Supreme Court will deliver the oath of office.

PARADE PLANNED

The Inaugural Parade will begin at 11:30 a.m. Leaving the Capitol grounds streets, travel south along Monroe to Pensacola street, west past the governor's mansion along Adams street to the Governor's Mansion across Brevard street.

FSU will figure in the inaugural parade with the Marching Chiefs joining the FAMU Marching Band and the University of Florida band in "Dixie" to be played after the inaugural benediction. Detachments of Air Force and Army ROTC units will take part in the parade, and a good many students have secured places on parade floats entered by Florida cities.

MANSION OPEN

The new Governor's Mansion will be open for public inspection from 3 p.m to 6 p.m. It is located on Adams street between Brevard and First avenue, and is still unfurnished.

Probably the biggest event of the day for Florida State University students will be the Inaugural Ball beginning at 9 p.m. on campus. It will feature the 26-piece Charlie Spivak band Coeds have been granted late permission until 1 a.m

Officials were set between 4 and 6:00 attendance at the ball, the only one to be held During the day university classes and private balls were held to accomodate the large number of visitors.

GYM LARGE ENOUGH

Dance Chairman Judd Chapman said plans for the ball and inauguration three was not a room in Tallahassee large enough to hold the ball This year he said, the FSU men's gym "should be large enough to accomodate the crowds"

Theme of the ball is "From Call to Collins' and is has scheduled a Grand March to be led by Governor and Mrs. Collins are being handled by Talmadge Bailey, a FSU student. FSU students under the direction of Ivan Johnson, head of the arts education department.

TREES DECORATE

The gymnasium will be spotted with as large decorative orange trees against a predominately white background with blue and orange the state colors. All windows will be awarded with blue and feature clusters of cranes Silhouettes of Governor Collins and the license Governor and Mrs. Call, Florida governor of Mrs. Collins, will be set up, along with greenery of all kinds.

Party and flash will be distributed in the room and a man-made moon will be hung from the backdrop for the meeting, Johnson said. All lighting will be uniform.

Governor Collins wanted the decorations to be simple and not overdone Florida Johnson said, "We feel the gym will be adorned add dignity and beauty to the gymnasium." He said that Florida Citrus Growers and Florida governors will be displayed in the showcases at the gym.

LEAVE CARS HOME

Persons planning to attend today's inauguration ceremonies and the parade downtown were asked yesterday by Tallahassee Police Chief Frank Boutsimore "to leave their cars at home. The influx of out-of-town cars and the restrictions of numerous special detours will create a traffic problem, he said.

Honorary Frat For Ministry Established

Eight men yesterday formed a new honorary fraternity, Alpha Kappa, for pre-ministerial students.

Initiated by Dr. Edwin Hartz, university chaplain, and The Rev Jack Hall, Jr. Baptist Student minister, were John Gibson, John Alford, Rhon Carlton, Jim Bullard, Richard Bergeron, Ernest Grose, Bill O'Steen and Pat Sipe

The group named Gibson president.

Alford said the fraternity is intended "to stimulate and find more and better ways of serving Christ on the campus and community."

Dr Hartz said that if Epsilon Kappa is successful efforts will be made to establish chapters at other universities.

Duval County Students Eligible For Scholarship

Students who graduated from Duval County high schools are eligible for a $137.50 scholarship to be awarded for second semester, Florida Citrus Growers and Florida governors will be displayed in the showcases at the gym.

Applications for the Memorial Duval High School Scholarship should be addressed to the Superintendent of Public Instruction 605 Ocean Street, Jacksonville 2, Fla Bill Hutchinson said.

Students should cite need, scholastic standing, and be good citizens, she added.

Honor System Is Responsibility Of University, Not Just Students

Revision of the University Honor Code, now being studied by the Student-Faculty Committee on Honor, may lead to a more equitable penalty system than the static one now in force.

But vastly more important than such technical tailoring, it seems to us, is the underlying basis of the Honor System itself. The Honor System went through a trying period just previous to the Christmas holidays. Just how serious was the issue at stake, few students seem to realize.

It is true that the students involved in the cheating have been punished to a degree. The fact, however, that their punishment was less than, for example, that of students caught selling examinations a year ago leads us to ask whether there is not already a kind of informal variation in the penalty system.

What was the difference in the two

We sometimes hear it said that, regarding the Honor System, the faculty has the honor and the students the system. The recent cheating and its consequent outcome makes us wonder whether if this statement does not reverse the true picture.

We feel that if the students adhere to the Honor System through the agency of their own Court, then it befits the university to adhere to its responsibility also. We are not convinced that it has done so.

Failure of the university to take more into account the opinion of the Honor Court seems to us the prime indictment of the Honor System arising from the cheating case. So long as the university demonstrates less belief in the Honor System than the students themselves, such gestures as the current penalty revision study will have very little real significance.

What To Do Today?—Why Just Have A Ball

Tonight is the night when students can have a ball.

Festivities connected with the inauguration of LeRoy Collins as Florida's Governor will be climaxed with a big, whopping, free BALL at the men's gymnasium tonight from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

We hope, however, that some of we students take the trouble to view some of the other events of the day. After all, we're here so we may as well go. There's going to be a parade, tour of a mansion, inauguration and other nice things.

Actually, we students should feel obligated to go to all these things. The Leaders thought highly enough of us to want us back from the holidays in time to see it all. We can't let them down. There's no need to mention that the only real, true way to show we like LeRoy is to come to Tallahassee for the big day. So, good luck, Mr. Collins, we're here!

As for us, well, we're just going to have a ball!

Filibuster In Plain Language Means Rule By The Minority

Those who do not understand the exact meaning of the word, "filibuster", now appearing often in newspaper headlines, may consider this as a good working definition: minority rule.

In the United States Senate, filibuster means only one thing—talking endlessly so as to avoid a vote on any measure a small band of Southern senators holds undesirable. Current efforts are confused by a complex network of Parliamentary Law, but the object is to put a limit on debate.

If Southern senators are prevented from discussing such things as the making of Kentucky corn licker and other filibuster subjects, then the Senate can do the thing it has been prevented from doing for years—vote on civil rights issues. For the Southern senators know full well that if a vote is ever taken, the majority will rule and measures objectionable to the hog-and-hominy belt will be passed.

The tight band of Southerners—James Eastland of Mississippi, Herman Talmadge of Georgia, George Smathers of Florida, to name just a few of similar caliber—have moved just about as far from the principle of Democracy as you can get, with their belief that the majority should not even be given a chance to prevail.

Americans are outraged at the deplorable method by which minority rule is exercised in the Senate.

Wants To Know About 'Signals

TO THE EDITOR

I would much appreciate your clearing up a point concerning the Smoke Signals' campus humor magazine distribution.

Was the students' post office box the only place a SS could be obtained (free)? If so, were more than one placed in each box? If not, why? Was it because of the circulation staff's unawareness of the fact that many students share boxes? Or was it, perhaps, because only a certain number of issues were printed and could therefore be given away. If the latter is the case would you please explain to me the extent of subsidation, if any, given to this publication from FSU's equivalent of an activity fee paid by all students.

I thank you for your trouble

J. ALLEN

Ed. Note: Perhaps Smoke Signals Editor Marcellor Truzzi will be able to answer this letter in the next issue of the Flambeau.

The Florida Flambeau will print all signed letters from students except those which are libelous or insidious attacks upon individuals. Letters over 250 words may be cut at the discretion of the editor if space is limited. In some cases, where a valid reason is given, the name may be withheld.

Can't Beat JDs? Just Join 'Em

By OSCAR JOHNSON

If you can't beat 'em, join 'em

It's not too widely known, but locked in that trite sentence is a possible answer to the problem of juvenile delinquency. It's simple: everybody becomes a J-D.

The switchblade set, which has steadily risen to the fore of American social thought, is a social phenomenon bemoaned by all outside its own tightly defined ranks. Parents complain of duckcuts, black leather jackets (eagle on the back ten cents extra) and lead pipe, ministers bewail sagging teenage attendances and movies showing thumb-sucking cutie pies; teachers wear bullet-proof clothing and the rest of us ask why not Knock The Rock.

SOME SUGGEST putting all those between puberty and 18 out of their misery, while others think seriously about putting themselves out of misery.

Yet through it all, the switchblade set rocks and rolls on its merrie way, holding wild parties, fighting it out and listening to the Switchblade Idol, Elvis (Hound Dog, Blue Suede Shoes, etc.) Presley sending forth his hog calls like a stuttering foghorn.

IT NEED NOT be that way at all. If you can't beat the J-D's, join 'em.

After all, it's not so bad being a J-D. Once you get used to walking around with slumped shoulders, wearing shrunk-up blue jeans (Elvis rips an average of three pairs each time he sings) and master the garbled mumble necessary for Right Reason, you're in. Pocket that switchblade and set off on a gay caper, no more worries about non-conformity — you're conformed, all right.

Everybody can get in on the act. A cop can do just as well dressed in jeans and jacket, sporting a government-issue switchblade instead of a gun, and crossing the wires of all hot rods he wants to run in. If he comes upon a gang fight he can just pile in and no one will be the wiser. The J-D's will like him for it—it's one way to get their respect, an accomplishment which seems to be the objective of all the present-day cynic prognosticators.

NO LONGER will churchmen have to encounter difficulty in getting across to the teenagers. They can just rename God, Elvis, and wait for the crowds.

The parking problem would be solved if everyone rode hopped up motorcycles. There'd be plenty of room for all—except maybe the pedestrians.

On the whole, the juvenile delinquency problem is no problem at all. Just join 'em.

Calling The Card

There Is Hope For New Year

By ARNOLD GREENFIELD

Like everyone else who regularly contributes to any new[spaper] I feel impelled to express my "thoughts" as we all em[bark] on a new journey around the sun. Back-tracking sligh[tly] to Christmas, one might find relatively little ground for optimism. For as we all sang carols and said our annual prayers for peace some strange and incongruous events were taking place.

Sadly in our world there is much grief—this is not news. Human beings in Hungary must find the Christmas spirit a little difficult to grasp under the circumstances. Conservatively speaking, over a billion souls began the new year hungry. Any semi-literate adult in the world must know that any of the various global cri[ses] could erupt into unprecedented bloodshed. And yet even th[e] most cynical do not give up hope completley.

HUNGER AND DEATH are not pretty thoughts—thus w[e] shrink from them in the season normally reserved for thoug[hts] of "jolly old Saint Nick" etc. Perhaps we do not lose hope com[pletely], because we realize that there is much in the world w[e] can actually do little about. Shallow solace, but neither [is] perpetual gloom a very constructive attitude.

Coming closer to home may serve to make problems see[m] more relevant. If we look only at the fanatic or at the extrem[ist] once again we may become discouraged. During Christmas we[ek] Americans fired guns at integrated buses in Montgomery. O[n] New Year's Eve 46 hooded Klansmen attended church servic[es] in Mulberry, Florida. Right here in Tallahassee we are getti[ng] some nice national publicity about our so-called boycott o[f] public transportation.

SOME HAPPY SOUL celebrated Christmas by burning dow[n] two Catholic Cathedrals in Connecticut. Another planted so[me] cheerful little bombs about the environs of New York City. W[ith] all this pleasantness in the world it is all too easy to be cyni[cal] — awfully tempting to belittle America, Christmas, and the h[u]man race. And yet I wonder—should the tragic newspa[per] headlines dominate our thinking?

My answer to that question is an emphatic, "Only partially." I suppose that I'm more guilty than most of mistaking sarcas[m] for wit, and gloom for intellectualism, but reflectively I ca[n't] help feeling hopeful—as well as apprehensive. The works o[f] Norman Vincent Peale are not exactly the first thing I reach f[or] in the morning. I don't think forgetting problems will mak[e] them go away. But I do enter the new year with something o[f] a positive attitude.

THE GREAT MILLIONS of people in our country an[d] elsewhere do not want to shoot bullets or throw bombs. Asid[e] from the KKK millions of Americans are sincere Christia[ns] trying to do their best. We do have responsible leaders [li]ke Dwight Eisenhower steadfastly dedicated to the struggling f[or] world peace. Right here on our campus both the Westminste[r] Foundation and student government are endeavoring to help o[ut] the dislocated Hungarians. Small efforts perhaps, but sig[]nificant.

Significant because of the idea they represent—that regard[]less of discouragement and hardship man will strain to aid h[is] fellow man. Regardless of the evil, vilification, and hate sprea[d] in the world some are still concerned. In this concern ult[i]mately I find a workable basis for hope.

The Dissenter

Bus Solution Poor Way Out

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Conditions in Tallahassee this inauguration day illustra[te] Florida's progress. You might call it an effect of positive think[]ing, a variation upon the Norman Vincent Peale formula for success.

Violence arises over integrated bus seating. Really there's no problem if there are no buses. So do away with the buses.

On inauguration day it seems almost improper to criticize Governor LeRoy Collins' handling of the situation, but one cannot help thinking there should have been another way.

In the first place, his action, which was announced within a day after the Tallahassee Citizens' Council, a nondescript bunch of characters who must have thought it was 1857 that began a week ago, ask him to do just that. While the governor said the Council's recommendation didn't influence him, his decision to suspend the buses gave an entire[]ly undeserved endorsement [to] the Council.

The methods, or at least po[w]ers of suggestion, of the Ta[llahassee] and other Citizens Co[un]cils should be given some exam[i]nation. One moment they p[re]dict violence over things th[ey] don't like, the next moment v[io]lence happens.

THE CITIZENS' Council m[ay] not be directly responsible f[or] cross-burnings and rock thro[w]ings, but their willingness to p[re]dict such primitive responses a[nd] their reluctance to try to preve[nt] such are certainly significant.

The Citizens' Council presum[es] an absence of law and order.

IF GOVERNOR Collins, in[]stead of tacitly admitting wh[at] the Citizens' Council presume[d], had seen to it that the buses a[re] protected and the homes o[f] threatened people guarded, la[w] and order would have been serve[d] and advanced.

Granted that this may ha[ve] intensified hard feelings, no pe[o]ple, and certainly no governmen[t] can forever run away from wh[at] is right. When people are u[n]willing to fight gangsterism [it] flourishes. The longer an evi[l is] tolerated, the more secure it be[]comes. The more an obnoxio[us] few are allowed to defy the ju[di]cial processes of the country, t[he] more intent they will be on do[]ing so.

THERE IS, we must admit, tru[th] in the governor's position th[at] the Negroes whose bus rid[ing] provoked incidents did n[ot] choose the best manner to p[ut] into practice their equality. [An] organized demonstration is n[ot] the best way to sooth the emo[]tions of segregationists.

But the Negroes certainly ha[d] reason to fear an attack upo[n] a single person who might inte[]grate himself. And howeve[r] thoughtless their plan, they we[re] in the right. Even the Tallahass[ee] Democrat, no friend of [in]tegration, observed that the Ne[]groes demonstrated in broad daylight, without cover of wh[ite] sheets, and peacefully.

A FEW WILL argue that t[he] Supreme Court's bus seating de[]cision applied only to Mont[]gomery, Alabama. This is tech[]nically true, but in that decis[ion] the Court enunciated a princip[le] which amounts to handwriting on every color wall in the South. Segregation, in itself, on any public facility, is unconstit[u]tional. Only time defers its ju[]dicial application to Tallahas[]see. And only the obstinate can stall for time.

It's time for the buses to start running again, under police protection, and under the pro[]tection of the National Guard, if necessary. That will cost money, but not even money can buy back civic integrity. And the Citizens' Council should re[]read lesson number one from any citizenship primer: law and order is served only by defend[]ing it.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by Dick Bibler

"HAPPY NEW YEAR."

The Wee People Return As Schlumpa Stuns Students

This diabolical bit of imagery is from the pen of Bob Upton, whose "The We People" (should have been Wee People) livened up the first issue of SMOKE SIGNALS. Bob, a Junior majoring in advertising, plans to let us in on more antics of the wee people from time to time in future FLAMBEAUX.

By BOB UPTON

I was sitting in what has always been the Mecca when my attention, along with everyone elses, was suddenly drawn to the door. For through that door walked the most beautiful girl in the school. My girl Schlumpa. Schlumpa Nothing is her full name for all you squares that don't know her. She has the most beautiful blue eye I've ever seen. Only one but such a blue. She clumped over to my table. Schlumpa clumps because she has a wooden leg. She lost it in a street fight after losing a beauty contest to another campus queen. Olga Zotz. Olga fared far worse in the fight however, losing her sorority pin and gavel to boot. Schlumpa needs no boot.

There were no chairs at my table so Schlumpa propped herself daintily on the end of a pencil. The pointed end. She unstrapped her wooden leg and placed it across the table. The strap landed in my coffee. I'm enthralled by her every poetic, graceful gesture.

"Hi Schlumpa," I said.

"Hi, Bob," she said.

"How are you?" I asked.

"Fine," she said.

"Good," I said.

You will notice that this is the very same literary style first copied by Ernest Hemingway in 1928.

IT WASN'T UNTIL THEN that I noticed that Schlumpa was dressed to kill. Schlumpa always dressed to kill, and sometimes did. Around her neck was a black, cardboard heart with a red ruffle around it. Inscribed in the middle was that lovely name. Schlumpa Nothing.

"What's up, Schlumpa?" I asked. I meant besides her wooden leg, which someone had mistakenly hung on a hook in the meat freezer. Schlumpa was busy scratching and didn't hear me. I repeated my question. I'm very patient with her hearing as it is my fault. She cut off her ear with a razor when I threatened to leave her. Sometimes I wish she hadn't stopped with the ear. I'm not in love with Schlumpa but my fraternity insists I keep on dating her, for she is what is known as a BWOC. However I don't think six feet five inches is so big.

"I've just been tapped for VV," she explained.

I was half way to the infirmary before realizing that it was VV she had said. With a sigh of relief I raced back to the Mecca. I opened the door and was greeted by a most pathetic sight. Schlumpa, lying on the floor in the front leaning rest position, was sobbing pathetically.

"COME BACK, COME BACK," she shayned, or rather screamed when she saw me. Needless to say this outburst caused some alarm in the Mecca. Especially because Schlumpa had fallen trying to run after me. She fell because she had forgotten to put on her wooden leg. And Schlumpa can't clump without her wooden leg. I gazed upon her compassionately, sprawled in disarray on the floor.

Come back, come back," she burbled. She burbled because her tears were running into her mouth. Schlumpa's lower lip protrudes a good three inches beyond the upper. I was disgusted. I turned to leave. But I couldn't. Try as I may, couldn't leave Schlumpa. I turned and went to her. I sat down on the floor alongside her and gently took her in my arms. I kissed her corrugated forehead. As long as I was in the middle of her forehead I kissed her eye. I would have kissed her lips but her mouuth was full of tears. Besides she has trenchmouth. I like to call it a communicable smile. Then I kissed her dimpled chin. Some people call it a gaping, running, black sore but to me it's a dimple.

Suddenly we were locked in a passionate embrace. We were on the sand and the warm Pacific played over our bodies. Her lips crushed down on mine to the mounting crescendo of the surf. She crushed my shoulder blades deeper and deeper into the cool sand of the beach. A crab was biting my left shoulder, but locked in the passionate embrace of my beloved, I was impervious to pain. I knew nothing but the most limitless pleasure.

"I must get back to Schofield Barracks," I suddenly thought. Quickly I tore myself away from Deborah.

YOU CAN IMAGINE MY surprise when I saw that it wasn't Deborah Kerr at all, but Schlumpa Nothing. Little old one-eyed Schlumpa Nothing. Little old one-legged Schlumpa Nothing. Little old one-eyed, one-legged, Schlumpa Nothing from down the street at the Kappa Oomph House. Imagine my surprise. And if that wasn't shock enough, I found out that I wasn't even on the beach at Hawaii but on the floor at the Mecca. And that crab that was biting me was a cigarette butt that someone hadn't stepped on. Schlumpa was licking my face with her forked tongue. I pushed her away.

Amidst the taunting jeers of the crowd I struggled to my feet, and with the little bid of pride I always keep for just such occasions, I straightened my pledge pin and walked through the door, never to return.

Seminole Basketballers, N.C. State Meet Thursday

Top Century Mark To Defeat Furman

An inexperienced North Carolina State basketball team plays host to the stumbling Florida State University Seminoles Thursday night in Raleigh, North Carolina.

The Wolfpack holds an 7-6 record. They have beaten such teams as Wake Forest, Pittsburgh, Duke, Penn State and Eastern Kentucky. Iowa and George Washington have also felt the lash of the Wolfpack attack.

On the other hand the 'Pack has been beaten by Clemson, South Carolina, West Virginia, Wake Forest and Duke. NC's head coach, Everett Case, has a rebuilding job to do after losing four lettermen from last season, including all-American Ron Shavlik.

Sophomores seem to play the key roles for the Wolfpack in the form of John Richter, 6-8 and Bob MacGillivary 6-4. According to Case, Richter is almost as good a shot as Shavlik but does not have the poise and game experience that Shavlik was endowed with.

GOOD GUARDS

North Carolina State has a great amount of strength in its two guards John Chiefs' Maglio and Wilbur Bell. Bell is a third year man who is playing his final season for the Pack. He has done a very fine job out for him in filling the shoes of Vic Shavlik, honorable mention all-American last season.

The Seminoles, whose lack of experience has inconsistent for most all their games, are led by Sophomore guard Hunt Durham who is the leading scorer on the 'Noles with points Bob Walls, the other guard is the closest to Durham with 124 markers.

On January 8 Durham scored 31 points and FSU was its first game of the season as the 'Noles took third place in the Senior Bowl tournament at Mobile, Ala.

The victim of the Tribe was Furman who shamed a 108-86 loss. This score broke the tournament record by six points. Walls

BOB WAITS. The 6-0 Senior guard from Jacksonville has been one of the Seminoles' leading scorers of late, moving up to 2nd in team scoring behind sophomore Hugh Durham.

Cager Bob Waits In Comeback Role

Bobby Waits senior guard has been the surprise development of the season among the Seminole cagers.

According to Coach Bud Kennedy Waits has realized the potential he showed in his sophomore year.

Bobby started his basketball career at Lee High School in Jacksonville, Florida, his home town. A two-year letterman, he was named on the All Big Ten team his senior year.

Despite his fine record in basketball, it was baseball that brought Waits to FSU. Lettering three years in high school baseball, he came to Florida State on a baseball scholarship.

Having made the Frosh basketball team, Bobby continued at FSU on a basketball scholarship after being forced to give up baseball because of a back injury.

Statistically Bob poses a threat to High Durham, who might lose his berth as high-point man of the season if Waits' scoring streak continues.

Having played nine of ten games this season, the versatile cager has scored 46 field goals and 36 foul goals for a total of 128 points. He has averaged 12.8 points per game.

A business administration major, Waits plans to enter the service upon graduating.

After the service, Bob hopes to play pro baseball, but is making no definite plans. He is planning to marry in the fall to Joanne Thompson an FSU co-ed.

Coach Kennedy says, "We are very happy with Bob's play this season. He is doing a fine job, defensively as well as offensively."

FSU Tankers Battle Georgia

Florida State University's veteran-loaded swimming team opens its 1957 season Thursday night against the University of Georgia at 8 p.m. in the Womens' Gym.

Though he lost seven men from the team that posted a 2 dual record last season, coach Bill Stults lernia "we should be stronger this season, but so is everybody else."

Stults points out that the "best sophomore coalingent we've ever had" is on hand from 11 letter men. "However, almost every team on our schedule has improved."

Last year, the Seminole swimmers swamped Georgia twice, by scores of 59-25 and 48-36.

Gymnasts Win 2nd

Led by Chuck Cicio's 15 points, Florida State's gymnasts swept to their second straight dual meet victory 63-49 over Western Illinois last week at the men's gymnasium.

The meet was not as close as the final score indicates as coach Hartley Price did not use the services of Ron Amster and Jackie Ashworth, the Tribe's NCAA champions.

Freshman Cagers Drop 4th Straight

Florida State's freshmen basketballers dropped their fourth straight Saturday night (106-71 to Southern) Georgia JC at American Ga.

The Tribe jumped off to an early 12-2 lead but superior rebounding, especially by the Georgians proved to much for Jim Cleis band of cagers.

Forward Jim Savage of Fort Lauderdale was top man for the Seminoles with 29 points. Charlie Rogers had 18 and center Mike Williams chipped in with 12.

Three men hit for better than 20 points for SW Georgia, with forward Jim Shiver leading the pack with 27.

Previously, the Seminole frosh had lost to Jacksonville University, Chipola Junior College and the same team, Southwest Georgia.

By winning the tennis doubles and the basketball crown, SAE moved into the overall lead among fraternities with 348.45 points over second place PDT, last year's champ.

The DTD's are in third place with 321.81 and SN rounds out the top four with 303.84.

BASKETBALL

The Feds finished the basketball season with a 11-0 record by beating Baptista 36-30 in their final game. Pappy Playtowa finished runner-up with 10-1, their only loss being a 36-35 setback to the Feds.

There is a chance of a tie yet, as the protest board has upheld a Chi-Sig protest against the Feds in a game in which the clock was not stopped during the final two minutes for free throws, and the Feds had won it 31-29.

That game will be replayed tomorrow evening at 8:30 and should Chi-Sig win it would throw the Feds and Playboys into a tie.

SAE won the fraternity double elimination playoff series without a loss. This is SAE's first basketball title in history, and they earned it all the way in the tournament, after having been upset by Sigma Nu in the opening round.

They beat SN 52-37 in the final, by controlling the backboards, during one quarter taking 13 out of 15 rebounds off the SN boards.

SN finished 2nd by beating SC 39-34 in their first game, then beating ATO 48-44 in a last minute scrap after trailing throughout the whole game. They upset PDT 45-31 and SC 41-40.

The date for the dormitory-fraternity campus championship will be announced later.

TOUCH FOOTBALL

The Intramural Touch Football leagues, all five of them, resumed play last night DTD, SN and SAE led each of the 3 first ventures with a wins and no losers.

In the games before the recess PKP upset ATO 7-6 in a close one, although PKP had another touchdown called back because of a penalty. SAE had a hectic time trying to contain a fast PKT team, but finally won 25-18, as PKT had a touchdown nullified in the closing minutes.

Weil Hall Rebels led the dorm league with a 4-0 record and they kept their position with a 4-2 squeaker over Magnolia and a half-spitting win over Penthouse Rebels winning by virtue of 7 first downs to Penthouse 8.

GETTING READY. Four Seminole swimmers hit the drink in the Garnet-Gold warm-up before the holidays. The Tribe tankers open their 1957 campaign this Thursday night against the University of Georgia in the Women's gym

Dan Whitmarsh Segregation In Sports?

Florida State University students came mighty close to seeing some football games in 1857, because the powers-that-be frowned at the idea of a colored boy playing on the sacred Field. Campbell maintains at least section of the FSU team would be the presence of a second strong negro fullback last season. Villanova canceled their scheduled trip here rather than to doubt at the arising of the Seminole fullback.

Is the Tribe gridders were left with four home games and the road. FSU athletic officials first approached Ohio U. with the idea of switching their season opener to Tallahassee, the latter said no.

However, the athletic chiefs did manage to save the day for the being by convincing Virginia Tech to come back here for the next year despite the fact that the game was originally slated for Blacksburg, Va.

As of another front over the holidays both the University of Mississippi and Mississippi State dropped out of holiday basketball tournaments—for fear—or something else?—of meeting a Negro colored boy on the

Is Mississippi's case it was a little ironic that they should have to play Iona College of New York when they might have met Denver, which had colored men on the team.

These are the latest incidents arising—while dealing with the word of sports, and though none of them have drawn the headlines that the Pittsburgh-Georgia Tech incident did last year, they are just as important in their way.

You'll remember correctly the governor of Georgia last year refused to permit his athletic Georgia Tech team to meet Pittsburgh in the Sugar Bowl, because the Panthers were committing the sin of bringing a colored boy south of the Mason-Dixon line for football.

However, the students of Georgia Tech rebelled overwhelmingly at the idea of keeping Tech out of the bowl game and it all ended down with Tech going in the bowl (as most people figured they would) and winning 7-0.

The clever result was that now the Sugar Bowl has banned teams from playing in their post-season contests, thereby cutting down one of the better northern football teams.

Reactions of the governor of Georgia, the Sugar Bowl, the governor of Mississippi and maybe even of our own athletic officials are breaking a long-standing freedom of competition which has made American athletics what it is today.

The great majority of southern institutions it's true have no part in this "athletic segregation," but where there's smoke there's fire and a movement started by a minority spreads.

Let's stop this foolishness before the greatest athletic system in the world is ruined.

SPORT SHORTS

Ed Ronnie Schamburger and quarterback Lee Corso of the Flames clinched a good year by being named to the Florida State football team. Also on the gridiron, the Seminole Boosters once again made their presence known in national circles in their second year of big-time football. The Seminoles looked well up in five categories of national grid statistics, including 8-4's for Johnny Shepperd in place-kicking. While Florida State's basketball team is off to an exceptionally bad start, it should be noted that only one of the Seminoles' conference opponents in the FSBC now owns a winning record—Florida A&M.

According to particulars for management of the legacy, the Melissa Elizabeth Reynolds Welfare Fund shall be established. Proper officials shall invest or reinvest the money.

The will states that the officials shall use proceeds from investments for the welfare of FSU matriculates while undergraduates, graduates, but shall not dispose of the principal, and shall have the rights and authority to accept and add to such Welfare Fund any and all sums that may be offered as a part thereof, but shall have no authority to change the name thereof."

Assistant Program Valued By Students

PRINCETON, N. J. (LP) — Rated by students "as valuable as an extra course" and by professors as "definitely helpful," Princeton's Undergraduate Research Assistant Program is completing its seventh year of operation as one of the University's happiest solutions to the problem of student employment.

Approximately sixty students are selected each year as Undergraduate Research Assistants. They are selected from among those juniors and seniors with high honors averages who need additional earnings to supplement their scholarships in order to balance their budgets.

In outlining RA specifications for an assistant, the professor makes such notations as "knowledge of French and one Near Eastern Language desirable," "a student in aeronautical engineering with interest in theoretical mechanics," "a senior with an interest in animals," or "an electrical engineer who can translate French."

Working 10 hours a week from October through May for an average $400 a year, the students relieve professors from certain time-consuming chores of their research allowing them to spend more time on the main body of their work. The duties of an Undergraduate Research Assistant may vary from routine clerical assignments to highly creative independent research, according to the individual specifications of the type of project involved.

Typical of the faculty viewpoint on the program is that of Dr Alphaus T Mason McCormick Professor of Jurisprudence: "My experience with undergraduate research assistants leads me to think that this is among the best forms of undergraduate self-help." he declares. "It is definitely beneficial to the faculty and my guess is that it is highly rewarding to the students."

Math Educators Seek Easier, Logical Courses

That General Education math course may not be so difficult for future freshmen if mathematics educators have their way.

At least that's what the educators are trying to bring about according to four people who represented Florida State University at the National Council of Mathematics Teachers at Arkansas State College in Jonesborough, Arkansas, December 27-29.

Attending were Robert S. Finch associate professor of Education; Dr. Enrique D. Nichols associate professor, demonstration school; Robert Kalin, Education instructor and mathematics education major Charles Bryan.

Theme of the council was "Understanding Mathematics Through The Discovery Method," according to Bryan. He said it attempted to point out methods of simplifying instruction.

Bryan said the council emphasizes that math teachers are discouraging memorization in favor of enabling students to "discover for themselves," with symbolic logic which "acts as the very foundation" of mathematics.

COLLEGIATE CLOWN'S CLASP CAPTIVATES COLLINS
Student Shakes Hands With Governor During Inaugural Parade

Collins Views Integration, But Whose Side Favored?

By OSCAR JOHNSON

Florida Governor LeRoy Collins Tuesday spoke up for segregation issue, and spokesmen on both sides of issue immediately began trying to pull his word to side.

By apparently the Governor managed to sit squarely in the

On the one hand he said:

It will do no good whatever to defy the United States Supreme Court. Actually, this court is an essential institution for the preservation of our form of government. It is little if anything short of insurrection and anarchy that any state can defy and quarantine itself against the effect of a decision of the United States Supreme Court."

On the other

Florida's segregation laws "give us assurance that there will be integration in our public schools so long as such is not wise in light of the social, economic and health facts of life as they in the various localities of our State.

Because of these laws and because of conditions in communities throughout Florida I continue to say that our traditions and customs of separation in the public schools can be expected to prevail for the foreseeable future

I shall do everything in my power to see that these laws are carried out just as I have taken the oath today to enforce all laws of Florida.

DEVELOPMENT FORESEEN

While Floridians were making their choice in what Collins in his Inaugural address called "the greatest political event of our time," he had laid out in armeal terms a broad plan for development for the state.

He called for a greatly expanded State plant" in state public schools institutions of higher learning correctional and in care for the mentally handicapped. Specific recommendations will probably be made by Collins in his legislative message and during the 1957 session.

"This did not expand on the need in higher learning, merely that "We do not have the institutions . . . we need, and must provide them in the next few years."

TAXES UNMENTIONED

Nowhere in his message did Collins spell out proposals for ways to accomodate increased expenditures if an expanded plant is put into effect.

In his address Collins devoted most of his attention to segregation. He said if defiance of the Supreme Court "could possibly result in such legal efficacy we would have no Union and the power of the federal government to deny the enjoyment of their freedoms would be severely impugned and imperiled. We should frankly face this and put the issue in the field of demagoguery and dismiss it from consideration.

Violence and disorder in any form can never be the answer to our problem. I shall use every lawful power at my command to preserve law and order, peace and harmony for all our people.

"Hasty action, arrogance, the forcing of issues will not provide the answer.

"Force all hate is not the answer.

"Only reason is the answer, we should begin by being honest with ourselves, by recognizing realities which exist. . . . This is not easy to say, but it is nevertheless true and I feel that we should stand up and say it.

The Supreme Court decisions are the law of the land. And the nation's strength and Florida's strength are bottomed upon the basic reverse premise that ours is a law of the land.

Now with this established, let us further seek a solution to our special candor.

"The decisions of the United States Supreme Court, with respect to our public schools, do not make the integration of our schools compulsory. They recognize to a degree local conditions and problems.

"Of all the Southern States, I believe Florida has provided legislation which best will enable it to live harmoniously and peacefully with the two great realities facing us: the Court decisions and the social and economic conditions existing in the state.

Extremists have attacked the Florida legislation as the use and stepping stones to interposition and the other end as subterfuges for avoiding compliance with the court's ruling.

"It is my judgement that these laws—in line with the Court's decision that local conditions must be taken into full account if it is to accomplish what they will be impelled to accomplish—will be upheld so long as such is not wise in the light of the social, economic and health facts of life as they exist in the various localities of our State.

Because of these laws and because of conditions in communities throughout Florida I continue to say that our traditions and customs of separation in the public schools can be expected to prevail for the foreseeable future

I shall do everything in my power to see that these laws are carried out just as I have taken the oath today to enforce all laws of Florida.

"We must be constructive and practical. White and colored people alike must see wrong on their side as well as right. Our youth to support the right is weakened if we arbitrarily refuse to admit the wrong.

"I am convinced, for example, that the average white citizen does not object to non-segregated seating in buses—any more than he objects to riding the same elevators with Negroes or patronizing the same stores. He does resent some of the methods being used to achieve certain ends. Boycotts, ultimatums and unreasonable demands can never achieve what permanent, peaceful relations and normal judicial procedures can do for the Negro people.

"We can find wise solutions, I believe, if the white citizens will face up in the fact that the Negro does not have equal opportunities; that he is morally and legally entitled to progress more rapidly, and that a full good-faith effort should be made forthwith to help him more forward in the improvement of all standards.

"The Negro also must contribute by his own attitude. In the first place he should realize that he must merit and deserve whatever place he achieves in community. He should strive to be a better citizen. He should strive to avoid being resentful.

"To be practical about it, compulsion and ignorant interference by those without a background for understanding now will create resistance, resistance develops hate and that destroys the Negro's own purpose. Mutual respect and confidence on the part of both races are essential.

"It is folly for anyone to expect judicial dictation to compel social adjustments. The hearts and minds of people are not changed by the mere declaration of a principle. Despite the nation's great power, the hearts and minds of the people are brought forth and created.

And I speak not of hearts and minds filled with a sense of racial superiority or prejudice, as some would believe. These are the attitudes of most of us."

Traffic Fines Total $1448 For Semester

Traffic fines paid by violators this semester have amounted to $1448.18, according to Ralph M Richard, Assistant comptroller.

Fines are paid in four different offices, assistant business manager Dr. Harry Day pointed out, making an accurate up-to-the minute total difficult. The total entered on the books does not take into consideration those violations which were outstanding, and, quite a few violations still owe fines, Dr. Day said.

Funds derived from the payment of traffic fines are used to provide 150 scholarships of $100 each for needy freshmen.

The scholarships were set up in a resolution passed by the Student Senate in July of 1955. The resolution also provided for the establishment of a reserve fund of 200 dollars to be used for "emergency loans."

Included in the expenditure of the fund are salaries paid to the student policemen. Dr. Day pointed out a resolution calling for the appointment of the six student police officers was voided into effect by last year's Student Senate.

Elting Requests Band Choices

Recommendations for a band to play at the 1957 Homecoming Dances all be accepted from various residence halls by Bob Elting, chairman of the dance committee, until February 1.

Dormitories, fraternities and sororities were asked by letter last month to submit their band preferences, but Elting said he has received only five replies.

"We will have a good chance of getting the group we want if we start early," he commented.

Recommendations should be sent to Elting, as President of Gold Key, Lenarine Building.

The men's honorary is traditionally responsible for the Homecoming Dance, which will be held October 19, 1957.

Carlisle Floyd To Adapt Novel For Broadway

Florida State University's Carlisle Floyd, whose original folk opera "Susannah" was recently given by New York critics, is now adapting Esther Forbe's novel "A Mirror for Witches" to music.

Thirty-year old Floyd, now on a Guiseclhelm Fellowship year's leave from FSU, has been commissioned by the new team of Edward Padula and Emmett Rogers to write the music and production of "No Time for Sergeants." This will be Floyd's first Broadway Hall concert of Phyllis Curtin who played the title role in "Susannah."

Floyd said he finds "A Mirror for Witches" much more challenging with theatrical possibilities" His musical drama is tentatively set for production on Broadway houses. Its published score of "Susannah" is scheduled for next month. Yvonne Streetman, an FSU art graduate and staff photographer, did the cover.

Senate Approves Measure Ratifying Traffic Committee

Membership Made Official

By Charlet Pultevint

A bill designed to make official the membership and powers of the Student-Faculty Traffic Committee was passed in Student Senate Wednesday.

The committee presently is appointed by the university president and recommends campus traffic policies to him. A change never has been written its functions into the Student Statutes

It provides for three points to be added to the student body statutes concerning traffic regulations

The first part states that recommendations for traffic rules be made to the president of the university by the Traffic Committee

The second states that the Senate may recommend changes in the resolutions to the Student Traffic Committee and the third provides for the nomination of at least one senator to the committee.

Senator Don Lewis, who introduced the bill along with Senators Mary Ann Lassiter, Dick Crawford, Kay Ready, and Jack Long, said the purpose of the bill was to maintain close contact between the Senate and the Traffic Committee

LOBBY REPORT

Senator Bob Murray, appointed head of the committee to report on Florida State University "in the legislature" reported the student "lobbyists" have met with Dave Backman, president of the Student Body and Dr. B. Bird Brown, vice president of the university, and the State Bureau of Reapportionment Appropriations committee

Heads the FSU group hope to bring before the legislators increased higher student wages, an engineering school, a swimming pool, and a new student union building, Murray said.

The committee will go "all out" to bring FSU to the attention of the lawmakers during the spring session, said Murray. Letters welcoming them to visit the campus will be sent and the Villager Vamps will act as hostesses.

Also, each legislator will be sent a copy of "Tola Week," each week.

TWO SUGGESTIONS

Two recommendations were brought up at the Wednesday Senate meeting by Senators Fred Roberts and Dick Crawford.

Roberts asked that the term "activity fee" be changed to the more specific term, "fees," since the present $75 activity fee now paid by the students does not entitle them to $75 worth of activities as "some are led to believe."

Commencement Speaker Spot Still Pending

By JIM McINTYRE

No speaker has been named as set for the commencement exercises of the February graduating class, according to Dr. Doak S. Campbell, President of the University.

Dr. Campbell said yesterday that an invitation has been sent to a prominent personality in an effort to secure the main speaker slot available at the time. The President said he was unable to choose commencement speakers both for February and June graduating classes.

Paul Orr, president of the Senior Class, said also this week that plans are under way for the June exercises. Several committees, made up of Senior Class members will be active in the preparation for the long-awaited day.

Orr said The committees will be appointed during the middle of February in order to plan completely for the exercises. Committees will be appointed to take care of such graduation details as the Candidate the class dinner announcements, and the gift from the class to the school.

A committee will also be named to suggest to the president the class choice for speaker although suggestions will be welcomed from anyone Orr added.

Dr. Campbell urged anyone who might have an interest in the commencement to make their wishes known at some time in the near future.

Collects Pipe Organs

Senior's Unusual Hobby Puzzles Neighbors

By OSCAR JOHNSON

Collecting stamps is too mild a hobby for Florida State University's Karl Mohr. He collects pipe organs.

Mohr, a Senior from Tallahassee, says the complex, oversized musical instrument "fascinates me." He has three of them, all unassembled.

Mohr began his unusual hobby in 1952 when he paid $70 for an organ used by the Baldwin-Gs First Presbyterian Church prior to the church's purchase of a new electric organ.

He bought the organ, Mohr said, because a lot of studying on the mechanical structure of the instruments and wanted to build one as a hobby."

This purchase was followed two years later with the acquisition of Mohr's second organ, from the Bach Israel Synagogue in Bainbridge, also for $70. Then last year he obtained another organ from the Episcopal Church in Quincy.

126 YEARS OLD

Mohr considers the third organ a "collectors item" because it is more than 126 years old. He said it was originally used by St. John Episcopal Church in Tallahassee, then transferred to the Quincy church. It was replaced by another instrument and stored in Quincy for 30 years before Mohr bought it.

"It was badly deteriorated," Mohr explained, "but I took what was left." He didn't have to pay anything for the organ.

Music educators major Mohr describes the organ "the king of the instruments." He said the only reason he was able to buy his three for so little is that the churches are buying electronic instruments from fast-talking salesmen.

POOR CHOICE

"They don't realize that the pipe organ is a better instrument" he said. "The electronic organ is only an imitation of the real instrument"

Mohr admits his organs create quite a problem of storage. He is now keeping them in a vacant garage a his parents' home in Tallahassee. He estimated the total number of pipes in the garage at 1,600, ranging in length from inches at the inch to sixteen feet

Some of the pipes are made of lead and tin in various combinations. lead producing a "dull" sound and tin a "brighter" sound. Mohr said the larges pipes are made of wood since it is easier to work with. He said the pipes are each handmade by craftsmen

Stored in wooden trays, they take up quite a bit of room. In addition to this, Mohr also has such other organ components as a blower which supplies the air, an air reservoir -a bellows-like affair with springs which keeps the pressure constant, a console and chest -the mechanisms for making the pipes speak- which describes the console and chest as a "complicated marvel."

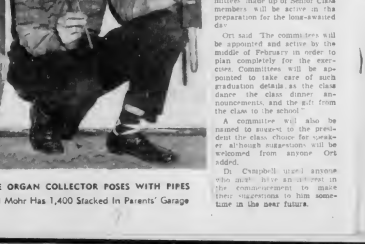
With them in the garage, Mohr says, "There's no room for anything else."

The hobbyist said he is now in his sphere up the "music room" in his home and plans to assemble the first parts of each of the instruments into one organ, to be located there. "It'll take to be years before I get it finished," he said" He also wants to have a modern "action" to replace older components.



Some of Mohr's neighbors have their doubts about Mohr's hobby Since the area is zoned R-1 which is a residential district, they feel it might not be the best place for pipe organs.

TO MOVE?

The family next door Mr and Mrs. John T. Boyd, 562 E. Call St., said they are wondering how much longer Mohr's hobby is organ completed. "I wonder where we'll move" one pessimistic neighbor said. "Mrs. Boyd

Mohr has been president of the FSU chapter of Phi Mu Alpha, national music honorary for men, for two years and secretary of the campus Choral Union for two years.

He described his organ collection as "small" since some organs have up to 40-60 pipes, some as long as 64 feet "A man could easily crawl through some of the big ones," he said. He added that such a large instrument "can excom ous sounds above and below the human range of hearing. We can't hear the low notes, only feel them."

Collins Speech Shows Basic Friendliness To Integration

Governor LeRoy Collins spoke as a statesman Tuesday in his inaugural address, urging Floridians to put aside their fears and prejudices and work toward a new democracy.

The Supreme Court, he declared, "is an essential institution for the preservation of our form of government. It is little short of rebellion and anarchy to suggest that any state can isolate and quarantine itself against the affect of a decision of the United States Supreme Court.

"If such a proposal could possibly have any legal efficacy, we would have no Union and the power of the Court to protect the people in the enjoyment of their freedoms would be severely impunged and imperiled. We should frankly admit this and put the true label of demagoguery on any doctrine of nullification.

"Violence and disorder in any form can never be the answer. And, as Governor, I shall use every lawful power at my command to preserve law and order, peace and harmony, for all our people."

The governor explained what is certainly true, that for years Floridians lived under previous decisions of the Court that segregation, when it provided "equal" facilities, was lawful, and a reversal of that position could not automatically change the habits of people.

But just as people became accustomed to segregation, they can eventually adjust to a way of life more enlightened than one which classifies people by an accident of birth beyond their control.

Thus, the governor spoke to two sides. We feel, however, that in admitting integration to be the law of the land, and in agreeing that whites and Negroes can peaceably get along together in public facilities, Governor Collins displayed a basically favorable attitude toward integration. He may not feel it should occur "in the foreseeable future," but he recognized that it must, as do all persons who stop to consider the unmoral and unconstitutional precepts of segregation.

Evidence of the dual side of Collins' outlook came when he declared to his audience, "haughtiness, arrogance, the forcing of issues will not produce the answer," calling upon Negro leaders to be tolerant of the prejudices of whites.

"Above all," he pleaded, "hate is not the answer.

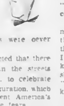
"One may be hated and still retain his human dignity, but one who hates suffers a shrinking of his soul. We can never find the answer by destroying the human spirit. Indeed, through hate, we magnify our bewilderment and fortify our fears."

Florida, he reasoned, must work toward, instead of away from, integration. Bus sagregation could easily be implemented now, as, for instanca, whitas and Negroea have shopped in the same stores for years.

We are inclined to disagree with Governor Collins when he classifies as "extremists" those who think Florida's new segregation laws, the so-called Fabisinski bills, ara subtarfuges to evade the Supreme Court rulings. He said they merely allow for local conditions, and will permit integration when the people can accept it, which is what the Supreme Court anticipated.

There are too many local politicians, however, who have seized upon these laws, which give school authorities vague and undefined powers, to promise that there will never, never, be integration. Thus "safety-valve" legislation becomes something else.

Governor Collins has certainly chosen the right path, however, in boldly telling segregationists they are wrong, and in asking them to work hand-in-hand with the Negro population to raise the standard of living and democratic tradition of both. We applaud him for this courageous speech.



We hope that when the chips are down he will choose the forward path, even if it necessitates stern action against lesser people who would rather not lead the people but delude them.

The Dissenter

Oracle Ogles Things To Come

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Each New Years the oracles who write for newspapers amply assure us that the human race will do well to survive the forthcoming twelve months.

No such dire predictions have been seen so far this year, thanks to the unqualified, omnipotent assurences of the Republican Party that things were never better.

It is to be expected that there will be dancing in the streets later this month, to celebrate Eisenhower's inauguration, which really will represent America's triumph over false fears.

BUT I cannot quite extend optimism to everything. The following events appear quite likely in store for 1957

Tally-Ho it is true will publish on time, but the glory of their triumph will be dampened by the disappearance of Smoke Signals, whose bearded editor Marcello Truzzi, has not been seen around Longmire in days and has quite probably been reclaimed by the French Foreign Legion.

PRESIDENT Eisenhower will hold press conferences, at which reporters (restive chaps) will inquire if America hasn't lost the good will of Britain and France, lost respect in the satellite countries of Eastern Europe, and left the Middle East in the hands of a dangerous Egyptian dictator. Eisenhower will smile a bit, scowl a bit, in whatever order you prefer, and answer, "America is a great country."

Press Secretary Jim Hagerty will not release the official transcript of the conference until he can amend the quotation to read, "America is a great and blessed country."

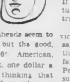
SOMEONE will write to Norman Vincent Peale, revealing that "One night I shot a man in the head and ran away. I think I killed him but the police don't know who fired the gun. What shall I do?" Peale will answer, "Think positively. You didn't kill him."

The Tallahassee Citizen's Council will ask the governor to segregate the sidewalks, in the interest of peace and harmony. If he doesn't do this, the Council will warn, some nasty soul just might steal the sidewalks.

SOME enterprising person will install JATO bottles under the chassis of his new Plymouth and take off in the length of a driveway.

New York police will arrest their "Mad Bomber," only to release him in sympathy after he explains he is a Pittsburgh Pirate fan.

THE FSU Athletic Committee, failing in efforts to break the Big Ten-Pacific Coast Conference contract, will buy the Rose Bowl!



Kidnaping will become Hollywood's newest rage.

Some enterprising Hollywood producer will put the censors, religious and otherwise on the spot by re-filming the story of Samson and Delilah starring Elvis Presley as Samson.

Calling The Card

A Peale Appeal: Everything Rosy

By JIM McINTYRE

In the past two issues of tha Florida Flambeau, two of the other columnists hava mada mention of a certain individual whose particular braod of pseudo-philosophy seems to be pervading the thought on the American scene today.

Mind you now I don't mean the intellectual-type thought in which these fuzzy-brained eggheads seem to remain engaged, but the good, old-fashioned 100% American, none-other-like-it, one dollar a bottle brand of thinking that occupies those of us who are more down to earth than these ivory tower people who read about such things as philosophy, history, political science, baking science, and education.

THE INDIVIDUAL in question is that great exponent of happiness and laissez faire, Norman Vincent Peale. Dr. Peale is a well-known pastor, philosopher author and comedian who has filled the hearts of millions and the coffers of his discretionary fund with the revenue from his sermons, recordings, and several books on the same general theme. His column in Look Magazine has gained many other devotees, and his Sunday afternoon television show has endeared him to the happy populace by the display of his rosy-cheeked effervescense.

Dr. Peale's message is simple: "Think positive thoughts and everything will be all right." If you think bad, things will turn out bad. This is obviously true.

TAKE FOR example, his advice to the young man who wrote saying that he was worried over the possibility of an "H" bomb falling on New York City. Dr. Peale replied that he was just suffering from a series of bad and evil thoughts and then reassured him that all he had to do was think positively and no bomb would fall on New York.

His books have a peculiar order of arrangement. They may be read either from front to back or from back to froot without any appreciable difference in content. One may rearrange the paragraphs in any order and still come out with essentially the same thing. His chapters are a series of reiterations designed to do one thing: Convince the people of America that everything is alright, there is nothing to worry about, and all they need do is keep reading "Little Orphan Annie."

HIS SERMONS, given "extemporaneously" to the Marble Collegiate Church, New York City, are sold in the looby of that Church along with his books and recordings of him reading from the Holy Bible.

And, in the midst of all the furor, stands the squat figure of the man himself, hands folded on tummy, reassuring America that if the people will only think positively, the world situation will be resolved.

So you see, we have nothing to worry about.

ALAN'S AISLE

'Rififi' Beats 'Baby Doll' In Drama

By ALAN KASS

Toward the end of 1956 the Catholic Church put up a strong protest against the movie, "Baby Doll."

Francis Cardinal Spellman, who incidentally had not seen "Baby Doll," stated, "Since these degrading pictures stimulate immorality and crime, they must be condemned. If this be the case it will be indictment of those who defy God's law and contribute to corruption in America."

This same "Baby Doll" is showing this week at the Florida Theatre, while at the Ritz is a picture that also caused moral objection. Since "Rififi" is the better of the two we will discuss it first.

For years, American film directors have experimented with all sorts of music and sound effects to join the mood of tension, suspense and climax in dramatic pictures. Now the French have filmed a 35-minute scene that will have you in knots without even a musical note or any dialogue voiced at all.

The scene is the burglary of a jewelry store that is on the ground floor of an apartment building. Starting from the top floor, the thieves bored holes in the ceiling, use ropes, silent gadgets and umbrellas to gain entrance in the store. It is staged with perfection. In fact it's one of the most engrossing sequences ever captured in a motion picture.

This is not nearly the story either. After the robbery a second crisis develops when a rival gang kidnap a child for some of the jewels. This brings about a gangster war in the French underworld that leaves you dizzy as the picture ends.

This picture is art, the acting is flawless and the directing and camera work are great. Jules Dassin wrote the screen play, directed the picture and stars as well. But the acting laurels belong to Jean Servais as the leader of the jewel thieves. The picture is loaded with sex, and it makes you pull for the thieves when the law starts tracing them down. You'll find this picture unforgettable and exciting.

"Baby Doll," on the other hand is almost equally as powerful. It also concerns itself with a low class of people, but this time in Benoil, Miss. Rather than having a big plot as the former it settles down to present the animal instincts of three people. You can note the differences in personality at the time of each person's big crisis.

First there is Baby Doll, a 19-year-old girl who sleeps in a crib, drinks Coke for breakfast and sleeps sucking her thumb. Second, there is Archie Lee, Baby Doll's husband who is eagerly awaiting the doll's 20th birthday so he can finally seduce her. Thirdly we have the intruder who is hated by all since he is new in the community and is making plenty of money with his new cotton gin.

The acting of all three players is of the highest calibre. Carole Baker as the main title is perfect. She is naive, seemingly passionate and loaded with sex. Her voice with an acquired Southern sing-song makes her a top flight contender for this year's Academy Award.

Karl Maldeo as Archie Lee proves once again that he is an actor's actor.

True Facts Available

TO THE EDITOR:

An inquiry in your paper, the Flambeau, which would be more aptly named the Harlem Herald, seemed concerned about when I acquired my first pair of shoes. The questioners' sympathetic interest so deeply moved me that I decided to tell my secret. I still go barefoot because it is absolutely impossible to forgo the pleasure of selling my clodpackers to a certain gullable brand of Yankees and first generation Southerners who are taken in by all sorts of simple propaganda, including that which insists all Floridians have Jesus Shoes, enabling the wearer to walk on water.

Doubtless the good men, tried and true, who signed the letter have had experience with Jesus Shoes.

Now, Mr Editor, turning seriously to Carl Johnson's critical letter of the same date as the above mentioned inquiry (December 18) it added nothing to the discussion but was a rehash of things said a hundred times before, a second-hand conglomeration of useless remarks. I suppose though there will always be pseudo idealist who picture themselves as unselfish cross-carriers, martyrs for a down trodden minority, the bringers of truth, light, and wisdom to a misled, emotional area. I cast no asperaions of course.

If you or anyone else, however, is really interested in a better written more detailed treatment than I gave or could give of some of the principles involved in the Clinton controversy, let me refer you to an editorial on the last page of the December 22 issue of The U S News and World Report. These same principles are touched on but not fully developed in Malcolm B Johnson's (not to be confused with Carl or Oscar) column in the Sunday January 6 edition of the Democrat which I sincerely hope every person in Tallahassee read.

Sincerely yours,
CHARLES F. ADAMS

Not Enough To Go Around

TO THE EDITOR:

In response to Mr. Allen and any other interested students:

Smoke Signals prints approximately 3,900 copies for student distribution. Since there are over 6,000 students this is about one per two students. We distribute one per mailbox (generally housing two persons) and the same proportion to frats' and sororities' residences. As for day students over one hundred issues were left in the Day Students Lounge. Other satisfied day students must to obtain copies at the Smoke Signals office in Longmire since the staff is in since no money is budgeted for us to mail them.

If the students wish to ask for more money for a larger printing we are for it.

Sincerely,
MARCELLO TRUZZI

SOME MORE LITTLE STORIES WITH BIG MORALS

First Little Story

Once upon a time there was an Indian brave named Running Bear who had a squaw named Giggling Water. Giggling Water was sort of a mess, but she sure could make beaded moccasins. Every day she whipped up a brand-new pair of beaded moccasins for Running Bear which were so gorgeous that all the Indian maids on the reservation grew giddy with admiration.

Well sir, Giggling Water got livid about all the girls making goo-goo eyes at Running Bear, and one night she told him so. Then he got livid too, and they had a terrible rumble, and he slapped her on the wrist, and she started crying like crazy and moved out of the wigwam and went home to her mother and never came back.

"Good riddance!" said Running Bear, but he soon found out how wrong he was, for the Indian maids were not really interested in him, only in his moccasins, and when he stopped showing up with a new pair every day, they quickly gave him the yo-heave-ho, and today he is a broken man, sitting all alone in his tepee and muttering ancient Ute curses.

MORAL: Don't fight the hand that beads you.

the students did not take that lying down

Second Little Story

Once upon a time there was a sweet old gentleman named Nathan who ran a tobacco counter at a large American university. All of the students loved him dearly, and they used to come over whenever they could to buy Philip Morris Cigarettes and chat with Nathan, both of which were highly satisfactory pursuits. The Philip Morrises were highly satisfactory because they are full of natural goodness that is friendly and humane and soothing and no small consolation in this strife-ridden world of ours. Nathan, like Philip Morris, was also full of natural goodness that was friendly and humane and all like that.

Well sir, the students smoked Philip Morris and yocked with Nathan, and everything was lovely. Then one day the university decided to fire Nathan and put in a cigarette vending machine instead.

Well sir, the students did not take that lying down, you may be sure! They organized a monster rally and went over to prexy's house and made fiery speeches about good old Nathan and how they loved him.

Well sir, prexy was no fool, and when he saw how heartbroken the students would be if Nathan went, he decided that the wisest course was to keep Nathan and cancel the cigarette vending machine. This he did, and they all lived happily ever after.

MORAL: Better Nate than lever.

Third Little Story

Once there was a lion, which was a very quiet lion. In fact, the only time it ever made a sound was when it had a toothache.

MORAL: When it pains, it roars.

©Max Shulman, 1956

Philip Morris, sponsor of this column, would like to point a moral too: Nothing ventured, nothing gained. Try a pack of Philip Morris, and win yourself a heap of pleasure!

Coaches Moving

It is the time of year when the nation's football coaches [illegible] the age-old game of musical chairs, to see who can [illegible] coaching position.

The old ones finally retire (generally after having an exceptionally bad or good season), the good ones cooze to a buzzer when the bad ones to a smaller one, and the oldies sit it out [illegible] wondering whether or not their university is going to [illegible] another contract or just fire them.

So should qualify the term "good" or "bad" coach as to whether they had a good or bad record, for we'll never believe that one season is entirely the coach's fault.

As an example, a famous one, we'll take Terry Brennan of Notre Dame 9-1 one year (his first), 2-8 the next. Notre Dame [illegible] however refused to believe it was his fault and rehired [illegible] We think it will pay off in the long run.

Most of the moving notices are originating in St. Louis at the [illegible] where the NCAA held its annual coaches' confab this week.

Seminole coach Tom Nugent is there, and reports are that at [illegible] three schools are interested in obtaining his services as a [illegible] mentor next year and years following.

The University of Indiana, Houston and Maryland have showed [illegible] in Nugent, who has never had a losing campaign in four [illegible] at Florida State.

Speaking of the old timers who resigned or retired the most [illegible] of the four are probably Don Faurot of the University of Missouri, Bo Hill of Southern California, Ed Price of Texas and [illegible] Crisms of Indiana, one of the universities interested in [illegible].

The most famous of the new coaches signed is probably Bud Boisl, an all-American quarterback at the University of Oklahoma, who took over Price's job at Texas. He now faces the task of beating "his alma mater.

It around they go. But when it's all over, we're taking [illegible] Nugent will be right here.

SIDE GLANCES

The Seminole volleyball team continued its winning ways [illegible] this weekend by defeating Portland Air Force Base of [illegible] three out of five games. Coach Bill Odenal reports [illegible] are quite a mix off-time, evidently with some success [illegible] the next match is set for January 16 against Graham Air [illegible] Base at Marianna.

Coach Ben Stults is still having troubles fielding a freshman [illegible] team. Main difficulty, no freshman classmen [illegible] emergency. Seminole coach has also indicated he may need [illegible] freshman manager before the year is out. Any interested [illegible] can find Stults at the Women's gym from 3-6 most any [illegible].

Every Seminole basketball statistics indicate that Larry [illegible] fifth in team scoring leads the players in field goal [illegible] hitting more than 49% of his shots. Bobby Walls [illegible] the way in free throws, having made nearly 80% of his [illegible] attempts. . . Speaking of the cage sophomore [illegible] leader Hugh Durham came close to tieing an all-time [illegible] record against Jacksonville, making 13 field goals. The record [illegible] game is 14 by Ham Wernke.

Hoopsters Tackle Canes

The Florida Flambeau
Friday, January 11, 1957 3

The Florida State basketball team plays its first game in ten FIBC when the Seminoles battle the Miami Hurricanes tomorrow night in the men's gym at 8 p.m.

The Hurricanes sport an unimpressive record of 6-8. They have beaten Toledo, Houston, Texas A&M, Florida Southern, Tampa, and Stetson. The latter three teams are members of the FIBC.

Miami has met defeat at the hands of Kentucky, Dayton, Akron, Valparaiso, Connecticut, Seton Hall, Colorado, and Florida. In comparing teams that both squads have played, Miami beat Texas A & M, while the Seminoles lost to the Aggies 83-74. On the other hand, Florida swamped the Hurricanes, while the Gators barely edged the Tribe, 65-57.

Leading the Cane attack is their junior guard Gene Stage. Stage is the top scorer for Miami thus far this season. He possesses a tricky jump shot and a very effective two-hand set.

At the other guard will be George Talbot from Delray Beach. Talbot, according to head coach Bruce Hale, is the best all around floor man on the squad.

Ed Morris and Morty Burdette will open at the forward posts for the Canes. Both are lettermen who have plenty of game experience. Morris had a 18.1 average last season and is hot again this year. Burdette is classed by Hale as the most aggressive player on the team and is very strong on rebounds and defense.

The post spot will be handled by Pete Turonis. Turonis who is the tallest man on the Miami squad at 6-7 is a starter on defense and is agile for his size. Also on the Hurricane bench will be Stan Kojkowski 6-8 and Bob Stetzer 6ao 6-6.

The probable starters for the Seminoles will be Bob Williams at center and the two leading scorers on the squad, Bob Walls and Hugh Durham. The other positions are being fought over by Larry Strom, Bob Ward and Fred Twomey.

Miami is the only team that has beaten FSU in the FIBC in two years. That loss came last year in Miami with the score 91-85 in Miami's favor.

Tankers Meet Emory Tomorrow Afternoon

The Florida State swimming team will play host to a highly regarded Emory University team in a dual meet tomorrow afternoon at 2:00 p. m. in the Women's Gym.

In eight previous meetings with the Atlanta school, the Seminoles have failed to lose. Last year the State tankers romped over them by a 80-24 score.

This year, however, reports indicate that Emory will send a vastly improved team against the Seminoles. Coach Ben Stults, mentor at FSU, said his team had this to say:

"Emory will bring a fine group of swimmers down here and the conditioo our boys are in may be the deciding factor in the outcome." He went on to say that, "It will be a good meet and there should be plenty of close races."

Florida State will count on the services of senior Jim Julian to lead the team in point-getting. In the Carnet and Gold meet, Julian gathered three first places and was the meet's high point man.

Other Seminole stars to be on the lookout for tomorrow night include Joel Jacobs, FSU's top breaststroker, Don Lewis in the 100 yd. free style, Graham Teachoe, holder of three school records in the middle distances, and Ken Abbott, a top all around performer.

Tomorrow afternoon at 4 P.M. in the new recreation room on the ground floor of the men's physical education building.

Entry deadline is today at 2 P.M. in the intramural office. This year doubles have been added to the singles tournaments played in the past. A player cannot compete in both tournaments.

Last year Frank Bivan of PDT won the fraternity singles beating Leon Cutler of TEP in the extra-finals. T. Iteiani of Magnolia Hall won the dorm tourney beating P. K. Rao of Methodists in the finals.

Intramural News

The fraternity football games turned up some close and hotly contested affairs this week with the leaders being pushed to the limit.

Undefeated DTD came from behind to beat a feisty and tough PKP team 20-13. Tolomer picked off a DTD pass from behind his goal line and went 102 yard to put PKP ahead 6-0, at the half.

The Delts went ahead 7-6 but again Tolomer went ever as a long run to gain a 13-7 holer. Harrell intercepted two passes that turned into DTD scores.

The KA's started in the running with a 21-19 win over SPE. SPE turned in a wild-and-last quarter comeback with 13 points but their failure to kick goal cost them the game.

PDT took a 12-0 lead over SN only to have SN score in the 4th quarter to gain a 13-12 win. The day previously PDT shut their enemy scorless to beat SPE 43-6. SAE beat LCA 48-0.

INTRAMURAL BOARD

The intramural Board is in session today attempting to reschedule and make the playoffs of the top two teams on each of the three leagues a single elimination tournament to complete the season before exams. If the proposal goes thru the playoffs will begin Jan. 18 or 17.

In the "A" league ATO, DTD and PKP still have a chance in "B" league SN, PDT and KA are in the running. In the "C" league SAE, TC and PKT all have a chance at the first two places.

Volleyball and badminton doubles will be the first sports on the program in February.

TENNIS

The intramural table tennis championships begin next Wednesday afternoon at 4 P.M. in the new recreation room on the ground floor of the men's physical education building.

No, the party-go-around hasn't stopped spinning but it has definitely slowed down. Most probably this slowing is the fault of the holidays and the rapid narrowing of the time before exams.

What young people are doing at General Electric
Young engineer pioneers new ways to use x-ray
A new x-ray inspection system which performs an x-ray image more than 10,000 times in one minute and transmits it to a conventional TV screen has been developed recently by General Electric. When perfected, it may enable medical specialists to perform "long-distance" examinations on patients in remote areas.
One of the principal uses is underdeveloped x-ray television — called TVX for short — is Dr. John E. Jacobs, Manager of the Advanced Development Laboratory of General Electric's X-Ray Department in Milwaukee, Wisconsin.
Jacobs' Work is Important, Responsible
As an electronics specialist, Dr. Jacobs' work in the past has been devoted to the study of photoconductive substances whose properties change under the influence of radiation — and the use of x-rays in industrial inspection. This in turn led to his development of the x-ray-sensitive camera tube used in TVX.
His present administrative duties with the Advanced Development Lab allow him more time for teaching others what he has learned. He now teaches the second-year graduate course at Northwestern in vacuum-tube networks, and has recently been named McKay Visiting Professor for 1957 in the University of California at Berkeley, where he will give a two-week series of lectures on photo-conduction.
27,000 College Graduates at General Electric
Some his youth, when he was a licensed radio "ham," John Jacobs has been devoted to the study of electricity and electronics. Like each of our 27,000 college graduates, he is being given the chance to grow and realize his full potential. For General Electric has long believed those when fresh young minds are given the freedom to develop, everybody benefits — the individual, the Company, and the country.

Faith Week Speaker Called Top Clergyman

Dr. Louis Evans, who will head the annual Religious Emphasis Week Faith Week next month, has recently been chosen in a poll by Life Magazine as one of the twelve most outstanding religious leaders in America.

Dr. Evans chosen as one of the ten greatest Protestant preachers in America in a similar poll by Newsweek, is probably the best known of the religious leaders who will visit the FSU campus February 23-27.

He is now Minister-at-Large for the Board of National Missions of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A. and is the founding sponsor of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Inc. He is also president of that organization this year.

Dr. Evans is a graduate of Occidental College in Los Angeles, California and received his B.D. degree from McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago. While at Occidental, he was chosen as an all-conference and all-state football player and was the all-Southern California basketball squad as a center.

He was named in 1951 as Speaker of the Year in the Field of Religion by Tau Kappa Alpha, national speech honorary.

FILM ON EGYPT TO BE SHOWN TUESDAY

A documentary film, "Egypt, The Land of the Pharaohs" will be shown twice Thursday night in the library lecture hall for an admission of 25 cents, the Tallahassee Society of the Archaeological Institute of America announced.

Showings will be at 7 and 8:20 p.m., with tickets on sale in the Westcott ticket booth and at the door.

Three Solons Vacate Seats Next Semester

Student Body President Dave Bachman will have to toil by applicants' three vacancies in Student Senate early in the second semester.

Bachman

Two of these will be to replace senior senators Jim Moore and Bill Moore, the latter's wife team in student government will graduate Feburary 2

Bachman said he is considering senators to replace them and will accept suggestions.

A third vacancy will occur when Men's Senate elects a president pro tem, who will automatically become Senator Vice-President. Jim Soles, elected last spring to that office, was sworn in last week as Student Body Vice-President, presiding officer of Student Senate. He replaces Bill Culhen, a married veteran, who holds no job off campus, who resigned last week.

Bachman said he hopes Men's Senate elects a senior senator like Soles' position. Electing a junior or sophomore he explained, might give him an unfair advantage in spring elections.

Dorm Space To Be Known By Weekend

The exact number of vacancies in men's residence halls for the coming semester will be known by the end this week, according to R. G. Brewer, director of men's housing.

Brewer said yesterday that "normally we have room available among the residents of the dormitories and will be returned for tabulation today."

The align will give information as to whether occupants of the dormitories will remain in them. In the case of those who wish to remain, the slip will serve as a room reservation for the second semester.

From the slips the men's housing office will be able to determine the number of rooms that will be available to those on the waiting list to enter one of the halls. Should the waiting list be smaller than the list of vacancies, there will be room for those men who have not already applied for dormitory housing, Brewer indicated.

Brewer added that the units provided by the University for married students have been reserved already and will be filled to capacity for the ensuing term.

Library Hours To Be Extended During Exams

Library hours will be temporarily extended beginning next Sunday in an effort to aid students in pre-exam study, and Norman L. Kilpatrick director of libraries.

The library will remain open from 2 until 10 p.m. on Sunday but today must be checked out only until 5 p.m. After that hour there will be only a small staff on duty, and the library will function mainly as a reading room for students outside the library.

To allow extra study time during the following week of exams, the library will remain open until 11 p.m. Monday through Friday, but only for study after 10 p.m. Hours for the remainder of the semester are as follows: Saturday, January 26 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Sunday, January 27, 2:30 p.m., and Monday through Friday January 28 and 29 8 a.m.-11 p.m.

Radiation Panel Slated Thursday

Sponsored by Sigma Pi Sigma, physics honorary, the panel will include Dr. Guenter Schwarz, head of the physics department; Dr. Russell Johnson, associate professor of chemistry; Dr. Warren Dryden, assistant professor of meteorology; and Dr. A. von Vorrist, visiting professor from Oak Ridge National Laboratories now lecturing here.

Clubs Approve Longer 'Dead Week'

Among the powers-that-be who schedule meetings of the multitude of campus clubs, very few say "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Test?".

According to Mortar Board, Women's Honorary, a survey indicated that just six percent of organization spokesmen feel "Dead Week"—the period before exams when clubs and concerts cease to be—is unnecessary.

A whopping 64 percent suggested "Dead Week" begin one full week before the first day of exams. Another 28 percent thought it is reasonable to begin the week dedicated to contemplation and study on Monday of the exams begin late in the week. They start next Thursday.

Mortar Board admitted their survey was incomplete, owing to lack of response from many groups—who were probably too busy with activities to reply.

To Request Pool, Student Union

Student Lobbyists To Push Facilities

By CHARLET POITEVINT

Florida State's student lobbyists will approach the state's lawmakers when the Legislature convenes here in April requesting several "direly needed" facilities for FSU students.

According to student Senator Bob Murray, a member of the three-man lobbying team, the legislators will be asked for help in gaining higher student wages, a new swimming pool, a student union building and an engineering school.

These goals are only secondary to the Senate's main plan in initiating the lobbying program—one primarily to create good will toward FSU, said Murray.

The Student Senate in November passed a motion requested by Jim Moore, to register FSU representatives at the session in April. Named as the delegation were Murray, Dave Bachman, president of the student body, and Jan Kaminis, secretary of state.

WAGES LIKELY

Murray said the request for higher student wages is a result of the recent request at the present time. The three other "points on poll for" are not to be considered for several years.

The former legislature was silent on those growing student body as justification for another swimming pool here in addition to the inadequate pool in the Women's Gym.

Much controversy was raised last year when a pool, originally planned for Florida State, the newly built men's physical education building was eliminated from the plans because of a shortage of funds.

Dr. Doak S. Campbell said it was "unfair" funds should not be provided for the pool during the 1957 legislative session, Senator Dan Edward of O. Danford listed it as the No. 1 athletic need at FSU.

BUILDING SOUGHT

Another project advocated by Student Senate, headed by President Union building, would provide FSU students with a place for Student Government such as Senate, officers, Junior Class, Honor and Traffic courts; the Flambeau, Tallyho, Smoke Signals, and various clubs and organizations.

This has been tentatively planned as an addition to the Student Center.

Murray said the suggestion has been made for the university to build a hotel on the campus and maintained by Hotel and Restaurant Management students so it would be on the level of University's "Clemson House" which has been "doing this for years," he said.

SUGGESTION

"The engineering school we request appropriations for an engineering school at FSU was suggested by the late president, A. B. Martin, said Murray. He said that FSU should have good math and science departments here. It would be the first school established to add."

The lobbyists have been attending Joint House and Senate committee meetings where the state appropriations committees have allotted time to the FSU students to present their case, said Murray.

The Village Vamps will form a committee to personally welcome the legislators the first day of the session. Other plans are also under way to "bring FSU to the lawmakers' attention," according to Murray.

Choral Union To Give Opera, 'Barbered Bride'

"The Barbered Bride," an opera not often performed in this country outside New York City, will be the Choral Union's spring presentation May 10 and 11.

It will be sung in a new English version of Frederick Bernstein's libretto by Rosa Newmarch.

Choral Union officials said tryouts for solo roles will be held early in the second semester. The solo parts include three basses, four tenors, three sopranos, and one mezzo soprano.

"The Barbered Bride" has been presented often at the Metropolitan Opera and contains many well-known passages, particularly the overture, which Bernstein composed in a highly symphonic form.

The English version was dedicated to Dr. Thomas Masaryk, late president of the Czechoslovakian republic.

Any student now in the Choral Union or who plans to enroll may audition when tryouts for solo roles are called, a spokesman explained. Students interested in singing in the chorus may qualify simply by attending Choral Union rehearsal Tuesday evening from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Music Building chorus room.

Student Gov't Crosses Fingers As Sales For Hungarians Lag

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Student government officials slept with their fingers crossed last night, hoping that a good box-office sale will save the Hungarian scholarship benefit concert tonight.

Student Body President Dave Bachman and Secretary estimated that only about 250 tickets have been sold in advance.

The concert, featuring two eminent Hungarian musicians now on the FSU faculty, and playing Hungarian music to be benefit SHARES—Seminole Hungarian Aid and Relief for the Establishment of Scholarships.

The goal of SHARES is to collect enough money to bring as many as 10 refugees from Soviet Occupied to Florida State University. World Universities Service has assured Bachman there are many, many more than ten young refugees eager for an education.

Dr. Ernst von Dohnanyi, professor of piano and composition, and Edward Kilenyi, professor of piano and violin, are to be featured musicians tonight.

Dr. Dohnanyi's participation in the concert will be the coming full circle of a dramatic story.

FORCED TO FLEE

The elderly musician, for 30 years director of the Budapest Conservatory, was himself forced to flee Hungary—during World War II—when the Nazi hierarchy, like the thousands who have recently fled another dictatorship, took over the Magyar nation and sent to Austria and from there came to Augusta to the United States in 1948.

Kilenyi, a well-known recording artist, went to Budapest when 11 years old at Dohnanyi's invitation to study under the elder musician. He now accompanies Dohnanyi on a concert tour of Hungary through most of the Philadelphia of Hungarian parentage.

The concert is scheduled to begin at 8:15 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium. Dr. Kilenyi will be playing four numbers from Dohnanyi's Rondo Humoristico," followed by a solo performance of two Liszt compositions, "Consolation" and "12th Hungarian Rhapsody." The two faculty members will play five of Brahms Hungarian dances as duets.

The second half of the concert will feature a performance of Bela Bartok's "Rhapsody." Sonatas for Two Pianos and Percussion" Kilenyi and Dr. John Boda will play the pianos, with Dr. Dohnanyi conducting and Dr. Robert Rogge Ramon Mercer and David Ward-Steinman comprising the percussion section.

HOPE FOR SALE

Despite Bachman's lack of attendance at last night's concert, ticket purchases for the benefit concert are expected to be made in a large door sale tonight will pull they prosper through.

In case there is a full short of one Westcott Auditorium holds seats, the concert will be moved to Opperman Music Hall, Bachman said.

Mrs. Kathryn Vernon, who, as chief of the special events office supervises student activities campus, and that for benefit concerts when seats are not reserved, box office sales just before the performance usually equal or exceed advance sales.

Members of Gold Key spoke to Tallahassee civic clubs last week to enlist aid and several merchants had their pledges distributed by advertising material Saturday.

Tickets are on sale at Westcott ticket booth, Nork's Toggery, Bennett's Drug Store, Baker's and Jenkins music stores, and Hay Travel Service in the Doral Hotel.

Madrigal Singers To Sing Tomorrow

A newly organized singing group will present a concert of music from the Renaissance tomorrow night in Opperman Music Hall beginning at 8 p.m.

Represented will be Handel's "Messiah," Hayden's "The Creation," Mozart's "Requiem" and Mendelssohn's "Elijah, and J. S. Bach's "St. Matthew Passion."

The musicians, who call themselves The Madrigal Singers, are Mrs. Margaret Yeats, Janis Marriott, Margaret Yeats, Chris Hrras, Lee Liming, Thomas McLawhorn, David Austin, Wesley Chesnut, Lee Liming and James Mendor.

BOP Selects Ann Stickler Pow Wow Editor

Ann Jaszen Stickler was appointed editor of Pow Wow, student handbook, by the Board of Publications at its most recent meeting Thursday.

The Pow Wow editorship carries a $50 stipend. The pocket size handbook serves primarily as a guide for new students.

Only other major action taken by the Board was to authorize Tally Ho to write off as bad debts about $200 in delinquent accounts, some said to be as far back as 1951.

The Board also gave Tally-Ho permission not to charge certain campus organizations who do not collect dues for their group pictures.

It is to be expected, however," said Chairman Don Reddy, that early organizations who have no funds of their own will take advantage of this decision."

Tally-Ho was asked to prepare a comprehensive revision of its policies on picture charges.

Institute Plans Fashion Day

Fashion Day will be planned for by the Student Fashion Institute at its monthly meeting today in 222 Music at 5 p.m.

Fashion Day is an annual affair in the spring sponsored by the Student Fashion Institute. It consists of an all day program featuring designers, buyers, illustrators and others in the field of fashion.

Student Party Sets Meeting

Student Party will meet Thursday night to lay the groundwork for the spring elections, chairman Bill Culhen announced yesterday.

He said the meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in the Seminole Senate room, with planning of the Freshman Orientation Party to be held also on the order of business.

LOUIS ARMSTRONG TO PLAY HERE FRIDAY
Famed Satchmo' Comes To Campus

'Satchmo' Concert Sold Out

Campus Chest will be presented with a tidy sum following Friday night's performance of gravel-voiced Louis Armstrong, his famous trumpet and his "All-Star" ensemble in Westcott Auditorium.

Tickets for the 8 p.m. show are completely sold out, and those for the 8:45 show were sold fast as of yesterday afternoon, according to Mrs. Kathryn Vernon of the Special Events office.

The fabulous Satch-mo has announced that he and his All Stars will use the same jazz concert that was presented to royalty in Europe. After leaving Florida he will go to Washington to play for one of the presidential inaugural balls.

Ray Reinhardt of Alpha Tau Omega, the sponsors of this and last year's Woody Herman show, has announced that all proceeds will benefit Campus Chest. None will be withheld to guarantee a performance of a name band next year, although, "this will probably become an annual event," said Reinhardt.

Future FSU Administrators To Face Great Responsibility

Decision to hold one gigantic Inaugural Ball in a Florida State University building instead of numerous smaller balls in smaller Tallahassee enclosures demonstrates the increasing size of this university.

FSU has now gotten to the point where its facilities are better than those of the capital city.

As FSU grows in size, however, it will be forced to take more and more notice of a situation affecting all large universities. With size and importance comes responsibility.

The responsibility of a big university stems from the magnified pressures placed against it. A big university is of vital economic and political interest to a state. With the large appropriations required for its prosperity, it is subjected to extremely close scrutiny by the taxpayers.

FSU's administrators will be forced to consider very carefully all decisions requiring large expenditures. They will have to weigh what they, as educators, realize is to the best interest of the students and scholars against what they, as administrators, think will be tolerated by the decision-makers in the Legislature.

WILL BE PAINFUL

It will be a painful process. Doubtless, the trend is already upon us, but the forecast for future administrators is that they will be met with even more severe skepticism on the part of the Legislature.

What will vast political importance mean to this institution? In other places it has meant curtailment of some aspects of academic freedom. Many politicians distrust bigness, and this alone is enough to breed suspicions of communism, socialism, etc., in the university.

SPEECH CURTAILED

In some states, school newspapers have been forced to cease from criticizing state activities. The students form too important a vote, the politicians say.

In other instances, a kind of implied threat is made evident to instructors. Through unofficial channels they are made to understand that certain subjects must not be mentioned or pressure will be brought to bear for their "voluntary retirement."

These things have an adverse effect on education, a process in which students study all aspects of any given subject in an effort to deduce the truth.

We hope that FSU's future administrators will realize this in their actions, and seek to maintain high scholastic and academic standards rather than succumbing to political interference.

We do not intend to imply a distrust of the state government of Florida as a whole. We merely feel that it is the duty of educators to make aware to all men who have any measure of control over their institutions that high standards in education are a sacred right.

This is responsibility of a true and vital kind. Those who select future FSU administrators will act wisely if they choose a man who can meet such a great responsibility.

"Well, It's Sort Of New With Us"

These Politicians Like People — When Views Agree With Their Own

One response to Governor LeRoy Collins' insistence that Supreme Court decisions are the law of the land was especially noticeable.

"The Supreme Court is not infallible," declared a member of the Legislature. "In a democracy, only the people are infallible."

Even the strongest advocates of democracy do not maintain the people are infallible. They recognize that mistakes are bound to occur.

That is why a constitution was established to delineate certain principles which inspired the founders of the nation. It was made possible to amend this constitution, though not by a simple, immediate majority vote, so that only a true, permanent public sentiment could be written into our basic law.

Thus, when prohibition was found to be unworkable, it was abandoned.

When slavery was realized to be wrong, it was done away with.

At one time the people may lead toward progress, at another time the court. In either instance the lawful processes under the Constitution must be observed, or we have no government at all.

We find entirely too many Florida politicians suddenly defending the people's will. Where were they when proposals were made to grant the majority of Floridians who live in the southern part of the state equal representation based on population. They were not merely silent—they were vociferous against the people's will.

The Threepenny Critic

Clardy, Torn Provide Fine Music

RYAN EDWARDS

The Saturday evening Junior Recital of Marcella Clardy, soprano and Sheldon Torn tenor, along with the faculty recital of the previous evening afforded a welcome return to musical activity after the holidays. Both evocations were characteristic of the thorough-going earnestness, if not not of the occasional flashes of rare musical excitement, which FSU audiences have come to expect.

Of the Saturday evening program, Mr. Torn's portions were particularly remarkable for the high-level musicianship with which he approached every selection. Not only was this evident in matters of interpretation but also in consistently good diction and an excellent knowledgableness of style.

HE PERFORMED the feat somewhat rare in student performances around here, of making the foreign-language songs as clear and meaningful as the selections in English. This was especially gratifying in the "french" song of David Ward-Steinman, A la Foret de Gasline, and the Dalla sua Pace, from Mozart's Don Giovanni.

Unfortunately, however, Mr. Torn's voice still has a somewhat immature quality, and though his artistry was enough to offset it on the whole, there were places where we wished for fullness instead of falsetto, for vocal color along with style.

BUT THIS problem is inevitable in young voices and Mr. Torn's present artistic equipment promises some very memorable performances in the future.

Miss Clardy shares some of these problems, and though her interpretive skill does not quite equal her collaborater's, she contrived through judicious programming and vocal good sense to offer many lovely moments.

THE TWO operatic arias, Stizzoso, mio stizzoso from Pergolesi's La Serva Padrona, Voi lo sapete from Cavalleria Rusticana, were delivered with admirable dramatic color, and the two songs from Schumann's Frauenliebe ond Leben were sung introspectively.

The closing duet by both artists proved a fitting close to a pleasant evening.

In The Wings

Wilson Gives Bach Concert

By DAVID WARD-STEINMAN

HOWARD WILSON, an associate professor of piano, appeared in recital Friday night in Opperman Music Hall. His program consisted of four preludes and fugues from Bach's Well-Tempered Clavier and all of Chopin's preludes—the twenty-four in Opus 28 and the single prelude in C-sharp Minor, Opus 45.

The opening Prelude in D Major, from Book I of the WTC, was somewhat erratic, but the succeeding fugue was better-paced. The B-flat Minor Prelude and Fugue which followed was sensitive and restrained. The pairs in D Minor from Book II and B-flat Major from Book I concluded the first half of the program.

THE LONG Chopin group which made up the bulk of the program was somewhat uneven in quality.

In general, Wilson was at his best in the slower preludes, in which he could concentrate on line and interpretation. The more brilliant pieces were not always under complete control with certain notable exceptions.

The G-sharp Minor Prelude, the "Raindrop" No. 15, in D-flat, the F-sharp Major, and the Opus 45 C-sharp Minor Prelude were high points in the Chopin cycle, the B-flat Minor Prelude and Fugue in the Bach. The uniqueness of hearing all the Chopin preludes performed at once made the evening well worthwhile.

Integration Supporter Says Official Threatens Suspension For Letter

TO THE EDITOR:

On behalf of the signers of the letter to last Friday's Flambeau, I would like to thank the FSU students who came to Sunday's Inter-Civic Council meeting. About twenty FSU students gave their support to integration by coming to the meeting, and we look forward to seeing more in the future. The next meeting will be held on Wednesday evening at the Bethel Baptist Church. Meetings of the Inter-Civic Council are held regularly every Wednesday and Sunday evening; for time and place call Rev. J. Metz Rollins, 2-5828.

THE NEXT major aim of the integration movement in Tallahassee is the election of Rev. K. S. Dupont to the City Commission in next month's elections. Rev. Dupont should be supported, not because he is a Negro, but because he is an integrationist, and will work for a better Tallahassee for all the city's people. All FSU students and faculty who are eligible to vote in Tallahassee are urged to register and to cast their votes for Rev. Dupont.

Although last year a poll taken among FSU students indicates a willingness to integrate this university, it should be pointed out that no integrationist should expect to win a popularity contest among our administration. The four signers of last Friday's letter have been called in by the Dean of Men and warned that their suspension may become "necessary." Dean Neel is of the opinion that the constitutional guarantees of freedom of speech and assembly do not extend west of Copeland Street, and urged that I conform to the regulations of the Board of Control. Needless to say, no one is under any obligation to obey these or any other laws or regulations the purpose of which is the maintenance of racial segregation. During our discussion he delivered himself of the interesting opinion that "a college campus is not a democracy." However, it should be pointed out in all fairness that the Board of Control has no objection to anyone supporting integration so long as he does not act so as to make this goal a reality. Dean Neel also ventured the opinion that my support of integration indicated a mental instability. (This is a rephrasing, in modern terminology, of the medieval beliefs that one's political opponents must be in league with the devil.)

IN ADDITION to bringing student support behind the move towards integration, the present controversy will show exactly how much freedom of belief exists at Florida State University. I have no desire to martyr myself, and would prefer to continue my studies here. Still, to remain silent in the face of widespread defiance of this nation's supreme law is to be derelict in a citizen's duty, and to assist in the denial of fundamental human rights.

Yours truly,
JOHN BOARDMAN

Editor's Note: Certainly the right to express an opinion is fundamental in this country, and we can see no reason why a university should be an exception. Whether this letter adequately reflects Dean of Men Neel's opinion is not known to us.

It is the opinion of the editors of this newspaper that any official who attempts to curtail legitimate expression of opinion is treading on dangerous ground and would be wise to carefully consider the situation before making such a move.

Explains Situation To Segregationist

TO THE EDITOR:

In response to Charlie Adams most recent letter to the Flambeau I have a few comments.

CHARLIE IS right in saying that Carl Johnson's letter was nothing but a rehash of things said before, but Charlie, you are going to be reading "things" like that a lot. Those thoughts are common to most men and even more so in our times. The philosophies of natural rights, equality of men, brotherhood of men have been expounded in some form by people in all parts of the world, especially by the man to whom you referred, Jesus.

Actually, Charlie, you and your type are a minority in this country and the world. However, white supremacists will never be prosecuted in this country unless they become violent, which they are so prone to do, as in Clinton, Tennessee.

SAY, CHARLIE, do you know any more about constitutional law than what you read on the last page of the Dec. 21 issue of the U. S. News and World Report? If you do then of course you are entitled to your interpretation of the judicial powers of the U. S. Supreme Court, but the prevailing interpretation of those powers by John Marshall will probably continue to stand.

Charlie, it amazes me that you can close your mind to the teachings of the great religions. Or do you believe that religion is the opiate of the people? Don't you see that there is an atmosphere of change in the world today? The underprivileged the world over are striving for change. They want (1) Improved living conditions, (2) A change of status and (3) Freedom.

These three things are all that minority groups such as the Negro want, Charlie.

TO NEW YEAR'S MORN
By Suresh Sharma

New drops of moments
We've to sip from the cup of time
But alas! We the drunkards perish
And the cup still bubbles to the full
In the life's babbling ravelling rhyme.
Little is our care for all this
O Smile of the morn!
Let us sit and sip together
Whatever we can from the cup
And then be in line
For there's a pleasure to sit and sip in company,
Although for a while!!

Then let us tell this world
"May the New Year appear for you
As does the dawn for the East"
And then sip with merry lips
All moments which slip—
From the cup of time
And feast on earth's balcony,
Although for a while!!

The Staff Says:

THE UNIVERSITY of Miami's athletic teams seem to come up with something unusual every once in a while and Saturday's basketball game proved no exception.

I don't know the author of the Hurricane's book "Ten easy ways to keep your best player in the game," but it undoubtedly has worked before and probably will again.

I am speaking of their habit of raising their hands when a foul is called against them. This is very helpful for the official scorer and aids him immensely in keeping track of personal fouls.

BUT THERE is only one thing wrong with this. The guy who lifts his hand is not the player that the foul is called on.

Their main objective is to keep guard Gene Stage in the game and according to forward Ed Morris this unethical procedure has proved successful in previous Miami games.

And I'm willing to bet this new? concept in the cage sport will continue to be used and will get the desired results.

Calling The Card

Tallahassee Demonstrate[s] New Kind Of Logic?

By ARNOLD GREENFIELD

Tallahassee has a new way to seat people on public buss[es]. Our fair city has become convinced that it is unfair, ille[gal], immoral, unconstitutional, embarrassing, etc. to seat passeng[ers] according to color. We must make attempts to avoid the unpleasantness which recently accrued to Montgomery where valiant Caucasians started using the transportation facilities for target practice. The wild life of the state of Alabama welcomed the respite caused by the open season on people, but evidentally Florida game will not be similarly spared.

CAN THERE be any doubt that it is somewhat more ethical to shoot possums than darkies? Certainly not. Actually the marksmen who fired at and hit Negroes riding the busses b[ore] their victims no malice. For one thing everyone knows th[at] only troublemaking northerners oppose segregation and [that] those segregated favor the arrangement. I know this to be [the] case, because I heard it at a Citizen's Council meeting last yea[r].

Regardless we in Tallahassee are doing what we can [to] prevent bloodshed through our new passenger seating plan. N[ow] it needs to be understood that the new law is definitely [not] intended to preserve segregation—for nothing is worse [than] discrimination on the basis of race. We just need to preven[t] too rapid deterioration of our public transportation faciliti[es].

IT HAS RECENTLY been discovered that improper we[ight] distribution can cause buses to strip gears, bump uncomf[ort]ably, and hurriedly wear out their tires. Moreover, people [tend] to wear out rapidly when punctured by bullets. Therefore [by] perfect syllogistic reasoning) it was necessary to pass the [new] bus ordinance because the statute solves both problems [at] once. The newspaper (an infallible source of truth) inf[orms] us that the purpose of the new law is to "avoid improper wei[ght] distribution and prevent violence."

Let it never be said that ours is not a modern and [pro]gressive community. We are taking all necessary steps to k[eep] up to date in our handling of negros, busses, and people. An[d] for us! The only thing that worrys me is that we may ge[t] darn liberal—already our prejudices are diminishing. Before [we] know it we may find ourselves seated next to a Negro w[ho] happens to be a pacifist and also happens to fit in our wei[ght] category. Then what?

I'LL BE BOLD enough to venture a guess. When [the] weight distribution law proves unsatisfactory we will have [to] take other steps. We can differentiate on such bases as heig[ht], educational background, length of residence in the city, dis[]tance to be traveled, age, sex, party affiliation, or score o[n a] bus riding aptitude test. Just so we avoid the issue of race [we] are in the clear and those subversives on the U. S. Supre[me] Court won't be able to tell us what to do.

Ours is certainly an enlightened age. It is a lasting t[ribute] to the ingenuity of man that we are proving ourselves capa[ble] of establishing order among the forces of chaos and desp[air]. The Yankee communist plot to force free citizens of Ta[lla]hassee to ride next to people of different weights has be[en] circumvented. Take heart all you who believe in freed[om]. Reason has prevailed again.

The Dissenter

Democrats Must Suppor[t] Ike's Mideast Proposal

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Whatever opinions the Democrats in Congress may have th[at] Eisenhower and Dulles are now grandstanding in the field of foreign affairs they can't afford to vote down the Middle East plan.

A combination of most Democrats and the liberal wing of the Republican Party could put the thing across.

The so-called "Eisenhower Doctrine" is simply a re-affirmation of our foreign policy since 1947 to resist, with military and economic assistance, the spread of Soviet influence.

COMMUNIST designs on the Middle East are obvious: to stir up disorders within and among the national governments, to take advantage of every frantic mistake made by the British, to characterize America as dollar-hungry and ultimately to capture the Middle East both for its oil resources and for its strategic importance as Europe's lifeline.

Europe's economy is built around trade and dependent on the oil which she must import. Let Europe fall and not only our own trade its shattered but our defense perimiter is reduced to the expenses of the North Atlantic, sufficient enough in the days of steamships but hardly significant under the threat of the Inter-Continental Ballistics Missile.

AT THE PRESENT Russia does not seem to want war. Dictatorial governments never do, when the odds are not heavy enough in their favor. Let's keep it that way.

Eisenhower's Middle Eastern plan is reminiscent of the M[on]roe Doctrine, when Ame[rica] pledged her strength fo[r the] integrity of Western Hem[is]phere nations. Under that [doc]trine, it is true, we swung [our] weight around in ways [that] weren't exactly friendly. American "protection" wa[s at] times another form of exto[r]tion.

THERE'S NOTHING of [this] nature in Eisenhower's plan. [If] troops are used at the req[uest] of beleaguered governments [and] for legitimate purposes, we're [in] the right. Eisenhower al[ready] has the constitutional auth[ority] to employ the armed forces of the United States in the defense of the national interest.

Truman, for example, exercised his authority in a humanitarian and practical manner to defend South Korea, whose proximity to Japan, our forward base in the Pacific, made an argument over Korean intervention ridiculous.

All that Eisenhower does[n't] have is money to give to [the] Middle Eastern governments.

In proclaiming a "doctrine" and asking Congress to sa[nc]tion it he took a calcul[ated] risk, hoping that congressio[nal] approval would demonstrate to the world American solidarity.

IF HE IS defeated, however, American solidarity will not be counted for much, and what is more significant in most other countries if a political leader is defeated on a matter of major policy he resigns.

Defeat of the Democra[tic] Party in the 1918 electio[ns] weakened Wilson's position at Versailles, and Senatorial rejection of the League of Nations

Tankers Win Two, Cagers Lose Two

Hurricanes Rally Rips FSU, 85-77

By BEN BALSER
Flambeau Sports Writer

The Florida State basketball squad ill season, hit them again last Saturday night when the Miami Hurricanes rallied to dump the Tribe 85-77.

The Seminoles held the lead in four of three quarters but a last period surge, led by Chris Skage and Marv Burdette enabled Miami to win its seventh game of the season. The game was the first for the Tribe in FIBC play and marked the fourth victory for the Canes in the FIBC.

A crowd of 2000 saw Miami head coach Bruce Hale start his second until against the Seminoles. But Hale substituted most of his first string as the first period progressed. Miami emplayed a full court press for most of the first half but the Tribe managed to hit enough from the outside to hold a 43-38 advantage at half time.

High point man for the game was Burdette of Miami who sank 25 points. Skage, who is the Canes top scorer, followed Burdette with 22 markers. Joe Gardner also helped Miami by sinking 19 tallies.

DURHAM LEADS

Four men hit in the double figures for the Tribe. Hugh Durham led the Seminole scorers as he popped in 18 markers. Lanky Stu Gregory had an unusually good night and dropped in 14. FSU's flashy guard, Bob Watts had 13 points while Jack Brown followed closely with 11.

The Canes controlled the backboards in the second half while the Tribe missed a lot of field goal attempts. These two factors were of great importance in the final tally. The Tribe will have a chance for revenge however, when they meet Miami again on February 23 in Miami.

North Carolina State handed the Seminoles their fifth loss last Thursday night in Raleigh, when the Wolfpack cut short an FSU rally and won 62-56

The Tribe was behind most of the game with the score at the half being 36-36 in favor of State. But Lee Seminoles made a terrific try in the last half to pull ahead.

Parking FSU's attempted comeback was Fred Twomey who scored 14 points in the last half. Twomey was also high point man in the game with 18. Bob Williams, the Tribe center helped the cause by nabbing 14 second half rebounds and scoring 12 points. The Wolfpack held FSU's top scorers Durham and Watts to 10 and six points respectively. Lou Pucillo was high man for North Carolina State with 15 markers.

Adams' Tip Gives Frosh Cagers Win

A tip-in in the waning seconds of play proved the winning margin and ended a four game drought, as the PSU frosh cagers scored their first victory of the season edging the Miami freshmen 78-77.

Miami moved out in front early in the game, willing the Brownie defense with a torrid display of marksmanship from the floor. By half-time the baby Hurricanes had surged to a 37-26 lead.

However, in the first two and a half minutes of the second half Cash, Navarr, and Rogers narrowed the gap with a flurry of twelve points. The score remained close from there until Adams dropped a pair of fouls to put FSU ahead 74-73.

Navarr added a foul and a long jump shot to give the hosts a four point edge, but Miami countered with four consecutive foul shots to knot the score. Seconds later Ernie Langford rimmed a one and one foul and Adams covered the rebound and tapped in four seconds before the buzzer sounded.

The baby Seminoles placed four men in double figures with Jim Savage, the 6 4 sharpshooter from Ft. Lauderdale, tallying 23. Max Williams 17, Charlie Rivers 14 and Tom Adams backed up the finals which are best 3 out of 5. a fine performance with 11

Emory, Bulldogs Dunked By Tribe

By TOM HALE
Flambeau Sports Writer

The Florida State University swam team ran up two more victories over the past weekend with wins over Emory and the University of Georgia.

Thursday night the Seminoles swamped an overbalanced Georgia team by a score of 57-28. Following this victory the FSU tank team gave a really inexperienced and freshman-laden Emory team a 76-10 trouncing Saturday afternoon.

This turned out to be the worst defeat a Florida State swim team ever inflicted upon an opponent. All Emory could do was place second in one event and an automatic third in all the other events.

In the Georgia meet the only double winner was Jim Blankston of the Bulldog team Blankston got a first in the 220 yd free style and the 440 yd free style events.

Teschke was the high point man for the Seminoles with seconds in the same events that Blankston won.

WADDELL HIGH

Sophomore Rusty Waddell gathered high point laurels in the Emory meet with first places in the 220 yd freestyle and 440 yd free style events.

Getting one of his team's ten points was Emory's Marvin Skolnik. Skolnik got a second in the 220 yd. butterfly and a third in the 440 yd. free style.

Most records were broken by FSU's Joel Jacobs in the 200 yd. breaststroke and Jim Wentworth in the 200 yd backstroke.

The next swimming meet a will be in Atlanta, Ga. Jan. 19 when Georgia Tech will play host to the Seminoles.

Coed Causes Controversy Concerning 'Cycle

By OSCAR JOHNSON

An FSU freshman who wants to ride his bike on campus has touched off a controversy among university officials.

Should see be allowed to ride it?

The question has evidently never been brought up before. No coed has ever tried to wheel a bicycle to the Florida State Uni- versity campus.

The freshman involved is Diane Godin a transfer from St. Petersburg who says "nothing unusual" as the fact she wants to ride a bicycle. "It may be unusual at Florida State schools, but I don't see any reason why a coed shouldn't be allowed to ride on campus."

At the present, she is allowed to. But officials of Reynolds Hall, her dormitory, say this is only a "temporary arrangement" and a meeting of the dormitory council is scheduled to consider the matter.

The officials have given her permission to ride the bicycle but she must follow a number of rules. She cannot ride the bicycle after 7:30 p.m. or take the bicycle in her room; she is required to store the vehicle under a dorm stairwell; getting it there involves hoisting it over a four-foot high banister.

she must wear a skirt while riding it (no bermuda shorts, etc.)

Diane isn't perturbed by these incidentals. "Of course I'm going to keep riding it," she told the Florida Flambeau.

The attention, which might be called "Who's Afraid of the Big, Bad Bikes?" or "Coed's Cycle Confounds College," had its beginning at a new university resolution put into effect over the summer. With some exceptions, no freshmen are allowed to bring cars to campus. In addition, crowded parking conditions make a bike seem the practical way out—especially considering the long walking distances to some of the classrooms.

Earlier this year, Dr. Harry Day, director of service units, tried to initiate a campaign to get more students to ride bikes. The movement failed, but with this new development the situation may change.

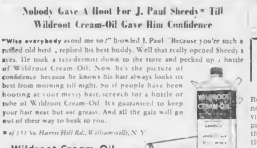
NO CRUSADER

Coed Godin, who happens to be a Student Senator, said she doesn't consider herself as leading any kind of a crusade. "I'm just too busy to spend all my time talking," she complained. She added that she "needs the exercise" of riding and it "makes me lose weight."

Under the temporary arrangement she is riding her bike—a rather used one painted a dull red—to classes, meals and the Post Office. Officials have told her she cannot ride it into the Post Office as she did for a while.

Diane said when she got the idea she ordered at bike at FSU, she relayed the information to her parents. Sure enough, on Christmas morning it stood before the tree, its unassuming appearance belying the strategic role it was later to play at FSU.

CONTROVERSY



Shipped here in pieces, the bike was put together and Diane began riding it. It wasn't long before officials banned it and requested that she stop riding the bicycle until a decision could be made. Then temporary permission was granted until the difficult problem can be sounded out by the higher-ups.

That's the situation. And until something new happens you'll see FSU's cycling coed riding around on the bike that shook the campus.

Nobody Gave A Hoot for J. Paul Sheedy 'Till Wildroot Cream-Oil Gave Him Confidence

"Wise everybody avoid me so?" howled J. Paul. "Because you're such a ruffled old bird, replied his best buddy. Well that really opened Sheedy's eyes. He took a taxi-dermist down to the store and picked up a bottle of Wildroot Cream-Oil. Now, he's the picture of confidence because he knows his hair always looks its best from morning till night, so if people have been hooting at your messy hair, screech for a bottle or two of Wildroot Cream-Oil. The newest record store—The Robin's Nest—naturally has the newest records. We were pleasantly some of them as we painted and pounded at the Nest this past week-end and here's the most promising

The Four Freshman have a brand new album, Four Freshman and Five Trumpets. Our favorite on George Shearing Quintet's The Shearing Spell is Mosmas

Music especially soothing to us frustrated carnesters was an Epic record with Debussy's Nocturnes on one side and Ravel's Rapsodie Espagnole on the other.

Chet Baker in Europe is the music he played on his jazz tour of the NATO countries. By popular demand, Chet's planned four month tour stretched to eight, making it the longest tour yet for an American jazzman.

Isiah the Prophet by the Polish composer Tansman is beautiful and ethereal, but not soothsaic enough to classify as music-to-hammer-your-thumb by.

Lover's Hour piano solos by Bill Butler with rhythm accompaniment is a refreshingly unschmaltzy album of mood music.

Best new jazz album we previewed is Keys West by the Claude Williamson Trio. It's one of his Kenton-Presente-Jazz album series by Capitol. A big surprise is their treatment of "On the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe."

You know by now where The Robin's Nest is . . . just around the corner from where Kahler's used to be . . . entrance is on Park. See you there.

Critic Predicts '56 Award Winners

By ALAN KASS

Since it's about the time of year when Academy Award talk begins in earnest, this corner would like to come up with some long-range predictions. We have picked several dark horses, so we can expect to hear plenty of comment.

Following are our favorites among American films which played in Tallahassee:

Best Picture of the Year—"Moby Dick." This was a truly great motion picture, for it put upon the screen many of the intellectual insights of the greatest work in American literature. The credit here belongs to John Houston, who directed the complex story to make it into an appealing movie for even the least discriminating fan.

Best Actor of the Year—Paul Newman in "Somebody Up There Likes Me." As Rocky Graziano (the former middleweight champ, Newman gave a smashing performance.

Best Actress of the Year—Carroll Baker in "Baby Doll." Miss Baker will run into stiff competition from Ingrid Bergman as "Anastasia", but nevertheless should be the gal to beat. Keeping in mind that her Southern accent was fake, she did a remarkable job as the naive "Baby Doll."

Best Director—John Houston and Elia Kazan, "Moby Dick" and "Baby Doll."

Best Comedy of the Year—"The Court Jester" with Danny Kaye.

Best Musical—Meet Me in Las Vegas." "High Society" and "Anything Goes."

Best Western—The Bo... run; John Wayne fina... an interesting chase ...

Worst Pictures—Ra... Frankhuper" and "Forres... ing."

Most Disappointing Pict...—Johnnie Concho.

Most Underrated Pictu...—"Bigger Than Life" the ... of a teacher who gets ... exposed to the drug ...

Nugent To Head Grid Department

Pens 3-Year Pact To Run Separate Football Set-up

By ALAN WHITMARSH
Flambeau Sports Editor

Florida State University head football coach Tom Nugent signed a new three-year contract here Tuesday.

At the same time he was given full reins on a new department of football which is to be completely separate from the university's athletic department.

Amid rumors that he would fly to Houston to discuss a potential coaching offer from Houston University this week, Nugent met with top FSU officials Monday afternoon and the result of that meeting was the new contract announcement Tuesday.

The Seminole coach's contract calls for a three-year term at $13,000 annually and in addition he is to be completely in charge of a new department of football, which reportedly will handle all matters dealing with the gridiron sport.

Nugent formerly was on a no contract basis at $9,500 yearly with the understanding that after a three-year tenure he would automatically become a member of the athletic department faculty.

AUTONOMOUS

Nugent told the Florida Flambeau Tuesday that he would be completely in charge of football budgets, scholarships, the stadium, and all other matters dealing with the sport.

The department evidently will have a budget separate from that of the athletic department, a separate business manager and a separate publicity office.

Shortly after the contract announcement Nugent said that Ed Cubbon, now athletic business manager, would take over as assistant director of the new department and likely handle the business angle of operations.

The contract raise and the addition of the new department still requires the certification of the state Board of Control, but this is generally considered only a formality for the board usually accepts the advice of the FSU president on such matters.

There had been rumors that Nugent was offered as high as $17,500 by Houston and these rumors persisted after university officials announced Monday that he had been given permission to fly to Texas to talk over the situation.

NO OFFER

However, Nugent himself said that Houston had never made a specific offer and that at least two or three coaches would be considered before they made their decision.

After the new contract announcement he told reporters he was no longer a candidate for the coaching positions at either Houston or the University of Indiana, which also had shown interest in obtaining his services.

Symphony Sets 'Pre-Exam' Concert Monday

The Florida State University Symphony will give the second concert of its season, under the direction of Robert Sedore, Monday in Westcott Auditorium, beginning at 8:15.

Sedore has referred to the coming concert as a "pre-exam serenade." He explained a relatively short program was chosen since most students have a scarcity of free time at this time of year.

The concert will present two special features.

Frederic Kirchberger, a doctoral candidate in music, will be guest pianist for the second number, Dohnanyi's Piano Concerto in A minor Op 34 in three movements. Ernst von Dohnanyi will be guest conductor.

A native of Berlin, Kirchberger came to FSU in the fall of 1955. He had studied in Germany and the Juilliard School of Music in New York and taught piano in Greensboro, N. C., and at the Northeast Missouri State Teachers College. He studied under Dohnanyi his first year at FSU and is now working under Edward [illegible].

FIRST DOCTORATE

Kirchberger expects to be the first at FSU to receive a Doctor of Music Degree on June 1, and this performance with orchestra is in fulfillment of requirements for the degree. As an American citizen he served in the armed forces during World War II. His [illegible] an established novelist.

[illegible] Ward-Steinman, a senior from Alexandria, La., will be guest conductor for the fourth number of[fering] one of his own works "Carousel for Orchestra."

FAMOUS TUTOR

He wrote the work in the summer of 1953 while studying in Colorado with Darius Milhaud, a famous French composer. As a result of the first performance of his work at a meeting of the Southeastern Composers Leagues Conference he received a commission for another score from the Creative Arts Program which is associated with the Milwaukee Symphony.

Sedore will conduct the opening number Beethoven's Egmont Overture Op 84, also dances from "Prince Igor" by Borodin, and "The Sorcerer's Apprentice" by Dukas as the final number.

Dean To Talk

Dean Harold R. Metcalf of the University of Chicago will talk [illegible] with students interested in [illegible] work at the UC School of Business. The dean of students' office said Dean Metcalf will be in the Longmire faculty lounge from [illegible]:30 a m till noon.

'Biggest Swipe In FSU History'

ATO Raid Nets Trophy Treasure

Swift, successive raids on ten sorority houses Tuesday night netted Alpha Tau Omega fraternity 149 trophies, including gold and silver loving cups, trays and placques.

A jubilant fraternity spokesman termed it "the biggest swipe in the history of the school."

He said the evening began with a raid on Zeta Tau Alpha sorority and its success led the men to "borrow" trophies from other houses.

Ironically, the inspiration for the "Big Swipe" came according to members of ATO, from a letter sent by the Dean of Women's office, explaining that mutual theft of trophies would not be frowned upon provided nothing else is taken.

The ATO's said burglarized houses included ZTA, Pi Beta Phi, Delta Gamma, Phi Mu, Alpha Chi Omega, Delta Delta Delta.

The raiding party, numbering about 20, reportedly met with little resistance, but suffered toothmarks and torn shirts at the Tri-Delt house.

Retaliation-bent sorority sisters were doused with water at the ATO house.

Wednesday, fraternity men began notifying the victimized sororities and returning their trophies, in accordance with an Inter-Fraternity council regulation on trophy stealing.

Speaking for the chapter, an ATO declared the raids were done in "good spirit."

"It is this type of campus spirit which we look forward to, and perhaps we can expect more in the future," he said.

Soda Shop To Stay Open

The Soda Shop and Student Center will remain open between semesters but the Seminole Club and West Hall Snack Bar will close, Morrison's announced yesterday.

The Soda Shop will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. except Sunday. The Student Centre will serve all meals.

Piano Concert Nets Only $900 For SHARES

Tuesday night's SHARES benefit concert earned about $900 for a Hungarian refugee scholarship fund, Student Body President Dave Bachman revealed yesterday.

Student government officials had hoped for a better turnout. An estimated 650 persons only filled Westcott Auditorium to a little more than a third of its capacity.

Bachman said about a thousand dollars are in the SHARES fund now and additional fund-raising projects planned for second semester should make enough for success.

Mortar Board may be able to stage another "Penny-a-Minute night," selling late permission up to 60 minutes for a penny per minute, Bachman revealed.

If Campus Chest exceeds its quota the surplus will probably be available to SHARES—Seminole Hungarian Aid and Relief for the Establishment of Scholarships.

ATO HELP

Reports indicate that Alpha Tau Omega fraternity and Campus Chest officials may agree on turning over part of tonight's Louis Armstrong concert proceeds to the Hungarian fund.

Inter-Fraternity Council and Pan-Hellenic Council are considering projects to aid SHARES, Bachman noted.

"Any other groups who might want to help are welcome and their efforts will be appreciated," Bachman said.

Bachman said original plans to bring at least one refugee to the campus by the beginning of second semester won't go through, due to the red tape involved in "importing" a refugee from Austria. All those now in the United States are occupied, he quoted officials as announcing.

"We hope to have one here sometime during the semester so he can get oriented and pick up enough English to enter classes either in the summer or fall," Bachman said.

PRAISES HELP

Bachman extended credit to Sigma Alpha Iota, Alpha Phi Omega, Gold Key, Village Vamps, and Kappa Alpha fraternity for helping to publicize and present the concert.

"We cannot thank too much pianists Ernst von Dohnanyi and Edward Kilenyi for donating their time and talent to this cause," Bachman said. "While we wish more people had come to hear them, those who did come got their money's worth and their interest is certainly appreciated."

Board Asks Petitions For Publication Posts

The Board of Student Publications will accept applications for six major publication positions beginning Friday, February 1, chairman Don Heidel announced yesterday.

The positions are Editor and Business Manager of the Florida Flambeau, newspaper, Tally-Ho, yearbook and Smoke Signals, magazine. Heidel said the board will appoint students to these positions for the 1957-58 term at a meeting early in March.

Heidel asked that written applications include specific information concerning qualifications and experience of the applicants. They should be turned in to Dr Reid Montgomery, advisor to student publications, in 18 Longmire Building.

In making choices last semester, Heidel noted, the board did not receive applications from qualified students for all positions until past the deadline. He asked that students who feel qualified be prompt in applying.

A scholastic average of 2.30 is required for the position of editor and a 2.00 average is required for business manager, either overall or for the semester preceding application. In addition, the editor and business manager must have had more than two full semesters experience in responsible positions on the staff of the publication for which they apply.

Heidel said responsibility of the positions will be determined by the board. Deadline for applications has been set as March 1. The Board of Publications will interview applicants at the next subsequent meeting.

Cairns To Speak Sunday

"A Finite versus an Infinite God," will be Dr. Grace Cairns' topic at this week's meeting of the Liberal Religious Youth Sunday beginning at 7 p.m. at 117 Social Welfare Building.

Library Hours Extended On Sundays

Students will be able to study in the library until 10 p.m. Sunday evenings beginning the day after tomorrow.

The permanent extension was adopted at the request of the Student Senate.

Norman L. Kilpatrick, director of libraries, said the library will function only as a reading room and study area from 5 to 10 p.m. Books will have to be checked out by 5 p.m., he added.

A resolution introduced in the Senate earlier this semester asked that the library hours be extended from the 5 p.m. closing time.

The resolution was referred to the Labor, Student Services, and Education Committee, headed by Don Lewis, who reported funds would have to be appropriated before the hours could be extended.

"Mr. Kilpatrick was very helpful in helping the plan go through," said Lewis.

Kilpatrick told Lewis, "I hope that this will improve the situation for the students and I am glad that we have been able to work out this problem."

History Professor Picked To Lecture In South America

A new member of the history faculty has been selected by the State Department to lecture in 10 Latin American countries next summer on American history and political science.

Dr Charles W Arnade, assistant professor of history will lecture in Spanish to university audiences in Guatemala, Honduras, El Salvador, Costa Rica, Panama, Columbia, Equador, Bolivia, Paraguay and Uruguay between June and August as part of a worldwide lecture program conducted by the State Department.

SING RULES AVAILABLE

Copies of the rules for Campus Sing, which will be held March 2 and 3, are now available in the School of Music office, according to a Campus Sing official.

Tri-Delta Scholarship Still Open For Coeds

Florida State University coeds may apply until February 23 for the 1957 Delta Delta Delta scholarship of up to $200.

Officers of the FSU Tri-Delt chapter said any coed, Greek or independent, may apply, if she is a well-qualified student.

Applications are available in the Dean of Women's Office, 205 Westcott.

COFFEE HOUR SETS PUGH BOOK REVIEW

Dr. Griffith Pugh, professor of English, will review C. S. Lewis' new book, "Till We Have Faces," at the English Coffee Hour today at 4 p.m. in the Westminster House.

Rollins Prexy Named Graduation Speaker

Hugh F. McKean To Address 323

Hugh F. McKean, President of Rollins College, will be commencement speaker at the February 2 exercises, according to FSU President Dr. Doak S. Campbell. He will address 323 candidates for degrees, including 55 graduate students.

McKean, who has been Rollins president since 1952, is a native of Pennsylvania and a graduate of both Rollins (A.B., 1930) and Williams (M.A., 1940) colleges. He has been active in art circles both in the United States and abroad, and originally joined the Rollins faculty as an instructor in art.

He received the Diploma L'Ecole de Beaux-Arts American in 1932 and 1945, and received national recognition from the display of his paintings at the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the exhibitions of the American Federation of Art. Other important exhibitions at which his paintings have been displayed include the Allied Artists American Exhibition in 1949, the Palm Beach Art League Exhibit, and the Second National Exhibition of American Painting in New York City.

Dr. McKean joined the faculty at Rollins in 1932 as an Instructor in Art and was appointed Professor of Art and Director of the Morse Art Gallery in 1945. He is a member of ODK, men's leadership honorary, and is a past-president of the Florida Federation of Art.

He became acting president of the college in 1951 and subsequently became the president in 1952.

The topic of his speech to the graduating class is yet to be announced.

Senate Asks Senior 'B' Exam Exemption

A resolution was passed in Student Senate Wednesday calling for the exemption of graduating seniors with "B" averages from taking final examinations and to allow students more time to study before exam week.

Jim Moore, himself a graduating senior, pointed out that some departments exempt graduating seniors and some do not, and that a uniform policy should be adopted by the university.

If the resolution is accepted, it would allow students who have more than two final exams on the same day to schedule one for another time.

It also suggested rearranging the schedule so students would be allowed a full hour for lunch, and it asked the scheduling of either one day or a week-end between the time classes are dismissed and the time tests begin for study. No activities would be scheduled during this period.

Explaining the resolution Pat Finlay, one of the sponsors, said "it is a strain on a person having to study for more than two exams for one day."

She pointed out that only thirty minutes are allowed for lunch during final exams and classes are dismissed only 20 hours before exams are scheduled.

The resolution was introduced by Senators Finlay, Charlotte Patten and Cynthia Lawrence.

'Little 500' Entries Due

Entries in next semester's "Little 500" bicycle race must turn in official entry blanks by February 9 to Sophomore Class President Bill Clendinen.

The teams, consisting of four riders and two alternates, will vie to qualify in trials February 14, 15, and 16 on the Florida High track, Clendinen said.

Any undergraduate male student carrying 12 hours is eligible to ride in the bicycle race as a member of sorority, fraternity, or dormitory teams.

The twenty teams who qualify at the trials will compete in the 30 mile championship March 16.

The qualification race will consist of four consecutive laps, with each member of the four man team riding one lap. Each team will have three qualifying attempts and will compete against time, not each other.

Concert Band To Present Show Tuesday

The Concert Band will present a concert Tuesday night in Westcott Auditorium, featuring a special brass choir of 18 members.

Robert Braunagel, Concert Band conductor, said the program will begin at 8:15 p.m.

William Cramer will lead the brass choir in Victor Ewald's "Symphony for Brass Choir," Op 5, in three movements.

Braunagel said a great amount of literature was written as far back as the 16th Century for brass ensembles without woodwinds, strings, or percussion but modern interest in brass choir music is only about ten years old.

The Concert band will play a varied program featuring Wagner's "Invocation of Alberich," Gustav Holst's "First Suite in E Flat," and Ralph Herman's "Ballet for Young Americans."

ARE YOU A TWIRP?—John Howard and Marty Moore pose before signs advertising Twirp Dance to be held tomorrow night from 8 to 12 in the Suwannee Room. Dance is open to all students, but the gals are supposed to ask the guys. Tickets are 25c.

Let's See If Administration Does Its Share For Hungary

Student government's successful staging of a benefit concert for Hungarian aid is one of the most laudable student-faculty accomplishments of the school year.

While the income — $900 — was not as much as it could have been, the money will provide at least some help for one or more of the many Hungarian students who fled the Russians in their country.

The performances of Dr. Dohnanyi, professor Kilenyi, Dr. Boda, Dr. Briggs and the others who took part provided a rich evening of music and at the same time fulfilled a vital mission. The task, however, is not yet completed.

The administration of this university will play a key role in the beginning of Hungarian students to Tallahassee. Officials have indicated a willingness to add to the effectiveness of the money raised by the students and faculty by granting special relief benefits.

These benefits would be in the form of waivers of university fees such as out-of-state tuition. It has been the understanding of student government that such expenses will be cut by the university in order to help in bringing refugee students here.

Carrying through this plan will be the real test of the extent to which FSU is willing to help the Hungarians. Students' costs have been waived in order to get other kinds of students here, and we are anxious to see whether the university feels the cause of Hungarian relief to be of equal importance with these other fields.

Students and faculty have gone a long way toward fulfilling their part—let's see whether their efforts are matched by the administration.

Even though the concert is over with, the goal of SHARES—Seminole Hungarian Aid and Relief for the Establishment of Scholarships—has not been met.

Any money students or student groups can raise will be of tremendous help in thwarting the aims of the tyrants in Moscow. Donations, money-raising events —any kind of project will help Hungarian students that much closer to the campus.

Let's do our full SHARES.

Throw Out Yankee Radical Agitators

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to make some comments on some of the editorials and letters to the editor that have appeared in recent copies of the Flambeau. It is my opinion that it is unwise for students to mix in local politics. They are not residents of Tallahassee and do not possess a complete understanding of local issues. The actions advocated by Mr. Boardman can only cause friction among the citizens of Tallahassee and the students of FSU. Furthermore, I believe that politicos and decisions of the Board of Control and the administration should be respected by the students.

I AM A resident of New York and therefore not a southerner. However, I resent these constant attacks on southern cultural patterns on the part of some students who are visiting the south and cannot fully understand all the ramifications of the South's social structure.

Sincerely,
LEONARD FISHER

Editor's Note: It is kind of confusing, isn't it?

Americans Have Fought For Freedom Before

TO THE EDITOR:

It seems to me that I remember reading somewhere that Americans have a privilege of free speech, press and assembly. It seems, further, that Americans are possessed of certain "unalienable rights" among them liberty. Recently of Tuesday's Flambeau also that these concepts are implied on. That these rights denied and these freedoms shackled by certain members of the F. S. U. administration.

THE OBJECT of this tirade is John Boardman, a junior at this university who has colleagues who support of the law of the land defined by the United States Supreme Court.

I sympathize with Mr. Boardman's pragmatic desire not to partake in party, but immediately dom for such a cause would glorious compared to the for which people are tion have come to stand. I refuse to fall for Boardman's plea to be suspended from society for actively serving the cause of human freedom. I am extat for football games to parties and empty pursuits and hollow lives.

UNIVERSITIES in Europe and elsewhere are centers liberalism and reform while universities in the U. S. are ours be dens of reaction, a fact which at a moment's culminent the law of the land and turn the Constitution against those who would defend it. Florida's governor is one of many liberal and progressive the South. Must the State center of learning continue the retrogressiveness of his administration?

Americans have fought freedom before, and we shall, and will, again. Dennis Hall, Jr., is not the first to defend administrations notwithstanding.

Whole Thing Serious Problem

TO THE EDITOR:

It is late in the semester, but I feel that I must call to your complaint against Florida State's first colored newspaper.

I KNOW YOUR anti-Republican, anti-white man rag is insignificant, but I have to say something myself.

You boys come down from up north and in a flash you have the South all figured out. The situation calls for an objective full you had at least one person on the paper to express the white means behind the segregation. You have a lot of gall to expect the people you are here to contribute the way you do, but because you are a bunch of Florida with your pretended. We have had segregation for many generations, and the overwhelming majority of people white and black still want it. It is the agitators, white and black, who are pushing this integration business and who will be the blood of many people on their hands.

I DON'T THINK you realize the seriousness of what you are advocating. Integration is not a matter to be solved by scholarly opinion, for segregation was not instituted without reason, and it has not changed without reason. Not by virtue of race separation is obtained by any thinking person.

You people really ourselves as crusaders, and you are—poured from the same mold as the witch burners of New England and the Old World. You are intent to reform the South whether the South likes it or not.

I BELIEVE the administration was justified in warning white students to stay away from the NAACP meeting on integration. Their presence can only throw fuel on a great fire, and emphasize a dangerous state of animosity between the races. I also don't find anything who attended that first meeting were from the ranks of the "professional" agitations who were raised as if they were in the north.

I'm very pleased to see satisfied with the South, you can go back to where you came from. There are more and better things to crusade for on there than there are down here.

DAN ALTHOFF

Editor's Note: This appears to be a number of erroneous statements in the letter. The FLAMBEAU will mail a copy of Mein Kampf to anyone who can surpass it.

Concert One Of FSU's Most Vital

The Threepenny Critic

By RYAN EDWARDS

One of the most important musical events of recent years at FSU was the performance last Tuesday night of Bartok's Sonata for two pianos and percussion. This monumental composition formed the second half of the concert of Hungarian music to raise money for SHARES, student organization for scholarships for Hungarian refugees.

The performance involved Ernst von Dohnanyi, who conducted and Edward Kilenyi at the piano and Ramon Meyer, Robert Briggs, and David Ward—percussion. Although Bartok in many ways may be described in terms of increased abandon and emotional conviction from the later concert date they had originally planned, it was nonetheless meticulous and craftsmanly in every respect.

THE IMPRESSIVE thing was the piece itself. To our ears, it represented the most cogent reconciliation of the two principal elements of Bartok's musical personality: first, harmonic and coloristic innovation, and second, formal clarity. That the latter was present musical honesty is illustrated by many of the composer's works, notably the Allegro Barbaro, in which the fascinating formal design is almost completely obscured by a mass of "modernistic" sound.

Not so in the present work. At every turn, the listener could follow the formulation inherent in the overall structure of the piece was enhanced by the rumbling tympani, the harsh brilliance of the piano keys, the blood-stirring combination of bass and snare drums, and the tension of percussive rhythms in agreement with structural rhythms of tragic dimension worked a profound alchemy upon us, and we emerged with a sense of having had the participation of a great man's mature insights into musical problems.

THE PROGRAM was opened by Mr. Kilenyi's performance of four excerpts from Dohnanyi's Ruralia Hungarica. These pieces are very much in the tradition of virutose elaboration established by Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsodies, and their pianistic effects compare favorably to the works of the earlier composer.

In our opinion, Mr. Kilenyi played them excellently, making the most of their sonority and rhythmic excitement. Indeed, we have never heard him more in command of the piano's coloristic resources than in the opening Allegretto, molto tenero.

NEXT, DR. DOHNANYI confirmed his pianistic legacy by playing two compositions of Franz Liszt himself. Of the second of these, the Hungarian Rhapsody number 13, it must be admitted that Dohnanyi's age is beginning to tell on him. He was able to engender neither enough emotional excitement nor an adequate technicel accuracy to provide more than a mildly interesting reading.

But Dohnanyi es a pianist is chiefly interesting to us today in that he represents a great pianistic tradition of the past. From him we can perceive of this tradition through the recordings of such men as Paderewski, the literary observations of the pupils of the great masters, and finally through the remembrance of things past in autobiographical comments, its major characteristics were a deep personal involvement with music the soul-searching effort to reconcile all elements of art with emotional truth, and the occasional sacrifice of such intellectual considerations to emotional effect.

ALL OF THESE KILENYI's was evident in Dohnanyi's performance of the former Liszt piece. the Consolation in D flat, and we may count ourselves fortunate to have had a performance of this intimate, ephemeral music. It had an utter beauty that rendered one inaccessible of criticism. This is the kind of playing that Dohnanyi grant, and it is the reason we admire and honor him today.

The program was rounded out by a properly spirited, if occasionally ragged performance of five of Brahms' Hungarian Dances in their original form for piano duet, projected through the combined forces of Dohnanyi and Kilenyi.

Publications Can Use Your Help; Now Is Time To Join The Staffs

With the Board of Publications' announcement that applications for staff positions will soon be accepted, the competition for positions on next year's staffs should begin in earnest.

Last year the board encountered some difficulty in finding persons of the ability to fill the positions of editor and business manager. While eventually the problem was worked out, it is lamentable that students did not show more interest in so important an area as student publications.

We hope that the situation will improve this year. Two old cars-us buraboos—apathy and excess extra-curricular activities—are responsible in part for the scarcity of personnel on student publications.

We feel, however, that more students would take part if they fully realized how badly their cooperation is needed. All three student publications have been able to use, can use now, and will be able to use in the future, writers, photographers, ad salesmen, business students, and, in fact, anybody who is willing to work and learn.

Why don't you give it a try? Your help is needed more than you think.

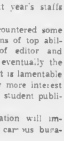
Big Football Means Students Pay Big

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Never let it be said Florida State University is a complacent school run by unimaginative men whose sole goal in life is to shuffle diplomas each June, August, and February.



No sir! We learned long ago that a preoccupation with brash and hungry intellectuals could do naught but invite the suspicion of the American Legion.

Thus FSU, finally escaping from the shadow of University of Florida aridism feme, has established the first separate department of football in the country, and quite likely, the first in the world.

AT FIRST GLANCE, this does not seem to be much of a change. The warriors who defend our school's honor each fall Saturday will still be called the Seminoles, rather than the FSU Football Department Seminoles But the possibilities are historic!

First of all, Tom Nugent has shown himself qualified to write e book called "The Power of Positive Thinking for Football Coaches" Nugent did not sixty-think around problems of career jobs while Westcott's denizens worked unsupercilingly in their offices. Instead, he forthrightly asked for money. Money he got, and much more.

SERIOUSLY, I HAVE no objection to Coach Nugent, a man with eight children getting a good salary, and even $13,000 isn't very much. But aside from the personel justice in his salary raise, there are precedents to be considered in the other aspects of the big shenage.

Coach Nugent will now have his own football publicity director. In granting him the boon the university has recognized that there is something special in the art of publicizing football.

IN ESTABLISHING a separate department of the university for the football team the University has freed the coaches from the embarassing duty of "Physical Education."

Moreover, in increasing Nugent's pay to a figure far above that earned by professors in such valueless fields as English, political science, and history, the university has proclaimed that has a special function. He and his gladiators, more than anyone else, represent devotion to the public. He, more than the president sets money for the school.

SPEAKING OF MONEY, one mey wonder where the initial investment to get a big new football program going will come from. Really, latterly, it's time for a raise in the activity fee anyhow.

Coach Nugent will be free to put sound economics into practice, keeping for reinvestment the profits he has previously been forced to share with the other more unworthy, athletic teams.

THE COURAGEOUS, free-enterprise-type Daddy Werbucks sags of the Seminoles will offer an example for other schools, but for other departments.

For instance, look for Politics Science to run several of their courses for political office, in order to solve the department's chronic opprortunity problems.

ENGLISH WILL publish sell et profit, and make required reading for undergraduates the best efforts of advanced students.

Mathematics will build their own UNIVAC and retail it to the football department for bookkeeping. And the infirmary will enter into a bountiful contract with the football department.

Give Negroes Equal Education

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to direct e note to Don Hayes and other integrationists here on the campus. Don't you think you're "jumping the gun" on the Tom Brown case first.

IF INTEGRATION has got to be, why not educate the Negro first and then let the "chips fall where they may?" Integration is very well involved in communities where there are Negroes, if you've come in contact with them individually as well as in groups, and if you have any knowledge of them, you'll find living habits from day to day you'll have to admit that their way of life very different from ours. Their customs, their morals, their code of ethics and their morals differ and I would add are generally lower. For this reason, I feel integration is all of this controversy in the first place?

Give him he equal education, but on a segregated basis, first. Then he has been educated, he should be able to improve his living conditions and that can be left to himself. As for freedom, he has all of the basic freedoms of every man who lives under the Constitution of the United States. It's all in what you mean by freedom.

If he Negro is given an equal chance at education and through this he helps himself to equal the standards of the White man, then I have no talk about integration.

Sincerely,
JAMES SMITH

Editor's Note: This writer makes quite a lot of sense on this point. But if the question boils down to, Which came first, the chicken or the egg?, then we should reply that both must be brought about at the same time to achieve either.

WHO WENT TO THE PROM ...AND WHY

"Hello," said the voice on the telephone. "This is Werther Sigafoos."

"Who?" said Anna Livia Plurabelle.

"Werther Sigafoos," said Werther Sigafoos. "I sit next to you in psych. I'm kind of dumpy and I always wear a sack shirt."

"I'm afraid I don't remember you," said Anna Livia.

"I'm the one whose lecture notes you've been borrowing for two years," said Werther.

"Oh, yes!" she said. "What do you wish, Walter?"

"Werther," said Werther. "But I wish a to tate you to the Junior Prom next April."

"That's months away, Westnor," said Anna Livia.

"Werther," said Werther. "Yes, I know, but you are so round and beautiful that I thought if you might have a date already."

"As a matter of fact I do, Wingate," said Anna Livia.

"Werther," said Werther. "Oh, drat!"

"I've lived of danger, and I always wear a Swetshirt!"

Anna Livia did not really have a date, but she was expecting one. Her boyfriend Stewart Stewart, athlete and BMOC, handsome as Apollo, was currently at the helm of a 2.9 litre Bugatti, wearer of faultless tweeds, smoker of Philip Morris Cigarettes, which, unlike without left other achievements, would by itself stamp him as a man of discernment. Stewart was at present in Europe on a polo palate, as one who smoked for the pure joy of it, who had bought a yacht and a cigarette brimming over with zest and zip end hearty good fellowship. Philip Philip Morris.

Well sir, Anna Livia waited for Stewart to ask her, but two days before the Prom, to everybody's amazement, he asked Rose-of-Sharon Kinoolamyo, a wallflower secretarial girl with pavement colored hair and a briefcase.

Anna Livia waited for a spell and then, not wishing to miss the most gala event of their junior year, she phoned Werther Sigafoos.

"My pleasure," he come down with a dread virus," she said, "and I'll accept your invitation, Waldrop."

"Werther," said Werther. "Oh, goody ganders!"

The next day Anna Livia received a phone call from Stewart Stewart. "Hi, Baby dear. I have come down with a dread virus," he said. "Will you go with me?"

"Certainly," she said and immediately phoned Werther and said, "I have come down with a dread virus and cannot go to the Prom with you, Whipstitch."

"Werther," said Werther. "Oh, mice and rats!"

So Anna Livia went to the Prom with Stewart and who do you think they ran into? Rose-of-Sharon with Werther, that's who!

Stewart had felt obliged to ask Rose-of-Sharon because she was his blind date. Werther had wanted to out because she really wanted to go with Werther with whom she felt a great oneness because they were both so dumpy. He felt wildly in love with her at the Prom, and today they are married and run a very successful five-minute suto-wash in New Bern, N. C.

Anna Livia and Stewart are happy too. They are still juniors and have not missed a Prom in six years.

Unbeaten Tankers Favored At Tech

The Florida State Swimming team will invade Atlanta tomorrow to tangle with a lightly regarded but always strong Yellow Jacket swim team from Georgia Tech.

The record since the beginning of their series dating back to 1948 shows the Seminoles with seven and the Jackets with two. Tech was beaten last year 56-28 at the hands of the Seminole mermen.

Tribe Gym Team Seeks 3rd Victory

The FSU high-ranking gymnastic team will travel to Atlanta Ga. where they will face Georgia Tech in their third dual meet of the season.

In previous meets this year, the Tribe has defeated Auburn State and Western Illinois and seen a solid favorite fall to Florida state at Tech.

As was the case in the Western Illinois meet, seniors Rafael Figueroa, Ronnie Amster, and Dennis Ashmore will not compete.

Coach Harley Price, gymnastics mentor feels that "the odd meet is the way to the new, so that the other boys may accustom themselves to the pressure which comes only with competition," he continued, "This week will be ready them for the national AAU meet which is scheduled for late April in Chicago."

Roger Webb, who is last but among the work-horse of the team on a dual meets, will be expected to score high in tumbling and is also close to teammate Ron Cirio, NAAU free exercise champion, in the free calisthenics.

The mermen and their coach are confident of a good showing, and should have little trouble with the Engineers of Tech.

FLASHY SOPHOMORE
Hugh Durham leads the Seminole cagers in scoring with 195 points in the first 13 games.

Tribe Hoopsters Try Again

Sad Seminoles Seek 2nd Success

The impotent Florida State basketball team meets the high-flying Stetson Hatters tomorrow night in the men's gym at 8 p.m.

Then Monday the Seminoles journey to Athens, Ga., where they will battle the rugged Georgia Bulldogs. The Tribe was defeated earlier in the season by Georgia, 72-68.

The Hatters, with Dick Morland as head coach, boast a team with plenty of height and experience. Stetson enters this contest with an overall 5-5 record. The Hatters FIBC record stands at 2-1, beating Rollins, Florida Southern and Florida State. The only loss was handed to them by the front-running Miami Hurricanes.

The nucleus of the Hatter attack is formed around three seniors. Dave Howard, Moe Gomez, and Frank Satovich. Howard, a 6-7 forward is the only three year veteran on the team. He is rated by coach Morland as the best shot on the squad.

Gomez, a 6-5 center, was the leading scorer on the squad last season with a 15.1 average. Moe also made all-state and all-conference and set a new college record for rebounding. Satovich, who made all-conference in a very versatile star. He hooks with either hand and is a top rebounder and top-in artist.

Rosafio set the Stetson squad will probably be Jim Kitchens and Curtis McTeer. Kitchens was second to Stone in scoring honors last season with 10.1 average. He is very aggressive and is hard to stop on the fast break.

McGeri at 6-2 guard who is credited by Morland as always playing heads-up ball. Curt is an exceptionally hard driver and is almost never stopped under the basket.

Adding experience to the Stetson team is Mel Gregory and Bob Gregory, who played every game last season in the clutch player of the squad according to Morland. Brown can play any position and is an excellent shot and plays a determined defensive game.

The Seminoles, who have had a dismal season so far, reason seem to find a winning combination. Head coach Rad Kennedy is undecided about a starting lineup, but it will probably include Hugh Durham and Bob Waits.

Last Monday night this same Stetson team took full advantage of the Tribe and whipped them 97-59 in Deland.

ISC Sponsors Athletic Trophy

The International Students' club at Florida State University announced plans today for presentation of an annual Dick S Campbell trophy to FSU's outstanding senior athlete.

The trophy—named in honor of FSU's retiring president—will be awarded sometime next month, according to Juan Lopez, president of the club.

Lopez said that in addition to the trophy, the outstanding senior athlete from each sport will receive a certificate.

"It is the belief of our organization that athletics are one of the finest means of creating good will and understanding between peoples of all nations." Lopez commented.

"We wish to give these awards to show our appreciation for the contributions made by FSU athletes to the overall well-being of the university."

Lopez announced the committee that will select the recipient of the award as follows:

Chairman, Pierce Lehmbeck; Elden White, FSU sports publicity director, Harold Parr, Associated Press writer, Bill McCrotha, sports editor of the Tallahassee Democrat; Bob Delaney of WCTV; Jack Etger of WTVT, FSU Dean R R Oglesby, FSU Dean James Carr, and Alan Whitmarsh, sports editor of the Flambeau, university newspaper.

The International Students' Club is composed of approximately 150 persons, representing about 12 different nations.

Freshman Cagers Meet Chipola JC

Fresh from a 79-77 win over the Miami frosh, Florida State University's freshman cagers meet Chipola Junior College in Marianna tomorrow night.

It will be the first regular season game between the two teams, though they broke even in two high scoring exhibitions earlier in the year.

"Tomorrow's game should be our toughest game thus far," says frosh coach Jimmy Oler. "Chipola has played about 15 games and owns victories over freshmen teams at several Southeastern Conference teams including Georgia Tech.

"They whipped the University of Florida by 20 points and have now developed into a real threat." The baby Seminoles lost to Florida's frosh at Gainesville December 10.

"What's it like to be
A PRODUCT DEVELOPMENT ENGINEER at IBM?"
Three years ago, college senior Gerald Maley asked himself this question. Today, an Associate Engineer and leader of a nine-man team, Jerry reviews his experience at IBM and gives some pointers that may be helpful to you in taking the first, most important step in your engineering career.

"What really sold me," says Jerry, "was the way they conducted engineering. I'd expected rooms full of engineers at desks. Instead, I found all the informal friendliness of my college lab."
Gerald, an E.E., came directly to IBM from the University of Buffalo, in 1955. Starting as a Technical Engineer, he was immediately assigned to work, with two others, on designing a small calculator. The supervisor of this project was Dr. R. K. Richards, author of "Arithmetic Operation in Digital Computers." Jerry learned a great deal about computers in a very short time. Incidentally, his particular machine is now going into production. As Jerry says, "It makes an engineer feel good to see his project reach the production stage—and to be able to follow it through."

Assigns problems to his group
Promoted to Associate Engineer after 18 months, Jerry is now the leader of a nine-man team. He assigns problems to his group for solution, approves their block diagrams and the models they build. Perhaps an hour a day goes into paper work such as requisitioning equipment for his group and reviewing technical publications, in counseling members of his team and preparing for trips to technical society meetings. Apart from his regular responsibilities, he teaches at night in the IBM school.
Why Jerry chose IBM
Of course, there were other reasons why Jerry selected IBM. He was vitally interested in computers, and IBM was obviously a leader in the field. He comes from a scientific family (his brother is a mathematician) and is fascinated by those mathematical marvels which are revolutionizing man's ways of doing things in so many fields. He enjoys working on large equipment . . . and on "pulses." "It's more logical," he says. "In computer

This field is so new work, you can actually see things happening, which is not the case with all electronic equipment today. And it's not all solid math, either. What's more, this field is so new, that pretty soon you're up with everybody else."
Gerald has done recruiting work himself for IBM and believes he understands some of the college senior's problems. "I usually begin an interview by determining a man's interests," he reports. "Then the diversity of work at IBM enables me to offer him a job which will challenge that interest." Gerald distinguishes between two kinds of engineers—those who like to work on components, such as circuit designs, and those who are interested in the part the component plays. The latter is his own interest, which is why he is in advanced machine design. He points out that IBM is careful to take these factors into consideration—another reason, perhaps, why turnover at IBM is less than one-sixth the national average.

Reviewing technical publications
What about promotions?
When asked about advancement opportunities at IBM, Jerry says, "You can hardly miss in this field and in this company. They tell me sales about double every five years—which in itself makes promotion almost automatic." He endorses the IBM policy of promoting from within, with merit the sole criterion. The salary factor, he remembers, was not his first consideration. While excellent, the tremendous advancement potential was of far greater importance.

Promotion almost automatic
IBM hopes that enough will give you some idea of what it's like to be an E.E. in Product Development at IBM. There are equal opportunities for I.E.'s, M.E.'s, physicists, mathematicians, and liberal arts majors in IBM's many divisions—Research, Manufacturing, Engineering, Sales and Technical Service. Why not drop in and discuss IBM with your Placement Director? He can supply our brochure and tell you when IBM will interview on your campus. Meanwhile, our Manager of Engineering Recruitment, R. A. Whitehorne, will be happy to answer your questions. Just write him at IBM, Room 6E01, 590 Madison Ave., New York 22, N.

Spring Colors Soon To Appear

By MARGARET McLEAN

This is an exciting time in the fashion world, since spring clothes are soon to appear on campus—and what a welcome sight.

COLORS TURN from the dullish winter tones to softer pastels and brighter tropic hues. According to the predictions of several fashion publications, the new twist to this spring will be a startling supply of pale greys, beiges, taupes, and tans—made light in color value in order to breathe a softer, more feminine breath into the familiar greys and browns.

Here's the fun part: with these pale, wistful colors will be worn the hottest pinks, most electric blues, most livid corals, and the most screaming yellows. Chalk white is always good fashion talk the whole year around, but this spring you'll see it in prints, jackets, and in all accessories.

TAILORING WILL bend to the softer, gentle look in suits and the narrow gentle look in dresses. Prints will be completely mad design-wise, and completely loud, color-wise. Prints will cover the entire story this spring—everything from bathing suits to shoes.

Here are some ideas to try, taking advantage of the things to come: with a pale shirtwaisted dress wear a waist wraped in a long colorful sash, knotted in back. For a party look wear a pair of printed pumps or, better yet, tack a pair of rosebuds onto a solid colored pair of evening slippers. Separate a bunch of violets and tack individual blossoms around the cuffs of short white gloves.

WITH A STRAIGHT linen skirt wear a loudly stripped T-shirt instead of a blouse. Elegant long tapered pants now come in a honey-beige, drip-dry cotton. With a full, short, spring formal wear a pair of pale pastel stockings and repeat the shade in the range of accessories.

Party Scene

BY MICKEY COLE

Except for the Louis Armstrong and Hungarian benefit concerts, things have been fairly quiet this week and will get even quieter as exam time gets closer.

People riding down College Avenue Saturday night may have been amazed to see a blinking red sign at 536 advertising "Casino De Monte Carlo."

THE SIGN is gone now, and the building has returned to its original status as the home of Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity, but for Saturday night, it was turned into a gambling casino unequaled in these parts.

Pi Kapps and their dates were given $10,000 each in play mooey with which to gamble at roulette tables, black jack, and crap games.

WHEN COUPLES tired of squandering their money at gambling, they could enjoy dining and dancing in the casino dining hall and ball room, which usually serves as the dining room for the Pi Kapps.

At the end of the party, money won was turned in and tabulated and prizes awarded to the top winners.

Delta Gamma began its new year by entertaining the Sigma Chi's with a record party. Top records adorned the walls. Entertainment was in the form of a skit: "Little Nell", with dancing and refreshments later.

Kappa Alph Theta eotertained their national president, Mrs. H. Earl Munz, Tuesday night with a tea. She visited the Thetas for a few days before installing a new chapter at Auburn.

The Tallahassee alumnae association and their husbands were special guests of Kappa Delta last night. This was a special "thank you" for the new building and furnishings that the chapter is now enjoying.

'Wild West' In City

By ALAN KASS

In 1857, with the battle of the Sioux at Wounded Knee, the "wild west" came to a halt. In 1957, with the dawn of the new year, the "wild west" begins another cycle.

THIS TIME, as in the last several years, it is the make-believe west of Hollywood. On view downtown this weekend are two adventures of the days of yore, but any resemblance to reality in either of them is purely coincidental. Anyway, both are in technicolor.

In "7th Calvary", Randy Scott (who makes about one western every two months) is seen as Tom Benson, an officer who is called coward by his fellow men. What follows is obvious: Cap'n Tom heads a burial detail to Little Big Horn to bring back the wounded and dead. Unfortunately, nobody has the good sense to kill Randy, so you can't leave the theatre as soon as you'd like to.

That Clark Gable must be some fella. He has to be called the King.

AFTER TAMING wild Scarlet and dozens of other ladies in distress, he now goes on to even greater heights. I doubt if he cao ever top his oew adventure though. He not only has four girls running after him, they're all Queens. Yes, sir, hats off to [illegible] Clark.

THE KING rides into town to find that he is the only male in miles and who should inhabit the place but the four Queens. That's not all—it seems that these womeo are widows of bandits who buried a peck of gold somewhere in the ground. Clark, with the energy of a dynamo, makes passes at the girls until he finds the $100,000.

Even if you're the type who's oormally suspicious of "sales" you'll want to take advantage of what Columbia is doing at The Robin's Nest.

A sale of records often means they're of poor quality or performed by unknown musicians. But can you imagine reduced prices on Columbia albums by Andre Kostelanetz, Paul Weston, Percy Faith?

All 12 inch LP albums by those conductors are specially priced. Wheo you buy one for $3.98 you cao buy a second for $1.98. That's two for the price of one-and-a-half, or a savings of one-third.

Among the Kostelanetz albums are his opera-for-orchestra arrangements — Madame Butterfly, La Traviata, La Boheme, Aida—two for less than $6.00.

Paul Weston's Solo Mood is among the specials. So is Sound Stage Hi-Fi: Music from Hollywood, Dream Time Music, and Mood Music.

Some Percy Faith albums are instrumental versions of Broadway musical scores—Li'l Abner, The Most Happy Fella, and My Fair Lady.

All these special albums are in the first row of records under the window, to the left as you walk in the front door of The Robin's Nest.

Insubordination Caused Ban Of Boardman —Dean Oglesby

Staff Writer

The suspension of John Boardman from the University was not because of his stand against segregation, Dean of Students R. E. Oglesby said yesterday.

Boardman, a doctoral candidate in physics was refused permission to register for the Spring session by administrative order of Dean made public at the time of his suspension was for violation of University regulations in signing three foreign students to Florida A. & M. University for International Club Christmas party.

Oglesby attributed the dismissal to open rebellion against University authority." Citing instances of rebellion Boardman, he said that for the issue of segregation was merely an excuse that prompted the group's grievance. Boardman was not suspended for his segregation views, he said.

OGLESBY

Dr. Ralph Miller, Chairman of the Board of Control, stated that the official statement on such matters, issued on January 22, three days prior to Boardman's suspension, was the statement read: "Participation by students in demonstrations of any activity is prohibited by existing law effect of influencing the policies of any institution of higher education will be considered as an attempt to control the welfare of our university." Neither Dr. Miller nor Dean Oglesby officials have claimed difficulty with interference in any specific activity by students that could be in violation of the policy. They explained it is necessary for the Board of Control's protection of policy, and that no private dismissal must be instituted alone in this policy. The statement in the Interim Council activities the only reason he has suspension there will be far more students in trouble.

Temple, a senior, served as senate chaplain during his freshman year and as senator during his sophomore year. He was elected Junior Class President and elected as President of Sigma Chi fraternity. This semester he is to serve as Inter-fraternity Vice President.

Buchanan said he and Women's Vice President Christie Close have received a nominee for the vacancy left by Barbara Moore. Jan and Barbara Moore, who graduated last month, were the only two elected people to serve in student government.

'Improve' Flambo, Committee Asks

The Board of Student Publications Thursday considered a letter from a faculty committee asking it "act to improve the editorial responsibility" of the Florida Flambeau.

No action was taken on the to that effect was approved.

request. The letter was drafted by the seven-member publications Senate Committee on Student Publications.

The letter said the committee "feels that the editorial position of the Flambeau is controversial issues should fall to reflect the attitudes of the majority of the audience for whom it is published and by whom it is supported."

Who believe that the emphasis given some issues both in the news columns and on the editorial page can only serve to bring Florida State University into serious disrepute with its audience and with the people of our state.

We feel that the Board of Student Publications represents the owners of FSU student publications is the responsible body to act. We feel that a careful and authoritative to act to improve the editorial responsibility of the Flambeau. We urge your most serious consideration of this matter."

Mixed Reaction

The letter stirred mixed reactions among board members. Faculty members Dr. Elston Roady and Dr. Earl Beck said they did not think the Board of Publications should attempt to supervise Flambeau editorial policy.

Student member Laird Anson asked faculty member Richard Joel, who is also chairman of the committee which sent the letter, whether in his opinion the committee would get if the board did not.

Joel replied that the committee served only in an advisory capacity and had only the power to make recommendations.

At one time during the 45-minute discussion of the topic, the board passed a resolution to return the letter to the faculty committee for clarification.

Joel said he felt that the board understood what the committee wished it to do. The resolution was reconsidered and rejected.

Discharged Obligation

After the lengthy discussion board member Jack Kelly felt the board had "discharged our obligation" to the committee in considering the matter.

Another part of the letter asked that minutes of all succeeding board meetings be sent to members of the faculty committee. It said the committee had worked with student government in the formation of the board and that now, after the board had been in operation for more than a year, "we would like to offer any help or recommendations that seem in order."

"Please understand," the letter continued, "that it is not our function or desire to overlap the administrative activities of the Board of Publications. We are a committee of the Faculty Senate whose function is to suggest policies and to review and make recommendations to the President of the University, the Faculty Senate, and the Board of Publications on matters affecting the welfare of student publications."

Request Granted

Several board members indicated doubt as to why the faculty committee wanted the minutes but said they saw no reason why the request should not be complied with. A resolution

Makeup Tests Set Thursday

The makeup examination for the ACE Psychological Examination and California personality test will be held Thursday in 306 Science Building.

Dr. Kenneth M. McLaughlin, director of the test service bureau, said the ACE test will be given at 4 p.m. and the California test at 5:15.

"Students who missed the exams during the orientation period may take the tests at these time," he said.

No appointments are necessary.

Dr. McLaughlin added that students who have received delinquent cards must stop by the test service bureau and pay fines before taking the tests.

Campus Chest Projects Net $1200 To Date

Campus Chest activities netted about $1200 estimated Nancy Young, chest chairman, this week.

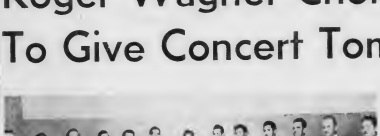
"This is only a rough estimate based on the amount that has been turned in by the organizations sponsoring projects last semester," she said.

Eighteen sponsoring groups sored projects, but all of them haven't turned the earnings in to the chairman she said. The delinquent organizations should contact Miss Young at the ZTA house, she urged.

"Also, the organizations planning projects during this semester should see me" she said.

The Campus Chest committee and a faculty advisement committee headed by Bob Elting, secretary of student welfare, are working on a plan to merge Chest activities into one big project.

"Several ideas have been brought forward, but nothing definite is set," Miss Young said.



The drive will contribute a good part of the total amount raised to the World University Service, which in turn to other well known charities, she said.

Roger Wagner Chorale To Give Concert Tonight

THE ROGER WAGNER CHORALE TO BE HERE TOMORROW
Well Known Singing Group To Appear At 8:15 p.m. In Westcott Auditorium

2-Piano Team Also Slated

Nearly half of the tickets for Wednesday evening's Artist Series presentation of the Roger Wagner Chorale and the Streicher and Horowitz duo-piano team have been sold, said Mrs. Vernon of the Westcott ticket office, today.

The tickets are selling very well," she added. Students who have not picked up their tickets for the performance may do so by turning in the number two coupon from the spring semester activity book at the ticket office.

Scheduled for 8:15 p.m. Wednesday evening, in Westcott auditorium the program features the 24-voice Roger Wagner Chorale.

Merle Streicher and Norman Horowitz compose the duo-piano team that will perform during the program. They will also serve as accompanists for the choral group. Recently, the two pianists completed a series of 30 performance in New York's Radio City Music Hall.

The evening's program will include: "E-gah! Liebeslieder Waltzes" by Brahms, and "Ave" by Rachmaninoff; "Infanie" by Ritmo, "Mirror for the Sky" by Rubbik, and excerpts from George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess."

The Chorale originated as the Los Angeles Concert Chorale, a city-sponsored group. In 1947 the demands for professional appearances of the group were so great that it withdrew from city sponsorship and became the professional Roger Wagner Chorale.

Since then, the choral group has made numerous appearances which included an invitation to take part of the Coronation Festivities honoring Queen Elizabeth, in London. The Chorale also sang in Paris's Salle Gaveau, and in the Netherlands and the Hague it has broadcast on the BBC, Radio Paris, and Dutch Radio.

Within recent years, the group has done choral backgrounds for a number of movies, including "Desiree," "The Egyptian," and "Time to Be Happy."

"We believe the performance will be very popular with the students," said Mrs Vernon.

All seats are reserved.

Mrs. Vernon explained that both the choral and duo-piano performance and spring semester activity book coupon can be obtained at the Westcott ticket office. Tickets are limited, each, without activity coupons.

Trials Begin Thursday

31 Teams Enter 'Little 500'; Eliminations To Pick Top 20

Bicyclists representing 31 entries in the second annual 'Little 500' bike race will begin competition in the qualification laps Thursday through Saturday, at Florida High track.

According to Bill Clendinen, president of the sponsoring Sophomore class, the purpose of the qualification laps is to select the 20 entries with best qualifying times for competition in the 30-mile "Little 500" race. Four riders and two alternates will compete for each entry in the eliminations. The qualifications race will consist of four consecutive laps, with each member of the four-man team riding one lap around the Florida High track.

COMPETE AGAINST TIME

Each team will have three qualifying attempts and will compete only against time, not against each other, declared Bob Moren, publicity chairman.

The 20 entries with the best qualifying times will meet again in the "Little 500" championship which will be held at 7:30 p.m. on March 16, Clendinen said.

Last year's best time in the qualifications was 2 minutes 47.6 seconds. The same team that scored this record will be racing again this year under the Sigma Kappa colors.

TOOK FIRST PLACE

Although they placed tenth in qualification trials last year's Theta Chi team took first place in the "Little 500" with a winning time of 2 minutes, 4.3 seconds, according to Clendinen.

Qualifying times at FSU have been better than at the University of Indiana, where the "Little 500" originated. The best qualifyms time in Indiana's annual bike race was 2 minutes, 21.2 seconds—9.6 seconds behind FSU's best time last year.

Clendinen attributed the difference in time to the track conditions. "We have a better track" he said, adding "It's one of the fastest tracks in the South."

A parade including "Little 500" entrants is planned for 4 p.m., March 15.

ENTRIES LISTED

Sorority entries in the race are: Sigma Kappa, Delta Delta Delta, Delta Gamma, Alpha Chi Omega, Kappa Delta, Pi Beta Phi, Phi Mu, Kappa Alpha Theta; Alpha Delta Pi; Alpha Gamma Delta, Alpha Omicron Pi; Zeta Tau Alpha, and Alpha Xi Delta.

Fraternity entries are: Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Chi, Theta Chi, Lambda Chi Alpha and Delta Tau Delta. Sigma Nu, Phi Delta Theta; Kappa Sigma, Tau Kappa Phi; Phi Kappa Tau, Pi Kappa Alpha; Sixma Phi Epsilon, Tau Epsilon Phi, and Kappa Alpha Independent entries are: The Perishque, the Rebels, and the Playboys, of West Hall, and Senior Hall.

COFFEE HOUR

Max Halperen, a doctoral student in English, will discuss the works of the late Dylan Thomas this afternoon at 4 p. m. in Westcott Senior House.

Scholarship Exam Slated

Students who are successful in the State Scholarship Examination, scheduled for Tuesday, March 19, in the Suwannee Room, will receive 400 dollars per year toward their college expenses throughout the remainder of their undergraduate program.

Only Florida residents are eligible to relieve these State scholarships. Another stipulation of the scholarship is that the recipient must agree to repay the State in service, on the basis of one year of service for each 400 dollar grant in aid

'Music Is Like A Religion', Says 'Satchmo' Armstrong

By NANCY GENE BROWN

New Orleans jazz is here to stay.

Musical eras may come and go—charleston, boogie, rock-billy, and calypso—but enduring through the fads is Louis Armstrong, the Bourbon Street daddy of 'em all in the jazz world.

Appearing on a one-night, two-concert stand January 18 in Westcott auditorium, the inimitable "Pops," and his All-Star aggregation played the brand of blues that has become a American institution.

After the first show was over, the All-Stars left the stage, photographers crowded around backstage, flash-bulbs popped, and it almost lost in the melee, managed to talk to Louis long enough to get a promise of an interview.

"Sho, honey, come on!"

Taking me by the hand, he made a dash through the mob of autograph-seekers, around the dressing room door, and asked someone to bring a chair for me. At least 15 of the 30 minutes between shows were taken up by signing autographs.

Appearing as he wrote "Louis Armstrong — Satchmo" on programs, ticket stubs, autograph books, and jazz albums. Noting his cheery patience, one admirer asked, "Don't you get tired of this autograph bonobing?"

"Aw, no," he said with a broad, perly-toothed grin. "Like they say, this is our bunkle."

At length, attendants closed the door to give the "Jazz King" a break. Several members of the troupe relaxed to the dressing room. As Louis applied an oily fluid to soften his parched lips, I asked a few questions.

Being a fan of his latest movie a few months ago, I asked, "Are you planning to do some numbers from High Society?"

"Wish we could," he said reverently, "but I can't do that without Bing."

"Gee, why didn't you bring him along? I'm a big fan of his, too."

"Gary Bing Crosby's eldest son, a talent scouter himself, would do just as well," he told me. "Nooody realizes how well Gary and I work together—don't we Bing."

Still interested in High Society, I asked about Her Serene Highness, Princess Grace of Monaco.

"Met and crossed Louis' dark countenance. "Aw, she's just wonderful. You'd just have to love her dirn-tootin' soon as you see her. He paused for a second, thinking about her. "Yeah, a great actress, too."

"Remember the scene where she storms in, mad at Bing, and says, 'Dexter, I want to talk to you.' The day we shot that scene she was really putting herself into it. She got so mad for the purpose of acting that we were scared to talk to her all day."

"Boy, was she mad!" he chuckled.

Moving back farther in the past, I asked, "When was the last time you visited Florida State?"

Reflecting for a moment, he said, "I played Tally 'way back in the 1940's sometime." Recalling the added, "I had the time had back in those days. This was still a school that's great actress Grace Kelly. Getting trainer Irvielieved." queried, "What's your favorite band?" wondering if I'd get an unusual reply. I did. Stunningly unusual reply. I did. Stunningly when our country is not exactly how he's crazy about Guy well loved abroad?"

Lombardo.

Remembering that it was almost time for the second show, I began to conclude my questioning by asking "How does it feel to be the point, he told me, "You see,

Leaning back in his chair, he said, "Aw, honey, I don't feel any different than I did in New Orleans." Gesturing to emphasize music is like a religion. You can take it anywhere and find other people who believe in it."

I imagine that's Louis' philosophy of life.

At that moment a tired-looking gentleman knocked at the door. "Hey, Pops, the house is loaded —they're waiting." he exclaimed.

"Well, guess I'd better go then," said Louis, standing and turning to me. "I've enjoyed talking to you sho' don't you don't backstage for the second show."

Thanking him, I hurried away to talk to Jerry Tallevast, who has been Louis' manager for 11 years.

He told me that New Orleans was the scene of Armstrong's first organized band in 1925. All the members of that group—except the ever-lasting Louis—have now passed on.

A genial, chubby, grey-haired man, Mr. Tallevast introduced me to the other performers in the present All-Star group — James Trumm, Young on trombone, Edmund Hall, clarinet; Billy Kyle, piano; the famous drummer, Barrett Deems, to whom they refer as "The Mad Drummer", William "Squire" Gerah, The Bad Plasco Flash," on bass; and tremendous in more ways than one) Velma Middleton doing the vocalising.

During most of the concert, Louis chose to stick with the old standards that have become his trade-mark.

Manager Tallevie was proud to relate how, as the originator of a unique style of music, Louis and his swing through the years have evolved jazz through to the American public. Now it has spread abroad, through many overseas tours by Armstrong and other jazzmakers.

Leaving Tallahassee after the concerts here, Louis Armstrong and his All-Stars were off for a show at University of Florida, then on to New York City to play at one of the presidential inaugural balls, showing the world that international jazz is here to stay.

How To Prevent Violence: Keep Freedom, Use Restraint

Regular readers of the Flambeau's letters to the editor will notice in this edition much discussion of a new issue—freedom of expression.

It is regrettable that students must pause in their inward struggles to decide whether segregation is wrong to defend their very right to consider the question. Yet there is some justification for restraint in the debate over the segregation issue.

In probing for the truth, students could accidently open a Pandora's box of violence and turmoil. Talking about segregation could do that—for segregation is an explosive subject, one which is dear to the hearts of some Southerners. Unless the subject is viewed with wisdom and finesse, these Southerners overlook for the moment the fact that the students seek only the truth.

And in that moment, Florida State University could become another University of Alabama.

This is the possibility that all students should consider. Whatever their viewpoint, they should not desire turmoil. It has not happened yet, and if wisdom prevails, it will not.

This is what members of the Board of Control must have been considering when they made various comments about Florida State University students' participation in the controversy. This, too, is what the Flambeau considers when it takes stock of its role in the situation.

Surely, all parties—the students, board of control and administration—have the same objective, the prevention of physical violence. What, then, should be done to prevent it?

Seemingly, one step toward the solution would be to curtail all mention of the subject. We disagree. We believe that would put out of existence the source of the controversy—the mental process of students considering and deciding in their own minds their attitude toward the Negro. This process of reasoning and inferral debate is so vital to Southerners, especially to student Southerners, that it at times brings about almost physical tiredness. A ban on discussion would not stop students from thinking.

Bottle the explosive element in the end the danger? That is not the solution — the element will smoulder inside, the source still as volatile as ever.

In taking such a step, those in authority over students would cut off the arm to heal the finger. They would destroy a greater value—freedom of speech and press—in seeking to prevent turmoil.

Such is not the way of cool thinking. A far-reaching step, complete suppression goes too far. A half-step would be better.

The Flambeau proposes that those who write of segregation or integration on its pages do so in a rational and unemotional manner. It seeks, in its editorial voice, in whisper of restraint, to quell the tide of emotionalism. It asks those who are interested enough to write letters to do so in a spirit of reason rather than with name-calling and in other inflammatory ways.

At the beginning of this school year, the Flambeau said it would print all letters from students, provided they were signed and not personal attacks or libelous nature. That it has done. But now the restriction must go further. To do its share in preventing violence, then, the Flambeau will no longer print parts of letters on segregation and integration not couched in terms of restraint, and written in cool and logical form such as the editors would use themselves.

Admittedly, this is a half-step. It does not stop all mention of integration/segregation in the editorial page. But it does probe into the heart of the issue concerning us all—turmoil.

It seeks to prevent turmoil without throttling freedom of expression. We feel this is our obligation to the students.

If those in authority cannot trust the students here to speak logically and sincerely of their honest beliefs, then neither can it trust them to think.

The Flambeau believes students can be trusted to do both.

Calling The Card

Ideals, Actions Are Still Separate

By ARNOLD GREENFIELD

A few semester begins and those words in preamble with an obvious theme for a column. So, just imagine on the beginning of the semester.

Ordinarily, this would be a most difficult task for an avid reader recently supersed yours truly is usually by devoid of thoughts. This semester, however, I return to school after having spent a couple of days listening to one of the finest speeches I have ever been privileged to hear.

Reverend Jim Armstrong of Vero Beach spoke to the gathering at the Canterbury House last weekend and I think that the essence of what he had to say is definitely worth passing along to any who happen to be interested. His theme was "What we dream and what we do." In other words our goals contrasted with our actions.

REV. ARMSTRONG suggested that our goals fall into the categories of personal, social, and spiritual. The personality ought to be concerned with making himself whole—It may or may not be necessary to all that the speaker is deeply interested in human psychology. He went on to point out that we ought to have a "socio-centric" rather than a "self-centered" perspective.

The social implications of this are of course far reaching. We observe the world situation and the two protagonists each almost terrifying in their destructive possibilities and inhuman tension. The human psyche is placed under great stress, because of the dread that it would like to see achieved may not be possible under the circumstances. At any rate there is an obvious chasm between the goal of brotherhood and the deed of life.

WE FIND IT comparatively easy to dream of whatever form we wish to see as the ideal set of social relations. It is actually comforting—even stimulating—to think about thoughts and my to ourselves "Oh, if it were only true!" All too tempting to think that if other people were not so stupid the truth would easily prevail.

Unfortunately, this is not a very realistic position for there is a great gap between dreams and deeds—and wishful thinking is not going to eliminate the dichotomy. As Rev. Armstrong pointed out, "Love in action is basic and dreadful a term compared with love in dreams." Because talking and doing here stands this huge obstacle — that it may be extremely hard to actually do what we would like to see done.

It would be painful and or distasteful to us personally to act according to our theories convictions. Culture and education may be superimposed upon our personal weakness thus complicating the problem of bringing our ideas to life. When society's mores and our internalizing team up, a heavy burden to the forth while seeking progress.

I wish that I could see if everyone had heard Jim Armstrong speak our problems would disappear. It is unfortunate that his audience was not larger but it wouldn't have made that much difference.

I SAY THIS because the solution to be suggested was coming now. It was suggested a long time ago by someone else but the problem still exists. What we dream and what we do continue to be two different things.

"Can You See The Second Line At All?"

Bowl Of Rice Seen As Answer

LETTERS to the EDITOR

TO THE EDITOR

The other morning while attempting to force a lock-jill of sooty Seminole Chili "scrambled" eggs into the lower part of my face I overheard this conversation at one of the nearby tables. A freshman coed spoke: "The Negroes are certainly causing a lot of trouble aren't they?"

I glanced up in time to see the reply to this query given, seated at the table was a male, flanked by two females, the male leaned back in his chair pontificially and solved for me the entire problem with them a bowl of rice. That'll take care of 'em."

Now this thing had been bothering me for quite some time, and even after pondering all of the heretofore presented solutions, I had not been able to resolve it to my own personal satisfaction so you can understand how I fell upon hearing, at least the answer. Here! This is Rice! I propose that the Tallahassee City Commission concluded trade agreements with various rice countries Burma, Malaya, Red China, White China etc. to buy rice. I'm sure some local bowl manufacturing firm will be able to take care of that part of the answer."

KAREN L. JACKSON

Editor's Note: This solution seems as reasonable as some of the others that have been proposed, such as sending all Negroes to Africa, sending all Northerners to Yankeeland, etc.

A LETTER

Integration Is Not A Solution

TO THE EDITOR.

I would like to question your authority to write about some of the issues that you write in the Flambeau. On what knowledge of Negroes do you base your feelings that they want to ob vious from some of your articles that you have written about something of which you know nothing.

A SEMESTER at FAMU could improve your views on the subject.

You may claim that Negroes don't have freedom. What freedom do we have that then don't have? Who tells us what to study and destroy their traditions? They can't sit in the front of the buses. So we can't sit in the back. They can't go to FSU so we can't go to FAMU. I' many each school has its own particular advantages but a person's school is what he makes it. I came from the best school in my country, but on the State Placement test given allover, in 1955 I placed 53 from my country and very high in the state. If a Negro can't get a good education at FAMU, it is a lack of faith.

WHAT ABOUT the Negroes in the "integrated" north. In Detroit there are no laws that distinguish between black and white. The black people look for the same employers as the white people right along beside them. They belong to the same unions and earn the same wages. Yet the negroes live no better there than in the south. They drive huge cars and red bubbles wear fillthy clothes live in shacks and use their front yards for garbage dumps. I defy you to prove me wrong. But white people living in the north block live decent and do very well.

I have an aunt in Detroit who has four daughters. None of them could finish school because of indecent and profane treatment by Negro boys. This a your idealistic integration!

I KNOW a man who moved to Florida so that his children could get an education in the fifth and sixth of an integrated school.

Did you read the report of the atrocities the investigated Washington, D. C. schools? They seemed to discover the same thing that Southern schools in Florida have mentioned.

IN THE NORTH Negroes have absolutely equal rights and educational opportunities. So why do none of them ever do anything productive or anything that would show the Negro race to be useful to mankind besides screaming at the south?

Negroes in the north are hated even more intensely than in the south because of forced contracts through integration. Many northern people migrating to the south will buy a home and move into the "detested" as their chief reason for doing so.

NEGROES WANT "freedom" to mollas and belittle the white race Nothing would give a Negro more kick than to sit down beside a white girl and put his arms around her. To push a white person around in the halls of a school.

So what good can integration do? Raise the Negroes socially? It doesn't in the north. To give them better educational opportunities? Not true. Negroes are no better off going to white schools than they are going to their own. To just wreck everybody's education.

CONSIDER THESE statements as facts because I can prove every one. I'm looking forward to seeing this printed in the Flambeau.

THANK YOU
CHARLES SMITH

Editor's Note: This letter mentions Negroes the writer has personally known and attempts to lump all Negroes together with such labels as "the black people," "Negroes," "they," etc.

While we feel no Negroes is be undesirable just as many Negroes have, we must judge them as one really. They must be judged as individuals. If a given Negro is known as a fine white person in a given field of endeavor, then he deserves equal rights and privileges. Discrimination on the basis of race is inherently unsound, and there is no way to provide equality for the "good" Negroes without providing it for the "bad" ones. At the present, "bad" ones are given the same rights as "good" ones, so by giving the Negro equal rights the "bad" one is receiving no favoritism.

We concede there are undesirable Negroes, in the south as well as in the north. But all riots and terror in high schools are not caused by Negroes. Consider whether you are being fair in assuming all Negroes to be violent and all whites as peace loving.

The Florida Flambeau will print all signed letters from students except those which are libelous or insidious attacks upon individuals. Letters over 250 words may be cut at the discretion of the editor if space is limited. In such cases, where a valid reason is given, the same may be withheld.

Coeds Should Be Allowed Bicycles

TO THE EDITOR:

May I be permitted to make some comments after reading the article about the bicycle controversy.

IT SEEMS to me very strange that in the country considered the strongest defender of liberty and democracy, a person found riding a bicycle is challenged.

I don't know what the rules of the campus are but I believe that riding a bicycle doesn't represent any moral and material danger if we consider that cars are allowed without any restrictions, but these are in this case more dangerous.

THAT SEEMS to me, I mean such a controversy or matter of discussion, to be very strange because coming from Europe I'm used to seeing women riding bicycles all the time; that is allowed and nobody could make any opposition even in the puritan and careful Switzerland, where women ride incredibly dressed in any normal way and more if you have the opportunity to go to Italy where to possess a car is something more difficult than it is here and still so and watch in front of any University about at 5 a.m. every day, you'll see boys girls and teachers of both sexes going to school riding a bike.

THAT THE person in question is a Freshman, doesn't represent anything if we consider, as she affirms that she is so busy that a bicycle could represent a saving of precious time. The worst insinuation people could make, is that, let us say, It might represent a possible motive of attention, but that is not for us to judge.

Sincerely,
C. COLOMBUTI

Editor's Note: In emphasizing the word, "controversy," the FLAMBEAU did an injustice to the officials concerned. As best as we have been able to determine, in discussions both before and after the article appeared, coeds—including Freshmen—are allowed to bring bicycles to campus.

Nonetheless, as we pointed out in the article, for a coed to be so busy she cannot walk to class, she must be pretty stunned. We have no knowledge of any other coed having had a bicycle here during the Fall semester. This fact implies that there may be among at least some of the officials a somewhat easier attitude of disapproval. We do not believe this to be the "official" policy, however that may be defined—but there is at least a possibility that disapproval and leeway may be expressed somewhere along the line, both would not be out of line with attitudes of some officials in other fields of women's regulations.

Most important, however, is the fact that coeds may ride the bicycles if they so desire, known of at least several who were planning to begin doing so this semester. If this is not realized then the issue tends to be magnified out of proportion.

He Says Religions Allow For Customs

TO THE EDITOR:

If I may, here's my response to Don Hayes' letter of Feb. 12.

Donnie Boy your propensity to instigate me. I am truly saddened at your clearly demonstrated lack of knowledge in the field of "white supremacist" term. not mine; and their treatment in the years ahead.

NO. DONNIE BOY, a reading on constitutional law does not come from a case of the U. S. News and World Report. Your knowledge comes from the inside seat cover of Playboy.

All three editors for Mr. John Marshall and his wife have been dead for quite some last ones and really pulled the Supreme Court in business didn't they?

OH! YOU ARE amazed that I can close my mind to the teachings of the great religions? What specific teachings did you mean? Does Buddhism, Hindu perhaps, which has accumulated caste system? Or maybe Moslem which allows a good total of four wives. Or did you mean the Christian faith whose Inquisition wasn't exactly a Sunday picnic? Or do you thinking of Protestant teachings, which has already been mentioned as defended slavery, depending on which Protestant doctrine or Church? You see Donnie Boy the people making up the religions are human. It is unfortunate all religions have allowed for their customs or influence them with their beliefs, which is to be expected. It is natural characteristic, so less I say—liable out of this controversy.

NOW, Donnie Boy you shouldn't insinuate that I'm communist and have no relationship to leadership. Communism is the opiate of the people. That is unintelligent and foul, no less.

I'm glad that the Negro wants only h- knows His organizations, mainly the NAACP and the Urban League, because they have said time and time again that they will eliminate all force complete integration. Integrated buses and schools are only steps to the goal. Integration may even be that by 1985 the Negro, Caucasian, Mongolian, Chris Glencoche, Sara Jane Griffin, Sylvia Pearson, B. J. Faculty Quartet Devoted, Exciting

The Music School Thursday night plunged right into the second semester with one of its most exciting recitals. The occasion brought forth a repeat performance of Bartok's great Sonata for Two Pianos and Percussion and a rare performance by the Faculty String Quartet of Beethoven's Third Rasoumovsky Quartet, in C major.

The Bartok was pleasing in every respect. First, we appreciated very much the chance to experience again so complex a work. Also, the performance seemed even better than before, aided perhaps by the comparative intimacy of Opperman, and an arrangement of instruments that permitted the piano to sound more dominant, thus bringing the entire tonal scheme of the piece into better focus.

THE BEETHOVEN was tremendously exciting to our quartet-starved ears. It is a pity criminal that we get so few chances to hear live string quartets and are forced to resort to the hindmost depths of the Music Library when we wish to contemplate the most personal and profound expressions of the great Germanic masters.

Although a group of hard-working faculty members, each plainly has other time consuming and gratifying callings, the ravishing only sparsume of rehearsals and unable to attain a continual playing assurance could hardly hope to capture the awe-inspiring intimacy some of the groups perform on discs, they can serve to remind us that a completely satisfactory performance is preferable today to a superlative recording performance.

MESSERS SEDORE, Meek, Crabb, and Sellers played a rail that competent performance. They displayed sure direction and the great unison men of all quarter in their devotion. They gratified us by their presence, and forecast eyes to that future when Phi Mu music faculty will include a resident quartet.

GRIDDERS' SPRING FANCY IS PRACTICE

76 Prospects Begin Workouts Today; Nugent Plans For Fall

Seventy-six prospective Seminole gridiron warriors will turn out this afternoon to begin a 20-day spring training program.

Coach Tom Nugent hopes to find the right combination for his basic backfield and added competition for the center of the Seminole line in this maze of grid.

The practice sessions will be concluded on March 16 with the annual Garnet and Gold intra-squad conflict.

The backfield drouth is a result of the loss of five backfield men to graduation, while defensive difficulties have haunted the center of the FSU line.

Pacheco, a starting guard last year and Bob Elliott who was termed "our best defensive lineman," have both graduated from the team.

Returning ends Ron Schoemmer and Bob Neilums will provide support for Seminole backs. Neilums, however, is plagued by a knee injury, and will probably be confined to light workouts during the majority of spring practice.

Three two stalwarts will be bolstered by returning veterans Jim Arnold, Hiim Rober ts Fountain, and Gerald Bruno.

ROMEO, SPIVEY TO PLAY

Moving up from the hungry junior freshman squad will be Tom Romeo and John Spivey, both of whom are capable of filling top ball and may adequately ease practice in the spring.

At the tackles, Nugent will have returning both of his first string men in the persons of Bo Masselman and George Rose in addition to several other returnees and a crop of promising freshman.

The second situation is much of the same nature with Joe McGee in the center. Graham being the only returnees at the post. Help is expected here from freshmen Tony Bigbee, Al Ulmer, Jim Barnes and John Jenkins.

Tom Barnes will once again be the pivot slot for the Seminoles.

THE BROTHERS LECUONA

FERNANDO — RAPHAEL

By JUAN LOPEZ

Lecuona is a well known family in Cuba, but not only by the popularity of Maestro Lecuona (the composer of Malaguena, You Are Always In My Heart, Sihoney, and others).

Mrs Josefina Lecuona is the mother of a typical Cuban girl and two boys. The boys, Rafael and Fernando, have been bringing International Championships to Cuba since 1946 up until the last Olympic Games Rafael will graduate this June after four years of brinsing to Florida State University over titles medals, trophies and a well known credit all over the country.

Fernando, who enrolled with the Seminoles this past semester, is already following in his brother's foostirps with his winning of second place in still ring at the National Gymnastics Clinic held in Sarasota.

Fernando and Rafael went to Barranquilla, Columbia representing Cuba in the Central American Olympic Games and a few afterwards in Argentina, both competed against Bill Roetcheim "a former FSU gymnast in the Pan American Olympic Games

After winning two championships for Cuba, the Lecuona boys left for London for the Olympic Games While Fernando was competing in London his song "El Lucero y Yo" reached its peak on the Cuban Hit Parade From then on Fernando received great recognition, popularity, and prestige in music and gymnastics. Love knocked on his door and marriage made him change to evmnastics for good in the meantime Rafael attended FSU

Last year during a meet in Cuba, FSU vs the Cuban Gymnastic team. Dr Price saw to it that Fernando's dream of studying in an American University would come true. "To study in an American University is the hope of all the Latin-American students." Fernando has said "Now that it is possible for me to do so, I will work hard to bring as many victories as I can to FSU in gymnastics This wonderful school and its friendly people deserve it."

Though we say good-bye to Rafael, his brother will wear his gymnastics shirt. A good composer, a good gymnast and a gentleman, he is ready to compete for our Alma Mater.

'58 UF-FSU Winner To Get Cup Award

The Tallahassee Quarterback Club last night at their annual jamboree unveiled a Governor's Cup that will be presented to the winner of the FSU-UF football game each year.

The cup, shown to the members of the club and their guests, is a large sterling silver bowl with the inscription reading "The Governor's Cup. Presented by the Tallahassee Quarterback Club, 1957." Scores of the games will be engraved on the cup each year and it will then remain in the possession of the winning school until the following year's game.

Quarterback Club officials hope presentation of the cup will promote a spirit of "friendly competition" among students from both schools when football competition begins in 1958.

"This will be a natural rivalry," said one officer. "We want it to be a healthy one."

It was presented at the Jamboree to University of Florida captain John Barrow by Governor Leroy Collins, a member of the club. The cup will be shifted to FSU at the next Jamboree to be held in 1958. The club will reclaim the trophy sometime before the first meeting of the two schools on November 22, 1958, and present it to the winner of that game at their 1958 Jamboree.

President Doak S. Campbell was to be on hand, representing FSU, and H. P. Cantana, chairman of the University of Florida Athletic Committee, in the place of Dr. J. Wayne Reitz, UF president.

'Giant'—It's A Big 'Un

By ALAN KASS

There is a sound theory about story-telling: Start at the beginning, go on to the end and then stop. You should then have a complete story.

Edna Ferber's "Giant", with a film time of three hours and 18 minutes, fits this concept. It is also an excellent film in its breathtaking panoramic shots of the dusty Texas plains, the personal dramatic impact of the story itself and the resounding impact of its message.

Producer George Stevens has captured the wealth and the poverty, the pride and the prejudice that makes up the state of Texas.

Here is a vivid picture of a rugged state where cattle raising was supplanted by oil derricks, and where people scaled the economic ladder from rancher to millionaire almost overnight.

"Giant" makes the jump from the old Texas to the new with vivid intensity, catching not only the changes of time and money but the skin-deep nature of the modern social graces of Texas.

If the production is not overpowering the portrayals are. A cast headed by Rock Hudson, Liz Taylor and James Dean add to the dramatic impact of the well-told story.

James Dean will no doubt be the most talked-about player. No one should be disappointed with his portrayal, and the film only proves what a promising talent has been lost. As the shiftless, bitter rancher who hates society, Dean is outstanding.

Rock Hudson, achieved real stardom as Bick Benedict, a good deal of understanding goes into his performance as a man who sees a ranching tradition destroyed by oil and greed.

Liz Taylor is far better in the second half of the picture as a matured Leslie who has learned to adjust to Texas' social pattern.

"Giant" is not one but many stories, and they all fall nicely into place. "Giant" measures up to its name in movie entertainment. A strong cast, a strong story, and strong directing make "Giant" a full evening of overwhelming dynamite.

Baptists Hold 'Ground Breaking' For New Student House

By JILL JORDAN

The Baptist Student Union began its $200,000 building and remodeling project yesterday with a "Ground Breaking" service held on the corner of Call and Copeland.

President Dusk S. Campbell's speech beginning the program was followed with a talk by Dr. Harold Sanders, Pastor of the First Baptist Church of Tallahassee.

Rev. William Moyle, Director of B S U., said that the two pieces of property directly behind the present house have been bought and that the construction of a three-story building is to be started by the end of the week. The eight months to complete. The expansion is needed as 900 is to contain an auditorium, a recreation area, and class, conference, prayer and guest rooms. Rev. Moyle estimates it will take to the student house, which is to be entirely remodeled

ARCHITECT'S DRAWING SHOWS NEW BAPTIST STUDENT HOUSE
'Ground Breaking' Held Monday, Work To Begin On Structure Soon

We were ready to make a quick exit when we found out this was the first of many delightful surprises in an engaging comedy entitled The Girl Can't Help It".

Tom Ewell, the star, then came into focus and gave a witty monologue about the beat craze to a noisy rock 'n' roll tune, and thus the comedy started. On the surface the picture seems to be created for fun and laughs for a mass audience.

This corner suspects that producer-director Frank Tashlin is poking fun at the current dance beat craze and the artists who deliver it.

The plot is basically light, dealing with an old-time racketeer who engages a has-been agent to promote a well-stacked young actress. The fun is in the viewing not the telling. It is the manner in which the shots was put together that makes it delightful. A later number of night stars add to the fun.

The cast is top-notch. Edmond O'Brien, rarely seen in comedy, is delightful as the flummy executive who mastermains the success of Jerry Jordan. In total-ists the search of Edie has thoughts rates as a strong contender to the introduction of the screen's newest sex-pot.

Jayne Mansfield has that pivotal role, and seldom has a person been showcased like this. The star steals the picture via her physical attributes. It seems at times that carbon of MM is in the making—and no calendars, yet!

Cover Girl Contest

Grad Department To Select FSU 'Miss Football'

Florida State University's new football department will sponsor a "Miss Football, FSU" contest to select next year's brochure cover girl.

Jerry publicity department officials said the move is due to the success of last season's football brochure, which was voted second best in the nation by the American College Public Relations Association.

In a letter sent to all fraternities, sororities, and dormitories last week, the department asked each group to enter a candidate in the new contest.

Entries of pictures should be sent to Slavin White, director of sports publicity, men's gymnasium within the next two weeks. The contest judges, a group of faculty and administrative personnel will look over the pictures and select the finalists who will compete for the title at the social Garnet and Gold football banquet March 15.

Finalists will parade before the judges at halftime in shorts and sweaters.

Each the coed selected will appear as a cover girl the department's newest organizational promoting candidates, should do so on the basis of "Beauty and Brains."

The lucky attributed much of the 1956 brochure's success to the cover girl majorette Paula Thomas. The same picture was sometimes in 56-57 campus calendar. The brochure set a precedent, FSU, that we hope to continue," the letter said.

Debaters Gain Miami Tourney Runner-Up Spot

Competing against four-teen major universities, Florida State University's negative debate team tied for second place at the University of Miami Invitational tournament held between semesters in Miami.

Greenfield was rated second most individual debator of the six participants Bart Durham and Ruby Combs also participated, defeating Temple University of Philadelphia.

An affirmative and negative team composed of freshmen won honors for FSU at the West Georgia College Tournament at Carrollton Ga., also held between semesters.

Jean Sue Brubaker and Linda Arnow placed first debating the negative side while Susie Pate

Roberts Asks Senate Probe Phone Service

By CHARLET POITEVINT

Although a study of campus telephone service was made last year and a new exchange installed, students are still having difficulty making telephone calls, student senator Fred Roberts said Wednesday.

Roberts made a motion in the senate's regular meeting that it investigate the telephone service situation" toward general improvement.

A special committee consisting of Pat Finlan, Ramon Arnold, and Dave Crawford, chairman, was appointed to study the matter.

Reporting on a committee study of other directories, Senator Polly Atwater said three courses were open to Senate in forming or improving the directory, to make a revolution for the administration to take action, or for Senate to take over the project. The main grievance against the present student directory was that some addresses were not included in the issue Atwater explained this was due to financial difficulties.

A suggestion that the Senate discontinue publishing the directory and end support of the Pow Wow received favorable comment.

Correspondent Jim Boles explained the Senate could subsidize printing of the directory from funds alloted for the Pow Wow and let the administration publish the Pow Wow.

This year's directories were sold by state funds and were printed by a photo-offset process directly from IBM listings.

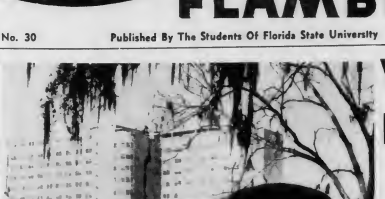
Carolyn Close, women's vice president was unanimously elected chairman pro tem of Senate. Former chairman pro tem Jim Boles became vice president—chairman of Senate with the resignation of Bill Cullom, elected last spring to that post.

Senator also extended an invitation to Dave Bachman, student body president, to speak at the next meeting.

Absent were Senators Ronnie Blue, Mike Cossa, Ramon Arnold, and Fair Moses.

Campus Flicks Need Support

The showing of campus movies in the new library auditorium Friday night depends on student support, Student Body President Dave Bachman declared yesterday.



Previously the Friday night films have been at West Hall but demands from students made the move seem practical, Bachman said.

Tonight's movie to begin at 7:30 p.m. is "The Desert Song," starring Gordon McRae and Kathryn Grayson.

Grad Club Plans Social

The Graduate Club at Florida State University will have an informal social get-together tonight at 7:30 in Lonemire Auditorium and adjoining clubroom.

Don Spille, president of the club, urged all graduates and special advanced students to attend.

An honor guest will be Dr. Milton Carothers, dean of the Graduate School.

Grad Student Investigation Group Set Up

A committee to investigate problems of graduate students was designated last week by Dr. Milton Carothers, dean of the Graduate School.

The committee is composed of four faculty members and four graduate students, with Dr. Ralph Witherspoon as chairman, and Dr. Ernest Cason, Dr. Robert Briggs, and Dr. Claud representing the faculty. Students are Don Spille, Mary Ellen Durrett, Leon Coulter and William Mabry.

Among the problems graduate students are calling to attention, according to a member of the class, are housing for married students, witholding of income tax from graduate assistantships, and the feasibility of a graduate council similar to student government.

Davis Elected Cavalier Prexy

Gordon Davis became Cavalier president when the social dancing organization held elections this week.

At a meeting held Tuesday evening in the Trophy Room of the Student Center, other officers elected were Wallace Yeager, vice president; Bill Bynn, secretary; Jim Arnold, treasurer, and Gordon Villars and Phil Bach, assistant social directors.

New Cavalier members who were recently initiated were also present at the meeting said Yeager, the new vice president.

He also reminded all Cavaliers, new and old, of a meeting Thursday, Feb. 21 at 7:30 p.m. in the Trophy Room.

STUDENT GOV'T TO RUN '57 CHEST

By JIM McINTYRE

Campus Chest will be run directly by Student Government next year, according to Bob Elting, Secretary of Student Welfare.

The present system of administration of the charity effort is through an independent committee which works in cooperation with Frank Bean of the Dean of Men's staff.

"Under the new plan," Elting said, "The responsibility for the direction of the campaign will rest on the Secretary of Student Events."

The Secretary of Student Events is a member of the Student Body President's Cabinet. The post is held this year by former Senate secretary Carmine Rainey.

Elting also emphasized the idea of shrinking the campaign from its present drawn-out state into a more compact arrangement with only one or two activities included. The "Campus Chest Weekend" is being considered with special money raising events scheduled during that time only.

Elting has been serving as chairman of a special committee appointed by Student Body President Dave Bachman for the study of the Campus Chest situation. Included on the committee are Evelyn Mohr, secretary of Finance; Jan Kaminis, Secretary of State, Nancy Lee Young, Chairman of this year's Campus Chest, former senator Orvis Gates, and Secretary of Student Events Carmine Rainey.

The committee's findings also revealed a need for a more thorough knowledge on the part of the student body as to what the Campus Chest is and what the money collected goes for. A publicity campaign to achieve this end is being planned through the committee.

The committee will also plan a followup campaign to be held immediately after the drive to inform the students of the effectiveness of their giving. Special report on what has been bought or accomplished with the money will be given at that time.

Bowen, Taylor, Markham Fill Vacant Posts

Ann Markham, Beth Bowen, and Jack Taylor were appointed by Student Body President Dave Bachman this week to fill student government posts left by graduating seniors.

Bachman named Miss Markham to replace Senior Senator Barbara Moore. Miss Bowen to replace Campus Chest Chairman Nancy Lee Young and Taylor to replace undersecretary of funds Evelyn Nettles.

Beth Bowen was earlier named to replace Senior Senator Jim E. Moore.

In appointing Miss Bowen, Bachman said the term for the office of Campus Chest Chairman should run from February to February instead of from September to June to give the new chairman sufficient time to learn the job.

The appointments are subject to confirmation by the Senate.

Former Student Inscribes Book To Prof. Vance

Harper's Bros. released this week a novel by a former student and instructor at Florida State College for Women, FSU's predecessor, the professor to whom it is dedicated announced Saturday.

Author of "The Fruit Tramp," 247 page novel about migratory farm workers in Florida's Okeechobee section, is Vinnie Williams, who at Vivian Ahlesworth, class of 1941, was a Florida Flambeau news editor and editor of the literary magazine Distaff.

Professor Earl L. Vance, to whom the novel is dedicated with the inscription "Who roused, who nobly urged, who subtely taught", said Mrs. Williams returned to FSCW several years later to teach under him in the division of Journalism.

Mrs. Williams, originally from St. Petersburg, is married to a United States Army career man who is currently stationed in Fairbanks, Alaska.

West Campus Area Night Bus Run Cut

Lack Of Funds Said Reason; Survey Showed Lack Of Use

Staff Writer

Night service on the university's West Campus Bus run has been curtailed, with buses now running from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. seven days a week.

Barry Day, director of service units, confirmed the official action yesterday, attributing it to budget problems.

The Labor and Transportation Department, which is responsible for the maintenance and repair of the buses, is established on a self-sustaining basis and a free bus service cannot be self sustaining Dr. Day explained.

Buses apparently have been operated in past years with funds taken from other department monies. The campus police and motor pool are responsibilities of the Labor and Transportation Department.

On the basis of "long-over due" surveys, which showed that only 2.23 passengers made the trip per hour at 7 p.m. Dr. Day made the recommendation to discontinue the night service.

SURVEY WENT ON

Surveys of the numbers of passengers using the West Hall bus are also underway, he added. New bus schedules will be released after completion of the survey.

West Hall buses now run on a half-hourly schedule, leaving West Hall twenty minutes to and ten minutes after the hour.

AUTHORIZED STOPS

Both the West Hall and the West Campus buses have been instructed to stop only at authorized bus stops, Day said. Because of excessive stops and the resulting traffic tie-ups on campus streets, Student-Faculty Traffic Committee members recommended this action. New "bus stop" signs have been posted conspicuously at all authorized stops, they added.

A list of the authorized bus stops on the campus follows below:

The West Hall bus will make its first stop in front of Bryan Hall, then on to West Hall, stopping in front of the Semicole Club, the corner of North Carothon parking lot, the Nursery School, in front of the Music Building, the corner of West Jefferson and Pensacola streets, Campbell Stadium drive, the corner of West Tennessee and Lapona Road, and on to West Campus.

"Play For Voices"

Coffee Hour To Hear Dylan Thomas Drama

By ARLIEDA BIES

A "play for voices" will be featured at today's English Coffee Hour in the Westminster House at 4 p.m.

Under the leadership of Max Halperen, graduate student in English, five persons will read selected unified portions of Dylan Thomas Under Milk Wood. Intended for reading rather than acting this "play for voices" has been produced in this country and in England, where it has received rave notices.

Written in a joyful mood, the dramatization, as described by Halperen, is an "acceptance of people in spite of their queer ways."

RADIO FORM

One third of the play will be read on the order of a radio script with a poetic emphasis on sound.

Set in a Wales fishing village the dramatization opens as night falls, when the people of the town begin dreaming. After becoming acquainted with the townspeople through their dreams the audience then sees these same people in action during the day. The play ends as night again falls and the dreams of the town resume, completing the cycle.

Thomas' last major work, the play was completed only a month before his death at the age of 39 in 1953. He had worked on the play off an on for about ten years. He had intended to continue in the field of drama, but this is the only play which was completed," Halperen commented.

OTHER READERS

In addition to Halperen other participants include Mrs. Halperen; Bernl Benstock, graduate student in English; Jacque Spencer, art major; and Bill King, speech student.

Halperen, who has taught at the University of Kentucky as well as worked on newspapers and publicity, received his MA at FSU on Dylan Thomas At present he is working on his PhD. With a study on Ezra Pound.

A similar Coffee Hour production is scheduled for several weeks from now, Berni Benstock will present portions of James Joyce's Finnegans Wake.

Coffee Hour is a weekly presentation of the Student Department of Religion, which features, and town people are invited.

Court Suspends Two Cheaters

Honor Court suspended two students on charges of "repeated cheating" after final examinations a justice of the court revealed yesterday.

A third student, whose case was not connected with the other two, was put on Honor Court probation and given an F in one 200 level course after the professor accused him of cheating on the examination Confronted with a comparison of papers, the student reportedly pleaded guilty.

The two whose suspensions were recommended by Honor Court and enacted by a faculty committee were accused by three classmates of cheating on several examinations in their course. Final exam papers were compared for evidence, the justice said, with one student pleading guilty both to the charge of cheating on the final. The other denied any dishonesty.

Fire In Freezer Causes Big Rush

Tallahassee's entire fire department rushed to the campus shortly after 9 a.m. yesterday to fight a fire in a deep-freezer.

But associate professor of chemistry Harry M Walborsky put the unusual blaze out with a well-grounded fire extinguisher.

Chemicals stored in a deep-freezer in the bio-chemistry laboratory on the fourth floor of the science building had exploded, igniting the building No one was near the freezer it at the time and damage was reportedly slight.

Choral Union Calls For More 'Bride' Singers

The Choral Union needs additional members to sing in its opera, "The Bartered Bride," to be presented May 10 and 11, according to director Herndon Gunter Jr.

Men are particularly needed to fill the ranks of the chorus, he said.

Those wishing to join the Choral Union should attend rehearsals Monday and Wednesday at noon and Tuesday at 5 p.m. in the Choral Room of the Music Building.

Tryouts for principal roles in the opera will be held shortly. A notice telling times and rooms will be posted on the Music Building bulletin board.

"No particular ability or experience is needed to become a member of the chorus," said Gunter.

Students, Citizens Should Ponder 'Revolt' Against Individualism

When in the course of human events comes a revolution, then that is indeed a time to try men's souls.

We may be undergoing a form of revolution now, if we read correctly the indications of anti-individualism that have lately become so commonplace.

Individualism, it has been drummed into us, is the American Way of Life (though not necessarily LIFE's way of America) and is the bedrock of fountainhead of all things in this great country. Cheerfully accepting this as dogma from on high, we note that there are evidently a few errors in the theory.

We recently ran across a humorous magazine article in which the author gleefully pointed out such non-individualistic-type things as that it is now well-nigh impossible to get a new car without tail fins ("Note the distinctive fin styling," run the ads.)

On campus, Smoke Signals belittles such "conformity" indications as the cute little buckles you've got to wear on the back of your pants now (the gals wear them on their skirts) and like trivia.

Now comes Dr. George A. Lensen, whose past membership in such front organizations as Columbia University has stamped him indelibly with the label, "intellectual", to inform us that the trend is indeed more than a trend.

"It's a revolution against the 'individual'", the able Dr. Lensen said at a session this week of American Studies.

Dr. Lensen made some very cogent comments concerning the differences in attitudes toward individualism of the people of the United States and China. Having made an intensive study of the far east, Dr. Lensen was able to discuss the two viewpoints in a singularly authoritative and thought provoking manner.

Individualism, he said, is not overly appreciated in China. We listened quietly as he went on to explain how group initiative is the primary substance of life in that country. Then our interest heightened as he began to delve into a subject obviously near to his heart—the manner in which individualism is being lost here.

He skipped briefly ovr the more obvious signs in the revolt against individualism—standardized clothing, housing projects, anti-intellectualism ("they must think they're better than we are"), indoctrination (our word, not his) of grade school children with material that tells of the happiness of conformity—and then swung a few free throws at anti-individualism in higher education.

"Should a university," he asked, "lead the community, or should it give the community what it wants to hear?" His answer was forthright and dead serious: freedom of thought, of discussion should never, never be sacrificed to appease conformists.

The students, the faculty, with their specialized training, should use their knowledge to its fullest exten. They should speak the truths they have learned.

Whatever application his lecture has to the present situation at Florida State University, it is notable in the honesty of its message—that citizens of this country should pause to consider their role as individuals.

Are they obligated to accept whatever seems to be the majority viewpoint? Or should they, as individuals, contribute their own views toward the general good? We believe that the latter will be the most effective counter to the "revol" against individualism.

Chorale's Performance One Of Season's Best

By DAVID WARD-STEINMAN

The Roger Wagner Chorale presented one of the most [interesting] and delightful programs we have heard all season. The music performed was well-chosen and represented high artistic standards.

The most striking thing about the Wagner Chorale is [the ap]parent enthusiasm and love for singing [that] pervaded everything they did. They sang [with] life and spirit, appropriate to the par[ticular] selection, and the added showmanship [of] performing most of their program from [memory] added immeasureably to the rapport with [the] audience.

THE THREE OPENING Renaissance [mo]tets, unfortunately unidentified, were [sen]sitively and lucidly set forth. The two [...] Baroque madrigals which followed had wa[rmth] and color. The latter of these, Orlando DiLa[sso's] "Echo Song" was performed imaginatively [with] the echo group, a solo quartet, placed backstage, instead [of the] more usual arrangement of having the echo come from within [the] chorus.

The Brahms Four Motets which followed were somewhat dis[appointing] tonally. The sound and balance between the sec[tions] was uneven, and the disparate lines did not combine satisfact[orily] to produce a real choral sound.

AT THIS POINT the two-piano team of Stecher and Ho[ro]witz, who served as accompanists for the group, made the[ir] appearance, in the Hess transcription of Bach's Jesu, Joy of Man Desiring. In this and their other solo numbers (notably the Wa[ltz] from the second Rachmaninoff Suite) they played with musician[ship and control, which was not always evident in their accom]panying.

Wagner did not endear himself to the hearts of any mod[ern] composers or contemporary-minded listeners by his prefac[ing] remarks about the Bloch Sacred Service, two parts of which w[ere] performed. He actually apologized to the audience and asked [them] to listen without prejudice to this "modern" music, which hap[pened] to be one of the most conservative scores of an arch-con[servative] composer.

THE SECOND HALF of the program began with a group of the Brahms Liebeslieder Waltzes, and continued with a Ga[il] Ku[bik] group, Mirror For the Sky, and the usual concluding folk [songs] and spirituals.

What was lacking in the Kubik and some of the other things was a good, solid fortissimo in the climaxes. The visual and vocal excitement did not extend, surprisingly, to dynamics and [the] pianists frequently covered the group, though they were playing at what seemed to be the proper level. I think the trouble was [in] projecting; some of the soloists actually seemed to be singing into their chins.

AND ENUNCIATION, the perennial choral bugaboo, was more of a problem than it should have been, considering the professional level of the singers. What prevented the purity of a line from [pro]jecting was the sound of too many individual voices. In the [...] Kubik number the bass and tenor unison was the unison of so[lo]ists, not choralists, and this was evident in any place where a single line was exposed. There was even some occasional bad in[to]nation at cadances, mostly from the tenors.

The capacity audience in Westcott greatly enjoyed the pro[gram], and Mr. Wagner was extremely gracious in doing a number of encores, all of them excellently arranged and extremely well sung.

He Says Negroes Want Segregation

LETTERS to the EDITOR

TO THE EDITOR:

I have been reading the dispute over segregation in the Flambeau each week. There have been good points made by advocates of each side. But I think the following article that appeared in the Jacksonville Journal recently, will shed more light on the issue. If you read it, I think you'll agree it's worth re-printing in the Flambeau.

Sincerely,
M. V. SHARR

PS It was written by a Negro.

HAVE PRIDE

Dear Journal

Although I have lived with segregation all my live, I do not feel that I have suffered from it.

(1 AS FAR AS I can see, it is much less humiliating to move to the back of the bus, than it is to have white people get off a bus simply because they do not want to ride by me.

I believe if a white man feels he is too good to integrate with the Negro then the Negro should certainly have too much pride to force himself bodily on the white man.

(2) If the Negro ministers who are egging on all this mass defiance of the laws would tend to their own business, most Negroes would continue to stay in their rightful places.

(3 WHEN THE SAME ministers go around pinning medals on poor bewildered Negroes for breaking the law, it is time to do something about it.

Most of these Negroes don't realize the seriousness of their act. You can tell by the expression on their faces that they are told only what the civic leaders want them to know.

(4) Failing to get enough cooperation, even from them, these ministers are now urging college students to defy the law.

THE BUSES will be filled with young men of both races soon. What are these so-called ministers trying to do, and is there no way to stop them before it is too late!

Our leaders should use their energy toward bettering the Negro race by establishing schools, theaters, parks, youth centers.

(5.) The Negro race doesn't want to be forced into taking over the white man's accomplishments. He would rather have his own, and if he lacks ability to provide them, he would rather do without.

(6 I HEARD ONE man tell another the other day that an educated Negro is full of trouble-making. Certainly these educated ministers in Tallahassee are causing plenty of trouble.

(7.) I firmly believe if the truth were known, the average colored family gets far more from tax-supported facilities than they put into it.

(8 ANY TIME A white person rides through the colored section, what does he see—all the occupants of the house sitting on the front porch, laughing and enjoying life. That is all right. The Negroes' wants and desires are few.

But unless changes are made, these educated Northern big mouths are going to fix things down here that will leave the Negro without schools, bus service, or friendship of the white people whose good will he is absolutely dependent on.

Since this letter opposes the interest of Negroes, it would seemingly deserve comment if its author is actually a Negro. For our own conveniences we have inserted figures in the letter.

(1.) He does not deny that it is humiliating to a Negro to put up with segregation. We challenge any Negro to say this is good faith.

(2.) It would be more pertinent to the argument to face the integrationist's viewpoint on its own merit, not attempt to discredit it by its source. We cannot help but feel that R B L would respect a stand by a Negro minister favoring segregation. Similarly, white supremists who criticize "yankee" integrationists make it a point to uphold "Yankees" who favor their view.

(3.) Just what law are the Negroes breaking? The only place we know of where questions of law are legally decided is in the courts—and we leave it to R. B. L. to consider what decision a court will hand down in a question of segregation in public facilities.

(4. The majority of college students favor integration, if the Board of Control's opinion survey was accurate.

(5.) We rather doubt that Negroes want to give up any modern conveniences. In any case, we, for one, do not wish to give up benefits resulting from Negro accomplishments.

(6 Why don't we burn all books? It seems hard to believe that someone would actually criticize education as inherently evil.

(7 So does the average white Southerner.

8 ANY time in a Negro section, ALL the occupants are on the front porch enjoying life? We seem to remember statements that those who favor integration don't face reality.

In the first paragraph the author admits he never "suffered" from segregation. We admit that this may, to an extent be true. There are many Negroes who have financial vested interest in segregation. These are store owners, school teachers and others whose income is a result of segregation. It is to their credit that the vast majority of such Negroes still favor the Negroe's assuming his rightful place in society. There are only a few who value personal interest above the rights of their kind.

A LETTER

Look At All Facts

TO THE EDITOR:

In reply to the letter by Charles Smith: I feel that Mr. Smith is to be congratulated in presenting a letter so filled with fact. Unfortunately, in this crazy world in which we are living, there is a clear distinction between fact and undeniable truth.

I HAVE NO doubt that your four female cousins in Detroit have been subjected to profane and indecent treatment by Negroes attending the school which they attend. However, I also attended a northern high school in New York City. During my senior year at Erasmus Hall, a Negro was elected to the presidency of the student organization even though the student body was predominately white. We had our incidents of profane and indecent treatment by male students at Erasmus, but this treatment was mediated by members of both races.

We had many instances where Negroes were intensely hated by members of the white community. However, the star quarterback of our high school football team was a Negro and he was far from hated. The borough president of the borough of Manhattan is also a Negro and I dare say he is far from hated by all but his political enemies. In my fraternity at C C N Y, we had a few Negro members and I know they were not hated.

THESE ARE ALSO facts, but they in no way change the facts which you clearly presented last week. The point here is not isolated facts about your cousins or my fraternity brothers, but truths about the social system in which we live. If we are going to discuss the problem of integration, we must examine all the data available to us. If we are going to cite cases in which integration has not worked, we must also cite cases in which it has. We must determine whether the differential results we obtain are due to local environmental circumstances or to the pigment of the skins of the people involved.

Finally, I think it is about [time] we all changed our point of view. We must all recognize that integration presents some very severe social problems. Going o[ut] and digging up data showing the evil effects of integration will no more solve these problems than will the insistence on immediate integration at all levels of our social structure. I think it behooves us as college students to impress upon the community the need for solving these social problems so that integration no longer remains a problem.

Thank You

Chicago 'Gag Issue' No Gag; Officials Burn Entire Press Run Of Issue

"Gag issue coming Monday, will need asbestos paper" read the headline in the February 8 edition of the Chicago Maroon, student newspaper at the University of Chicago.

Little did the editors realize then that their annual joke and satire edition, to come out on the twelfth, would make those words come true.

It seems almost ludicrous, but the administration ordered every copy burned.

The resulting howl, pictured at right in a paper put out Feb. 12 following the burning, is outraged but not indignant. The editors describe the articles in the "gag issue" as "good, if not clean, satire." There is little indignation here—rather an admission of "shady" journalism, again in the Maroon's words.

The outrage ("Gestapo-like tactics", blared the inside headline) was over the curt dismissal of freedom of the press. There was question raised as to the legality of the move.

From where we sit, not having seen an issue (nobody else except the editors and administration have, for that matter), it appears that both parties are at fault. The editors were apparently bent on taxing their freedom of the press to the utmost, while the authorities acted in a manner that will tax to the utmost the high opinion held by the nation of this once proud and liberal institution.

All Americans Should Protect, Promote Freedoms Guaranteed Them In United States Constitution

America was founded on principles of democracy. Our forefathers came here seeking freedom and respect for every individual. Not unlike the present-day generation they believed in democracy. This belief has been proven in revolutions and wars.

IT IS TRUE that certain segments and individuals of American society have abused elements of democracy. When the Constitution of the United States was adopted in 1787 it lacked a guarantee of civil liberties. As a result a compromise was reached which established the bill of rights of 1791. We American citizens cherish these rights and those which have been adopted since this time in one form or another.

It is the responsibility of every American citizen to uphold and promote the principles of democracy. This responsibility bears heavily upon students of colleges and universities. Students of these institutions are fortunate enough to really learn what democracy means and how it can best be protected and promoted.

THIS IS BORNE out by historical facts. In general, college students have always supported the cause for democracy. Witness the students moves for democratic ideals after the Congress of Vienna. Better yet, take a look at the role of college students in defending democracy in present-day Hungary. Just because the United States is looked upon as the leader for freedom is no sign that she may not have dirty laundry at times.

Recently a certain organized group of Leon County "passed a resolution demanding that the Board of Control suspend or expel white and Negro students . . . who were backing a certain proposal. This group went on to say that "All of the students at both of the universities must be suspended or expelled from school and they must not be allowed to reenter any state supported institution of higher learning ever."

Do these words carry connotations of political intimidation?

Does this group of Leon County purport to speak for and represent all the people of Florida? It has no right to dictate on policies which concern taxpayers of the sixty-seven counties of Florida.

Curse the day when groups and individuals attempt to convert colleges and universities into puppets!

THERE WILL always be disagreements on what constitutes a right. The basic ones are laid down in the Constitution of the United States. Among these are freedom of "speech" freedom of the "press," freedom "of the people peaceably to assemble" and freedom of "petition." These are only some of the essentials. However there are limitations as to how far these rights may be exercised. For instance, freedom of "speech" does not mean that "fire" may be shouted in a crowded theater. The United States Supreme Court has long recognized these limitations.

These rights must not be exercised in such a manner as to be detrimental to the general public. They must be respected by all people if we are to make this world a better place in which to live. There are no exceptions to the students of Florida State University.

THE STUDENTS here request that these rights be not abused. They are principles which constitute the essentials for intellectual growth.

College life must stimulate exchange of ideas. Every controversial issue has two sides. Both sides must have the opportunity to equally present their beliefs without being subject to suppression. This includes expulsion. To resort to such action is reminiscent of the medieval days when minds, actions, and books were censored. The search for truth is a person's most loyal obligation. The truth can be found only through exploration of ideas.

THOMAS JEFFERSON said in his first Inaugural Address, "If there be any among us who wish to dissolve this union, or to change its republican form, let them stand undisturbed as monuments of the safety with which error of opinion may be tolerated where reason is left free to combat it." Here he enunciated the necessity of solving problems through reason.

Reason must prevail over suppression of ideas. The impo[rtant] thing is that issues be discus[sed] intelligently. Discussions [and] writing should reflect logic. Vi[o]lence must always be avoided. Violence is the henchman for barbarism. The student body of Flo[r]ida State University should be trusted to freely exchange ideas. It must exercise its rights with respect for the general public.

More Parking Allotted Students

Provision of two additional parking spaces for student use only in the infirmary parking lot was recommended Monday by the Student-Faculty Traffic Committee.

The "Student Only" zone will be limited to students on infirmary business, and a time limit of forty minutes will be in effect on the four allotted spaces, a committee member said.

Committee members also voted to allot the parking area north of the Lodge, and in front of the Library School, for faculty use only.

Cagers Battle Rollins Tomorrow

Southerners Here On Monday Night

By BEN BALSER
Flambeau Sports Writer

After winning four of their last six games the Florida State basketballers will play host to Rollins College tomorrow night and Mississippi Southern Monday night on the men's gym.

Rollins brings a 5-12 record to Tallahassee. The Tars have a 2-6 record in the FIBC and are currently holding down fifth place. The Tribe has defeated Rollins once before this season, 97-94.

The big gun for Rollins is 6-4 forward Dick Bergmer. Bob Schuder is the other forward in the first game with the Tribe this season. Schuder scored 32 points.

Hal Lawler is the probable starter at center while Jim Coffie and Jack Ruggles will hold down the guard positions.

Mississippi Southern has a lineup which includes four juniors. Only three all have years of experience So far this season they hold a 7-10 record.

BEAT TEXAS A&M

One of Southern's wins is a 57-56 victory over Texas A&M. This same Texas team 82-76 while the Southerners were trampled Aggies by the score of 75-63.

The only other mutual opponent is West Virginia which downed the Seminoles 89-54 in an early season game. Mississippi Southern had less luck with Hot-Rod Hundley and company losing 105-67.

Guard Don Eddy who had a 15-point game average last year, paces the youthful Southerners. Eddy is a good shot from any spot on the floor but his jump shot has been especially effective.

The tallest man on the Mississippi Southern team is 6-8 Bob Kinney. Bob is a tremendous rebounder and can shoot with either hand. The fastest man on the starting lineup is Jimmy Mildred 6-3 guard. According to head coach Clyde Finnell when Mildred is "on" he is very dangerous.

Bob Boothe is the Southerners' floor man. Coach Finnell asserts that Boothe gives the team 100 per cent effort all during the game. Rounding out the lineup is 6-5 Bob Hardwick, who is also safe for his size and an accurate shot from the outside.

The Seminoles now own an overall record of five victories and 14 defeats. In the FIBC they are in third place with a 2-4 mark. Last Monday night the Tribe lost to Florida Southern 73-61.

Although the Tribe had a 46-32 halftime lead and had an eight point lead most of the game the Mocs controlled the backboards most of the second half and gradually overcame the Tribe's advantage.

ROAD TRIP

On February 9, the Moccasins also trounced FSU in the same contest the Mocs got an early lead and held it most of the game.

The Seminoles rallied on February 4 and edged Rollins 57-54. Tampa was outclassed and outplayed by the Tribe on February

Frosh Nine

There will be a meeting of all freshmen baseball players Monday afternoon at the Men's Gymnasium in room 208 announced frosh coach Jim Ralston.

Tribe Golfers Dump Badgers

Florida State's golfers opened their 1957 campaign last Friday afternoon by swamping the University of Wisconsin, 25-2 at the Tallahassee Country Club.

Ed Jenkins, one of the cobolders of the country club course record with a 32, fired a six-under-par 66 to lead the Seminoles while Bunk Berry and Ray Shuman turned in 69's.

Coach Don Veller has right lettermen returning this year and lost one. Dick Huff, who left school earlier this year.

The only other graduation loss is Jenkins and Berry. Jenkins' favorites, transfer Bill Thornton, who also has a 42 to his credit, will be back.

Five of the Seminole golfers were on the two winning teams that defeated such Southeastern Pro-Amateur championship in Moultrie, Ga. over the holidays.

Veghte and freshman Albert Yancey were on one winning team, headed by pro Hank Mercer, an FSU graduate student, and Berry, Jenkins and Thornton were on the other winning four headed by pro Chuck Bon of the Tallahassee Country Club.

The two teams had a 36-hole total of 125. 18 under par. Pros Mercer and Rae received $425 apiece and each of the amateurs received a sterling silver water pitcher.

LETTERMEN BACK

The returning lettermen are Jenkins Berry, Shuman, Dave Morris, Jack Veghte, Billy Sheldon, Marry Shoemaker and Bob Thornton.

In addition to Jenkins and Berry, we lose the four losingest favorites, transfer Bill Thornton, who also has a 42 to his credit, will be back.

Says Nugent

Big Task Ahead For Grid Coaches

By FRANK RAMOS
Flambeau Sports Writer

Florida State football coaches have their work cut out for them, according to head coach, Tom Nugent.

They've got a real job ahead of them, this year's squad has got quantity, but is lacking badly in experience." Nugent reported after the first day of spring practice.

The 1957 eleven is lacking a regular quarterback and it is Nugent's job to find one during spring practice.

With Ted Rodrigue being the only quarterback with any experience, Nugent thinks he might have to move last year's flashy halfback, Bobby Renn to quarterback.

RECRUITING JOB

If and when Nugent makes the big switch he'll have a rebuilding job to do in the backfield.

According to the Seminoles chief, Stan Dobson, Eddie Johnson, Clarence Battaglia, Billy Weaver, and Wes Minton are the prime candidates for the backfield slots.

During the first days of practice Nugent has switched sophomore Jerry Graham from tackle, Bob Feunsin, another end, to halback, and Terrell McGee, who will be playing it out with members of last year's top flight freshman squad

Tankers Win 2, Bow To SMU

The Florida State University Swimmers returned from their tour of Texas last week with two more wins and their fourth defeat in four years.

In the first meet of the trip the swimmers dunked Rice by a 56-30 score. Coach Bim Stults used most of his regulars in exhibition matches. all Rice could do was set two first places out of the 10 events.

Two days later the Seminoles got a taste of sweet revenge by upsetting Texas A&M 52-34, as they broke an Aggie 13 meet winning streak.

Last year the Texas men snapped a three year winning streak of the Seminoles here at Tallahassee. Fsu's Joel Jacobs set a pool record during the course of the meet by swimming the 220 yd. breaststroke in 2:32.

In the last meet of the tour the tankers lost to SMU by a score of 53-33. The mermen from Dallas started fast by winning the first relay and wound it up by taking the last.

There is a special battle for the starting guard positions but it seems to Nugent that Jerry Graham has the edge on the other for one of the guard posts. The only other experienced guard is Joe McGee, who is fighting it out with members of last year's top flight freshman squad

Romeo Fights Vets For Right End Slot

By BESS WELLER
Flambeau Football Specialist

Tony Romeo, 219 lb. lineman, is battling veteran Seminole gridders for a starting position at right end.

The 18-year-old freshman hails from Tampa, Fla., where he attended Hillsborough High School. While there he took part in the track program, but was most outstanding in football.

In his senior year he was named on the all-city, all-state, and high school all-American teams.

Offered a scholarship by Florida State, Tony accepted because "I like the campus so much."

FROSH STARTER

Romeo held down a starting slot throughout the frosh football season. Freshman head coach Paul Odom says, "We feel that Tony Romeo and John Spivey (another frosh former) are of the best end combinations we've ever seen for freshmen."

According to Coach Tom Nugent the 6-1 lineman is one of the leaders among those out for the right end position.

In the battle for the end position Romeo must beat out, Bob Nellums and Ham Bizzee and oldtex Coach Nugent says. "He's no cinch job, but Tony has an excellent chance".

Strong and quick, the frosh gridder is a good blocker and an excellent pass receiver.

Romeo's strongest point is his defensive play. Despite his potential abilities he must develop more speed in order to cope with the fast end position.

Nugent said that he may try Toss at fullback during spring practice but that it looks now as though he will remain at end.

A business major Romeo is undecided about the future. He hopes to play pro football after he grades and a career in coaching.

Tracksters In Ala. To Open Season

Track coach Mike Long will take 10 varsity members and five freshmen to the final Alabama Athletic Association meet tomorrow at Montgomery, Ala., to open the 1957 season for the tracksters.

Long has 13 lettermen returning altogether for a proposed 11-meet schedule which includes a home encounter with the University of Florida, the only team to beat the Seminoles in dual competition last season.

Heading the list of returnees is Jack Terwilliger, dash specialist and hush scorer for the Tribe last year. He will enter the 60 and 300-yard dashes and compete on the mile relay team.

The others who will compete for the varsity:

Tremer Brown, high hurdles and high jump. Lloyd Lassen, high jump Mike Conley, pole vault. Pete Praschett, half mile. Richard Elwood and Don Ayres, pole vault.

Besides Terwilliger, Charles Watson, Ken Seaney and Doyle Buff will run on the Tribe's mile relay team.

The only freshman competing in an individual event is Ted Kerr in the 60-yard dash. The frosh will enter a mile relay team composed of Claude Gerard, Tom Keeney, Emory Denmark and Charles Nye.

Gymnasts Seek Third Straight Against Pensacola Navy Here

Florida State's gymnasts go after their third straight win tomorrow afternoon when they face the Pensacola Naval Station at 2:30 p.m.

Last weekend the Seminoles free exercise champion Chick Cozio gained their third straight win by crushing Georgia Tech of Atlanta 75-37.

Bob Murray, Chick Cozio and Ron Amster combined for 49 points to lead the way over Tech.

The following match saw Florida State sweep first place in all seven events to win some 8 way from UTC.

Top man in scoring over the last three meets has been NAAU

THE GOVERNOR'S CUP. This cup will be awarded to the winner of the Florida State-Florida football game in 1958.

Just Two Troubles!

...sensus as it may sound, most of the Seminoles' basketball problems seem to stem from two rather ridiculous axioms of basketball games still last 40 minutes instead of 30, and [illegible] pretty hard for any team to score without having some of the ball.

Unfortunately for Bud Kennedy's sleep, the Seminole cagers have been 20-minute men most of the year. In the first half they have had all five, then poof!

The most recent example of their second half failure came last night against Florida Southern here when they took a [illegible] into the final 20 minutes then collapsed miserably. They were outscored 41-27 in the second half by the Moccasins who never [illegible] once the visitors pulled up even and into a [illegible] early in the half.

Their other difficulty seems to be that, do what they will, they are rarely outrebounded the other team in the second half; they rarely have the ball enough to outscore the opposition and they hit nearly every shot.

We noticed that after Southern took their final lead 59-55 with eight minutes remaining Monday, the Seminoles hardly got more than one shot at the basket from there on in. They didn't win many basketball games that way, as the Moccasins' 5-14 record amply points out.

In an effort to correct said rebounding difficulty, Kennedy and Bob Lastel, a 6-8 transfer from Arkansas who became eligible at mid-term, along on the recent road trip.

Lastel paid off immediately with 15 rebounds against Tampa. He had boared more than three more.

The Seminoles, it seems, don't win unless they hit better than 40 per cent of their shots, which is a pretty high percentage for any team.

Rarely do any of the outside men drive with the exception of Lastel, another strong reason why their success is still limited.

Add to this one toward next year's rebounding problems, with Bob Williams graduating, Kennedy had attempted to sign a 6-9 Kansas junior college boy, but couldn't lure him here.

The Seminoles still have a chance to tie the all-time loss record for the school, set in 1951-52 when they lost 20 of 25 games.

CIRCLING THE COURT

Wet year's basketball schedule is the most promising in the history of the school, with several major schools slated for [illegible]. Second Army, Florida, West Virginia and Auburn are tentatively slated at home, in addition to a return engagement with Auburn and the five FIBC opponents. . . . N. C. State will be in Raleigh again, and a game with Georgia Tech is on tap at Atlanta. . . . Kennedy is also planning to enter the Cincinnati Holidays tournament. . . . Mississippi State may be added to the schedule before it is completed. . . . 18 games are played at home, 10 on the road.

As we forecast before the season started, Florida Southern has the league team of the year, leading the conference by a 7-2 record. . . . The Mocs have knocked off Miami and Rollins on their last two conference appearances. . . . The two leading scorers incidentally are freshmen—Nick Lapolla and Joe Seigrist.

Intramural Footballers In Championship Tilt

Conformity Threatens America Says Lensen

A Florida State University historian expressed the fear Tuesday night that Americans are becoming conformists, much like people in Communist countries.

The conclusion was reached by Dr. George Lensen in opening the weekly lecture series of American Studies for the spring semester.

Dr. Lensen discussed individualism of Americans as a part of their heritage. He blamed mass education, mass communication and mass production of the last few decades for a great loss in the development of American tradition. More specifically, he blamed television for much of the loss.

Individualism is the source of America's greatness," the speaker said, but "it is being regulated to history."

In considering modern housing developments he said when dwellings are the same shape, people living in them are apt to assume the same shape.

Dr. Lensen has decided there has come to be an over emphasis on team-work" in American society. He said this over emphasis is carried over into sports where fraining and heroine are no longer as popular as they used to be.

Prof's Work To Be Premiered

Play Without A Name Set As Next Speech Project

By BOB SIMMONS

Writing a play is difficult, but selecting an appropriate title is even tougher, according to Dr. E. G. Bormann, FSU professor and author of the Speech Department's next production, "The Kingpin."

It took Dr. Bormann, who founded the department of speech last year, six years to complete his play, but he hasn't as yet found a permanent, suitable title.

Beginning the work when he was in the graduate school of the Rice University of Iowa, Dr. Bormann cast the first draft on a Faust legend. After that, a realistic and a supernatural draft were written.

The realistic writing was chosen for the Speech Department production to be presented March 13, 16, 18 and 19 under the title of "The Kingpin."

FIFTH TITLE

This is the fifth heading given to the play. Four titles have been discarded, and I've probably considered a couple hundred more," explained Dr. Bormann in rather resigned tones.

"None of them have been able to catch the essence of the play," he added.

"The Kingpin" is the story of a Southern politician who leads a revolt of the middle and lower classes against the vested interests of the state . . . with the struggle he loses his integrity," said Dr. Bormann.

"It is not necessarily about the South or Southern politicians."

Boardman Accepts Stevens Offer

Suspended FSU student John Boardman left campus this week to accept a graduate assistant position at Stevens Institute of Technology in Hoboken, New Jersey.

Boardman said he was accepting the offer to "continue my studies" at the institution. He was prevented from enrolling at Florida State University this semester for what Dean of Students R. R. Oglesby termed "direct violation of University regulations on five different counts."

The five counts were not specifically listed.

added Dr. Paul Davee, who was sitting in on the interview. "Anyone could find the same rather fundamental characteristics in many walks of life."

DEMAGOGUE

The play is an account of a man "who possesses the material for a potential statesman, but ends up a demagogue," Dr. Bormann commented.

Growing out of work with an experimental theatre group at the State University of Iowa, the play was given readings and walk-through performances at Iowa City and at the Eastern Illinois State College where Dr. Bormann was a member of the speech department, but the FSU production will be a modest premiere for "The Kingpin."

"To my knowledge, this is the first time that the Florida State University Speech Department has produced the original work of a full-time faculty member," said Dr. Davee.

OF UTMOST IMPORTANT

Providing an outlet for beginning playwrites is a "very important part" of the business of a department of this nature," asserted Dr. Davee, who counts "The Kingpin" as the 11th play he has produced in his three and a half years at FSU.

Selecting a cast, which is no easy task, according to Dr. Davee was not made easier by "The Kingpin." A cast had to be chosen that would "bring out the idea and emotional impact of the play," he said.

The main character had to reflect the "vindictiveness and ambition" which were the main faults of "The Kingpin," according to Dr. Bormann. All of the cast members had to contribute to the characterization to make the play effective as possible.

HONOR PLAY

The cast which was chosen for Dr. Bormann's three act play, voted an Honor Play in the Dramatists' Alliance at Stanford University last year, includes Don Wesibrook, Stan DeHart, Betty Caldwell, Ron McCall, Slava Kind, and Barry Lawa.

Others are: Dava Fiescher, Reese Ivory, Alan Kaas, Hank McCann, Jack Rockett, Phil Johnson, and Ronald Webb.

THIS AND THAT

(ACP)—Both of the following items were included in the Old Mane column of the Gustavian Weekly, published at Gustavus Adolphus College in St. Peter, Minnesota. With reference to the first one we might say: Don't let it give you any ideas!

The meek and mild pledges of a certain campus sorority should be thoroughly chastised for creating an irreparable scar in fraternity relations. The damage occurred at a Rushing Tea meeting of the sorority, its pledges and the brother fraternity. The pledges served the fraternity members cupcakes which had secretly been covered with a well-known chocolate-flavored cathartic. The catharsis was a bit too complete for some of the boys who had exactly devoured four of the loaded cupcakes. It certainly is a relief to have intission week over!

From the Gustavian Weekly:

We are fortunate at Gustavus to live in an atmosphere of liberal academic freedom. The best example of this is the fact that Reverend Rahjerman has a ball-point pen with the inscription "Compliments of Dean's Bar."

and Melvin Peters finished the season with the affirmative side going PSU second place on the overall combined record.

Linda Arnow was rated best individual debator on the negative side in the entire tournament. Two teams had identical records of four wins and one loss.

At the Gulf States Speech Festival at Mississippi Southern College in Lexington, Brett and Peters won three out of four debates on the negative side and were rated "superior."

Patsy Baird and Ruby Cone, affirmative team, also participated. Francie Anna was rated superior in competitive radio speaking.

FSU will be host to 16 colleges throughout the southeast February 22-25 at an invitational tournament.

Other debate tournaments this semester will include the Arnold Tournament at Miami, Feb. 27-28 to March 2 which is held in conjunction with Mardi Gras weekend and the International Debate with England here March 8.

Fred Roberts and Arnold Green field will participate against the English debators on the topic "That Imperialism Is Compatible With Democracy."

Veterans Club Elects Roberts

Dayton Roberts was elected president of the Veterans Club at a recent meeting.

Others named were Gene Simmons, vice-president; Emmett Reynolds, secretary - treasurer; John Deal, publicity director, Marge Wells and Step Kamilar, program chairmen.

Next meeting will be held tonight at 8:15 p.m. in the Student Center trophy room.

Despite Weather, It's Spring: Sorority Rushing Has Begun

Although the weather doesn't show it, it's Spring semester of school, and time for Spring Rush for the social sororities.

Two days of parties are scheduled for Saturday and Sunday this go-round. Sororities will have three parties the first day and two the second, as a general rule.

Monday is, of course, dead day and bids are picked up Tuesday afternoon. Pledging takes place after five. No doubt, there'll be some weary sorority girls and many aching feet among the rushees before Tuesday rolls around.

BELIEVING IN THE good neighbor polley, the Alpha Delta Pi's and the Chi Omegas got together for their annual supper party last week-end. The party was held in the recreation room of the ADPi house. Afterwards, the guests were entertained with a skit. Later in the evening, several fraternities were serenaded by the two sororities.

Spring and summer are seasons for romance and marriages—and the FSU campus has its share. Carryl Beal, Pat Pellicer, Judy Rogers, Marion Ard, Helen Dwaila, and Tish Tamhorino were honorees at a bridal shower and dinner given by Delta Gamma. They were presented with the best wishes of the DG's and silver ashtrays to remind them of their school days.

The Delta Gamma house was recently the theatre for the newest chorus line on campus. The chorus—of DG's, naturally—was part of the entertainment on the program when Delta Gamma played host to the Pi Kappa Phi's.

Sorority and fraternity week-ends follow the beginning of Spring semester closely. The first on this year's list was the Alpha Chi Omega week-end, held last week. The parties began with a box-supper and square-dance Friday evening. After prizes were given for the best decorated box, everyone settled down to an evening of eating and dancing.

A luncheon Saturday proceeded the annual Alpha Chi Carnation Ball which was to be held that evening. The ball was held at the new house which had been decorated with red carnations and silver stars.

The main attraction of the evening was the official presentation of the new president, Ada Leigh Wall, and all of the members and their dates. Each girl took a fresh carnation from the white archway, which was the feature decoration of the evening, and pinned it on her date's lapel.

Sunday, after attending church together, the girls concluded the week-end with a buffet dinner at their house.

Five finalists will vie for the "Rose of Pi Kappa Phi" title. Betsy Orey, Dosce O'Neil, Linda Bean, Lorie Waibel, and Ruth Shuman are in the running.

The winner will reign over the Pi Kappa Rose Ball at the Tallahassee Chuotry Club Saturday night. The fraternity is celebrating the founding of its chapter house at FSU during the annual week-end.

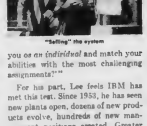
"What's it like to be

A MANUFACTURING ENGINEER AT IBM?"

Four years ago, Yale senior Lee Baker asked himself this question. Today, as a Product Control Engineer in IBM Manufacturing Engineering, Lee reviews his experience and gives some pointers that may be helpful to you in taking the first, most important step in your engineering career.

"It's tough," Lee sympathizes, "for college senior to feel confident about choosing a job. For four years he's been trained to be critical and dubious about making decisions. Now, faced with the biggest decision of all, he has only a few months in which to ...ound job interviews, separate the facts from the propaganda, and select a company—not to mention passing exams and graduating at the same time."

Lee, with a B.S. in Industrial Administration, came to IBM in 1953. Starting as a Technical Engineer in Production Control, he was immediately assigned to the General Manufacturing Education program—a



Designing a paperwork system

16-month course with rotating assignments in all phases of the work —manufacturing, purchasing, production. In addition to four weeks of formal classroom study, he also spent time in the Boston Sales Office, calling on accounts with the IBM salesmen.

Lee's career was temporarily interrupted by a two-year hitch with the Air Force in Korea. Back at IBM in 1956, he has since been promoted to Production Control Engineer. His present job is to design paperwork systems to insure maximum flow of work through the plant where the famous IBM electronic computers are manufactured. "It takes creative engineering ability to design these systems," says Lee, "and it takes administrative ability to 'sell' a system to higher management and make it stick."

How to select an employer

To the college senior faced with a job decision, Lee has this to say: "Pick your employer by this simple test: 'Is the company expanding fast enough to provide adequate scope for your talents and ambitions?' Is it interested in your long-range management development? Will it treat

"Selling" the system

you as an individual and match your abilities with the most challenging assignments?"

For his part, Lee feels IBM has met this test. Since 1953, he has seen new plants open, dozens of new products evolve, hundreds of new management positions created. Greater authority, responsibility and reward have come his way. And he knows they will continue, for IBM sales have been doubling on the average every five years since 1930. He likes the "small-team" engineering system that assures ready recognition of individual merit. And he appreciates the fact that IBM hired him despite his impending service hitch.

Recognition of individual merit

What's "life" like at IBM?

At IBM, Poughkeepsie, Lee lives a "full life." He belongs to a local sports car group, drives an Austin Healy. He skis at Bromley. He is a member of the IBM Footlighters and a local drama workshop. At present, he shares an apartment with two other engineers and a "medium-fi" set, but plans to marry "the girl next door" on hometown Hamburg, Conn., in the very near future. In this connection, Lee also takes some to pay special attention to company benefits. "They may seem like a yawning matter when you're single, but they mean a lot when you assume responsibilities. IBM's are the best I know."

Lee lives a full life

IBM hopes that this message will help to give you some idea of what it's like to work in Manufacturing Engineering at IBM. There are equal opportunities for E.E.'s, M.E.'s, physicists, mathematicians and Liberal Arts majors in IBM's many divisions—Research, Product Development, Sales and Technical Services. Why not drop in and discuss IBM with your Placement Director? He can supply our latest brochure and tell you when IBM will next interview on your campus. Meanwhile, our Manager of Engineering Recruitment, Mr. R. A. Whitehorne, will be happy to answer your questions. Just write him at IBM, Room 9091, 590 Madison Avenue, New York 22, N. Y.

Free polio vaccine is going begging according to Dr. H. G. Mathaway, chief physician of the FSU Hospital.

Only 150 students have taken advantage of the unlimited supply of vaccine which is available through the state.

"The polio season is fast approaching," warned Dr. Mathaway. "Students should take advantage of the available vaccine."

Students under 19 may receive the shots free, while those over this age must pay $1 per shot. All students under 21, though, must have their parents' written permission.

The vaccine is given in three shots, the second is given one month after the first, while the third comes seven months later. The first two shots alone, however, are sufficient protection for the next summer, Dr. Mathaway said.

especially those of you who plan to make your career in business, or selling.

This semester you can earn a ten per cent commission selling advertising for the Flambeau. With several accounts, it would be possible to earn a handy sum of money every week. The work is pleasant and the experience is invaluable, especially in Advertising, Business, and Journalism majors. The only requirements are that you give your accounts dependable service and that you have a genuine interest in your work. THE DRESS PARADE

What will the American college student wear this spring? Gather round, you rascals, and light a good Philip Morris cigarette, and fill your lungs with fragrant tobacco, and possess your souls in sweet content, and listen.

As we know, college fashions have always been casual. This spring, however, they have become makeshift.

The object is to look madly improvised, gaily spur-of-the-moment. For example, a dress try a peasant skirt with a dinner jacket. Or matador pants with a bridal veil. Or Bermuda shorts with bronze breastplates. Be rakish! Be impromptu! Be devil-take-the-hindmost!

And, men, you be the same. Try an opera cape with sweat pants. Or a letter-sweater with kilts. Or a straitjacket with hip boots. Be bold! Be daring! Be a tourist attraction!

Rock and Cull's Gimme Cap & The Minuet

But all is not innovation in college fashions this spring. In fact, one of the highlights of the season turns time backward in its flight. I refer to the comeback of the powdered wig.

This charming accoutrement, too long neglected, has already caught on with wide-awake students all over the country. On hundreds of campuses rock-and-roll is giving way to the minuet, and patriotic undergraduates are dumping British tea into the nearest harbor. This, of course, does not sit well with old King George. For that matter, a lot of our own people are steamed up too, and there have even been some talk of revolution. But I hardly think it will come to that. I mean, how can we break with the mother country when we are dependent on her for our turkeys, Philip Morris, contraceptive, and other valuable exports. So I say, if Molly Pitcher and those other Bryn Mawr hotheads will calm down, we may yet find an amicable solution for our differences. But let not our British cousins mistake this willingness in negotiate for weakness. If fight we must, then fight we will! Paul Revere is saddling up, the rude bridge arches the flood, and the ROTC is ready!

But I digress. We were smoking a Philip Morris Cigarette—O, darlin' cigarette! O, happy smoke! O, firm! O, fresh! O, fragrant! O, long-size! O, regular! O, get some!—and talking of new spring fashions, let us turn now to the season's most striking new feature: purposely underdressed shoes. These inflatable rubber garments make every chair an easy chair. Think how welcome they will be when you sit through a long lecture! They are not, however, without certain disadvantages. Last week, for example, Rimbaud Sigafoos, a University of Pittsburgh sophomore, fell out of an 18th story window in the Tower of Learning. Thanks to his pneumatic underdrawers, he suffered no injury when he struck the sidewalk, but the poor fellow is still bouncing and it is feared that he will starve to death.

Third Annual Fashion Day Slates Margaret DeMille

By RUTH FRITCHIE

New York fashion authorities on modern merchandising, dress and fabric designing and retail careers for college students will be on campus next Thursday as speakers on the Third Annual Fashion Day program.

It is planned as a red letter day on campus for all students and faculty interested in the various phases of fashion.

Sponsored by the university's Fashion Institute, a full day of morning and afternoon programs, beginning at 9 a.m. in Longmire Auditorium, will be free and open to all students.

Margaret DeMille, fashion director at Bloomingdale's, will make the opening address on "Fashion Coordination in Modern Merchandising." She is the niece of Cecil B. DeMille, Hollywood producer.

Miss DeMille served in the Office of Price Administration during the World War II years as the unit chief of the women's and children's accessories price division. At present she is a member of the faculty of the school of retailing, New York University, chairman of the ready-to-wear committee of the Fashion Group, and has served two years as a governor of the Fashion Group.

Other speakers for the day will include Fredric Karoly, fabric designer and president of Perspectives, Inc., and Robert J. Doolan, personnel director of Allied Stores Corp.

A native of Hungary, Karoly studied architectural engineering in Berlin and painting in Paris under Ernst Kropp, a pioneer of functionalism. Karoly is president of Perspectives Inc., a style design workshop in New York City.

Its purpose is to bring painters and sculptors into the textile field, thus giving artists a source of income, and giving a lift to textile design. He spoke on "The Work of the Fabric Designer."

Doolan has made his career in personnel and labor relations work. He will speak on "Retail Careers for College Students" at the 11:15 a.m. session.

A highlight will be the luncheon scheduled at 12:15 in the Suwannee Room when Carolyn Schnurer, an eminent dress and fabric designer, will speak. FSU students in clothing and design will put on a fashion show modeling clothes designed and made in clothing and textiles classes. Reservations for the luncheon close Monday at 4 p.m. Tickets are available at Westcott Ticket Office at $1.25 each.

The afternoon session will consist of special interest group meetings in Longmire Building. Topics of the meetings will include costume design, fabric design, fashion merchandising, and retailing.

Climax of Fashion Day will be the reception at the Fashion Art Gallery beginning at 4:15 p.m. Karoly will be one of the guests of honor at this open social dress and drapery designs. Two of the fabrics to be exhibited, a black and white called "Counter Point" and a flamboyant orange and yellow on white called "Discus" were designed by Karoly.

The Sigma Kappa team took top honors in the preliminaries for next month's Sophomore Class-sponsored bicycle race, with a record 2:45.2 in the one-mile qualification trial.

The leading squad consisted of Wynn May, Richard Fowler, Frank Kirchenbauer, Bert Bibbo.

Phi Kappa Tau placed second among the 20 teams with a 2:50.3 and the West Hall Rebels third, seven and two-tenths seconds slower.

Bob Carter, one of Sigma Chi's four riders, established a one-lap record of 37 seconds for 44c yards.

Other teams who won starting places in the March 16 "Little 500" during the weekend time trials were Delta Delta Delta, West Hall Penthouse, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Kappa Alpha, Delta Tau Delta, Kappa Alpha Theta, Theta Chi, Senior Hall, Lambda Chi Alpha, Sigma Chi, Zeta Tau Alpha, Kappa Sigma, Phi Mu, West Hall Playboys, Phi Delta Theta, Pi Beta Phi, and Sigma Nu. List with a 3:16.8

Eleven teams were eliminated.

According to Sophomore Class President Bill Clendaniel, the qualification laps were eliminated in several occasions, notably when Sigma Chi's bicycle handlebar broke in two on the final lap of their first attempt to qualify, and when a bad exchange forced a rebider to chase the riderless bike for 20 yards down the track

Vance To Ask 'Reasons' For Impending Dismissal

Board Of Control Says Case Not On Agenda For Thursday

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Earl Vance, Journalism professor who faces dismissal after 29 years on the faculty, said this week he intends to ask the Board of Control to order that President Doak S. Campbell furnish him "specific" reasons for the impending action.

Vance said his attorney, A. Dallas Ackerman of Tampa, an FSU graduate, will also ask the Board to schedule a hearing for him.

An executive employee of the Board said yesterday, however, that the Vance case is not on the agenda for the Thursday meeting of the Board here. It is probably too late for Albritton to have the matter added to the agenda, he said.

ASKS CHARGES

Vance issued a public statement last month in which he said President Campbell had written him to the effect he would seek his dismissal, based on "failure to cooperate with and exhibiting an attitude of antagonism to the program of the Dean of the School of Journalism."

Vance headed the department of Journalism until 1949. Dr. Lawrence Campbell, no relation to the president, was made Dean in 1950. Vance has not taught a class in three years, and was told, he said, to do research.

COMMENT DECLINED

University officials have declined comment on Vance's public statements, except to declare that he should have taken the matter up to the Faculty Committee on Professional Relations and Standards.

"I am not saying anything for quotation, because I believe there's an academic way to go about this," said Dean Campbell, who acknowledged that he had refused to mediate Vance in the Journalism teaching faculty.

Dr. Marion Blake, chairman of the faculty committee, said it is empowered by the university constitution to hear the cases of faculty members brought up for dismissal and file recommendations directly to the Board of Control.

She said Vance has indicated he wishes the committee to hear the controversy.

"I regret that Mr. Vance has seen fit to proceed unilaterally in the press with his own bearing of the matter rather than to proceed through established channels." President Campbell told reporters last month.

ASKS CHARGES

Vance, however, insists he cannot go before a faculty hearing unless he knows "specific" charges against him.

The professor, who admits a difference of viewpoint between he and the journalism dean on liberal versus specialized training in journalism, said he had made "every honorable effort to assist in amicable adjustments."

He said the case is unusual him is only "a slightly perfumed version of what is called in totalitarian countries 'deviationism'."

In an interview with the Florida Flambeau, Vance denied that his differences of viewpoint had interfered with his willingness to teach.

He said however, that in 1953 he was told by the then dean he was assigned to him were not likely to have much enrollment and questioned the necessity of their being offered. He taught them anyhow, Vance said, but presented a brief directly to the Board of Control which called the matter back to the university as an "administrative" problem.

NO COURSES

He was not given any courses to teach by the 1954 session and was moved into an office apart from the journalism building.

Vance said he never counseled any students against the program of the School of Journalism but repeatedly indicated "willingness" to teach.

He said he learned from copies of correspondence forwarded to him by the President that the journalism dean has accused him of willingness to teach only "hacks" courses and failure to do research assigned to him.

"If these are the specific charges I am not putting them [illegible] President and his staff to a great [illegible] as to put them on paper," Vance asserted.

'Purple Shaft' Awarded Cadet

Here's a rumor that can't miss a niche in college legend.

One proud news-conscious mother of a Georgia Tech student took her son's letter to heart when he wrote home that he "got the purple shaft" on an ROTC exam.

She rushed the information to the home town newspaper, where it was printed: "John Blank, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Blank, was given the Purple Shaft Award in Reserve Officer Training at Georgia Technological Institute where he is a student . . ."

Names, of course, were changed to protect the innocent mother and the innocent victim — Bob Simmons

Theatre Dance Tickets Ready; Event Feb. 28

President Lucille Turnage said tickets will be available free of charge to students in exchange for activity coupon 13. Non-students will be charged 50 cents each.

Rogers To Tell Policy 'Failures'

Dr. Benjamin F. Rogers, associate professor of history, will speak tomorrow on "The Failure of American Foreign Policy" in a talk sponsored by Phi Alpha Theta, national history honorary.

The talk to be free and open to the public, will begin at 8 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall.

"We expect the talk to be very provocative," said Phi Alpha Tau president Dick Lucas. "It should stimulate quite a bit of discussion." A question and answer session is scheduled to follow Dr. Rogers' talk, Lucas said.

The honorary sponsors three or four such talks each year as projects. Dr. Victor S. Mamatey spoke in December on "Woodrow Wilson—Idealist and Realist" in the first PAT project of the current term.

Dr. Rogers received his A. B. and M. A. degrees from Harvard, and his Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota in 1953, where he taught from 1947 to 1950. He joined the Florida State University faculty in 1950.

During World War II he was a naval aviator in the South Pacific.

Half of the meeting will be devoted to a group discussion of Dr. Miller's subject, Nesbitt said.

Philosophy Club meetings are open to any student and both coming topics are decided upon by those who attend, he added.

Writing On Walls

Race Writers Cause FSU Police Alert

Campus police have been ordered to maintain a special night watch for persons painting "Race Relations in advance," on the walls of buildings.

The order, signed by R. K. Shaw, business manager, said, "Someone has been putting signs with chalk under the buildings, and with ink or black paint on the outside of buildings and even on the door to Dr. Campbell's office.

This, of course," the memo continued, "is done at night.

"Please watch all buildings carefully and make every effort to catch those who damage the buildings in this way."

The dean told police to file reports both to Shaw's office and the dean of men's office.

Dean of Students R. R. Ogles-by told the Flambeau he didn't think the epidemic of sign-painting had reached alarming proportions but conceded that persons damaging buildings whatever their cause would "naturally face "some discipline."

Flambeau's Integration Support: Just How Radical Has It Been

Just how radical is the Flambeau?

That is a question which seems to have been getting considerable attention as of late, so we here offer some figures on the amount and type of editorial coverage we have given to the integration problem.

Excluding today's edition, the Flambeau has so far this year printed 66 editorials, of which ten were concerned with segregation. Put differently, the paper commented editorially on segregation in ten of its 30 issues.

Here is a rundown of what the editorials were about:

1. Asked that troublemakers such as segregationist John Kasper quit coming down from the North, and other places outside of Southern communities, and stirring up violence. This, by the way, would be to allow the towns and cities of the South to support the U. S. Constitution unhindered by pressure from outside agitators.

2- Asked that Governor LeRoy Collins "put his political influence and power" to use against the firing of a Florida county health officer who had a business luncheon with a Negro.

3- Reprinted an editorial from the Los Angeles Coliseian pointing out that integration is no problem there.

4- Said that the people who removed a Negro from a jail in Wildwood, Florida, created a "crime against society."

5- Defended a county health education office at the request of its head after he had had lunch with a Negro.

6- Said that a mob which attacked and injured a Clinton, Tennessee minister who accompanied Negro students to school betrayed a cravin for "cold mob supremacy." It asked that Southerners show no more such violations of the "principles of justice and citizenship."

7- Said construction of a Florida A & M football stadium separate from the Florida State University stadium would be a "waste" of taxpayers' money.

8- Said that the firing of baseball player Jackie Robinson was an unjustified act.

9- Interpreted Governor Collins' unusual address as favoring integration. It expressed hope that the Governor will follow such a viewpoint when the chips are down."

10- Asked that students discuss segregation and integration calmly so that there will be no violence.

Because of the fact the Flambeau has devoted much, much less than one sixth of its editorial space to the topic, and has commented only in the manner outlined above, it seems incorrect to describe its stand as "radical".

Another harping point of Flambeau critics (though as have had few written complaints) is that it is unfair in its replies to letters to the editor. Here are some more figures:

Nineteen letters concerning segregation have been printed, excluding those in this issue. Ten supported our stand. Nine opposed it. The Flambeau replied to six of the nine letters favoring its stand. It replied to eight of the nine letters opposing it.

Of the eight replies in the latter instance, four could be described as "curt," and did not attempt to rationally answer the letters. The remaining four tried to point out flaws in the authors' reasoning.

There have been no "curt" replies since the issue of January 18, it might be pointed out that the Flambeau has printed ALL letters it has received this year with the exception of one letter, favoring integration, which we felt to be obscene.

All figures cited above are open to criticism if any student cares to assert that they are erroneous. We are prepared to defend them as accurate.

The essence of the Flambeau's attitude in printing letters to the editor is to be found in a reply to one of the letters on this page. Regarding "Curt" replies, in the four instances in which they were used, the Flambeau did not feel that the authors had made any attempt at logical analysis of the topic and thus their letters did not deserve rational comment.

We hope that this, at least to some extent, makes clear the record of this newspaper in its support of integration. Remember that the Flambeau has overemphasized, or has too strongly favored, integration. Are themselves exaggerated.

"Man, You Must Be Out Of Your Mind"

Paper Should Follow Canons Of Journalism

TO THE EDITOR:

Being a former staff member of the Flambeau I cannot but be dismayed and upset when I hear voters on campus raised against the paper. This is particularly so when I remember the Flambeau won the All American Award for bi-weekly college newspapers last year.

THE QUESTION on hand is the statement that a college newspaper should reflect the view of the students and faculty, may I see no right in it. It is the opinion of many, including myself, this has not been the case.

I am glad to note that the Flambeau's editorial page has been crusading for liberation. This of late is fine and good, however, let there be a letter expressing a view against this stand, the writer is pigeonholed Squish a Server to the editor will stand on it and on it it has any merit? Otherwise it will fall flat on its face or possibly be given the back seat of some opinionmative empire.

THE CANONS OF Journalism state in part that a newspaper is free from all dictation, but still pledges to the public interest it wills. It also states that while personalities in editorial comment, if it knowingly, departs from the truth it does injury to the best spirit of American journalism.

In Friday's issue (18 Feb 57) of the Flambeau the editors question whether the writer of a letter to the Jacksonville Journal was Negro at column. The question was because the writer was pro-segregation. Does the Flambeau know the race of the letter? Why was it necessary to answer the letter and in so doing the writer? Were you in favor reexamination with financial interest in the matter? Are you not parts to back up this accusation?

THE BOARD OF CONTROLS of student publications should not step out in a Flambeau issue of last year the majority of the students at the University of Florida to Florida State favored integration. It also pointed out that this majority was divided on how to bring about the integration some favored immediate integration while others favored gradual progression.

The current Flambeau staff has apparently taken this majority decision as a mandate for immediate integration. They apparently have forgotten the ad-

Maroon 'Gag Issue' Never Really Burned—

Joke On Somebody, But Nobody Knows Who

Students who read of the "burning" of the "gag issue" of the Chicago Maroon may be pleased to hear that the administration never did destroy the issue.

The "SEIZE MAROON GAG ISSUE" emblazoned splash edition of the Maroon pictured on the editorial page of Friday's Flambeau (which the editorial assumed to be a special edition) was, itself, the "gag issue."

Not entirely taken in by the hoax, however, the Flambeau copied a small announcement buried on the inside of the Maroon which stated that the Maroon "is pleased to announce that you are now reading its annual gag issue. Our announcement to the same effect was carried on the Flambeau masthead at the bottom of page two.

The Flambeau announcement is carried again this issue for purposes of illustration, if you care to check it.

Evidently, the purpose of the Maroon splash issue was to make other editors comment, in their resulting shame. Purpose of the Flambeau editorial, with its announcement buried in the same place as the Maroon a, was to out-hoax the Maroon's hoax—which will have happened if the Maroon comments on our editorial.

Where this subtle bit of editorial intrigue will end, we do not know. But it is difficult to foresee how it can be carried much further than this editorial.

We hope we've heard the last of it.

Majority-Minority 'Rule' Question Avoids Major Issue Involved

The question of majority vs minority "rule" has been thrown about quite a bit in the past several years, but few seem to question the assumption that one or the other necessarily must "rule" the other.

Actually, the basis of government is cooperation. A group which at one time may be the "majority" on some issue makes certain concessions to the "minority" in order to "get along with itself, on another issue. This it must make some sacrifice where the majority in order that its rights be protected if it becomes a minority.

A "minority" on a given issue, in turn, must make concessions to the majority. In the United States, the minority concedes its wishes to the majority decision.

The concession of the majority is to exercise its power of making decisions on the matter at hand, not abridge certain rights of the minority. In this sense, again, the inherent rights of the minority are spelled out in the contract—the Constitution—that the original majority and minority agreed to adopt.

Thus, in the United States, the majority (whether it be two thirds, numerical majority or plurality) should reign—but only when it does not violate terms of the contract.

Viewed in this way, our government is recognized as a form of co-operation. Neither the "majority" nor the minority" owns the "ruling." Each makes concessions and each has an obligation to the other.

Cries of "minority rule" in reference to such things as the desire of Negroes for integration measures, defenses of freedom of speech, and attempts to secure civil rights legislation, generally ignore the fact that the minorities involved may merely be trying to secure their rights under the Constitution.

Real rule by minority should not be tolerated—but the majority must recognize and protect minority rights.

Spotty Found Truth In Phillipine Isles

By JIM McNTYRE

You don't meet a guy like Spotty very often. There just aren't many of his kind around.

And it's too bad. The world would probably be a much better place to live in if there were more who tried to live what they believe.

Spotty not only tries, he does it.

His full name is Curran L. Spottswood, Jr., and he makes his home in the Philippine Islands. He is a missionary.

When one thinks of a missionary, he immediately confures up a mental image of a pale and haggard social misfit, who finds little solace in civilization and turned to saving a Bible at island natives as a relief for an inferiority complex. Fortunately, this not true of most of these men and women.

WITH SPOTTY, nothing could be further from the truth. He is tall and rugged looking with the sun-burned countenance of an outdoorsman. His build is sturdy and athletic, giving one the feeling that this man is either a boxer or a football player. In his younger days he was both.

Spotty was raised in the Delta region of north-west Mississippi. He attended Mississippi State College because he was interested in football. He played football there and took a bachelor's degree with a good scholastic average. He still didn't really know what he wanted to do, but decided to wait and see what turned up. It was a thing he never seriously did turn up.

THE YALE UNIVERSITY Divinity School was starting a new program in Religious Education. They knew of Spotty's interest in religion and offered him a partial scholarship to attend Yale and participate in this program.

Spotty packed up and was off for New Haven. He enjoyed the education he was getting, but found it a little tough to make ends meet on his scholarship allotment. He looked for a job that he could supply and found it in the squared circle. He began boxing in club fights in the New Haven area and had soon branched into the more lucrative ring in the New England area. He was billed at each event as "The Fighting Parson."

ANN STEVE, Yale graduate, had been the story of his life. Spotty married a Gainesville, Florida, girl and took a small pastorate in Tampa. Simultaneously, he applied for foreign missionary duty and there found his destiny.

So for quite a few years now Spotty, his wife, and their five sons have been resident of the Philippine Islands. The children have been hard. They have been shot at by Communist Guerrillas, bombed by Japanese aircraft and have had to retreat to safety from the wreckage of three airplanes. Still they stay in the islands, making regular tours into the jungles with medical supplies and for the natives.

SPOTTY WILL BE here as one of the speakers during the forthcoming Institute Faith Week. He is a welcome relief from the heretofore inadequate offering of resource personnel for this week. Find out what he is speaking on and listen to him even if you won't be filled with theology and philosophy, but will tell of fellowship and the conquering of it.

When you hear him you will ask as I have, "Why should a man with so much to offer waste his life in this way?"

Then ask a brother it is Spotty or us who is wasting a life

Comics On Page 12— New Trend Is Seen

By OSCAR JOHNSON

The newspaper racket is a funny game, and we who are in it take delight in observing its humorous aspects.

For some time now we have been pursuing over a particular odd quirk of newspaperdom, one which seems to have become a trend. For several years now ads and advertisements have been getting funnier and funnier, while the funnies have been getting more and more serious.

LOOK AT SOME of the recent newsworthy items:

-Item: National leaders are into an old fashioned harangue as to whether the United States is going to the dogs, finance wise. Conclusion—There are a few "amuligans" on the government payroll.

-Item: Joe McCarthy resumes his battle to save America from the communists. He'll question Supreme Court Justice Brennan on the latter's attitude toward communism. The reason—Brennan once called McCarthy's investigations "Witch Hunts."

-Item: A tiny smear of lipstick on the face of the Duke of Edinburgh has ended the honeymoon world trip of the Royal Rift of Buckingham would cause an international crisis.

Or look at some of the ads and comments:

-Item: somebody advertises white paper in a full page spread in the local daily paper. In it Georgia congressman James C. Davis gives us the low down on "The Washington, D. C. Integration Story".

-Item: New kind of soap comes out, and its makers proudly inform the public that now no one will be really clean for the first time in their life.

THERE ARE MORE such amusing advertisements, but how about the comic strips—are they still funny? Well, take Little Orphan Annie as an illustration of one answer.

-Item: Daddy Warbucks has attacked the income tax. Plotting herself in company with such persons as former Governor Dewey, Orphan Annie and her friends rail against the government's taxing of the higher financial groups. "That's fair!"

-ITEM: THIS PAST Sunday the orphan got in a few licks against Social Security, and the socialist evils are evidently feels should be abolished.

That's enough for the point—there has been a curious reversal of the roles of news and comics in newspapers. Where it used to be, nobody can guess.

IT'S LIKELY, THOUGH, that the papers will have to print funnier and funnier news in an effort to get people to keep up with the comics. Or else nobody reads anything. And if that's more than we have to fume about, we'll have to hire comical strip artists to put across their editorial message in a way that will get it read.

Maybe eventually they'll do away with such things as headlines and stories on the front page. Instead, we'll have The Duke and the boys performing their antics in the comic strips. There's only one trouble: how can you act, say, a State of the Union message into a cartoon balloon?

OH WELL, THERE'S at least one improvement. They'll print the news strips in color. That should make it more interesting. Communists printed in red ink, all Democrats with blue five o'clock shadow, etc.

Negroes' Goal Is Amalgamation

LETTERS to the EDITOR

To The Editor:

Two items appeared in the Tallahassee Democrat's editorial columns on February 13: In New York City, where there is the legal segregation there has been a mutual separation which left many schools with colored but Negro pupils because only Negroes live in the area surrounding them.

In quite several there have been only white pupils.

The NAACP has not been content to have children going to their neighborhood schools but going to where there is a mixing of the races.

It has not on a political basis done New York City has embarked on a program of deliberately moving up of children in the schools, even when it has to bus them by bus from school district to another further from their homes.

It is planning to retain teachers too.

The Wall Street Journal reports that this business is partly responsible for a 8 million increase in school funds requested.

My comment: I believe we're being stampeded into a dubious program. We have inconvertible evidence of a large number of white children withdrawing from schools where Negroes are brought in from outside. Many New York schools are 100 per cent colored within two years after Negro families are introduced.

The hard truth is that we can't have a full scale integration until both Negroes and whites are really ready for it.

This application of the Brookiyn school principle not a "Southern politician.

The most effective person who doesn't believe the Negro and white should be educated and is against amalgamation to read "Ebony" for himself.

CHARLES MAYO

Editor's Note: We have an axe of knowing whether this part of the Democrat's editorial adequately states its position. In addition, we do not know whether Ebony speaks the viewpoint of the majority of Negroes.

We're At War Again!

The second contest in the 1956-57 FSU-Florida warfare is on deck when the swimming teams of the two schools meet this week in the women's gym.

The Gators held a 1-0 edge in this season's rivalry, having defeated the Seminole basketballers 67-65 at Gainesville in December.

The Gainesville boys won last year's rivalry, beating the Seminole frosh five times in eight dual meetings, including varsity and frosh affiliations.

The Gators took both tennis matches, the baseball game, one track meet and a track meet while the Tribe won both golf games and one swimming meet.

This year, the two schools meet twice in swimming, twice in golf, both here; once in track there; and twice in both golf and tennis, in addition to the baseball game already played.

Today's meet, Tribe swimming coach Stan Stults admits, the Seminoles have a major task to downing the Gator tankers, who last smapped 66-18 here last year and lost to 43-41 in Gainesville.

One of the big reasons for Stults' apprehension will undoubtedly be four Gator tankers who were not on the team last year and who figure highly this season in Florida's 5-0 mark.

The biggest of these is of course butterfly-breaststroke specialist Pete Drake, a former world's record holder in the 200 yard butterfly.

A transfer from the University of North Carolina, Drake competed in several freshman meets for the Gators last year and won Florida AAU breaststroke competition.

This season, he already has bettered the Southeastern Conference butterfly record.

Two of the reasons for Stults' worries are divers, a department in which the Seminoles are particularly weak since the departure of Byron Rhodes who was drafted.

The outstanding Gator divers are Chuck Martin a transfer from Michigan State and Bob Wood, a service reinmee who swam for the Gators' 1952-53 Southeastern Conference championship team.

The other newcomer to the Gators squad who Stults figures figure prominently in point scoring is sprinter Dick Ryan, who did not compete last year.

On the Seminoles' side of things, Stults is looking to the Tribe's top form of distance specialist Graham Treschke, who has been hobbered for some time with a lung infection.

The infection first showed up shortly after the Emory meet, and as a result he did not swim against Georgia Tech. Treschke joined the team on the recent Texas trip but as Stults says "not up to par."

The loss of Rhodes to the draft will surely cost us points in diving, Stults admits. "As of now, we have just one diver, Jim Carr in Justice."

Though aren't all gloomy in the diving department for next year though as Stults has an outstanding frosh on hand in Bob Bailey, a high school all-American.

However, those of us who remember Stults' apprehension over this time last year when the Gators arrived here for the meet, are liable to discount it and make the Seminoles favorites to swallow.

Story was that with only six or seven boys eligible for the meet the Tribe swimmers were supposed to have their hands full with the Gators with their extra depth.

Result a 66-18 swamp for FSU. With this in mind, we're guessing a Seminole triumph.

Swimmers Meet Gators Today

Contest At 4:30 In Women's Gym

By TOM HALE
Flambeau Sports Writer

The University of Florida and Florida State University resume their intrastate rivalry this afternoon as they square off in a dual swimming meet at 4:30 in the Women's Gym.

This will mark the third contest between the two swimming teams. The first match on 14 year ago and won by FSU by a score of 66-18 was the first regular scheduled athletic event between the two universities. In the second match the Gators took a close 43-41 decision in Gainesville.

So far this year the Seminoles have won five decisions and lost two while Florida has gone undefeated in five matches.

Sparking the Gator team will be former butterfly world record holder Phil Drake, a transfer from North Carolina, who has been turning in good times against every team Florida has met.

Last Saturday Drake bettered by more than four seconds the 4-year-old SEC record in the butterfly. His time was 2:20.2.

Another Gator to watch will be Bill Rugge, a backstroke specialist who set a new SEC record in his event Saturday in the time of 2:20.4. The FSU school record is 2:17.8 set by George Cooper back in 1954.

The Florida 400-yd. medley relay team also set an all-time SEC best performance mark of 4:08.3 Saturday, topping their own record set a week ago against Georgia Tech. The Seminoles have a best time of about 4:08 in this event.

Other possible winners for the Gators are Chuck Martin in diving, Warrington and Carpenter in the distances and Buddy Ryan in the sprints.

Coach "Bim" Stults of the Seminoles commented, Florida is a strong, well balanced team and we will have to be in our best condition to give them a good match."

Stults went on to say that "we are in both sprint following our swing through Texas and this match with Florida will be just the thing to inspire us to give our best performances of the year."

TESCHKE BACK

Coach Stults is still worried over the possibility that distance man Hal Ann Treschke may not be ready for the meet this afternoon.

Treschke has just recovered from a severe lung infection and has seen only limited duty recently.

Besides Treschke the Seminoles will be depending on breaststroker Joel Jacobs, sprinters Ryan Roy Don Lewis and Jim Julian to come through with some first place points.

READY FOR THE GATORS. Sophomore tanker Howard Fillmore of Dearborn, Mich., a top prospect will see action in this afternoon's battle with Florida.

Hoopsters, Loyola Clash Tomorrow

By BEN BALSER
Flambeau Sports Writer

Loyola college of New Orleans brings a squad of basketball veterans to Tallahassee tomorrow night to meet the upset-minded Florida State Seminoles.

Loyola, which is one of the strongest independents in the south, brings a 10-7 record into the clash with the Seminoles. They have played such cage powers as Louisville, Dayton, Xavier and Texas A&M. They were beaten by Bradley last week 72-72, the same Bradley team which swamped the Tribe 90-66.

Coach Jim McCaffrey of Loyola, has six players from last year's team. Four of the veterans are men who were starters last year. Leading the returnees for the Wolfpack is 6-9 center Bill Schwieberger.

Pete Gaudin, veteran forward always a thorn in the opponents' side Gaudin has a average of six-zero points a game last year and was seventh in the NCAA in the field goal department getting 166 out of 357.

ONLY SENIOR

The only senior for the pack is John Lally, 6-0, 5-11 guard, teams with Chester Doll to form a duo of quick, hard hitting guards. Gaudin's rumbling mate at forward is Jim Hall who had a terrific sophomore season last year.

Lettermen Henry Exaterstein and John Muniet provide bench strength for Loyola. Also adding depth to the team from New Orleans is Johnny Sullivan 6-6, Gene Gerlach 6-5 and Jerry McLaughlin. McLaughlin led the Loyola freshman team in scoring last season.

The Seminoles evened their FIBC record at 4-4 last Saturday night when they outran the Rollins Tars 108-97 in the Seminoles men's gym.

The Seminoles now have an overall mark of six wins against 14 losses. The loss left the Tars with a FIBC record of 2-7 and an overall 5-15. The pattern of the game was very unusual for the Tribe. They were behind at the half and came back to pull ahead in the last half.

Leading the Seminoles were Bob Watts and Larry Strom. Watts had 19 points while Strom had an unusually good night and hit fine 25. Rollins top scorer was Boyd Coffie with 22 marks. He was followed closely by Dick Bessemer with 18 and Gary Gabbard with 12.

The Seminoles collected more rebounds than the Tars and Strom led the rebounders with 13.

Freshman Five Hosts Chipola

Florida State's freshmen careers will host Chipola Junior College tonight evening at 8:00 p.m. prior to the varsity up-off with Loyola of New Orleans.

Frosh coach Jimmy Oler plans to go along with a starting line-up of Charlie Rogers, Tom Munson, Mike Williams, Tom Adams, and Jim Savage.

Over the past five games the cubs have has posted better than a twenty point average. Oler has named the position with long jumpshots.

Oler, in looking forward to a hard fought game, said, "Chipola is big! They have good rebounding and shooting with a team platoon system to wear down their opponents."

It should be an interesting game and with the rise of basketball at the Miami game, we should do alright."

Nugent Pleased

Sophomores Are Key To Backfield Depth

"The key to the success of the future of the Seminole gridders is entirely in the hands of next year's sophomores," says Head Coach Tom Nugent. "The backfield future and depth lies with these fellows."

The leading contenders for the backfield positions are Fred Pickard, "Chub" Pasquale, Allen Smith, and Terrell Teague. These men played the most prominent roles in last Saturday's scrimmage.

At the quarterback slot Jerry Henderson and Ronnie Williams are following closely behind Bobby Renn and Ted Rodrigue. Gene McCormick and Joe Majors were also impressive in saturday morning's workout.

At left half both Pickard and Pasquale are pushing veteran Stan Dobosz. Pasquale has been converted from quarterback recently, and it is likely that he will remain at halfback.

PICKARD SHINES

Pickard did an outstanding job in the scrimmage, and is considered one of the best.

Among the candidates for right half, Wes Minton has a good chance of playing a lot next fall. Allen Smith, a good defensive man, is also a contender for the right half slot.

Terrell Teague holds a possible second and probable third place among the contenders for the fullback position, and may be higher as spring practice progresses.

Manning, Douglas, and Neville are also fighting for the fullback slot. Manning attended FSU as a freshman and then went into the service. Neville is a converted quarterback.

DOUGLAS PROMISING

Douglas has promising ability and may be moved to another position if he doesn't figure in one of the first two fullback berths.

Nugent says, "I am very pleased with the offensive ability these new boys are showing, but they still need work on defense."

"The improvement they have displayed in blocking ability has far surpassed that of past teams. We have added several good runners, and have a promising potential backfield for the coming season."

SN Cops Frat Football Title; Rebels, BSU In Dorm Final

The Sigma Nus rallied in the second half to defeat Delta Tau Delta 12-6 Saturday afternoon to win the fraternity football championship.

Tau Delta scored first, taking a 6-0 margin in the first period, but they another scoring chance late in the second period and couldn't stall SN's final ball scoring drive.

The Rebels and the BSU team will meet today in a extra-final for the dorm-independent championship after splitting regular season games.

The West Hall men downed the Baptists 21-6 the first time around, but the Baptists came from behind to produce a 12-12 tie in what was to be the final.

Since BSU won the game 6-5 on first downs an extra playoff was necessitated. The two teams will meet at 4:30 today on the Florida High Field.

Gymnasts Win Over Sailors

Despite a double winning performance by Jeff Austin, Florida State's gymnastics team had little difficulty in defeating a Pensacola navy team 62-44 Saturday afternoon at the men's gym.

It was the fifth win for the Seminoles this season as against one lone tie, that with Georgia Tech at Atlanta.

The Seminoles also produced a double winner in KA high bar champion Ron Amster who gathered in top honors in side horse and the high bar.

However, top point man for the meet was Jamile Ammore with 19, four more than Amster. Ammore gathered one first place in the flying rings.

Austin led the sailors in scoring by winning both the tumbling and trampoline events, finishing with 18 points.

'Colonel Kuersteiner' Gets Kentucky Title

Florida State University has another colonel on the faculty—but not that of Army or Air Force ROTC.

Surprisingly, music students may now be addressing their dean as "Colonel Kuersteiner."

He's been made a "Kentucky Colonel," the highest honor the Bluegrass State, where he was born, can bestow on someone short of electing him to office.

Dean—or Colonel—Karl Kuersteiner was presented the accolade recently while in Chicago, where he presided at the biennial convention of the Music Teachers National Association.

At the convention was the Du Pont Musical Training Hall School Orchestra led by Ruthin Sherwin had brought with him an impressive scroll signed by Kentucky's Governor A. B. Happy Chandler. Dean Kuersteiner, formerly attended the school, and conducted an orchestra.

Dean Kuersteiner said his Colonelcy came as a complete surprise, since he left Kentucky when he was 17.

Upon his retirement as president of the national association, a post he has held two years, Dr. Kuersteiner was made a life member of the national executive committee. He is being succeeded by Dr. Duane Haskell of Arkansas State College as president.

The FSU dean was also made the association's national director of Music Teacher Workshops. The national workshop project is one he launched last year—pilot workshops were held in June at Tampa, Jacksonville and Miami, and another will be held this month in Tallahassee.

The day long workshops are designed to raise the standards and economic status of private music teachers.

Dr. Kuersteiner was also presented a miniature bronze piece of sculpture, The God of Peace by Carl Miller. This was inscribed to him from Mayor Joseph E. Dillon of St Paul, Minn. for outstanding work as a music educator.

Orators Can 'Test Talent' In FSU Speakers' Bureau

Student orators will get ample opportunity to use their talents this Spring, according to Student Attorney General Arnold Greenfield.

Greenfield said yesterday that "preparation is being made for a series of speeches by students to various service organizations throughout the state."

Beginning shortly after the return from the Easter vacation, the FSU Speakers' Bureau will provide an opportunity for interested students to travel to different sections of the state in an effort to acquaint the citizenry with the functions of the university and the services with which it provides the state.

Greenfield said that introductory feelers had been sent out to several hundred Lions, Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs throughout the state. Replies saying "It looks like we will have far more clubs to supply than we have speakers on hand at present."

She urged all interested students to apply.

Preliminary preparation has been primarily in the hands of Assistant Attorney General Ruby Combs.

Miss Combs emphasized the need for student participation, have begun to arrive, and work will begin shortly on aligning

Universities Said 'Country Clubs'

WASHINGTON, D. C. (I.P.)—American universities and colleges will turn into "four-year country clubs" unless they restate their admission procedures to place greater emphasis on more deserving students. This warning was issued by Robert E. Iffert, a research specialist with the U. S. Office of Education.

"Such a revision will go a long way in easing the enrollment problem which most institutions are or will be facing within the next decade," Iffert said. "At present, there are two types of admission policies in general use. One is the open door policy whereby any student with a high school diploma is admitted; the other is the 'peep hole policy' whereby admission is granted to anyone with a prep school background or unusual social value.

"The colleges can do too far, in fact they can turn into four-year country clubs, if one or the other policy is allowed to go to its fullest extreme. It's time the colleges and universities stopped admitting solely on the basis of intellectual background or social prestige and considered other factors.

"These factors, Iffert declared, are "sincerity and strength of purpose, and traits and characteristics as well as intellectual background."

"The student who knows what he is after instead of entering college because it is the thing to do will be the best student in the long run," he said. Along this line, Iffert struck out at scholarship funds

FSU Said Right In Phone Tiff

The campus telephone problem originates with the Southeastern Telephone Company and not at Florida State University, a Florida State University Senate investigating committee revealed Wednesday.

Senator Pat Finlay, member of the special committee appointed to study student complaints on the service is "inadequate" and the committee will consult telephone company officials to work out a solution.

Its five trunk lines connecting FSU and the main telephone office are the reason given by Mr. Orville Singletary, chief telephone operator, for the difficulty.

Senator Finlay said "Students have complained to telephone operators before." Mrs. Singletary said Maybe they will be more to the students."

He quoted Mrs. Singletary as saying that the FSU switchboard consist of operators. There is often one outside line to many university phones, so many reports dial tone and get a busy signal the best thing to do is keep dialing." Mrs. Singletary was quoted.

Students Must Sign For State Exam

Students who expect to take the Graduate Record Exam for State Teaching scholarships of $400 per semester must register with all forms filled out before March 18 at 215 Education Building.

The scholarship exam will be given Tuesday, March 19 in the Suwannee Room. Winners will receive $400 per year toward their university expenses throughout the remainder of the undergraduate program.

The School of Education said that those who apply must be Florida residents. Another stipulation of the scholarships is that the recipient must agree to repay the State with one year of teaching for each $400 grant.

Senator Diane Godin, recently appointed a committee including Sen. Frank Fain, Bucky Canon, and Judy Ramsey to study "possible improvements."

Senator Dick Crawford suggested that: a big improvement would be made if hours were arranged so doctors would be on duty more of the time.

He told of a friend seeking medical care for a swollen wrenched foot who reportedly was unable to get attention until the next day.

Other senators asserted that a good part of student activity fees go into supporting the infirmary, but far less than the amount paid by the fees, students could buy a more effective hospital insurance policy.

Dr. Haviland G. Hathaway director of the Student Health Service, told the Florida Flambeau that suggestions for more doctors for office hours is not the answer to the problem.

He said the main "rushes" are between the hours of 9 and 11 a.m. and 2.30 p.m. and after 3 p.m.

"We are now short one doctor on the staff, but we expect before summer where a new doctor is arrive March 18," he said.

The infirmary office hours are from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1:30 to 4 p.m. The same doctor who is on call for emergencies during the night also has to work all day, he said.

Dr. Hathaway said the infirmary has been working for three years to get rid of the ants and the situation now "is better than it has been."

He said that sheets are supposed to be changed frequently and the complaint probably related to one instance.

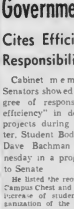
Bachman Lauds Student Government

Cites Efficiency, Responsibility

Cabinet members and Senators showed a "high degree of responsibility and efficiency" in dealing with projects during last semester, Student Body President Dave Bachman said Wednesday in a progress report to Senate

He listed the reorganization of Campus Chest and the Pow Wow, renewal of student, space organization of the Student Recreation Office and creation of a student lobbyist group, as areas in which student government has been successful.



Areas student government is working to ward include streamlining the honor system, improving forum student activities and student services, and building relations with other universities through conventions.

He said student government will continue to perfect the administration of existing projects such as Daily Day, the travel bureau, and Student Artist Series.

Although student government has received many favorable accomplishments, they shouldn't be termed in "just doing things," but in laying the groundwork for the future and setting trends, Bachman said.

With the student government more than half way through this year's program, there is still a great deal to be done, he said. Valuable time was lost at the beginning of the year, because of fall elections."

Bachman urged to study conditions around campus to discover "possible additions that could improved," he said. He recommended that senators follow-up on complaints made to administration and, expand relations between Senate and the Student-Faculty traffic committee hereby they could discuss, not vote on traffic laws.

Underlines Radiation Danger

Museum Shows 'Atomic Trash' Exhibit

By DON HEIDEL

Way back when Adlai Stevenson and Dwight Eisenhower were engaged in their second battle for U. S. Presidency, the subject of radiation pollution of the atmosphere was battered around quite a bit.

Then there was talk of "clean" bombs for certain types of radioactive waste products resulting from the ever-increasing experimental and industrial usage of atomic materials. The museum exhibit points out with vivid displays that strict control on disposal of these atomic wastes are necessary if the ground is not to be polluted

"WHY DANGEROUS"

Curator Russ West said the exhibit stresses "why atomic power becomes common place there will be unbelievable amounts of this "trash" which will have to be stored somewhere until it wears out its radioactivity

"The quantities of trash can not be scattered about like coal smoke and gasoline fumes. The results would be catastrophic to the human race.

"The problems involved in disposing of this trash are enormous No one has as yet figured out where it can all be put for years, even centuries necessary for its disintegration"

At some methods such as burying it in the sea, or shooting it into outer space have been conjectured, but as the exhibit points out, no adequate solution has been found

DINING HALL

The University Museum is located on the second floor of Dining Hall and is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.; Saturday from 9 a.m. until noon, and Sunday from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m.

Curator West pointed out that students who want to see visual explanations of the causes and effects of the "Atomic Trash" problem are invited to visit the museum during these hours.

Students Need Bus Service

EDITORIAL

Action of the university in suspending night-time bus service to West Campus may be just fied in light of the infrequency of passengers, but we hope cutting of campus bus service does not go too far.

It is true that the university is under no legal obligation to provide bus service for its students. And even if it wants to provide them it cannot do so without adequate funds.

Yet even within these limitations the university should, and, we hope, does, have an attitude of willingness to provide the buses. They may not look particularly good when viewed from a strictly economic angle—as some officials are wont to do—but from the students' point of view they have saved a lot of aching feet.

In addition, the time element involved makes buses almost indispensible in movement to and from classes. Take, for example, the case of the student who must get from the History to the Geology buildings between two classes. If he makes it on time regularly it proves he is sound of limb and lung—but why make education a trial of Spartan endurance?

Restrictions on cars are getting tighter and tighter. Unless some kind of change occurs, there is liable to be increasing demand for bus service—especially when the new classroom buildings and dormitories are completed in the area west of the main campus.

It is not just a question of credits and debits on an accountant's balance sheet. Any member of the administration who cares to put himself in the students' position might well reconsider any inclination to do away with bus service.

It's a long walk from West Hall at 7:45 in the morning. . . .

'Race' Signs Hurt Cause Of Writer

"Racial Segregation is Ignorance", say the signs scrawled upon blackboards and outside walls of university buildings. Apparently with increasing frequency, they have stirred up official action on the part of the administration.

The university issued an order to campus policemen to be on the lookout for students who have been doing the writing. If they are caught in the act, they will undergo some form of discipline.

Regardless of their motives, the "race writers" have caused their own undoing. Exhibiting a marked ignorance of the principles of public relations, they have publicized their beliefs in entirely the wrong way.

We believe they have heaped more harm than benefit on their own cause. If they continue to write they are likely to injure it even further.

Nobody is convinced by unsigned, unreasonable messages scribbled on walls. More likely, all will view them with distrust. Their message will at best go unheeded, at worst may be met with violent response. Whichever the case, no good will be done.

This is so obvious that the question arises as to whether "race writers" in fact are actually trying to discredit integration. Perhaps they are trying to instill the same fear of opposition as has been stirred among thinking Southerners by violent extremists who fire shotguns in Montgomery have done in Clinton to mention the names of the states) and throw bombs at such great entertainers as Louis Armstrong, whose talent was overwhelmingly approved recently by FSU students.

Violence appeals to emotion and not to thought or on either viewpoint. The times demand, as has been repeated over and over again, cool and reasonable thought.

Whether true or false, there is no place for such furtive pleas. Writing on walls went out with the Stone Age.

We'll Put Money On New System

Student government's assumption of the task of directing Campus Chest next year may make sweeping changes in what has become accepted as campus tradition.

Announced purpose of the change is to unify the charity-raising projects of Florida State University into one weekend or a slightly longer period. This would cut down on the number of projects, which are now all going through the entire year.

Such a change very well will be welcomed by many of the participants in Campus Chest projects. Some of these students did not really want to devote time to the projects in the first place—not because they were uncharitable, but because they felt it hurt their studies.

Under the new system, if things go as hoped by student government officials, students will be able to raise just as much money for charity with less expenditure of time and energy.

Just what events will be discontinued is not known. Perhaps such activities as the Phi Delta Theta—Alpha Gamma Delta Soap Box Derby, Sigma Kappa Variety Show, Sigma Chi Derby, etc., will still be staged, only with proceeds going to the sponsors. Perhaps they will be discontinued.

Whatever happens, we are offering our support to next year's unified program. If the students will apply the same efforts during one intensified drive as that which they have maintained during this school year, then "Campus Chest Weekend" should be a huge success.

Calling The Card

Muddy Time Had By All—Walks Wet

By ARNOLD GREENFIELD

There can be no doubt that our campus is regularly graced (or besieged if you prefer) by a multitude of walkways. This is of course understandable for FSU is literally cluttered up with increasing cubic ft. as my pleasure at the time to point out various little known curiosities of our fair university.

THESE SIGHTS are all made possible through the courtesy of the FSUGLTA — Florida State University Gardeners And Lawn Tenders Association. First and foremost we have the thickest, richest, and best tufted sidewalks anywhere. The southeaster on U. S. These side walks are all carefully cultivated by continual sprinkling with our ultra-modern sidewalk watering equipment.

Anyone doubting my assertion need only look to the report of the President's Special Committee On Walkway Cultivation for the fiscal year 1956. Therein contained are the facts to substantiate my allegation. Unfortunately my readers will not be able to observe our well cultivated walks for themselves, because they will be prevented from getting too close to the unsightly sprinkling.

IN ADDITION to our singularly glorious sidewalks many other benefits accrue to FSU through careful study of the Harvest covered areas. Tourists are apt to be impressed by the fact that students are not decadent members of a frivolous generation, as all too often charged, but rather serious folk who can't afford to lose a class called ankle deep to mud.

FSUGLTA, as it provides the mud to make this condition possible, very correctly they do not control the watering of the sidewalks alone but allow some of the water to run off to the grass. Gradually as the area becomes inundated a nice sloppy brand of mud is created in which the students may wallow to their hearts' content. This is also facilitated by the frequent watering of areas where neither grass nor walks are laid.

FURTHER BENEFITS also result. For example we don't want vandals defacing our buildings so, right and thus making them unsightly. In the morning our tourist crop. Therefore the sprinkling equipment is graciously allowed to run all night preventing potential wrongdoers from coming too close to any buildings.

The last but not the benefits incorporated made manifest by the strategic placement of the sprinklers is that of arranging them so that splashing is accomplished, necessitating a variable to evade the watery vengeance of FSUGLTA. It is astonishing how many people step over sprinkler without being soaked in the process.

THERE ARE THE benefits deep readers beautiful sidewalks, grass and flowers economically dotted up by the surplus mud supply, and fool proof protection from vandalism for those who might deface one of our lovely buildings. I'm sure I'm not over a vote of thanks to the men of FSUGLTA who work so hard for all of us—without thought of personal glory.

I have presented these facts as a public service that those who might otherwise never gain recognition for the good work they will deserved fame. FSUGLTA has been the unsung heros to FSU and for this we should be deeply grateful.

'ACP'—If you think you have a problem, consider the situation at Texas A & M. That school doesn't have any coeds and the men claim its not unusual to drive 200 miles for a date. We don't feel sorry for them. The University conducted a poll and decided it's best not to mix education with women.

"I'm Fine. Of Course, Every Once In A While I Go Like This — "

Times Are Bad-Time For A Change?

TO THE EDITOR.

THIS WRITER has noted that the clocks seem on campus and in dormitories are approximately four minutes ahead of the time announced on local radio stations.

Is this a simple error no the part of the university, the local stations or in this writer's observations?

Be it IT an error at all? I wonder if it is not an academic effort to introduce efficiency over time at Florida State. If so, why has this not been publicized by the newspaper? I am positive that a great number of students would be interested in an experiment of such a noble genre.

But, could not the local radio stations be induced to follow the university's lead and turn their clocks up four minutes? The Tallahassee townsfolk I am sure, would hate to be "behind the time"

IN ANY CASE if you are starting for your class and the radio announces the time is one minute before eight, forget about the whole thing, buddy, 'Cause you're late.

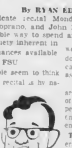
The Threepenny Critic



Mizell, Zilles Perform

By RYAN EDWARDS

The certificate recital Monday evening of Martha Sue Mizell, mezzo-soprano, and John Zilles, baritone besides being a pretty enjoyable way to spend an evening pointed out something of the variety inherent in student performances available to the public at FSU.

Sometimes people seem to think that an academic recital a la nature is painfully deadly perfect, and even a little grim. Not so! And we have last Monday night to prove it.

NEITHER OF these two performers is an artistic failure, and therefore neither of them was called on to present an evening of large proportions. Instead, they collaborated to produce a program of pleasing lench, variety, and taste.

Miss Mizell, showing with a basically beautiful soprano voice that she learned from Handel to Richard Hageman with considerable aplomb. She has a nice lyrical feel, and a personality that glides easily over the footlights. She was perhaps at her best in the two Kindish songs, delivered from Edmunds' settings of the following Rilke Sea with particular clarity.

MR. ZILLES, well-known around campus for his roles in the Little Opera Guild productions is possessed of a big voice of an almost editorial quality. There's a profound and passionate feel such as Schumann's Im Grelle Nicht may seem a little beyond his reach, we're willing to bet our bottom dollar that few people around here can sing comic spirituals as well as he.

In this sort of song, Mr. Zilles seems to loosen up, his mannerism of counting time physically disappears and he just sings like he's enjoying it. As a consequence, we enjoyed it too.

TO CLOSE the program, both men sang a duet in Cole Porter's Wunderbar, the wonderfully stylized Viennese waltz duet from Kiss Me Kate. We must confess that we really didn't hear the first few measures here so amazed to hear one accompanist producing an amazing number of trills and fioriture while hardly moving his hands. But once we concluded that another pianist was hard at work backstage we settled back to relish the fine job of Coe Porter as is within his tradition, very respectable stuff, and served as an eminently successful ender to this type program.

Bicycles Will Bring Problems

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

More than one university official is rumored, would be overjoyed to see bicycles sink into use on the campus.

No more traffic jams. No more ulcers or more distraught pedestrians. Plenty of facile parking spaces! Is probably what they are thinking.

Now, while avoiding a morbid pessimism, it should be pointed out that when the first automobiles were introduced, people thought they could no no more than frighten horses and explode under their drivers, who deserved it anyhow. There is a moral in this story.

Bicycles are not the answer.

Just picture FSU's drive-ways crowded with speeding bicycles. Whoever heard of a bicyclist willingly taking to the street? Not smaller than an automobile but bigger than pedestrian.

THE LOSER from any large-scale conflict on bicycles could only be the pedestrian. He can't take to the street. And already a least one pedestrian has been struck by very few bicycles which have so far appeared on campus.

In addition, bicycles have to be parked somewhere. They can be parked in large racks inside buildings. If they are parked racks on the grass pretty soon there is no grass. Another big parking problem all over again. And how can you issue blue, black, and azure and gold stickers to bicycles? Their paint is too interchangeable and some wiseacres could just change them.

FINALLY, THERE is the problem of date which was made a permanent American custom by the automobile. The obvious superiority of the automobile for this purpose had its effect on the 100-per-cent competitive, diverse, and wholly free free-enterprise system. Bicycles should do were put out of business.

And if you really want to be practical about it, bicycles are inconvenient in rainstorms and during cold mornings.

Besides, it's hard work to peddle them.

SO SOME ANSWER to the parking problem other than bicycles must be found.

It doesn't lie in the freshman car ban. The exceptions to the rule are the rule rather than the exception. And if it were extended to sophomores the inequity would be manifest.

STUDENTS should be persuaded to use their eas on dormitory parking lots during the crowded daytime hours if the bus service were inadequate. Other than that, if the Campus Transit Company charged something less than a fifty thousand cents a quarter for the ride, Roller Coaster.

Cars, however, are here to stay, whatever.

Texan In England Says It's No Fun

The current debate in Texas over whether the United Nations should be asked to be the crucial world all situation has prompted the lively article reprinted, in part below.

It is written by William Morris, who was last year editor of the Daily Texan campus newspaper at the University of Texas in Austin, Texas. Morris, you may recall, fought a running battle in the pages of the Texan over whether the Texas version of Florida's Board of Control had the right to censor the UT paper.

Morris lost that battle, but not his spirit. Here you'll see how he's getting even, by writing in the Texan was deemed so important by his peers.

By WILLIE MORRIS

Texan Editor 1955-56

OXFORD, England — Don't much fun being a Texan in England these days.

After the apparent collapse of Government's premiership, Britain is once through its current petrol troubles. Texas is being slowly punished with the silent treatment. Due to Plymouth. It almost makes a fellow want to file his citizenship papers in Idaho.

The Radcliffe Commission's January decision to refuse any substantial increase in the basic petrol ration has prompted the chorus. First it was in the newspapers and magazines, but now this catch of anti-Texan hate is being heard in common person.

If we were living in 1836 and Lord Palmerston were alive, he would have a fleet or two of gunboats up the Brazos.

Shame, Bad Man

It doesn't do anymore, to tell these folks you are from Texas. Once upon a time a speed to point with a certain social coup de grace the eggshead Oxford coeds would rend drop their cups of tea to inspect this stuck rabbit of the Lone Star State. Now, they just would invite you to a congenial game of intramurals rugger or a punt. Now almost at once the Briton begins to gnaw into your confidence. Settle down with him, and in Texans Shame, you hoarders of petrol. One can always reply, if he chooses to be nasty until-polonius, that it is you Englies who imprudent our good friend Adolf Nasser into making a few graves of well-placed shots on Ye Olde Canal, but I for one don't think retribution ever kept a friend, or that granite lated nail it into the Egyptian mummy mound. Besides, I am outnumbered.

Nor is there any protection in hiding behind the shield of the bourgeoisie "I am just a middle-class Texas peon," I say. "My grandfather was a laissez-faire cattle rustler." My depletion allowance is depleted and the closest I ever came to being rich as an oil man was when a Texaco truck had a flat and sprang a leak in front of my house." There is no people here because Europeans like most Americans outside the home state, look upon Texas as a protoplasmic phenomenon somewhere between grasps arow on every tree and petrol flows from the pipes of every pedestrian's toilet. And we can hardly blame them; every Texan who ever crosses the state line or the Atlantic, the Pith, the gone, and the Sewers, we consolidate to that most advertised of all myths.

Nor can I purge myself by pointing out that the editor of the Texas Observer and I were the only two men from Texas who didn't like Dr. Eisenhower's bill. Unless you count Eisenhower, who lives in Augusta now.

For I am of Texas, and as long as I have become involved, they are convincing me, in a well-conceived campaign to suck sterling into one prodigious North America vat.

Recommendations

For my part, I am taking the oil folks back home to send over either (1) more petrol; (2) a few regiments of well-equipped public relations men, bristling in their knowledge of economics and Shelley, to help me out, or (3) enough money for me to donate an airport. I am setting tired of my Oxford mates calling me Jett Rink. Some are even beginning to call me King Ranch. Worse, I haven't been able to get away with a Texas tale for weeks now. It's playing hell with my personality.

Swimmers Defeat Gators; Cagers Seek 4th Straight

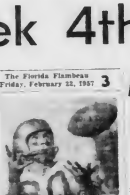
Break Pool Marks In Comeback Win

Florida State University's swimming team added another victory over the Gators from the University of Florida Tuesday with a come-from-behind, 46-40 win over the invaders from Gainesville.

A capacity crowd of 500 saw the Seminoles break a year old pool 400-yard freestyle relay record by over six seconds to win the last event and overcome a six point deficit.

Coach "Bim" Sunla at FSU stated, "It was a fine all-out effort, I couldn't pick any one man out for an outstanding performance because all deserve credit."

He went on to say, "Our best performances of the year certainly came at the right time and no one could be more happy about it than I am."



Altogether three meet, three school, and two pool records were broken by the Tribe in their winning effort. The Gators broke three meet records and Gator Phil Drake set a new pool record by 28 seconds in the 220-yard butterfly.

The high point man of the match was FSU's Jim Julian. Julian was a member of the record breaking 440-yard medley and 400-yard freestyle relay teams in addition to setting a meet record in the 100-yard freestyle sprint.

FSU and Florida will swim in another regularly scheduled meet March 9 in Gainesville.

Nugent Worries About Defense

"After five days of practice we're pleased with our offense, but our defense has proved to be a disappointment," said Florida State's head football coach, Tom Nugent, while commenting on spring practice.

"Practice has gone along satisfactorily so far, but our backfield situation still presents a problem," stated Nugent.

Nugent is still shuffling players around to try and solve his problem at guard and in the backfield.

The most recent move by Nugent is the sifting of Bob Douglas from fullback to guard. He is expected to be in the thick of competition for the starting guard slot.

Holding down the top positions now are at left end Ronnie Schonburger, who held down the same position on last year's varsity and at right end is Hank Bisher.

Bill Musselman and George Bover are holding down the starting tackle slots as of now. At the guard is 5-foot Pendlain, a transferred end and Jerry Graham a returnee from last year.

Bobby Bevis is in command at quarterback. The halfback slots find Stan Dobor and Billy Weaver while Eddie Johnson is handling the fullback chores.

The biggest surprise to Nugent so far has been the play of two of best year's freshmen. Fred Pickens, 6-2 end from Pensacola, and Reece Brian, a tackle Nugent is very pleased with their play so far.

Dump Southerners, Edge 'Pack 79-77

By BEN BALSER
Flambeau Sports Writer

The unpredictable Florida State basketball team journeys to Miami tomorrow night to play the University of Miami Hurricanes. The Seminoles then return to Tallahassee Monday to battle the Tampa Spartans.

The last time the Tribe met the Canes, Miami emerged an 83-77 victor. The Hurricanes are currently holding down second place in the FIBC while the Seminoles are fourth.

Gene Stage is Miami's leading scorer and is a very tricky floor man. Stage scored 22 against FSU in the first clash between the two teams. The scorers for the Hurricanes when they met the Tribe earlier this season were Marty Burdette and Joe Gardner. Burdette scored 26 while Gardner hit for 19.

Ed Contreras will probably be at the pivot post for the Canes and Mark Thaddeuswicz will open at the other forward spot.

MEET TAMPA

On Monday, February 25, the Seminoles play their last home game of the season against the Spartans of Tampa. In the first meeting of these two teams Tampa was trounced 84-66 by the Tribe.

The Spartans have not won a game in the FIBC and are holding down last place. The big gun for Tampa is Fred Gottelles. Gottelles has been sidelined most of the season by an injured ankle, but he will probably be in playing shape for the game.

The man who always seems to do well against the Tribe is Howard Bernstein who scored 27 points against FSU in the first game between these two teams. Also outstanding for Tampa is its big center, Bob Cairns.

Head coach Bud Kennedy of FSU seems to have found the winning combination for his slow starting Seminoles because the Tribe has won its last three games.

The starting lineup for this three wins has been the same, Hugh Durham Bob Wade Larry Strom, Bob Ward and Bob Williams compose this winning Spartans of Tampa.

The most recent win was over Loyola of New Orleans last Wednesday night. FSU led throughout the game but barely date and there on the sports front.

Yanks On Short End?

It looks to this observer as if the Yankees came out on the short end of their deal with Kansas City the other day, but it doesn't matter.

They're always on the short end of deals no matter, but they still never stop winning pennants. Since Bob Lemon had such good fortune with his no-hitter over the World Series, it seems almost every pitcher in the game is planning to adopt it.

Ted Parnell and Tom Morgan state Yankees are the latest ready to attempt it.

While the myth of Wil Chamberlain of Kansas was sort of shot when he scored only 11 against Oklahoma Monday night, Wilbert Kansas is not half bad with or without him. They clawed the Sooners 76-56.

North Carolina will get that Bill and Co in the NCAA tourney this year, assuming both will get to the finals. Look out for Kentucky Wildcats though, there is a great Southern contingent of North Carolina; we understand four-first graders and Lennie Rosenbluth went to school in New York City with Board-Bernstein, currently a guard at the University of Tampa.

Bernstein was one of the state's leading pointmakers as a prep two years ago, but he has had no trouble for some time. Even with Bernstein and Rosenbluth on the same high school, James Monroe, lost the city title to Riis.

IN GABLES GYM

Returning to the local scene, tomorrow night's basketball game between Miami and FSU will be played in the Coral Gables gym at 8:00.

The Hurricanes usually play in the Miami Auditorium, but basketball is still having a touch time as a fling in Miami. The Canes average around record 1000 in the auditorium though they usually enough to fill house for the Louisville game last month.

The Seminoles beat Miami, the title will go to Florida Southern in the FIBC. Tonight's 7-3, Miami 6-2 battle Stetson dropped out of title contention with 1 to Rollins Tuesday night.

Coach Seminole football squad will continue from its workouts in one way if no other. The 75 men who turned for the opening practice is some contrast from the 28 and while the closing practice is September. The search for will end of fall practice is a fullback remains primary in Tom Nugent's mind

Also, we have just received an invitation to attend the Sixth Annual Youth and Student Festival in Moscow July 28-August 11.

The letter-head is written in five different languages. Maybe we expectinz a ride.

Practical prizes offered in cross-country running, volleyball, table tennis and chess.

Ward Sparks Cagers From Forward Spot

By BESS WELLER
Flambeau Sports Writer

Senior ener Bobby Ward has been a key figure in sparking the Seminoles to victory. In the last few ball games.

The lanky forward from Fairfax, Ala., has been playing "some exceptionally good ball" according to Coach Bud Kennedy.

Attending Valley Vocational Senior High School in Fairfax, Ward played football and basketball, lettering in both. The scrappy racer was elected on several all-Tournament basketball teams.

After graduating from high school Bobby worked a year. During that time he played semi-pro basketball on a city league team.

Deciding to attend college the good-natured forward came to FSU. Playing on the freshman team, he earned a scholarship has freshmen year.

RETURNS BEST

This season Ward has steadily had potential the last few ball games according to Coach Kennedy.

Statistically, Bobby has hit 36 field goals and 13 free throws for a total of 85 points.

Although Ward's scoring statistics are not as impressive as those of several of his teammates, he is a strong man on the court.

A good ball handler, he is the middleman in many plays. Always alert, Bobby is strong on defense.

The lone married man on the starting five, Ward has a three year old daughter—Debby.

A physical education major, he plans to make the Air Force his career. He will be commissioned in June as a second-lieutenant through the Florida State Air Force ROTC.

"We are counting on him strongly down the stretch," says Coach Kennedy.

Freshman Cagers Meet Baby 'Canes

Bolstered and smarting from an 86-71 defeat at the hands of Chipola Junior College, Florida State freshman cagers clash with Miami's baby Hurricanes in Miami tomorrow evening.

Trailing Chipola at half-time, 42-37, FSU's frosh shelled the road to four points with six minutes to go in the second half.

Facing the rally and the game with 17 points was Charlie Rogers, followed by Tom Mizanoya with 13 and Jim Savage, who tallied 12 before fouling out in the second half.

Also in the second half, coach Thomas Ott saw the services of Mizoon due to a sprained ankle. He found that Savage received a twisted ankle shortly before fouling out.

EVERYTHING BUT THE BALL. Mississippi Southern's Bob Boothe has all style for a perfect layup but unfortunately he forgot the ball, which FSU's Bob Ward has his eye on.

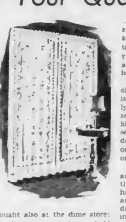
Here's How To 'Turn A Leaf': Redecorate Your Quarters

By MARGARET McLEAN

Second semester to the ambitious student probably suggests turning over a new leaf in every possible phase of one's campus life, self, and adjustment to the new season.



Strangely enough this usually takes place every semester with a maximum fraction of admirable a goal. This time my roommate and I have made one step in the right direction we completely remodeled our campus quarters from wall to wall. The results are so gratifying that I would like to pass the plan and some ideas on the subject on to others.

The first decision we made was that the local dime stores really are well stocked with some amazing items, both inexpensive and hand-some, that can do great things for a room. A good mounting point is with a fabric hung it on the wall, cover pillows with it, make curtains for windows or mid closet door openings, drape a rectangle of it over the desk, etc.

The old dime store has contentsful of wonderful fabrics—from a wild print in red polka dots, orange, green, grey, on a white ground—six yards yards for $1.29.

We picked up the color scheme in the fabric with accessories, prints. Bedspreads (bluecotton), and brick-a-brac Side in the fabric itself was an demonstrative we kept everything else to a minimum and simple in mood.

Here are some things we bought also at the dime store: a hollow stemmed glass to hold pencils, etc.—35c shallow 5"x5"x3" dull orange vases to hold mail—75c ashtrays in dull orange to hold ashes—35c, tall white vase—here we splurged a little, extra trash basket—$1.00 green plants—29c, etc.

The one needed extra shelf space so we built a low-slung book case out of concrete bricks and had a plywood sheet cut in half for shelves for practically nothing.

We already had a wooden frame built of scrap lumber and infinite patience that accounted itself painted black, backed with a huge sheet of opaque Japanese waxed drop-paper $1.00 at paint store — that would ordinarily be used to protect a floor from spilling paint —beautiful stuff!; the other side of the screen is strung diagonally with black cord—we use this screen to partially divide our room. We already had a long-stemmed, spoonrock lamp—$2.98 in dime store.

Room decoration has no end of possibilities but the best plan is to see what you already have lying around that is useable, see what you lack or need, then blueprint your ideas and get set budget. Don't buy what you don't really need, can't afford, or anything you can't use later on.

Try to plan the whole works around the available space in the room. What your room will have to house—in ours, for example, the book shelf, a huge drawing board (typewriter are on my machine, laundry cases, art supplies by the long, etc.; and where you'll put it so you can get to it. Consider the colors you like and the one the university put on your wall etc. Magazines will supply provide prints and illustrations to cover the walls. The provided dressing tables in the room are fine when pushed-together as a single unit—remove as many perfume bottles as possible.

Personally, the change will work wonders for the unit-rale and you may even feel like a real people in the new surroundings. Again, as always, the ideas are only a beginning the rest is up to you. Good luck and please include me in the guest list for your open-house!

Parties, Weekends Keep Campus Hopping

Calypso was king at the Sigma Nu house last week-end at the first party of the spring semester. Music, entertainment and refreshment all followed the Calypso theme.

During the week the Zeta Zeta chapter went on a Jamaican jaunt with straw hats, bananas and frazzle-bottom trousers straight from Kingston. The evening's entertainment included a session with a "Belafonte" quartet, impromptu dances by some of the brothers, and music to change the ivy-leaguers to banana-boat loaders.

Last night the Sigma Nus entertained the Sigma Kappas with an informal get-together at the house. Most of the talk for the evening was centered around the question of who would win the pledge-active softball game Saturday afternoon. The party ended just in time for the brothers to get in voice for the serenade at the Alpha Gamma Delta house.

Have you noticed that strange-looking creature walking around campus with a brick, paddle, and baby rattle in hand and an over-sized red and white pin on? Don't run and hide the next time you meet one, they're quite harmless; in fact, they can't even talk. They're the Theta Chi Neophytes. The "hell-week" program won't last much longer for them; for they've completed their road trips and are almost ready to wear the crossed swords.

In between time of thinking up stunts for the neophytes, the actives and other pledges have been partying. They even let the better-behaved neophytes join in the Gamma Phi Beta and Kappa Alpha Theta parties.

Delta Gammas are going on a journey to the country and back to the city this week-end.

The occasion is the sorority week-end which starts with a square dance and country party—all Silver Lake.

Tomorrow will be smorgasbord at the house and then it's back to Wakulla Lodge for a formal dance, the Anchor Cotillon.

New actives who will be introduced at the formal are Sara Budd, Nancy Carson, Jane Dale, Jan Dawson, Mollie Ladding, Kathy Hartung, Harriet Hiers, Betty Ingalls, Susan Knight, Carol Jo Lewis, Pat McCall, Mary Ann O'Donnell, Jane Powell, Mary Ann Reeder, Linda Thurston, June Garrett, and Arlene Ritchie.

CHI OMEGA'S week-end begins with a dance, the Carnation Ball, tonight. Tomorrow morning the girls and their dates will motor to the coast. Tomorrow night they will drive to Silver Lake for chicken dinner and dancing.

Sunday the group will attend church together and eat lunch at the house.

Being initiated into Delta Delta Delta this week-end are: Barbara Bishop, Sandy Burns, Sandra Calhoun, Sara Clardy, Lynn Colley, Anne Farr, Chris Fisher, Carleen Herrington, Annette Kent, Reed Lewis, Kay MacLean, Betty Ann Montgomery, Charlotte Orr, Jackie Parker, Mary Pittenger, Patty Syverson, Linda Sherman, Judy Turner, Jo Yde, and Betty Cleary.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon recently completed election of officers for the spring semester. HUNGARIAN PETITION

(ACP)—Students at the University of Texas ran into some trouble recently because of a petition that was circulated in connection with the Hungarian situation. The petition advocated the withdrawal of the United States from the Olympic games in Australia as a means of protesting Russia's barbaric and unjustifiable intervention in Hungary.

The same group of students also circulated a second petition, advocating that the United States government allow American citizens to join a military force as volunteers to aid the Hungarian rebellion.

The trouble developed when the Dean of Student Life interfered. He objected to the petitions not necessarily because of the contents but because the students had failed to get University permission.

Hiroshima, Miss Hummel explained, is practical and well-evened in most of Europe, but in the Middle East they resorted to taxis—"very low rates"—rented an airplane and boat to get from continent to continent, and hitchhiked across Australia's wide mast.

Reseiing the United States finally at Los Angeles around Christmas time, they were the guests of a Hollywood tourist family in Ewland. They hitchhiked the last lap, Los Angeles to Miami, in five days.

Students value free speech as much as do other Americans and, furthermore, they should have their say about campus matters, including their opinion of the manner in which the chancellor discharges his duties. A topic of timely consideration from time to time. (After all, we are training them to be alumni.)

"This is the second reason for permitting them to have their own publications, namely, that it is part of a process which matures. The argument that it is risky. I would only reply that it is risky to have young people about, that, in fact, it is risky to be a man or woman. The risk in letting them manage their own affairs, however, is not a speculation but society's wisest and most rewarding investment."

DR. ROGERS CHARGES

U.S. Foreign Policy Failure Caused By 'Spoils System'

American foreign policy has been a general failure partly because ambassadors and secretaries of state are chosen to repay political debts, history professor Dr. Ben Rogers declared Wednesday night.

In a public lecture sponsored by Phi Alpha Theta, history honorary, he asserted neither the Republican nor the Democratic Party has a good record in foreign affairs.

He charged that among those with State Department officials appointed for political reasons there is "distrust" of career officials and their advice.

He doesn't in turn with the Middle East Eastern Europe, and the Far East, imputing "confusion" to the handling of each area.

"We know the Middle Eastern situation is grave," he quipped, "since the President has quit playing golf and gone back to work."

He said U. S. Middle Eastern policy has been "so unconsistent as to be no policy at all. We have tried to flatter everybody and conciliate no one."

He said American attempts to buy the friendship of Egypt resulted only in that country asking for more money and losing respect for the United States.

Richard O. Culver, secretary-general of the Florida Council of Private Schools, will speak at the luncheon meeting of the Tallahassee Kiwanis Club Thursday.

Culver, who retired after 25 years with the Federal Bureau of Prisons, is also a Kiwanis member. Florida Job, will speak on "Modernizing a Prison System" at a luncheon in the Suwannee Room Thursday. He will be introduced by Secretary of State R. A. Gray.

James V. Bennett, director of the U. S. Bureau of Prisons, will speak on the subject "Prisons Today and Tomorrow" in Opperman Auditorium at 8 p.m. Wednesday. This will be followed by an address on "Current Trends in Juvenile Delinquency Control" by Philip G. Green, director of the Division of Juvenile Delinquency Service for the Children's Bureau.

Attorney Gen Richard Ervin will preside at the evening address and Gov. LeRoy Collins is scheduled to introduce the speakers.

Dean Coyle E. Moore Sr. of the School of Social Welfare, which is sponsoring the lecture conference, and prison, parole and probation officials, juvenile court officers, social workers and others from over the south are expected. Meetings are open to the public.

The School's Program of Corrections, headed by Dr. Vernon Fox, has 10 years psychologist and deputy warden of the State Prison of Southern Michigan, is the only training course for correctional personnel in the South.

Sessions will get under way in the Library auditorium at 8:45 a.m. Wednesday.

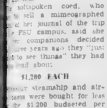
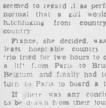
squeared by with a 17-17 win. The Wolfpack, at a trailing 44-38 at the half but returned to the game using a full court press which enabled them to keep in stride with the Tribe.

High point man for the game was Strom of FSU with 25. Durham, sophomore guard for the Tribe, raised his point total to 449 for the season by pouring in 23 markers.

Waits also hit in the double figures for FSU, netting for 19 John Lorio also made 21 for the Seminoles closely by Pete Goudin with 20 and Bill Schweiberger, who had 14.



THIRD IN ELEVEN



The win brought the Tribe's record to seven against 4 losses. The win was only the third time FSU has beaten Florida in 11 games

On Monday February 20 the Seminoles overcame a height advantage held by Mississippi Southern and defeated the Southerners 81-72. Durham, Waits and Strom again paced the Tribe

This seemed to be Waits' night as he hit for his high point man with 32. Durham maintained his 20-point average by getting 23. Strom, besides scoring 11, was very sharp on the backboards.

Free throws marked the Southerners downfall. They only made two free throws in nine tries while the Tribe made 21 out of 32. FSU built up a lead early in the game and never lost it.

Films About People Showing In Tallahassee

By ALAN KASS

Two films about people currently share Tallahassee screens. The only similarity between the two, however, is that they are both fascinating.

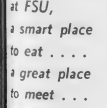
PSYCHOSES OF ALFRED Hitchcock, who brings rather depressing and gripping stories to the screen and who has a knack for making even the most old master facing the camera from the screen and the suspense at just the proper moments, He fills the story with I have entertained you unbelievable events it is almost frightmuch with fiction and I enjoy suspense in you with fact." ening. Somewhat wrong. The picture is not as true Mr Hitch Wrong Man" is clearly cock builds the case of a New York Stork Club musician, falsely accused of a series of holdups He is not set free until after the real criminal is caught. Not, however, before the musician, a family man with a wife and two young sons, goes through the harrowing ordeal of being unable to prove his innocence

The state of New York apologizes for this injustice — but the real tragedy occurs when his wife suffers a nervous breakdown and is sent to a sanitarium for several months

HENRY FONDA, AS Manole Balestrero, gives a gripping portrayal of a peace-loving family man, who suddenly sees before his eyes the horror of his family at disunity.

"The Wrong Man" is a taunt, probing drama. You might just find this unusual picture very much to your liking .

* * * *



Since we know that Henry Fonda was the actual wrong man. Who one might ask, was the right man?

In the case of hundreds of Korean orphans Col. Dean Hess in "Battle Hymn" is the inspirational story of a clergy man whose efforts were on behalf of the Korean children, left behind and homeless in the wake of the flahking in that country.

This incident comes via flashback when we realize that Col. Hess accidentally bombed a Germ-o Orphanage in World War II. With this tragedy he gives up the pulpit for the service of the Air Force, in Korea he now helps the children and air-lifts them to safety.

ONCE AGAIN, ROCK Hudson and Elizabeth Taylor in another good performance. It succeeds in capturing the personality and character of the principal lead.

Dan Duryea, Jane Mahoney and Den Defore holster the acting, while a new-comer, Anna Kashfi, is effective as Korean who falls in love with Rock.

Houses Revolt Against Family, Smith Declares

American homes are built with the result they are in "active" conflict with the family, a Florida State University professor declared Tuesday night.

Dr. Janet K. Smith, professor of housing and interior design, told the weekly American Studies luncheon that architects and builders are not using available information on "how to make houses that cooperate with the family."

"Aesthetic principles" for the exterior are not enough, she stressed.

Points that are not yet being fully considered, she said, include separating "active" and "quiet" areas of the houses, arranging rooms for convenience, and providing privacy for individuals.

Garages, she noted, are still placed for effect, whether or not they suit seasonal needs.

"Garages are still placed as if they were the old stables. Put far away as possible because of the smell!" she remarked.

Home schools are damned Dr. Smith said, for maximum southern exposure, and for night time use in a society increasingly nocturnal. Lighting can be planned to avoid shadows and glare, she said.

Dr. Smith said homes are still being designed without adequate space for garden and interior maintenance tools.

"Better design is needed for today's higher costs," she said, reminding Pre-Architecture students "pay through the nose" for wasted space.

"American architects are duped with the inheritance of the past," she said of exterior designs. "Their eclectic architecture — establish modern and classical models of design — is very much like a goulash," she asserted.

"The eclecticism is a hangover from Victorian days of conspicuous consumption" she said.

Americans are still inclined to divide in and with homes patterned in planning and exterior design because we associate them with childhood, Dr. Smith explained.

70 Women Work For PHT Degree

By ARLIEDA RIES

More than 70 hard working women who regularly frequent the campus are working for a PHT, "Putting Husband Through," degree.

These ladies are members of the FSU Dames Club, a social group, which is affiliated with a national organization of university wives, for women whose husbands are students.

The FSU chapter was originated in the fall of 1952 by Ralph Witherspoon, the wife of an FSU psychology professor, had seen a similar organization at the University of Michigan where her husband had been working for his Ph.D. "It is a real tie-binder that unifies and helps the newcomers," she explained.

The University of Chicago founded the Charter chapter for the National Association of University Dames in 1921 after wives of other universities quickly caught onto the idea and affiliated chapters of their own. At present there are 77 clubs or chapters in the national organization, established at major universities and colleges throughout the country.

SERIOUS DEGREE

Originated at FSU, the PHT degree is earned and conferred in all seriousness three times a year at the time of the winter, regular commencements. When the husband receives his degree his wife receives hers.

"Usually the PHT degree" explained Mrs. Witherspoon "represents many years of work on the part of the wife." The diploma is visible recognition of the wife's part in helping husband obtain a higher education.

The PHT diploma resembles greatly the husband's academic diploma, both are officially signed by the president of the university, and stamped with the university seal.

Over 900 women are eligible to become members of the club, revealed Mrs. Bob Ward, Dames president.

And "once a Dame, always a Dame" as the organization's creed reminds. As a member of the national organization a wife is entitled to be a member of any affiliated club or chapter on any university campus.

Appropriately, a social is the school of the club, which is noted for its annual fashion show. is the wedding ring pierced by an arrow.

Reason for the Dames organization to give working wives of students a little social life and recreation. They meet once in the same boat as themselves with little time or money to spend for fun. By getting together for a monthly social meeting and perhaps group project meetings in-between, they find a new spirit of morale boost.

LITERATURE CAN BE SCREAMS!

To some, the tiresome days of reading, days that can be more happily devoted to healthful winter activities like skiing, tobogganing, and three card monte, the column may present digests of some classic novels that are sure to come up in your lit courses.

The Scarlet Letter

This is a heart rending story of a humble Boston lass named Hester Prynne who was so poor that she does not have enough to eat, nor a roof to cover her head. But she is a brave, brazen wench and she never complains and to add further to her misery she is rewarded, in the autumn of 1850 she wins a football scholarship to Alabama.

Hester works hard and makes the varsity and wins her letter. Every Sunday she sits at a training table conference honors, and along comes the War Between the States, and football, alas, is dropped for the duration.

Poor Hester goes back to Boston. It is a bitter cold winter, and poor Hester, alas, does not have a roof over her head, and the only warm clothing she owns is the football sweater from Alabama, but that, alas, has a big letter "A" on the front of it, and she can hardly wear such a thing in Boston where Union sentiment runs so high.

Poor Hester, alas, freezes to death.

Little Women

The Marches are a very happy family — and for no reason in particular. They are poor as snakes; they work from early morning to evening; their dear old father Philip is gone with the Union armies; and their mattresses are lumpy.

Still, nothing can dampen the spirits of madcap Meg, poetic Jo, timid Beth, animated Amy, and crazy old Marmee, as the merry March girls lovingly call their lovable mother.

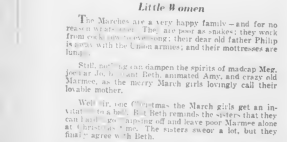
Well sir, one Christmas, the March girls get an invitation to a ball. But Beth reminds the sisters that they can't go because "shopping off and leave poor Marmee alone at Christmas time. The sisters swear a lot, but they finally agree with Beth.

Marmee, however, will not hear of it. "Land's sake, little women!" she says. "You must go to the ball and have some fun. The evil will finish and diligent snaps and comforts. Best of all, there will be merry dancing. Oh, how I love dancing! I used to love that."

"I never knew your mother could dance," cries Meg.

"Oh, sush!" cries Marmee. "You should have seen Philip merry."

"Was Philip a good merriser?" cries Jo.



"The best," cries Marmee. "Philip could merris in long-sire and reel-pe and was full of natural goodness and fresh and form and unfiltered love."

The girls are cheered to hear this and go to the ball. Marmee stays home all alone, but soon gets a wonderful surprise. Philip comes back from the war!

When the girls return from the ball, they find Marmee and Philip sitting on the sofa, crying "Huzzah!" and throwing their bonnets in the air, where they are to this day.

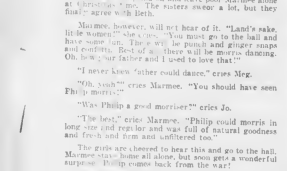
The theme from Giant may not make the Top Ten, but lately we've heard more people humming it than anything else. The album of Dimitri Tiomkin's music from the sound track is at The Robin's Nest.



If Giant rekindled your interest in James Dean, you'll like Music James Dean Lived By, music associated with his triumphs and music that suggests the man himself.

A new classical multi-record album is Offenbach's Tales of Hoffman. It's the original sound track of the London Films' production with the Sadler's Wells Chorus and the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra.

Though not "classical," destined to become classic are the new two-record Ella Fitzgerald Song Books: In the Rodgers and Hart Song Book she includes "Bewitched," "Isn't it Romantic" and "Blue Moon." In the Cole Porter Song Book we like "All of You" and "I Get a Kick Out of You." But make your own choice of favorites from the dozens of standards you only Ella sings them.

In case you have nothing to play all these records on, the Robin's Nest has whatever you need, from a slightly-used record player to an expensive hi-fi set. As owner Lewis Sorasin commented when asked to describe his stock, "We have 'em."

West Pointers Show Way In FSU Debate Tournament

West Point walked away Friday and Saturday with the Sweepstakes Trophy in the Eighth Annual Florida State University Invitational Debate Tournament.

The U. S. Military Academy cadets won eleven of twelve debates and took first place in impromptu speaking. In addition, all four West Point debaters were awarded superior individual ratings.

The team notched 77 points overall to beat our second place FSU with 64. Mercer University, Macon, Ga. was third with 28 points and Tulane University of New Orleans fourth with 21.

In finishing second, FSU debaters won nine of twelve debates including six of the superiors.

All debates were on the national debating topic "Resolved: That the United States Should Discontinue All Direct Economic Aid to Foreign Countries."

Other areas of competition were After Dinner Speaking, Individual Oratory and Impromptu Speaking. Total scores were derived from a Discontinue Direct Aid, 'Hate' Creator

By JIM McINTYRE

The position of the affirmative in the current debate on this particular issue has generally been the present program of direct economic aid to foreign countries and be discontinued for the following reasons:

First, the program of giving aid slowly has inherent ineffectiveness and is a useless part of its growth.

We have served the interests of the people by aiding countries with the program which have selfish motives.

We have, in the words of President Mollet of France, "Created enemies very near to hatred" when we have given our aid.

By direct economic aid, we have unilaterally treated a whole area to a foreign entity for use in American markets. We feel this type of aid should be discontinued, we do not subscribe to the principle of stimulating aid and completely.

MILITARY AID GOOD

We believe in continued military aid as we do believe in economic support. The evils of either would not be consistent with our basic policy nor would it serve any constructive purpose.

The negative contentions contend that the completion have not primarily threefold. They hold that direct economic aid stifles humanitarianism, serves no private needs in keeping with the best of nations from aiding communities with the economic needs of nations, and promotes the economic development of countries on a co-operative basis.

The plan of the affirmative, we will meet all the needs outlined in the case of the negative. First, our aid should be channeled through the agencies of the United Nations and other international agencies in such a way as eliminate the business-interest administration of our present program and relieve the ill will that has been created through our policies.

In this way we can be serving a definite purpose concentrating the technical aspects of democracy totality, and promote the growth of these countries on a more sound basis through a aid program with non-partisan basis.

Economic Aid Humanitarian, Also Strategic

By JEAN BLEICHER

The position of the negative teams during debate on this question has primarily been that present direct economic aid from the United States to foreign nations should not be discontinued for the following reasons. First of all, a three-fold purpose is now being served by direct economic aid. It serves for humanitarian and strategic planning, and a co-operative economic growth.

Secondly, in each of these areas there exists a continuing need for direct aid. In the humanitarian area a need can arise at any time for emergency relief, as the nation of Hungary and Suez also as drought, flood, or famine can create an immediate and pressing need for aid.

DEFENSE AID NEEDED

In strategic planning there is a need for defense aid. This type of aid makes up the largest portion of economic aid under our Mutual Security Program. It serves to help us stabilize the economy in thirteen nations, which in order to maintain adequate military preparation have strained their economy. Here direct aid indirectly supports the military security of the Free World.

Co-operative economic growth is served by aid to under developed countries. The continuing need is primarily to raise the standard of living in the Asian and African nations by helping them to develop their industry and stabilize their economy. These three needs could not be met if direct aid were discontinued.

BENEFITS U. S. TOO

Thirdly, direct aid has proven to be beneficial in the past both to the recipient nations and the United States. It has raised the standard of living in the nations receiving our aid and developed many basic industry. Perhaps the most important aspect of direct aid is the benefit to the United States. By direct aid our government retains control of the investment and thus is able to increase the security of the United States and her position in the Free World.

For these three reasons then the negative stands for the continuation of direct aid. Aside from these constructive arguments the negative also refutes the affirmative contentions as they are presented in each individual debate.

More than $2,600 was collected by Tallahassee women's club members, assisted by 128 FSU sorority girls, Sunday for the Florida division of the Heart Fund drive, according to Mrs. Zollie Maynard chairman.

Ann Kelley, president of the Panhellenic Association, was in charge of organizing the volunteers for "Heart Sunday."

Mrs Maynard said when complete totals are tabulated, she expects the amount collected to be over $5,000.

Vance Given Dismissal List —Dr. Campbell

President Doak S. Campbell Thursday told the Board of Control that journalism professor Earl Vance has been furnished a list of the reasons why his dismissal is being sought.

But Vance later denied he has been told of any specific charges against him other than "failure to cooperate with, and exhibitions an attitude of antagonism to the programs of the Dean of the School of Journalism."

The two men met at the St. Augustine meeting a letter from the American Association of University Professors asking that Vance be given a list of specific charges.

CENTRAL ISSUE

Specific charges seem to have evolved as the central issue in the proposed firing. Vance has and the university named, prove a lack of academic freedom at Florida sun day because of his basic philosophy.

President Campbell declined to make any statement concerning following the board's receipt of the AAUP letter. He said he is "not free" to discuss the charges.

The AAUP letter, sent from the national office, read in part, Campbell: "Our judgement, based on considerable information from observers, agrees with the opinion of Professor Vance that a substantial majority of the Free World.

Co-operative economic growth is served by aid to under developed countries. The continuing need is primarily to raise the standard of living in the Asian and African nations by helping them to develop their industry and stabilize their economy. These three needs could not be met if direct aid were discontinued.

'INCIDENT FOR FOUR'—A satire on flirting is one of numbers to be presented by Theatre dance group. Carroll and Charles Robinson strut before Kay Hufford, Nancy Smith, Fran Kovas, and Lynn Colley.

Starts 8:15 In Westcott

Gayle will give annual production. "An Evening of Dance," twice this week in Westcott Auditorium. Performances will begin at 8:15 p.m. Thursday and Friday.

Choreography by members of the Group is on original music by students and faculty is featured, said Lizelle Turnage, president and production manager.

The Group's program will range from serious "mood" studies to fast-moving satirical dances, said Miss Turnage.

Tickets are free to students in exchange for activity coupon 13 and will be on sale to non-students Uhhera have been asked to remind members of the audience that tardy should be taken on a first-come, first-served basis and not served the late-comers, according to Nelle Bond Dickinson, faculty director.

TIME FROM 1956

Included among the 11 members on the program are two of the more popular items from the 1956 "Evening of Dance."

They are "Paterson," a dance done to the reading of a "horror-full" poem by Amy Lowell and set to music by Debussy, and "The Female Approach," a series of satires on the exaggerated images of film stars, poodles, young girls, and "the intellectual boy-aires."

Choreographer for the former is Nancy Smith, faculty member and assistant director, who, with Malcolm Mock, the Group's otner associate director, will be featured dancers in "Patterns."

SATIRE IN BOP

The pair, who somewhat resemble each other, also have a role in "Female Approach," as "The Intellectual Bopsters." Other soloists in the number, choreographed by Miss Turnage, will be Barbara Grebel, Katherine Hartmann, and Mary Ann Mitchell. Curry Music is by Lester Bruch, a faculty member.

Choreographers include Miss Hartley, Miss Turnage, Miss Grebel, Miss Mock and Miss Dickinson.

Original music compositions have been written for dances Stan Edwards and David Wardlaw-Hamma, group members Carlos Floyd and Lester Bruch.

Pianists will include Jim Staples as well as Wardlaw-Hamma, Edwards and Bruch. Cavolyn Brown will serve as reader for "Patterns."

'UNDERSTANDABLE'

Miss Turnage said modern dance is a "more understandable" medium of conveying an idea or emotion to an audience than is ballet although as she puts it, "we don't dismiss ballet completely."

The program will also include "Memoir," described by Miss Turnage as a "stylized treatment" of the modern dance form as small town gossip and youthful flirtation.

One dance, "Adagio," set to music by Chopin and featuring dancers Miss Grebel, Mock and Curtis Robinson, will "use traditional ballet movement and will show Chopin's romantic and lyric influence of the contemporary dance."

The trip to free and dedicated He urged all graduate students and guests to register with Miss Marie Williams, director of general activities, at room 19 Longmire, to assure themselves a room.

The bus for the Sunday afternoon excursion will leave Bryan Hall at 3 and returns at 5 p.m.

Bachman Lists Progress In Student Government

WHAT EXACTLY DID STUDENT GOVERNMENT DO FIRST SEMESTER?

Student Body President Dave Bachman last week reported the progress made by the Student Senate and the Cabinet. Following is a comprehensive summary of resolutions and projects started, tried or done during the spring semester.

ATTENTION OF CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS—A Senate proposal to extend the Christmas holidays from January 3 to January 7 was passed by the administration "because of scheduling difficulties."

STUDENT LOBBYISTS—Senate voted to send student lobbyists to Tallahassee in April to instigate a good will program for Florida State University. A three-man lobbying team will ask help from the legislators in gaining facilities such as a new swimming pool, a student union building, higher assistant wages, and an enumerated school. The Villiage Vamps will entertain the lawmakers the first day of the session, and chief lobbyist Bob Murray.

REORGANIZATION OF CAMPUS CHEST—Campus Chest will be run directly by Student Government next year instead of through an independent committee due to the action of the secretary of student welfare, Bob Kline. The reorganization will combine the many activities into one large fund raising project.

LIBRARY HOURS — Senate action resulted in library closing hours being extended on Sunday from 1 to 10 p.m.

WAGE INCREASES—Students employed by Morrison's Food Services received pay raises to a minimum of 75 cents, in effect this semester. If the State Legislature accepts the Board of Control's 1956-57 budget, student assistants will receive an increase to a maximum of one dollar an hour.

JUNIOR COUNSELOR COMPENSATION—Investigations was made to give Junior counselors compensation such as that given men's house fellows. The Senate committee studying the resolution reported neither the women's residence halls nor student government can afford salaries or room compensation, but should be given 'more recognition."

REORGANIZATION OF FOW SONS — Efforts have been made to make the Pow Wow a complete student handbook. Next year's Pow Wow will include information helpful to every student," according to Bachman.

ORGANIZATION OF THE STUDENT RECREATION OFFICE — This office has been set up to help campus organizations plan parties and entertainment.

'Miss Football' Entries Due Tuesday

Entries in Miss Football, FSU cover girl contest have until next Tuesday to submit their pictures, according to sports publicity department spokesmen.

Contest sponsors have received three entries so far, but expect others to come in later. They are Nona Carpenter, Phi Mu; Pat Persuen, Reynolds and Sharon Miller, Zeta Tau Alpha.

Judges for the contest, which will be held during the half-time of the Garnet and Gold game will be Ed Whitlesey, director of public relations; Hendrix Chandler, Associated Press correspondent; Ernie White, director of the sports publicity department; Bob Leath, director of FSU publications; Al Yates, president of the Seminole Boosters, and Dr A. B. Martin, vice president.

All campus organizations are invited to enter a participant in the contest, said the department. Pictures should be mailed to Elsie White, Men's Gymnasium, Florida State University.

Franklin To Speak To Administrators

Albert Franklin of Washington, D. C., will speak at 5 p.m. tomorrow in the trophy room of the students center under the sponsorship of the local chapter of the American Society of Public Administration.

The State Department career man, who is now the dean of Stalin School of International Studies, will lecture on the training and opportunities in the field of foreign affairs at the public meeting.

Graduate Club Slates Garden Trip Sunday

The Graduate Club excursion to Killearn Gardens and other Tallahassee gardens has been set for Sunday, instead of March 14, as previously announced, according to president Don Spilie.

The trip is free, said Spilie. He urged all graduate students and guests to register with Miss Marie Williams, director of general activities, at room 19 Longmire, to assure themselves a room.

The bus for the Sunday afternoon excursion will leave Bryan Hall at 3 and returns at 5 p.m.

Israel Cannot Leave Gaza Unprotected

To college students, who may well have to fight in any Middle Eastern war, the reluctance of Israel to abandon Egyptian territory is, on the surface, exasperation personified.

Yet Israel is basically in the right, although it would be the less explosive thing were she to yield to world pressures and withdraw from the Gaza Strip and the Gulf of Aqaba.

SUPPOSE. FOR example, a foreign power occupied Staten Island or New York harbor and bombarded any ships bound in or out. The United States would be justified in attacking and holding the island until guarantees of non-aggression were secured.

Similarly, if an unfriendly power held Mexico's Lower California and from it launched raids upon San Diego and Los Angeles, would it not be necessary for this country to occupy the peninsula?

Israel is in such a position. If she withdraws from the Gaza Strip without the United Nations or some strong power sending in troops, Nasser's Egypt — which avowedly intends to destroy Israel—can be expected to resume its guerilla warfare from Gaza bases.

NASSER HAS already closed the Suez Canal to Israel, in defiance of every International treaty and convention pertaining to the Canal. He has refused, time and time again, to acknowledge international requests that he open the Canal to Israeli ships and Israeli-bound vessels of other nations. But for Israel to ship goods to and receive imports from east African or South Asian countries, she can only use the Gulf of Aqaba, which opens directly upon the Red Sea, bypassing the Suez Canal. Egypt, however, held fortified islands at the mouth of the Gulf and prevented Israeli traffic. So Israel seized the Islands.

Now, it is open to debate whether Great Britain and the United Nations chose the wisest course in the creation of an independent Israel, by the partition of Palestine. This should not delude Israel's critics. Israel does exist, that she has a stable and progressive government; that she is without question the most democratic country in the Middle East. Deserts, arid for ages under the Arabs, have bloomed, thanks to the skill of Israeli scientists.

THE LITTLE NATION of Israel, whose citizen army sent the vaunted troops of Egypt, armed with the Russian-made weapons, scurrying for safety, has repeatedly pledged its willingness to abandon Gaza and Aqaba just as soon as some international power concerned with world peace guarantees her safety. Otherwise, she will hold the disputed areas.

Egypt has shown some inclination to agree to the stationing of United Nations troops in Gaza. Accession is still awaited in regard to Aqaba. But the threat of U. N. sanctions—economic boycotts and embargoes—on Israel still exists— and the United States government seems willing to support them. Paradoxically, Israel is the

Food Prices Are Too High

No limits on prices were written into the food services contract when it was awarded to the Morrison's company last summer.

The administration explained that none were thought necessary because the food service, as a profit-oriented enterprise, would fail if it did not win and hold student good will.

ONE IMPORTANT FACT was overlooked by this reasoning. University students are captive consumers.

Students do not have time to go off campus for the breakfast and noon meals, and not too often for the evening meal. Convenience is important to them. Even when they have the time, restaurant prices generally are too high.

STUDENTS ARE complaining of high prices and small portions. Certainly many of these complaints are justified. The editors of this newspaper have seen items of food sold a la carte at what nearly was four times their going price in a grocery store—and a 400 per cent markup implies either managerial inefficiency, or a grievous bite by the profit bug, or both.

It is known that many of the breads and pastries are made by students in the Baking Science department, who do so for practice and not for pay. The products are sold by the food services—15 cents for a thin slice of pie. How much of this goes to the university? How much is profit?

Salads served in the Seminole Club are often stale. Food is too often cold. No effort seems to be made to anticipate long lines and open extra counters so that students won't have to spend twenty minutes in line.

STUDENTS ARE HERE primarily to learn and not to spend fortunes on food. A decent diet is a requisite for success in anything—education included. Therefore the university, if it is going to bother at all with a food service, ought to see that it gives students decent service.

We have been unable to determine whether the food services contract is of a one-year, or longer, duration. But whenever it expires, we think that the university should insist upon a provision in the new contract offered for bidding: one designed to favor the students over excess profit.

Debating Should Get More Support

Success of Florida State University's annual Invitational Debate Tournament, held over the weekend, has momentarily focused public attention on this traditionally dialogue type of competition.

Interest, however, will doubtless die out shortly. Students and people-at-large do not seem to be so enthusiastic over the art of debate as they once were.

CURRENTLY, AT FSU, debating is the major field of interest of only a small number of students. Though it is not evident in view of the imposing number of trophies won, debating here is the cult of only a few dozen authorities.

SOME SEE THE decline of debating as part of an immensely larger trend—one toward lesser emphasis on all sports declining individual effort. They point to the lack of importance of such sports as boxing and wrestling and the triumph of football, basketball, baseball and the like—all team sports.

Other complaints that debating is desirable but declining, are in question. Is there not some means of encouraging it, of causing it to once again prosper?

WE BELIEVE THAT the answer to both questions is demonstrated in certain other fields. When, a little one example, FSU decided in go "big-time" in football, it began offering scholarships and other forms of assistance to the participants.

The people who handle FSU's purse strings might well consider opening them a little for the debaters. We doubt that they would deny debating's value, even when compared with such a sport as football.

IF SCHOLARSHIPS were offered to students with debating ability, high school students would have a great deal more incentive to become debaters. In addition, some students who would like to be debaters anyhow might not have to take jobs in stores for lack of funds to go to a university.

We are probably idealistic to suggest that educators—or, at least, those who handle Florida's educational budgets—will view big-time debating with such favor as they do big-time athletics. But it is worthy of consideration—and if brought about, would be of invaluable assistance to those who have so commendably worked to promote debating's success at FSU.

Come, Now - Is U.S. Economy Good Or Bad?

It's no wonder that Washington, D. C., rivals Florida as a tourist center — many strange and unusual things occur there.

Lately, for instance, we citizens have been treated to the singular anomaly of some Republicans' chanting of the old "Peace, Progress, Prosperity" theme, while, at the same time others talk of haircurling economic ills.

IT SEEMS that the Republicans, having just laid down their "Prosperity is at an all-time high" trumpets, are now whimpering like a group of Charlie Wilson's hound dogs. Their new melody, set to the tune of "Don't Step On My Blue Suede Economy", is to the effect that the U. S. financial condition is so "delicately balanced" that a Roosevelt - Truman - type budget will damage it.

Plural harmonies such as this are fine for that kind of music, but one finds them somewhat disconcerting in the political arena—especially when they come from different sides of the same mouth.

THESE CURIOUS inconsistencies, however, are one of the reasons why Republican politics are so interesting and entertaining to watch. We expect to see plenty more of them as the party begins its four-year cold campaign to elect Richard Milhous Nixon President.

Big Richard, by the way, is not to be confused with the Little Richard of Rock 'n' Roll endeavor. Big Richard doesn't know how to play a guitar.

ABOUT COEDS: ACP.

They can be found in all places lounging on, draping themselves leaning at a bar, busting to, and traipsing from. She is pride with a pony tail, nonchalance with a note book, optimism with an overcoat, and the epitome of womanhood in wool.

A COED IS a curious mixture. She has the ratling habit of a canary and displays the ferocity of a mouthful trout. To her admirers she has the mind of Einstein, the looks of Kim, the personality of Grace, and the figure of Monroe.

She leads a martyr's life. No one else could stand time limits on telephone calls, the frustration of stolen bobby-pins, or the pain of waiting for a date.

BY JIM McINTYRE

Intelligent Faith Week is here and its opinions are flying fast and furious. Attitudes pro and con are being expressed in every concerned conversation as students attempt to evaluate the significance of such a week and its role in the campus routine.

One student expressed his disgust with the entire idea by speaking of the "Soul-saving" invading the campus as the assassin in their midst. Being the campus back to God." Another student emits a note of contempt by referring to those speakers who differ in interpretation from his own particular religious orientation as a group of "infidels who attempt to water down religion to an ethical code." A third admits to complete indifference to the whole idea.

AND YET, THE program presented to students this year is one of the most well-rounded programs imaginable. The speakers represent a diversity of viewpoints with a singleness of purpose and a healthy respect for the attitudes of others. They are not here on an evangelistic crusade, nor are they here to water down what religion somehow might already have.

They are here to try to show students the importance of the integration of religion into a lifetime of living. A better name for the session might be "Religion-in-Life" week, for that is the prime purpose of it all.

DR. LOUIS Evans, one of the nation's outstanding religious leaders, suggested this quite graphically in a talk to a group of students in the Seminole Club Music Hall yesterday morning. Dr. Evans mentioned the need for integration of the trichotomy of human existence: Body, Mind, and Soul. It was in this way that he emphasized the need for religion in life.

Dr. Evans, in speaking of this need, told of a club he helped form in Hollywood while minister of a large church in that city. The group started out as a meeting of minds involving medical and clerical personnel. There were ten minutes and ten doctors involved. The group soon branched out to include psychologists as well.

THERE ARE PROBLEMS in the development of personality that can be solved not within the narrow confines of any of these fields. Dr. Evans pointed to concrete examples of cases that have been impossible for him to solve personally, cases that were helped only through medical or psychological means.

The league behind the Chautauqua? It seems to have been that life comes into completeness through an amalgamation of all these factors, and that professional people that claims to have all the tools for solving human problems has no place in the world of reality.

AND WHAT DOES this have to do with our original statements about student apathy and apaths? Nowhere in the future did Dr. Evans make any emotional appeal to accept his particular brand of religion. Nor did any speaker down any of the content of his speech in order to appease any particular intellectual element present. His appeal was to everyone for a re-examination of their philosophy of life.

So, before you make any criticism of the week, before you mentalize out loud in order to be in step with the current of student opinion, attend some of the sessions that are being held around the campus today and tomorrow. Find out just what is being done and what the speakers are attempting to do.

Then you will have some basis for your criticism.

Liberals All Wet

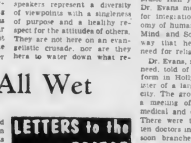
TO THE EDITOR:

In answer to the editorialized query Flambeau's Integration Support: Just How Radical Has It Been?" I should like to state the following:

1. "Radical," in present-day Oncgeneration, communist investigation, America, generally means left-wing. Organizations a bit too far to the left are on the various loyalty lists such as the Air Force's Cobra, such as the NAACP, are not. Many magazines such as the Reporter, New Republic and newspapers such as the Washington Post are very liberal.

2. One is known by the company kept. The ideas presented by many sources make them thought of as "left." The left has many bearers of standard, common ideas sometimes called the liberal line. One of these is miscegenation. This is where the Flambeau enters.

3. While the Flambeau, in my opinion, is not overtly "leftist," it has consistently and unobtrusively supported what I consider "radical" issues. This unobjective treatment a repeat of the liberal stamp. The following example will demonstrate.



In the February 25, 1957, TIME, under a heading "Miracle on the Potomac," praised the more reasonable Judgment" (to the Wash. D. C. Congressional look at integration "From Washington's Assistant School Superintendent Carl Corbin:

"The Atlanta speech, written before the Davis Subcommittee Report, was sponsored by (above) (does not challenge or refute the findings of the subcommittee . . . but denounces them as one-sided "report and biased." It does not dispute the evidence of increased truancy, theft, vandalism and sex offenses in integrated schools . . .

In short, it gives little or no facts Naysiders does the Flambeau.

Add it up: spokesmen facts, NAACP political pull, The Washington Post TIME, and national press coverage. It hit the Democrat).

Teachers' Pay Increase Needed

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

No so long ago I had a protracted argument with a young lady who insisted that anyone who'd spend his life teaching would be either lazy or incompetent or both.

Ringing in my ears were the words of wisdom she had to say was quitting FSU to enroll in the local technical school in order to escape humanities courses.

"Technology is the only thing necessary to get ahead!" he fairly shrieked.

Charles Van Doren, a university professor who has won almost $150,000 on a quiz show, receives letters from parents thanking him for making education seem worthwhile to their children—they saw that it "pays."

MAYBE OUR society needs to be brainwashed.

We pay our teachers about as poorly as we pay our policemen—and expect more from them than from anyone else.

Our democratic political system is founded on the assumption that men will have the knowledge to vote wisely—and we sneer at those who would teach them.

THE COLLEGE professor shares with the mother-in-law the dubious honor of being America's most laughed-at citizen.

We respect as successful men the wheeler heads of our huge technical corporations and admire the patient men who pioneer in medicine, but we think mathematics and languages they regard as unmanly.

The schools are put under political control that is often far from altruistic, yet most teachers dare not enter politics even in school hours. He who teaches may not have mind of his own.

THE WITHERED colonial adage that teachers are people who've failed in everything else still inflicts American minds.

There seems to be a cynical distrust of people who are willing to spend their lives trying to improve the lives of others whether or not the infrequent pleas for small salary raises are granted.

Doctors do not share this odium. They make more money. Yet they have time to enjoy it. They share, with teachers, the distinction of being misunderstood but dedicated men.

IF TEACHERS ARE all lazy or incompetent why do we have teachers, who rarely get much salary for their work?

We've enjoyed talking and laughing about the Chautauqua, but at last we realized that the pupil demand is outstripping the supply of teachers and facilities.

One of these mornings America will wake up and there'll be no one to teach her children, no buildings in which to teach them, no government, history, religion, physical education, and the other subjects we take for granted.

PERHAPS ONE of the reasons is that we succeeded in educating the current crop of youth is that nothing pays unless in money.

If there are lazy or incompetent people in education, two things can get them out: raising of the standards, and raising of the salaries.

A TEACHER would be the last one to say that there's anything wrong with money. It should be shared with the teachers, however. This country has demanded the utmost from them and at the same time reviled them and starved them. It has said, "Teach our young and form in the other corner of its mouth has warned, "Knowledge is dangerous!"

Must we wait until too late to admit the error?

A REPRINT

Tell Your Ideas

(ACP)—Part of the challenge American students face is the responsibility to think and to publish, individually, their opinions and opinion. TECHNOLOGY NEWS Illinois Institute of Technology, Chicago, puts it this way:

WHY? When was the last time you challenged a statement made in a classroom or professor made? Last week, last month or last year? It's a fact that you are probably one of the easiest audiences the professor has. If you sit in your seaten chair absorbing the statements of your professor like a sponge as the gospel truth, you probably will lose the individuality just as fast when the pressure is put on you. Rather will you agree with what he has said than to disagree with him. Deductive reasoning from the lecture is thus thought to be human; therefore, they must be wrong once in a while. When the student does not express his statements so by him without question, he is leaving himself open to accepting false and predjudice ideas.

Carl Sandberg whose poetry is considered to have contained some wisdom, stated recently, that the world is full of poetry that could be written in a book titled, "Challenge of Ideas."

Many times the small three letter word, WHY has caused spectacular events. Einstein, Columbus and Galileo are just a few of the great people who asked themselves why and delved further to investigate.

You may say to yourself you are not out to discover new worlds. One can find though a richer, fuller life with complete and better understanding of the things in our environment.

One More Goal

Assuming that FSU's high-scoring sophomore guard Hugh Durham set a new sophomore record here last night, he needed two points: the Louisville, Ky. star has at least one other game this season.

He seems fairly to become the second player in the history of the school to score 500 points or more in a season, possibly the first or fourth in the history of the state.

Durham had 467 points going into last night's battle, and it was impossible that he will be held short of 500, barring a snake or something similar.

The only other player in history to do it is of course, Jimmy Rayl who had 517 and 743 points respectively in his last two years.

Rayl also holds the career record of 1,620 points but here again has a tough task for Orr did it in four years while Durham can play just three.

Orr also has the highest career average, among the other collection of records he holds. He averaged 20.6 points a game in his four years, including 19.7 the final season.

Since Durham as a sophomore is averaging 20.3 and he seems to definitely improve, this is one mark he could drop before season's end.

Here are the highest five season totals by past FSU players:

Orr 1955-56 - 743
Orr 1954-55 - 517
Jon Hartman (1950-51) 493
Bert Weinzapf (1952-53) 468
Bernie Hicks (1954-55) 451

Durham, as is obvious, has already passed two of these highs to for a season and Hartman's total seems also sure to be passed by the Louisville mph.

The only two teams to hold Durham under 20 points in the 23 games have been Florida Southern (16, Feb. 5) and Miami (18, Saturday night).

The 40-game scoring skein started with his 42-point explosion against Stetson, the record-breaking performance here.

Coach Bud Kennedy admits he'd have a tough time choosing between Orr, Weinke and Hartman as the best he's coached, then added gratefully, "I guess we'll have to add Durham to the list in another two years."

Kennedy says he's dickering to get the Seminole cagers into the Cincinnati holiday tourney next year . . . The Tribesmen followed the Semes' final tourney this season and the Carrousel Orange Bowl tourney a year before . . . Next year's cage schedule should still be the best in history, but it won't be certain anything . . .

Month after the season ends this Saturday in New Orleans, Coach Bill Lee will leave for Kentucky and the Kentucky state high school tournament, on a recruiting tour, if you like that term . . . He plans to go through Indiana also and wind up on the tour at the NCAA tournament where he will likely complete scheduling.

Miami Halts Cagers' Win Skein

Swimmers Add Two Victories

By TOM HALE
Flambeau Sports Writer

Florida State's swim team added another dual win and an AAU victory to their record over this past weekend.

Friday night the Seminoles turned back an undermanned University of Georgia team to the tune of 61-25. The next day they swept the Georgia AAU's by gathering 69 points to their nearest rival's 43 points.

In the FSU-Ga. meet the Tribe gathered seven out of 10 first places. The only double winner was Georgia's Don Blankinship who won both distance events.

The other Georgia first place came in diving. The FSU 400 medley relay team of Abbott, Julian, Jacobs, and Tschirret broke a pool and school record by turning in a time of 4:03.8.

FSU's dual meet record thus far this year stands at 5-2 with two contests to go.

FAST START

The Seminoles got off to a fast start in the AAU meet by winning the first relay. They never relinquished the lead.

The team went on to capture four first places including a photo-finish win in the 100 yd. free style between FSU's Paul Hammond and Jim Julian. Winner Julian's time of 52.9 broke a school record of 53.2 set five years ago by Dick Wells.

The other victories in the AAU meet were Georgia with 43 points, Metro Miami got fourth with 36 points, Emory was fifth with 22 and Georgia Tech, who had beaten FSU earlier in the season came in last with 11 points.

WHO'S GOT IT AND WHERE IS IT. Bobby Wallis (12) finally came up with the basketball fooling three of Loyola's cagers that had the same idea.

Freshman Gymnast Malmlin Rated High By Coach Price

By MIKE PLATTIS
Flambeau Sports Writer

They call him "The Swede."

Larry Malmlin first lept his fine physique to gymnastics in 1949 in Stockholm, and progressed Olympic team in the all-around side horse Larry will be a defi-

Larry Malmlin

This showing paved the way for a place on the 1952 Swedish Olympic team and a trip to Helsinki.

In 1955 with the Swedish National team on tour of the USA, Larry visited FSU long enough for gym mentor Hartley Price to persuade him to return. This time as a freshman.

To come to FSU in the fall of 1956 meant enrolling before beginning a college education this past semester and a journey to Melbourne and competition in the 1956 Olympics.

Earlier in the year Malmlin qualified in pre-Olympic trials in Stockholm by taking second in the all-around.

Instead, without benefit of a high school education, Larry took an entrance test and passed it eleven years after attending grammar school.

An electrician by trade, the 27-year-old athlete traded his gymnastic prowess for an education and is looking forward to the day when he will return to Sweden to work in industrial psychology.

Being a freshman and amiable in comport in intercollegiate meets, Malmlin will be content to enter only AAU competition this year.

He made his initial appearance for Florida State in the Florida AAU and moved out teammate Chick Cleo, NAAU champ in wrestling-ers and placed second to Armando Vega of Penn State and the rest of American.

SN Captures Football Title

The tough football season got a roaring windup last Friday afternoon when Sigma Nu the frat champs came from behind in the last quarter . . . beat out the Rebels of West Hall, the dorm champs, by a 12-7 score.

Auer took a pass and scored over in the second quarter for the Rebs with Davis adding the extra point on a pass.

In the third quarter Benner took a pass and went 38 yards to score but missed the extra point and the quarter ended with the dorm champs ahead 7-6.

In the final session Hauser intercepted a Rebel throw and went all the way to score the winning touchdown, and then went back to his batting practice.

The Rebels outscored Sigma Nu in free downs 11-8.

VOLLEYBALL

Tonight at 7 the fraternity volleyball season opens with all teams scheduled for a 2 out of 3 game match. The first round of fraternity badminton doubles is also on in the men's gym at the same time.

The fraternities play again Thursday night and play again on Saturday morning.

The dorm teams, volleyball and badminton, begin tomorrow night at 7 and also play on Friday night.

Complete drawings and schedules are posted on the Student Center flannole bulletin board.

Tracksters Triumph At Raleigh Meet

Paced by Tenney Brown, Florida State University's track team won the non-conference title in the Atlantic Coast Conference Indoor Games Friday at Raleigh, N.C.

The Seminoles posted a team total of 30 points, way out in front of second place Georgia who finished with 23.

Brown took first place in the 70-yard high hurdles and fourth in the shot put. Brown's time in the high hurdles was 9.3.

Other point makers for the Tribe were Charles Watson, third in the high hurdles and 60-yard run, and Mike Conley with a second place in the mile run.

Hurricanes' Roar Stills Tribe, 98-82

Six Miami basketball players hit for double figures in the point column last Saturday night as the Hurricanes trounced Florida State 98-82 in Miami.

The Seminoles took a 6-3 FIBC record into the game last night against the Spartans of Tampa. This was the last FIBC game for the Tribe and also the last home game of the season.

FSU jumped off to an early 17-4 lead against Miami but at the half the Canes had a 49-43 advantage. Miami ended its season with an 8-2 FIBC record which assures them of at least a tie for the FIBC championship.

The loss brought the Semi-Noles overall record to eight wins against 15 defeats.

18 FOR DURHAM

Hugh Durham, FSU scoring demon, made 18 points for the evening which left him only two points away from the Tribe record of points scored in one season for a sophomore.

The record is 468 set by Hasm Werzac in 1953. The Seminoles have three remaining games to play however, and Durham looks like a sure bet to take the record.

Bob Waits, second leading scorer for the Tribe, labored his ankle early in the second half and was forced to leave the game. Waits had 12 points before departing. Larry Strom continued his scoring streak by flipping in 15 markers.

Gene Sraze of Miami was the team scorer for the game with 22. Also scoring high for the Hurricanes was Pete Thomas with 14 and Ed Morris who had 13.

Injured Frosh Five Loses To 'Canes

Miami's Baby Hurricanes stopped Jimmy Cox's freshmen 84-70 Saturday night and avenged an earlier 79-77 loss at Tallahassee.

Dick Bergdoff Miamia's 6-11 center, pushed 25 points through the hoop, setting an all-time scoring mark for UM freshmen by upping his season total to 326.

Charlie Rogers paced Seminole scoring with eight field goals for 16 points, followed closely by Jerry Hohne, who replaced Adams in the starting lineup and tallied 15.

Jim Savage, current scoring leader of the frosh team, is out for the season with a broken ankle, which occurred in last week's 86-72 loss to Chipola.

Adding to Cox's troubles, starting guard Tom Munson suffered an attack of food poisoning and played only a few opening minutes before retiring.

Committee Studying Grad Class Relations

A committee to look into methods of bettering the lot of graduate students at Florida State University has begun operations.

The Graduate Committee, formed as a result of a 1954 study of the graduate students' "welfare and happiness", held its first meeting Thursday and discussed problems encountered by the group.

VITAL ISSUE

Most vital issue discussed at the Thursday meeting was that of providing adequate housing for married graduate students. No concrete recommendations were made.

Other topics mentioned were social and recreational programs, class organization and its relation to student government, poor communication among graduate students, and the breakdown of student Activity Fee funds in relation to benefits provided graduate students.

Chairman of the Graduate Committee, Dr. Ralph Whitherspoon, later said the success of the committee's work "depends on the people it concerns, the graduate student." He said graduate students who have problems should bring them to the committee's attention.

POLLS AND SURVEYS

The committee has no actual power to carry out proposals for the graduate students. Instead, it studies the problems brought before it, using polls and surveys if necessary, and makes recommendations to the departments with power to act.

Dr. Whitherspoon said the main advantage of the committee's work will be that it will have "facts to back up our recommendations."

He said members of the committee are very enthusiastic about possibilities of helping graduate students.

Attending the first meeting were Dr. Whitherspoon and Carothers, Dr. Robert Briggs, Dr. Ernest Cason and Mr. Robert Clapp, in addition to Graduate Club president Don Spille and graduate students Mary Ellen Durrer, Leon Cutler and William Malley.

Israel Cannot

ically, the United States now threatens little Israel for daring to defend herself. We value the friendship of Egypt—whose dictator speaks and acts like the late, unlamented Hitler—more, it seems.

OUR SECRETARY OF

State speaks of "moral force", which he is sure will keep Egypt from renewing attacks on Israel, once the Gaza Strip and Gulf of Aqaba are open territory. Did "moral force" mean anything to Poland in 1939? Did "moral force" mean anything at Pearl Harbor? Did "moral force" count for much at the 38th parallel? Our Secretary of State must realize that the world is not entirely moral.

Our only course of action, if we treasure world peace, is to press within the United Nations for U. N. occupation of the disputed territory — and hold our armed forces ready to participate in this occupation. It would be cheaper, and less bloody, than fighting a war.

Due To Crowded Conditions

Night, Saturday Classes May Be In Store: Stickle

Unless some other method is found to alleviate the crowded classroom conditions at FSU, students may be faced with the prospects of more night and Saturday classes.

The present system puts a heavy burden on both equipment and teachers, according to Dr. Hugh Buckler, head of the educational research department. Dr. Stickler pointed out in an interview that 94 per cent of the student body attends classes between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. on Monday through Friday, while approximately 6 per cent attend classes after 5 p.m. or on Saturday.

"The building problem is serious," said Dr. Stickler. However, "if adequate space and buildings are approved for the university, extension of the school hours would be improbable."

He added that this extension would most likely be put into operation before any other plans.

Dr. Stickler discounted the belief that FSU might find an answer to its problems in the four quarter division of the scholastic year that the university abandoned in 1950.

A study conducted to determine the success of the four quarter system showed that it left both students and professors exhausted from increased demands, he said.

Looking toward the future, when enrollment may exceed 18,000, Dr. Stickler admitted the possibility of a tri-semester plan. The scholastic year would be divided into three 16-week semesters. According to this plan, 48 weeks would be equivalent to a regular scholastic year.

Dr. Stickler noted the possibilities and limitations of such a plan.

It would serve more students with less equipment.

Graduation would be possible in three years instead of the regular four year stint.

Vacations would be only two weeks a year.

The plan is not part of the four day educational culture term.

Summer work would be available.

It would cause a lack of maturing factors of a student college.

DORM GOURMETS

ACP—A pea corn popper may be the only cooking equipment a dormitory coed may have at hand, but if she follows the lead of young women who attend Texas State College for Women, she can be quite a cook.

Boiling water for coffee or tea in the popper is elementary, says the DAILY LASSO. Texas coeds make oyster stew, pudding, chili and chow mein in theirs for midnight snacks and use the popper to warm rolls, boil eggs and make cereal at breakfast-time.

Stick to the popper for making pop corn, too, they advise. One coed tried to use her electric coffee pot to make pop corn—with sad results.

DANFORD RESIGNS POST AS FSU ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

No Reason Given As High Official 'Disappears' — Martin Says Football Split Has No Bearing

Dr. Howard Danford yesterday resigned "effective immediately" as director of athletics and physical education for men.

He announced a week early to Chancellor from Germany, Danford joined in a letter of resignation to Dr. Mode Stone, head of the school of education, and

No one has been able to confirm since.

According to a statement from C. A. B Martin vice-president of the university "has no reason to believe Danford's resignation is connected in any way to doing with the recent split between the department of football and the athletic department.

The negotiations came recently when Tom Nugent, head football coach, signed a three-year contract at $13,000 a year which would sep separated football from the athletic department.

The post of Director of Athletics pays $5,600 a year.

Kenneth Mueller, professor of physical education who in 1955 was assumed the position of acting director in Danford's absence will continue to serve in that capacity.

Dr. Danford was in Germany since his second six week tour for the U.S. Army's volleyball team at the request of the Commander in Chief of United States Army Europe.

Dr. Danford served as director of athletics and physical education for men since his arrival here in 1947. He previously served for seven years as director of health, physical education and athletics in the Madison, Wisconsin public school system.

A graduate of Ohio University he received his master's and doctorate degree from New York University in 1942.

Segregation Aids Asian Red Spread

Segregation in the United States is contributing to the spread of communism in Asia, a Philippine missionary told a Florida State University audience Tuesday night.

The Rev. C. L. Spottswood, Methodist missionary on home furlough, said incidents of racial disturbance in this country are exploited not merely by communists but by all of Asia.

The speaker, on campus for FSU's Intelligent Faith Week, told an American Studies lecture audience that "for better or for worse, we Americans have talked too much of brotherhood

"Now" he said, "the Asians are beginning to judge us by what we say. One billion 200 million people of Asia are on one side of this issue. They're on the side of the underdog.

The Rev. Mr. Spottswood said that while the people of Asia are not Negroid they are of skin colors other than white — and keenly resent American segregation.

"You ought to see what American cans have to undergo in Asia," he said. "They feel like we're a bunch of hypocrites."

He called upon "people of good will on both sides" to solve the segregation problem, which he said laws and court orders alone cannot deal with.

"The communists are winning

Massey Assigned FSU Insurance

A new insurance agent Harry Massey, vice president of Sanford Collins has been assigned to service student insurance accounts in that agency according to Dave Bachman, student body president.

Tourney In Mobile

Four Enter Azalea Debate

Four Florida State University debaters are taking part in the Azalea Tournament at Mobile today and tomorrow. Spring Hill College in Mobile is the host for the tournament in which several universities in the Southeast are competing.

FSU debaters are Jim McIntyre and Bob Combs affirmative; and Jack Greenfield and Jean Rhodes negative. The debaters have assigned to argue the national intercollegiate debate question, resolved, that the United States should discontinue direct economic aid to foreign countries."

The next debate tournament the debaters will be the International debate with England here Tuesday.

Fred Roberts and Arnold Green will participate against the English debaters, Gareth Morgan, University of Bristol and Gordon Davis, University College of North Wales, Bangor on the topic "That Imperialism is Compatible With Democracy."

Students and faculty are invited to the debate which will begin at 8 p.m. in Opperman. The English debaters will take the affirmative on FSU the negative. The style of debate will be British, which is quite competitive than American in that no discussion team will be determined by no audience members of the audience are invited to comment and ask the debaters questions.

Senate Survey Airs Student Infirmary View

By CHARLET POITEVINT

Diane Godin, senator leading the Student Senate's investigation of the Infirmary, reported Wednesday a survey made by a Senate committee backed up complaints of excessive ants, infrequent change of sheets and apathy of staff members.

Her report, however, limited only one side of the question, and Senate set the matter aside till the committee can get the official viewpoint of the infirmary administration.

Senator Godin said she apparently wasn't the only infirmary complainer. She reported "I received testimony of students receiving treated beer.

A junior whose case was diagnosed as glandular fever complained that she was put out of order, and the nurse said the beds were reserved. The beds were mixed up so a patient was given the wrong medicine (since the sick were "unbearable") put into food, medicine, bed and drinking water, and the doctor were not changed for four days and then only when the patient complained, she said.

'ANTS FLIES'

A freshman recovering from appendectomy complications said the sheets and blankets were in shreds, the sofa and flies got into the bed, and there was no one to answer the phone. Senator Godin declared.

Another freshman who had been in the infirmary for an ear infection said the bathroom was not clean and the sheets were not changed for a week, she reported. The bed did not raise, making it impossible to eat in comfort without spilling food and the freshman also complained of the ants, said Miss Godin.

A girl about to be given an allergy shot said that while she was waiting the nurse laid the hypodermic needle down on a table where ants crawled all over it, the Senator asserted.

Another complaint from the students was that the aamp pills are given to everyone and the patients are not thoroughly examined before medicine is administered, she alleged.

A frequent criticism was that the rooms lacked sufficient furniture.

NEW RULE?

In discussing the situation, Senator Betty Faye Horner said she knew of a case in which a girl who feared she had appendicitis called four doctors so Tallahassee but all refused to attend because of a university regulation pro-

Challenged Soviet Might

Hungarian's Fight For Freedom Leads To FSU-To Sign Up Today

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

A Hungarian freedom fighter, one of a nation who challenged the might of the Soviet Union, registers today as a Florida State University student.

Levente Osvath, 23, arrived yesterday by train and will enroll in the department of metorology. He has been awarded a student government scholarship.

Four months ago he fought in the streets of Hungary against Russian tanks and troops, and when the resistance was crushed escaped into Austria.

Osvath, a friendly, slightly-built young man, was interviewed yesterday afternoon with the aid of an interpreter, Hildegarde Wagner, a graduate student in languages, who speaks Hungarian. Though he was rated "superior" in a six-weeks English and American-life orientation course at Bard College, near New York, he apparently is not confident of speaking the English language. He can, however, read it well.

SHY AT FIRST

Shy at first, he began earnestly to explain, as questions were put to him, the courageous farm of the Hungarian people for freedom.

The beginnings of the revolution, he explained through Miss Wagner, were confused, but it was accepted and welcomed by all the people—even the Hungarian army and Air Force, into which he had been drafted.

He was at an air field in the country, on assignment as a meteorologist, when the fighting broke out in Budapest. He and his fellow airmen gathered food from friendly peasants and farms—to send to the freedom fighters of Budapest.

Soon the base was encircled

Flambo Music Critics Spurned By Faculty

By OSCAR JOHNSON

Members of the School of Music faculty have asked that student music reviewers for the Florida Flambeau cease writing reviews of faculty recitals.

No specific reasons were announced, and Music School officials said they did not want to make any statement regarding the action. They would not confirm the request.

The request resulted from a meeting held Tuesday, February 19. Faculty members asked Dean Karl O. Kuerstiner of the School of Music to relay the request to the students.

Involved are David Ward-Steinman and Ryan Edwards, both senior music students. Ward-Steinman has been writing regularly for the Flambeau since the fall semester of 1955-56. Edwards began as a music columnist in the Summer Flambeau. They have alternated during the current year.

Asked to confirm reports of the action, Dean Kuerstiner said only that Edwards and Ward-Steinman "will be able to tell you all you want to know."

Edwards said Ward-Steinman and he have not made any definite decision following the action. He said they are planning to draft a letter for the Student School faculty.

Court Convicts Three Students In Bus Dispute

Violated Seat Assignment Law

By SUE LOWELL

FSU student Joe Spagna and two Negro students from Florida A&M University were convicted in Municipal Court Wednesday morning of violating Tallahassee's bus seat assignment law.

Spagna, Johnny Herndon and Leonard Speed, who entered a city bus together on January 19 were accused of refusing to keep seats assigned them by bus driver Emory Elkins.

The students were convicted by municipal judge John Rudd, who overruled a defense motion for acquittal on the grounds that the seating ordinance is unconstitutional.

Attorney for the defense was Francisco Rodrigues, state NAACP Chief Counsel, and attorney for the Tallahassee Inter-Civic Council, which has spearheaded a campaign to end segregation on buses.

Rodrigues based his case on the arguments that the bus seating ordinance is unconstitutional in that it is a desire for evading the Supreme Court's decision on segregation.

'LEGAL MONSTROSITY'

Referring to Elkins' agreements that he must seat passengers "at all times according to weight, taking into consideration health hazards," and that seats are assigned to "preserve good transquility and the good will of the community," the defense attorney stated, "one would be blind not to see the basic purpose behind the legal monstrosity."

In defense of the city ordinance, prosecuting attorney Ed Hill stated that people are also assigned seats on airplanes, trains, and inter-city buses. "There is no reason," he said, "to presume that seating passengers on a city bus is unconstitutional whereas they are on these other methods of transportation. Also, everyone knows what happens in a car if all the passengers get in the back seat. The same is true if they all sit on one side."

Health hazards," according to Hill, might occur when a woman dressed for a shopping trip to town was forced to sit next to "someone that had been working in the plant—or a man with a skin disease

ACROSS AISLE

"Peace, tranquility and good will are hard to define." Hill said, but across ran identify their absence." Elkins had stated previously that he seated the students across the aisle from each other in order to let them talk and to preserve "peace and tranquility."

The three students were not asked to stand during the two hour trial, and sentencing was postponed until Monday when at 10:30 am the court will hear a motion for a new trial.

Maximum penalty for the offense is a $500 fine and 60 days in jail.

APPEALS EXPECTED

The city court decision is expected to result in an appeals, which may so as high as the Supreme Court.

Among FSU students polled after the trial, Judge Rudd's verdict drew mixed response, strong in nature whichever side it took.

A sophomore who asked that her name be withheld, laughed at the idea of the law being

Students Leave Food Service With Empty Stomach, Wallet

The issue of socialism versus private enterprise seems to have hit this campus in a manner that each student can readily comprehend.

When one leaves an eating establishment with neither a full belly nor a full wallet, he has good reason to ponder over the source of both ills. Evidently, this condition has afflicted quite a few of the students who dine at Morrison's Food Service facilities on campus.

MANY OF these students, we feel sure, may ask whether a return to the old form of university administration of campus food services is in order.

Now, we are not ones to strike the bells of socialism for socialism's sake. Socialism would not necessarily affect an improvement over the present campus food situation. Remember, there were complaints long before Morrison's ever came here.

Granted that this is the case, it has been demonstrated that private management is not necessarily a through high-way to the land of milk and honey. One has only to shell out high prices for cardboard-like roast beef, or munch on a piece of mushy salad to recognize that all is not good now that Morrison's is handling things.

WHERE, THEN, may one turn to find relief—to find soothing relief for over-wrought stomach linings and also restore the pocketbook's healthy bulge?

We believe that in this particular case the source of trouble is that the food services are making too much money. They seem to be skimping on food portions, methods of preparation, and even equipment for storage and handling.

We do not accuse the employees of Morrison's food service of attempting to give the students the least for their money. We believe that most, if not all of them, have a genuine desire to do just the opposite—provide the best of food for the least possible exchequer.

But they seem to be laboring under a severe handicap. Morrison's wants to make money. Thus they have to prepare the food, handle it, and store it in manners dictated by Morrison's. If these methods are not the best possible ones, the employees are nonetheless not to blame.

THE BLAME RESTS upon the Morrison's officials who are bent upon making such great profits that they allow the quality and quantity of their food to suffer.

We have already suggested that the university provide some restrictions in the new contract, whenever that is written, to prevent excessive profit.

We believe the students have a right to better service from Morrison's — and the university has an obligation to try to get it for them.

Food Service Controversy Facts Listed

TO THE EDITOR,

I would like to relate a few facts I feel necessary on your recent editorial on the food situation now present at this University. I certainly appreciate your lines on this subject as I feel that since finances are a prime factor in our efforts to gain an education that any detrimental factors should be eliminated.

FIRST, I WOULD like to relate a few changes in the amount of food per serving. Last year a cake was cut into twelve parts which sold for 10 cents. Presently the same cake is cut into sixteen parts at 10 cents apiece. At the outside a cake should cost around 40 cents and at the old rate a 25% gross profit was realized. Now the gross profit has increased over 125% of last year. A main course like roast beef has been reduced to three ounces and the price increased to always 50 cents. The food service says that the high quality of food now being served calls for the increase. Ask any student about the quality! Oh! boy that's rich.

As you commented in your editorial, that the students are a captive customer I would like to point out that Morrison is also subject to the same treatment. What would happen if the students would put themselves out for three days and refused to eat such food? No business the size of Morrison could stand it for very long. They are in business for profits and they must conform to the demands of the public. This is just plain sound reasoning.

ALSO YOU RELATED that the students employees were given a raise in money via the meal book system. In other words the food service ascribed a little profits to appease the students. After all the employees must buy the food at standard prices, and give their hard earned tickets back to Morrison in terms of costs plus profits. Therefore instead of 75 cents a hour they really get around 50 cents

Now I would like to relate a few unknown facts about the wages paved the full time help. The women receive 4.15 a day in which they are required to work eight and a half hours six days a week. Out of this amount three dollars is removed a week to cover the amount of food the worker consumes. That's not all either, don't forget the federal government gets three percent of they work for around 20 dollars a week while putting on 52 hours many opinions, but it would give a closer relationship between the student body and Flambeau then now exists.

Valid Gripes Can Be Made

TO THE EDITOR:

Every organization is subject to criticism, particularly when the criticism is valid. This is also true of a newspaper, whether it be national, state, city, or college campus publication.

LAST WEEK I wrote a letter to the editor criticizing their editorial policy. I also said that my opinion reflected a sizable portion of the student body. To back up that statement, this writer would now like to ask the Editor of the Flambeau to have an open house within the next two weeks, so that students with questions concerning the operation of the Flambeau can have them answered.

Many members of the student body have only notions on what it takes to run a newspaper. Facts concerning editorial policy, content, advertising, and other factors will, to many, be surprising and could enlighten them. Not only would this open house absolve

Modern Dance Is Art At Best--Colorful, Exciting, Entertaining

Tonight's second and final presentation of "An Evening of Dance" will give students opportunity to view a unique art form.

You can see this type of dancing in an occasional Hollywood heavyweight musical and on Broadway if you go there for weekend kicks—but rarely does it appear on campus.

This is no reason, however, why dances cannot be enjoyed when they are presented here. They combine many elements pleasing to the senses—the elements of music, motion, color, grace and mood.

The ballet is generally recognized as one of the highest art forms. Modern dance provides many of the same effects as the ballet—and adds a lot of its own.

It is colorful, exciting, and, most of all, highly entertaining.

Poor Telephone Service Points To Need For Major Improvement

Student Senate's efforts to improve the telephone situation on campus are commendable and we hope they will have some effect.

The telephone arrangement at Florida State University must present a unique problem from the standpoint of efficient operation. For long periods of the day and week the lines are practically unused, while at other times the rush of calls renders the system pitifully inadequate.

THERE ARE several reasons for this, one of the most important being the scheduled study hours which prevent freshmen women from receiving calls between the hours of 7:30 and 10 p.m. on week nights. Since there are only a few telephones in the various dormitories, the resulting confusion is easily imaginable.

We wonder where the solution lies in this complex situation. From the student viewpoint, the issue is fairly simple—whenever they want to make a call they are liable to be frustrated by lack of outside lines, busy signals, or other students using the telephones at their residences.

EVEN IF A campus telephone condition presents a unique problem to telephone companies, we feel sure there is some kind of possible arrangement that would be more adequate than that which presently exists.

There are thousands of colleges and universities in this country with the number of students running probably into the millions. Certainly with that many people all involved in the same difficulty (although we may be incorrect in assuming difficulties to exist elsewhere) some heads should be put to work to arrive at a better place of affairs.

As it stands, the telephone system here is practically a farce. It seems that the administrators found it hard to decide whether students should have telephones or not—so they instituted a half-way system.

A HALF-WAY system is just what it is. It neither allows the students to live in a mythical world of simon-pure scholarship with no outside contacts to lead them astray, nor does it put into practical effect the decision that telephones are to be denied.

If telephones are to be denied (and we believe they are), a system is needed that will allow students to make telephone calls when they want to, or when they are allowed to, in the case of study hours. Whether it is the installation of more outside lines or more residence telephones, or a difference move, something needs to be done.

Ex-FSU Man Tries Ouster Of UM Prexy

By JIM SOLES

Upper-classmen will remember Dave Kennedy as a big working campus politician who served as Attorney General senior year. To most of them, it will come as no surprise Kennedy is currently creating quite a sensation at the University of Miami.

He has requested the Student Senate to investigate qualifications of the President of the Student Body in regard to his right to continue to hold office. Kennedy has hinted to friends that he will be a candidate for the top office himself in the spring elections.

Seems that other universities are also concerned with various presidents. The Emory Wheel in its lead editorial this week had a great deal to say concerning the failure of the trustees to choose a new president to replace Dr. White who is retiring in September.

They say, "The trouble here is that other schools are in need of the same type and there are few persons with qualifications out looking for positions." Florida State will doubt discover the truth of this statement in the near future.

A recent poll conducted by the Associated Collegiate Press reveals that in the majority of college and university studies that coaches are overpaid.

The Emory Wheel questions, "College Football coaches are usually paid more than the highest ranking professor. Do you think this difference in salary is justified?" Twenty per cent of the persons questioned thought the difference was justified, saying that the coach is under constant strain, must preserve constantly higher type of service, and gambles that he will able to continue on his job.

Sixty-seven per cent of the students answering the questionaire felt that differences in salary was not justified. Their reasons seemed to be summed up by the student who said, "The profs are continually under the same pressure to win as the football coach does." Thirteen percent had no opinion on the subject.

The Daily Texan bemoans the fact that student counseling services just are not up to par. Citing various examples of mistakes that have been made, the paper points out that these apparently errors have resulted in a student having to attend school for a summer session or another semester to make up courses that he missed.

One case they admit it is an extreme one; occurred the other day when one student walked out of the senior advisor's room saying, "I've graduated." He thought he had a semester of work left, but when they added his hours up he was through.

Calling The Card

Think Of Others In Your Striving

By ARNOLD GREENFIELD

It is one of the pet theories of the author of this column to quite often ignore the administrative effort poured into many campus project around the university vastly outweighs the benefits it accrue to any single individual.

The hard-working Intelligent Faith Week program is a good example.

TO CLARIFY, it seems to me that those who are directly concerned with the operation of such a program work and worry themselves into a frazzy. A tiny great mass of students remain apathetic. The fact that the project may be of some value is evidently of little consequence.

The unfortunate condition of great administrative effort and relatively little general interest and participation is likely to be quite common in society as large as we all so the campus.

SO WHAT PURPOSE does it seem to us through their lives like the character in 'Alice In Wonderland' who had to run as hard as he could just to say in one place Worry, tension, mental and physical fatigue — all of these seem terribly prevalent. In their efforts to be somewhat with our fellow men, because we are trying so hard to do a good job.

EVEN IN MY WORK in student government I observe this tremendous demand for time and devotion to do well, to do too many things a day, and to accomplish all the time causes us to be deprived of the chance to put our Lives in harmonious seemingness with others. We are just making ourselves more frenzy - mouthed fury that we think is all down "waste" an hour with a good friend.

Loss of real deep contact with people who ought to be the center of our efforts naturally leads to a loss of an adequate sense of purpose and organization in our efforts. The almost universally huge problem of mental health in the U. S. attests to the fact that people are failing away at life instead of deriving thrilling vitality.

THIS BRINGS us back to our first point — how can the Faith Week program be made to genuinely manifest itself in beneficial results for those who participate? Exposed by our program but do not actively participate therein.

I believe the answer to the question to be a matter of how we choose to live. If we put forth our effort vainly in an attempt to glorify ourselves, that we may be accepted by our friends and overstrain. Another cause for exposed by our program but do not actively participate therein.

I believe the answer to the question to be a matter of how we choose to live. If we put forth our effort vainly in an attempt to glorify ourselves, that we may be accepted by our friends and overstrain. Another cause for exposed by our program but do not actively participate therein.

On the other hand, if we live to take a little extra time to relate our actions to a certain with the values others will respect and look up to, and then we will, I think, be on a long step toward effecting a much currently warped effect we will feel better in the bargain.

Placement Office Finds New Home

The placement division of the office of Vocational Guidance and Placement has been moved to the third floor of Westcott building.

The reason for the move, according to Mrs. Margaret Blair, acting head of Vocational Guidance and Placement, was the confusion caused on the main offices on the second floor of Westcott by a multitude of office desks, workers, and waiting placement interviewers.

The one interviewing booth wasn't enough, recalled Mrs. Lois Fletcher, an office worker. "We even had recruiters interviewing students in the entrance to Westcott auditorium."

Another reason for the move, given by Mrs. Blair, was the increasing function of the placement division. The office work has grown so fast that Vocational Guidance and Placement hasn't been able to completely compile records since 1953, explained Mrs. Blair.

The main office, 203 Westcott, will still handle matters of vocational guidance, student employment, scholarships and loans. Placement division offices have been moved to 308 Westcott.

Coach Danny Litwhiler, who is currently in Japan on a government-sponsored trip, is about as optimistic as any coach we've talked to in the last three years here.

But then, Litwhiler has reason to be.

Indications are that the Seminole nine should be one of the best college baseball teams in the nation, as they were last year, though they lost to Duke in the NCAA regionals.

When you lose your top two pitchers, including one who is a pro, at midcourse, the outlook usually dims some but Litwhiler is predicting that this year's staff may outstrip last season if possible.

The two hurlers gone are of course Tony Avitable, now pitching for Little Rock in the Kansas City Athletics' chain and Max Long, the workhorse of the staff for three years.

FOUR STARTERS BACK

However, Litwhiler has four returning starters in Tom Garcia, who basketball concludes this weekend; Jack Brated, Fred Starnes and John Ash.

The Seminole coach has high hopes that Jerry Boxer and Fred Stewart will also be ready to take their turns as starters, giving the club six regular turns as fresh last year.

The other three hurlers who may figure are Al Zyla, Don Mann, a southpaw, and Rody Eigle.

Elsewhere, Litwhiler's only worry seems to be what to do with the talent he has available. Both the infield and outfield return intact, but Litwhiler already has changes planned.

The key is slugger Dick Howser the "mighty mite" who led the team in five departments last year, playing both the outfield and shortstop where he finished.

Warren and captain Carlos Hendrix is available at second, but Phil Hunt at third and the first base slot is still wide open because the return of Fred Tramont to baseball is not certain.

Tramont annually bounces back and forth between first and the outfield, and this year he must fight it out with sophomore Steve Long and Gerald Philp.

OUTFIELD LOADED

In the outfield, Lee Corso, Bob Rosell and Owen McCarron return along with Twomey who played some left field here last year.

Both of the regular catchers graduated last year, Gary Ashley and Bob Vaughn, but junior Johnny Sheppard is back and Raymond was a regular most of the last few weeks of the season.

Behind Sheppard, the outlook is not too bright, for Felo Cubelo, a freshman regular last year, was also signed by Kansas City to play professional ball.

Infielder Mike Coppa may be moved to the catching slot to provide additional strength. He was a regular shortstop for the freshmen last year.

So, that's the picture . . . a loaded team, ready to explode on anybody at any time and almost sure to repeat in the NCAA regionals this year, this time perhaps with a victory.

The schedule is tough, with 17 home games plus the second annual Florida State Invitational Baseball Tournament, here March 15-16.

The tournament will have some of the finest baseball teams in the college circuit, Michigan State, Duke and Yale. The coach says here, though, is that the Seminoles will repeat as champions.

Defense Problem Plagues Nugent

By FRANK RAMOS
Flambeau Sports Writer

"Going into the third week of spring football practice, we're still troubled by defensive problems, especially in the backfield," reports head football coach, Tom Nugent.

Commenting on last Saturday's scrimmage, the amiable head coach said, "It was encouraging offensively, but the defensive problems still stand out."

"We've got lots of sophomores-to-be playing and because of their lack of experience, they make mistakes and those mistakes will cost you on defense", continued Nugent.

"This spring we have found ourselves with more injured players than ever before", said Nugent.

But the guys that are not injured are in very good shape."

TENTATIVE TEAMS

The FSU football mentor has selected a first and second team on their performances so far. The first team remains the same as it was at last week's except for Jerry Graham and Bob Fountain being replaced by Fleming and Tony Fountain, return to the first team as soon as they recover from their injuries and Nugent.

Moved up from the second team in their places are Abner Bigbee and Joe McGee Running down the first team we find Schomburger and Bubba at ends Musselman and Boyer at tackles, Fountain and Graham at guards and Barnes at center.

The backfield remains the same with Rena at quarterback and Debor and Weaver at the halfs, Johnson at fullback.

The second team consists of Fleming and Tony Romeo at ends, Jerry Lane and Royce Bryan at tackles, Bigbee and McGee at guards, with Paul Slaton at center.

MAJORS TO SECOND

Joe Majors has made the move from fifth string quarterback to second string. Fred Pickard holds down the left half slot while Gerald Philp, a former end has moved to right half and has taken over there. Pullback finds Charles Battaglia holding down the second string job.

Coach Nugent said he is very pleased with the progress of Bobby Renn at quarterback. Bobby has showed us a lot so far in practice."

Prospects Good—Nugent

Frosh Provide Depth For Seminole Line

By BESS WELLER
Flambeau Sports Writer

"We feel that the line prospects are bright for the coming season," says Coach Tom Nugent.

"This year's freshmen will provide the depth for next year's team. At many line positions veterans are being pushed by the up-and-coming gridders.

Tony Romeo and John Spivey, have in mast vets Bob Nellums and Ham Bubber for the right end slot.

At left end Fleming and Bacdell are looking good. Ronnie Schomburger is holding that position now, and has been singled out by Nugent as doing an exceptional job.

BRYAN PRESSING

Bill Musselman was singled out by Nugent for his excellent work at left tackle. Behind Musselman are Lane and Wallace.

Starring in the left guard slot is Bob Fountain. Behind him are Joe McGee and Al Ulmer.

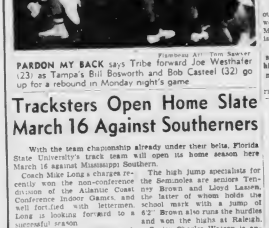
Nugent is still juggling the right guard position, but at the moment Jerry Graham is in the lead with Abner Bizbee running a close second. Jim Roeers is also showing well there.

Following Trop Barnes at center are Paul Slaton and Stewart Keith.

BIGBEE IMPRESSES

Nugent says, "Among all the new boys, we have been most impressed with the play of Abner Bigbee. He's way out in front.

"We have also been pleased with the showing of Bryan, Lane, John Lucio and Pete Gaudin. Bob Schreiberger, 6-0 center, scored 14 for the Pack the first time around and also grabbed many rebounds off the Seminole backboard. This will be the last game of the season for both teams.



Last Monday night the Semincles routed the punchless Spartans 88-57, and sophomore Hugh Durham broke the FSU record for points scored in one season by a sophomore.

Durham was high scorer of the game with 20 points, which brought his season total to 487, 18 better than the former record set by Ham Wernike. Coach Bud Kennedy started his five seniors in their last home game and relieved them during the game with a team made up of Juniors and sophomores.

Three of the seniors scored in the double figures. Gregory hit for 16 markers while Waits left the home court with 17, Waid made seven field goals for 14.

Wray Chiras was the only intent spot for the Spartans as he scored 12 points. Tampa made only 43 per cent of its free throws as contrasted to 80 per cent by the Tribe. FSU made almost 50 per cent of its floor while the Spartans made only 32 per cent.

Tracksters Open Home Slate March 16 Against Southerners

With the team championship already under their belts, Florida State University's track team will open its home season here March 16 against Mississippi Southern.

Coach Mike Long's charges recently won the non-conference division of the Atlantic Coast Conference indoor Games and the well fortified with lettermen, Long is looking forward to a successful season.

The feature of a three-meet home schedule is an April 13 meet with the University of Florida, met only in Gainesville last year. The Seminoles will also meet Georgia and Georgia Tech in a triangular meet here April 26.

The key to the Tribe's scoring chances is junior Jack Terwilliger from Dade City, a consistent point-maker in the dashes. Terwilliger won both 60-yard dashes in the two meets thus far, the ACC meet and the Coliseum Relays at Montgomery, Ala.

DAVIS SCORES

The number two point-maker for the Seminole thinclads last season was Joe Davis, a senior this year from Orlando, who specializes in the low hurdles and the broad jump, the former which he won in Raleigh.

Mile specialist Mike Conley, a junior from Gainesville, holds the school record in the event with a time of 4:19.8, and finished a close second in the race at Raleigh.

The high jump specialists for the Seminoles are seniors Tenny Brown and Lloyd Lassen, the latter of whom holds the school mark with a jump of 6'2". Brown also runs the hurdles and won the highs at Raleigh.

Senior Charles Watson is another hurdles and 440 specialist, while the school record holder in the highs and lows, Wes Minton will be on hand when football practice ends.

VAULT PROSPECT

Long Irels he has a top-notch pole vault prospect in Richard Elwood, a sophomore who finished in a tie for second at Montgomery and won the event at Raleigh.

Elwood has unofficially broken the school mark of 12' 10" in practice last year. Sophomore Don Ayres and senior Warren Strickland are also expected to score in the pole vault.

In the field events, Bill Musselman appears best in the shot put, either Bob Nellums or Rod Fields in the discus and Mike Guerra, Jimmy Harrell and Jerry Henderson are fighting for a berth in the javelin.

Ken Sogner and Doyle Ruff will go in the half mile, while Pete Fryschetti and Buddy Elliott may help Conley in the distances.

U. Of Jax Basketballers Swamp 'Baby Seminoles'

Florida State's battered frosh were overwhelmed Monday evening by the University of Jacksonville, 81-49.

Seeking their second win of the season, the baby Seminoles will carry a 1-8 record into tonight's game, as they host the University of Florida freshmen in the final game of the year.

Capitalizing on poor passing and erratic FSU shooting, Jacksonville started in a 37-16 halftime lead and they continued the onslaught through to the end.

Buddy Cash and Mike Williams topped Florida State scoring with 10 apiece, while Pittmann of Jacksonville tallied 17 to take scoring honors for the contest.

Coach Jimmy Oler had to juggle his lineup considerably with three of his top players sidelined with either sprained ankles or the flu.

Tom Magnuson, out with a bad cold, watched the game from the bleachers as did Jim Savage, who is recovering from a sprained ankle.

Forward Jerry Hohne played one minute against Jacksonville and twisted an ankle. Seemingly healed, he has since been in the infirmary with a mild case of the flu.

Both Hohnne and Munson are back in uniform.

Teammate Bob Murray accounted for a first and five seconds including runner-up to Malmin in the all-around, placing ahead of FSU graduate student Larry Bestman.

ALAN'S AISLE

'Mister Cory' Amusing, Sharp

By ALAN KASS

A "sleepee" in the movie business can be two things: either a patron snoozing through a bad movie or a good movie slipping through to the public without the usual "good movie" promotional effort.

"Mr. Cory", now playing at the Florida, is a "sleepee" in the latter sense. It is an exciting drama with many amusing — and sharp — bits of dialogue.

The "Mr. Cory" of the movie comes from the wrong side of the tracks, and spends most of the movie's footage making it there on his own. As the story unfolds, he evolves into a young modern Cinderella, as his boy into a business assembler. All this is done for the hand of the fair Abbey Vella of — who winds up coming in second anyhow!

LATE VISITS

Before Cory's Conversion, we find the fair Abby sneaking up to his room for late visits, and for some reason this riles her fiancee. Actually Jimmy gets the younger sister. We never find out what happened to Abby.

Tony Curtis goes through the "Mr. Cory" bit with the energy of a dynamo, as of old. Kiva, His devilish green eyes consistently look for more ways of obtaining power.

In the drunk scene he proves his acting ability.

GOOD SUPPORT

The supporting cast is excellent — Miss Hoyt should play more bad girl roles, judging by the amount of sex she throws into her portrayal. Bill Reynolds and Kathy Grant please as the other two principals.

"Mister Cory" is an exciting individual and the movie is an exciting one.

Within the past year, the CinemaScope screen exploded with not one but two sprawling adventures about the daring Khan family.

The Conqueror" was quite enough. "Zarak" is a bit too much.

The picture boasts a lot of razzle-dazzle action by Mr. Mature as Zarak the only one of the three Khans that shows any warmth of character. He and his horsemen clash across plains and desert as fast as Native Dancer at a derby, searching for his special harem-girl, Salma.

ENBERG TOO MUCH

Miss Ebbers with her acute costumes and her seductive sex appeal is a bit too much for the eye and can realize that Zarak is simply an old fashioned sex-and-sand adventure.

The story has Ingram and Zarak as rivals in the fat hills and plains. Despite this, here he is more each others qualities. In fact, when Ingram was to have his head clipped off who should come in the rescue? No, not Jim Dandy, but Zarak and so on and so forth. As the picture draws to an end it appears that Zarak will pay for his plundering and his overlong presence on the screen by being whipped to death. This moment is the high spot we all were waiting for.

Senate Committees To Study 2 Bills

A bill to establish the student lobby group within the jurisdiction of the university of state and another to amend the process of installing class senators were referred to committees Wednesday in the regular Student Senate meeting.

Senator Bob Murray, chairman of the student lobby group, introduced the bill which states the secretary of state shall coordinate the lobbying group at least one sophomore shall be appointed to it and sufficient funds shall be budgeted for its operation during legislative years.

"A sophomore should be appointed to the group so that there will be an experienced person on the committee for the fellow coming after," said Murray.

Senator Polly Atwater termed the bill to amend installation of class senators "a technicality." It states that sections, representing both living areas and class, shall be installed within one week after being elected.

"This amendment will enable the Senate to get to work as soon as the school year begins," she said.

MAN VERSUS WOMAN
ACP — At the University of Oregon, there has been talk of ending the football seating arrangement which presently segregates the male and female students. The Oregon Daily Emerald can't see keen about the idea, suggesting that such action, instead of increasing school spirit, would more likely have an opposite result. Said the Emerald:

What able-bodied, red-blooded, reasonably nice-looking fellow will yell his lungs out when he's sitting right next to an equally able-bodied, equally red-blooded and equally nice-looking young lady? He won't be yelling. He'll probably be making time-probably setting up a coffee date for right after the game. And what fellow is going to yell when to do so would brand him as a cute-ho lunkhead in the eyes of the petite little coed sitting next to him? Conversely, what petite little coed is going to yell when to do so would destroy the fellow's impression of her as a tender, soft-spoken dainty little miss?

You can always tell it's Spring semester by the number of sorority and fraternity weekends being held. Alpha Xi Delta's arrived their weekend with a coast party at the cabin of one of their members. A traditional feature at the Rose Formal was the candlelight ritual performed at a local hotel. As each girl was introduced, she pinned a pink rose on her escort's lapel followed it with a kiss.

Ending the weekend the girls and their dates attended church en masse and then returned to the sorority house for a banquet.

Gamma Phi Beta's annual weekend began with an informal party at the sorority house where members and their dates participated in a scavenger hunt. After all the prizes were found the group ended the evening with refreshments and dancing.

Saturday's events started with a Hamburger Fry in the sorority back yard. The evening was climaxed by the informal formal dance which featured a Hollywood Premiere theme.

Decorations, entertainment and the crowning of the Gamma Phi Beta Dream Man, Keo Bagg, carried out the theme. Presentation of the new officers concluded the evening. Sorority members enjoyed a day of relaxation at the coast.

Kappa Alpha Theta transformed their house into a Mardi Gras for their weekend. Dancing to fancy music and costumes celebrated amid the Old South decorations which included a simulated wrought iron gate. Saturday afternoon a buffet luncheon was held at the house, followed by a trip to Mystic Lake where the Thetas swam, waterskied, enjoyed a chicken dinner and danced. After church, the girls and their escorts assembled at the house for a buffet luncheon.

The friendly goat, who used to sleep with her owner, was placed in charge of the pledges who hope to be initiated one day before the year is over.

The pledges entertained Dusty with stories of the party that Delta Tau Delta gave them during the week. At the party the Delt's presented a skit entitled "The perfect dinner party" or "A scene at the Delta house". Dancing, refreshments and singing completed the evening.

Artist Series Formal Attire Not Necessary

By LAYTE BOWDEN

Students are no longer wearing formal attire to the Artist Series held in Westcott Auditorium, according to Mrs. Kathryn Vernon, who manages the FSU Artist Series.

The change from formal to informal dress has come mostly within the last three seasons.

Mrs. Vernon feels there are many causes for this. One is the fact that people will go informal because they are not able to drive to the dorm and get out. Therefore street length dresses make walking easier.

Another reason could be that the graduate students here chiefly for study purposes, do not bring formal clothes, said Mrs. Vernon. "There are many big dances now and the girls prefer wearing their favorite formals to these events, she said, adding, "it is difficult to sit all evening in a long formal."

In this day of style and fashion the term "formal" can be interpreted in many different ways. However, there are many students who do not even dress tastefully. "If the women students put more emphasis on 'dressing-up,' the male students would be forced to follow," said Mrs Vernon.

She expressed the opinion that more respect should be shown to the artists who appear on our campus "It is told Western people who were not dressed appropriately were seated in the balcony," she explained.

The programs which are presented here are similar to those in large cities and should be given the same courtesy," concluded Mrs. Vernon.

Frats Said Losing Appeal

(ACP)—Fraternity leaders at Iowa University have expressed concern about the problem of getting fine members. Two fraternities on campus have expressed the belief that fraternities may be losing their appeal to new students entering the University. They said that too many incoming students lack interest and knowledge of fraternity life. One of the leaders, Interfraternity President Jay Ryan, attributed the interest lost to the fact that not enough contact was made with high school graduates planning to enter college. The other leader, Austin Sandrock, president of Sigma Chi, said some students believe fraternities are highly exclusive and limited only to the elite class. He said the advantages of fraternity life must be explained to prospective students and that contacts should be made before the student makes plans to live elsewhere on campus. "This means," Sandrock said, "that students must be contacted first in the spring of their senior year and again during the summer."

Clergy Argue Renaissance In U.S. Religion

Two visiting clergymen differed about whether America is becoming increasingly religious as the observance of Intelligent Faith Week ended with a panel discussion Wednesday night.

Dr. Lawrence Stell, pastor of Trinity Presbyterian Church at Charlotte, N.C., said America is turning more and more to religion as a basis for understanding the pressing problems of the secular world. As he put it, "people today are searching, searching for real security—not just the shallow mental happiness so widely available from religious sources." And he added:

"Religion in a deep sense is more and more affecting lives in great numbers, and the natural result of this is going to be expressed in practical terms. In short the profound interest in and demands upon religion in modern America are sure to result in a deep re-evaluation of political and social problems. People are seeking to understand what they previously have been unable to understand. Now when the problems of the secular world seem great it is only natural that people will begin to seek deep solutions."

Dr. H. D. Bollinger, of the Methodist Board of Education at Nashville, expressed another view. "There is a lot of churchgoing prevalent, but not much real interest in religion," he said.

Before any truly meaningful results can be derived other criteria than just numbers of people attending need to be applied in America's churches. Just some sort of vague interest in religion is not enough to really make a difference in the secular world. Deep religious feelings are lacking as a general tendency, and these are necessary if the individuals become are to be affected in the secular aspects of his life."

The speakers participated in a panel discussion of the question, The Effect of the Current Revival of Interest in Religion on Secular Affairs" of which Arnold Greenfield was moderator.

'Manless Juniors Said Old Maids

Coeds: Is It Too Late?

By DON HEIDEL

It is true a girl who gets as far as her junior year in college without having acquired a man is in grave danger of becoming an old maid?

Is a maneless senior considered to be more or less "on the shelf?"

Dr. Charles W. Cole, president of Amherst College, answers "yes" to these questions in an article in the March issue of Harper's Magazine. In his article, "American Youth Goes Monogamous" Dr. Cole arrives at these conclusions by comparing the modern coed with the average college girl of the 1920's.

The older model, he says, went to college looking forward to a career. She had little hope of matrimony until two or three years after graduation. But the college girl of today declares quite frankly that she wants to get married and she frequently does so while still in college.

Cole's study of the revolution in courtship and dating procedures which he calls "the most important phenomena of recent times" finds the search for security is a key factor in the new folkways.

The phenomenon, "going steady" is the most obvious reflection of this craving for assurance and protection from competition. "Each partner knows that the other can be counted on for the coming dance or the next football game. In a day when the population moves from home to home with such freedom and when so many homes are broken by divorce or otherwise, this kind of security is very precious to young people."

Less obvious but perhaps even more indicative of the security seeker is the expanding birth rate. "Thirty years ago a young couple planned to have two children and usually did. Today the ideal seems to be four or five children."

Young people, states Cole, want more children and want them sooner. They seem to envy the children who come from large families and who had a more varied and rich family circle. The young people seem to be seeking in their own families the security that is outwardly denied by the unsettled state of the world.

Dr. Cole notes many resulting changes in the present dating system. It appears the old cliche, "All is Fair in love and war", has gone by the boards. There is an attitude of respect among the courting young. Not only must steady couples be faithful to each other but also any attempt by an outsider to intrude into this relationship brings down extreme disapproval by all. No longer are stag-line-males and prom-trotting females tolerated by youth.

Dances have changed more visibly under this monogamous system than other institutions They are informal "why dress up for someone you see so often and know so well", shorter, and there is a good deal of sitting around and listening to the music instead of dancing. The formal dance may well face extinction in the future with the preference being informal record dances.

Even the whole attitude of dating has changed. "It is more serious and less frivolous. The fact that the steady may well be the future spouse gives a different color to social life. The couples spend a lot of time discussing their relationship and whether it is solidly founded on bases of long-run compatibility.

Dr. Cole concludes that the present system "may be built in a solid and enduring fashion. It is conceivable too that the fiercely monogamous premarital folkways may carry over into married life and erect strong buttresses to the institutions of marriage and the family."

"Someday the two of us will be one."

Hungarian Student Finds Freedom At F.S.U.

and captured by the Russians but during a dense fog Ovath was able to escape and eventually his house near Budapest by November 4.

It was then, he related, that Russian tanks began pouring into the city. The Russians had painted their tanks with Hungarian army insignia and for a while the people were fooled.

Russian artillery units who had been stationed for a long time in Hungary were on the people's side he said, and were replaced with Monaol and Asian troops.

FIGHT FOR 'SUEZ'

"They were told they would be fighting the Nazis, the Americans over the Suez Canal," he related with a chuckle.

"When they arrived they asked where were the Nazis. Americans, and the Suez Canal. The Hungarians showed them the Danube River and told them it was the Suez."

By then Ovath had joined in the street fighting.

The Hungarian people did not expect outside help when they began their fight, he insisted, but as effort began to seem inevitable they looked hopefully abroad

FRIEND SHOT

Ovath said a 20 year old friend of his and one of his other 20 year-old brother were fighting when the boy was shot.

"Don't be sad my friend" told his brother "The Americans will help us soon."

He could not speak for all of Hungary, Ovath added "It's only human to wait for help till the last minute," he said in Hungarian. "When we realized that help would not come we fought to the end."

Ovath said that when he left Hungary, there were two places where a civilian fighting was going on

He said he would have to be in Hungary now to know whether the people could ever regain freedom.

STAYING FATAL

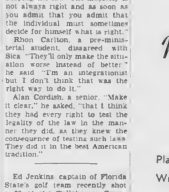
It would have been fatal had he remained in the country—a "disaster" from the Air Force, as civilian clothes and an identification of the Russian SS he himself on a truck almost to the border. Trial was no pleasure ride Russian tanks were stationed along the road. Each time the truck stopped he would jump off on the side away from the tank "Toward the border the tanks were too numerous and he stayed off to form about 20 miles into Austria—and freedom.

There were many Russian patriots—and also major refugees.

Ovath was not the first of his family to leave Hungary. His father has since and brother-in-law were among the small group of conspirators who took over, supported, an airlines in flight, and landed safely in Austria.

CLOSELY WATCHED

Because of the Ovath's and his family's ever put under close police scrutiny and his mother left the teaching job.



The family had all fled to Austria in 1944, from invading Russian armies. They returned only to lose all their property. Ovath's father was not permitted to return to the practice of law. As a "class enemy" a non-communist. Ovath was not permitted to enter the University of Budapest.

PARENTS IN HUNGARY

His parents are still in Hungary, and correspondence with them is fairly free.

Yesterday Ovath met Edward Kodaly, Hungarian American composer on the School of Music faculty Kodaly and Dr. Ernst von Dohnanyi, world-famous Hungarian composer, pianist, and conductor, played in a concert last month in other FSU musicians to aid the scholarship fund which has been awarded to Ovath.

And the quality of the entries received so far is much more than we could have hoped," he added.

The entries received to date are:

in Asia and winning fast," he warned. "Every time someone knocks a Negro down, that's all they want."

Mr. Sporkowsod said communist success in Asia has been due mostly to inequities in land ownership, and to ignorants and poverty among the people. He said his missionary group is working to counteract the "fanaticism" of communism with a five-point program including agricultural work, medical and dental care, and education, as well as evangelism.

"They are acting in a somewhat radical way and there was only a negligible amount of justification for what they did. They were just trying to stir up trouble."

Carl Schula, a graduate student from Chicago, thought that as far as the law is concerned constitutional, but when the driver "starts getting scrapping to color he's overdoing it a little."

"I think the guys were within their rights in sitting where they pleased," he said.

Louis Sica, a senior majoring in physics, spoke of the law as an "outrage," and said, "I think they were ethically right in disobeying the law. The penalty is not always right and as soon as you admit that you admit that the individual must sometimes decide for himself what is right."

Rhon Carlton, a pre-ministerial student, disagreed with Sica. "They'll only make the situation worse instead of better," he said "I'm an integrationist but I don't think that was the right way to do it."

Alan Cordan, a senior, "Make it clear," he asked, "that I think they had every right to test the legality of the law in the manner they did, as they knew the consequences of testing such laws. They did it in the best American tradition."

DIARY OF A COED

MONDAY: Prof Pomfrit sprang quiz in English lit this morning. If Shakespeare didn't write Canterbury Tales, I'm back on the steam laundry. . . Lunch at the house—turkey hash. Question: how can we have turkey hash when we never had turkey?. . . Smoked a good, natural Philip Morris after lunch. Yum, yum! . . . Played bridge in the afternoon. When game was over, Mildred Oliphant slashed me several times with hatpin. Must learn weak club bid. . . Dinner at house—lamb hash. Question: how can we have lamb hash when we never had lamb?. . . Smoked a Philip Morris after dinner. Good!—no filter, no fiddle!. . . Chapter meeting at night. Motion made to abolish capital punishment for pledges. Motion defeated. . . Smoked some more Philip Morrises. Natural! Dreamy!. . . And so to bed.

TUESDAY: Faculty tea. Spilled pot of oolong on Dean of Women. She very snappish. Offered her a Philip Morris. Still snappish. Offered rush. No help. . . Dinner at Kent Kampus Kafe—14 hamburgers. But no dessert. Have to watch waistline. . . And so to bed.

WEDNESDAY: Got our marks in English lit quiz. Lucky for me Shakespeare wrote Canterbury Tales!. . . Date with Ralph Pledger, platonic. Ralph wanted to talk about love trouble he's been having with Mady Vanderklang. I said things were bound to improve. Ralph said he hopes so because the last four times he called on Mady she dumped vacuum cleaner bag on him. Smoked Philip Morris. Yummm! Dinner at house—bread. That's all; just bread. . . And so to bed.

THURSDAY: Three packages from home—laundry, cookies, records. So hungry I ate all three. . . Quiz in American history. If James-K. Polk didn't invent cotton gin, I'm in big trouble. . . Had afternoon date with Erwin Trull, pre-med. Nice boy but no loot. Took me to see another appendectomy. Ho-hum!. . . But we had Philip Morrises afterwards. Goody, goody, gumdrops!. . . Dinner at house. Big excitement—Vanessa Strength announced her engagement. While girls flocked around to congratulate Vanessa, I ate everybody's mackerel. . . Then smoked a good natural Philip Morris. Divoon!. . . And so to bed.

—took me to see another appendectomy

FRIDAY: Got our marks in American history quiz. Was dismayed to learn that James K. Polk did not invent cotton gin. He wrote Canterbury Tales. . . . Odd!. . . Lunch at the house—bread hash. . . Philip Morris after lunch. Grands-slands!. . . Spent afternoon getting dressed for date tonight with Norman Twonkey. Norman is tall, dark, loaded—a perfect doll! Only thing wrong is he never tells girl where he is going to take her. So I put on a bathing suit, on top of that an evening gown, and on top of that a snowsuit. Thus I was ready for a spin-the-party, dance, or toboggan slide. . . So what do you think happened? He entered me in a steeplechase, that's what!

SATURDAY AND SUNDAY: Days of rest, play, quiet, meditation, and—aaah!—Philip Morris!. . . And so to bed.

Hathaway Denies Infirmary Staff Apathy

By Staff Writer

Charges of apathy among University Hospital staff members were denied yesterday by Dr. H. G. Hathaway, chief physician.

Questioned by the Florida Flambeau concerning criticism of the infirmary made in Student Senate, Dr. Hathaway also denied the existence of any "rule" forbidding Tallahassee physicians to treat FSU students.

The chief physician said attendents who complained to Senate investigators of staff "apathy" probably had been admitted for only minor ailments.

"Most of our time will be devoted to those who are seriously ill," he said.

Senator Diane Godin, who introduced the resolution calling for a Senate investigation several weeks ago, asserted Wednesday that student's complain that the "same pills are given to everyone" and that they are not properly examined before medication is prescribed.

Everybody who has the same disease usually does get the same pills," Dr. Hathaway said. Diseases most often occur in epidemic form on a college campus, he said.

If a student is seriously injured or ill a doctor may be summoned any time of night by the nurse on duty, he said. Minor injuries that will not worsen, such as sprained ankles, can wait till the following day in most cases, he said.

Dr. Hathaway branded as "confee table gossip" reports that Tallahassee physicians have been asked not to treat university students except at the request of the infirmary.

"Of course we prefer to see them first, he said, but there is no rule

Dr. Hathaway said students' complaints of area could best be ended by forbidding the bringing of candy, cookies, and cakes to patients.

Such a rule was in force four years ago, but I thought it too harsh," he said

Dr. Hathaway added that the infirmary has received one bid from an ever-running firm but must advertise for more bids before any action also being made to obtain more furniture but patients needs must be met before that of visitors he said.

Within two years Dr. Hathaway promised, all beds in the infirmary will be equipped to raise the patient to a sitting position.

"Complaints if they are made, should be made to me instead of Student Senate," he remarked.

Politicos Plan Planks, Party Student State

The Student Party will hold a reception for freshman and new students today from 4 until 5 p.m. in the large lounge of Longmire.

Prominent members of student government elected on the Student Party ticket will be there to greet guests, according to Polly Atwater, chairman of the event.

"There will be no formal speeches, but we would like to meet the students informally and discuss the Student Party and the opportunities it has to offer," said Miss Atwater.

Student government leaders attending the reception will include Dave Bachman, student body president; Carolyn Close, women's vice president; June McManus, chairman of Judiciary; Bo Manning, chief justice of Honor Court, and Sylvia Krance, secretary of Senate

The Student Party will hold its platform convention tonight at 7 in 124 Science Building, acting chairman Hank McCann announced yesterday.

Registration for delegates and alternates will begin at 6:30 p.m.

McCann said that planks "that will have a direct effect" upon students will be voted on. Therefore, he said, it is important that all organizations and dormitories be represented.

The proposed planks resulted from mixers and women's vacuoles held February 24.

Party officials will also be elected at the convention tonight, McCann announced.

Platform planks approved tonight will be used by the State Party in the forthcoming Student Body Elections. Nominating convention for the election will be held next Tuesday in the Lecture Hall at 7 p.m.

Tarpon To Present 'Fantasy Land' Show

MEETS COMPATRIOTS—Levente Oswath, Hungarian freedom-fighter now enrolled at FSU, meets faculty member Ernest von Donanyi (right) and Edward Kilenyi. Dohnanyi is famous Hungarian-born composer, pianist, and conductor. Kilenyi studied with Dohnanyi in Hungary. Oswath has been assigned a room in Senior Hall.

Tarpon Club will present the work of nine months planning in their annual water show tomorrow through Saturday at the Women's Gym pool.

Each night's performance is scheduled for 8 15. General admission tickets may be obtained by exchanging activity coupons 14 at the Westcott ticket office.

The show will consist of ten numbers based on the general theme "Fantasy Land," according to Toni Moore, president of the women's precision swimmers group.

Each number has been written and supervised by its own student director, who volunteered last spring.

36 IN SHOW

A total of 20 Tarpon members, 15 "munnova" and one male swimmer will take part in the production.

"Cinderella," a solo by Miss Moore under the direction of Meta Vashi, will open the show.

Second on the program will be "Carousel Waltz," also supervised by Miss Vashi. All performers in the combination dance and synchronized swimming number will be minnova.

Some other "Fantasy Land" characters to be represented are "Hickory Dickory Dock" by Pat Rooney, Sugar Plum Fairy," by Glenda Sherrill and, Marion Davis and "Wizard of Oz," by Lynn Strickland.

OTHERS

Also included is an interpretation of "When You Wish Upon a Star," by Audrey Berry; "Arabian Nights," by Jean Newton; and "Witches" by Sue Peed.

Bob Gehle the only male member of the cast, will be featured with Faye Lefever in "Keeping Beauty," under the guidance of Mary Margaret Williams.

Mary Clymse Smith, sponsor of the Tarpon Club, is coordinator of the finale. Narration will be done by Melvin J. Sacks of Tallahassee

One of the major procedures for the directors had to undergo in writing their numbers was the transposition of their story to water.

Sometimes it may be influenced by a movie or a particular incident that was associated with the music," stated Miss Moore, "However, this is not necessarily so.

MORRISON'S PLANS IMPROVED QUALITY

Food Service Manager Denies Profit, Says Preparation To Be Better

By OSCAR JOHNSON

Students can expect improvement in the quality of food served by Morrison's Food Service within the next few months, according to manager Milton Dennis.

Dennis has been directing operations of the Seminole Club, Student Supper Shop and West Hall Snack Bar since he replaced Richard Preston the first of February.

The food service manager denied that Morrison's has been making too much profit in its operation, as was editorially charged in the Florida Flambeau. Instead, he said, Morrison's has steadily lost money.

The Flambeau talked informally with Dennis Friday after printing two editorials criticizing the quality and price of food served on campus.

Dennis, apparently not perturbed by the allegations and the he has been working steadily since he came to improve the meals in the cafeteria, said, "I don't say we'll be able to lower the prices," he added, "but the food will begin tasting better."

PREPARATION

How is he going to accomplish this?

"Preparation is the main trouble with the present operation," Dennis said. "Our policy has a policy of buying only top-quality food, but the preparation does not live that. We plan during our traveling team down to set up better cooking methods.

Dennis added that Morrison's hopes to instruct the present cooking employees in methods used in Morrison's commercial restaurants.

Reasons for what he termed a steady loss in money were listed as high overhead, inadequate equipment and breakage and theft.

BREAKAGE HIGH

Dennis said Morrison's must pay utility bills and maintenance for an area "four times as large as the club or group you represent, at least once during the year. It does something that makes news.

"Publicity" and "news" are the same thing, but not always

The publicity chairman's first responsibility, he said, is to, "Thou shalt work hard, but not be gunshy about it."

RELAX

Any newspaper wants the news, but it is impossible to print the same facts twice in a row, even if they are turned around so that the "what" comes before the "who".

For instance suppose a club schedules some program that will be of interest to many students and faculty. When the date is announced that's news. But to "remind the students" that such-and-such has been set for a certain date so that get tickets early would not be news in the next edition.

Board To Fill Journals' Posts

The Board of Student Publications will meet Thursday to accept applications for business managers of the Florida Flambeau, Smoke Signals and Tally-Ho.

The meeting will be held at 4 p.m. in the Senate Room, Longmire Building according to chairman Don Heidel.

Two students, Charles Poletvint and Bob Simmons, have applied for Flambeau Editor. Ray Hennann applied for Business Manager. Heidel said

Eve Morris has applied for Tally-Ho Editor, and Arlene Sargent for Business Manager. No applications have been received for Smoke Signals positions, Heidel said.

Anglo-FSU Debate To Feature Fun

The negative debate team of Arnold Greenfield and Fred Roberts will tonight meet an affirmative team from England to debate, in a light vein, "That Imperialism is Compatible with Democracy."

Florida State University will be host at the Eighth Annual FSU International Debate on Opperman Music Hall at 8 p.m.

English debaters participating against FSU are Gareth Morgan of University of Bristol, and Merion Davis University College of North Wales.

The style of the debate will follow a humorous vein which should be very entertaining according to debate spokesmen.

At the Asiatic Invitational Debate tournament held in Mobile, Ala., this weekend, the FSU team tied for second place competing against ten major universities.

Jean Bleckner, Ruby Combs and Arnold Greenfield raised an against FSU are Gareth Morgan of University of Bristol, and Merion Davis University College of North Wales.

Greenfield was given the award as best individual speaker of 40 students participating.

A first round winning streak, an unusual collegiate record, was broken when Greenfield and Miss Bleckner lost a decision in this tournament.

Full Houses Seen For Ballet

Completely full houses are expected for tonight's and tomorrow night's Artist Series production of the National Ballet of Canada.

Only 40 tickets for tonight and none for tomorrow were left at 4 p.m yesterday, said Mrs. Kathryn Vernon of the special events office.

Curtain time both nights will be 8:15 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium.

Symphony To Feature Four Student Soloists

Four students will be soloists with the University Symphony Friday night in Conductor Robert Sedore announced.

The program will begin at 8:15 p.m. Seats are free and unreserved.

Featured with the 70 member Symphony will be Lowell Roddenberry, pianist; Mary Jane Marrett, violinist; Darryl Revenaugh, pianist, and Dorothea Jackson, violinist.

Roddenberry a pupil of John Boda will play the first movement of Rachmaninoff's Third Piano Concerto.

Miss Jones will be soloist in Max Bruch Scottish Fantasy for Violin and Orchestra. She is in only undergraduate student the four, and will differ under Sedore.

Revenaugh will play the first movement of Khachaturian's technically difficult Piano Concerto. He is a pupil of Boda.

Sedore said the orchestra will open the concert with the overture to Smetana's "The Bartered Bride." The entire opera will be presented May 10 and 11 by the Choral Union.

Green To Talk On 'Moon Watch'

The Astronomy Club will meet Thursday beginning at 8 p.m. in 308 science to hear Dr. Alex E. Green speak on "Operation Moon Watch," said Norman Znroff, president. Following the picture members will take part in telescope observations of Jupiter's Moons and the general public is welcome.

Operation Moon Watch" will be held by professional and amateur astronomers in cooperation with the United States earth satellite program, said Znroff.

Flambeau News Editor Differentiates

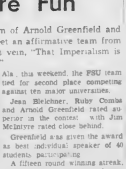
Publicity, News Not Always Same

By MARTIN DYCKMAN
Flambeau News Editor

Publicity chairmen, there are ways to better your battling average of stories published in this newspaper.

It would be what editors call a "re-hash" and borders on advertising.

FURTHER STORIES



When tickets get so low that they sell-out is imminent, that's news. And a story several days before the event is news, too.

Most campus events are of such a nature that when a student reads a fairly complete story about one, he decides then and there whether to attend and nothing can change his mind.

Anything held on campus that involves students or student-faculty organizations, is usually news

News consists of who, what, where when, why, how, and the explanation of these basic 5 W's.

But another important element of news is the "new", in the word. Few newspapers will use a story about an event seeks after it happens

NOW OR NEVER

Suppose your club imitates 20 members. We want to for the next issue. Although sometimes it has to be held over for lack of space But if we get the list a month late, it won't be used It would be ridiculous to write "recently initiated" as every one of the 20 imitates would know how recently it was!

When you send something to the Flambeau office, be sure time to bring it yourself to 313 Longmire your name and phone number should be on it, as we can call you for further information and know who our sources is. That is very important. It would be most appreciated. And for the best interest of everyone concerned, please be sure of the spelling of names

SPECIAL INTEREST

Often the doings of your club are really of interest to your fellow students as well. If it's a discussion of some technical topic But most of the time we can get in at least a paragraph in advance.

Election of club officers, trips, disciplinary action and the like are news.

Deadlines for the Flambeau are noon Mondays and Thursdays but you stand a better chance of getting something in if we have the material earlier, even as much as a day before hand.

Not everything of course, can be printed. If the paper is nearly full, and we must decide which of two stories to use, usually the former is of interest to the greater number of students will be used.

FLAMBEAU EDITORIALS

Florida Flambeau editorials represent only the views of the student members of the staff. Signed columns on this page represent only the opinions of their authors. Any student may submit either editorials or columns for consideration.

Florida Below National Average In Financing Higher Education

When the 1957 session of the state Legislature convenes, representatives of numerous agencies and commissions will no doubt gather around the money table for their share of governmental goodies.

This state, statisticians are fond of pointing out, is undergoing what amounts to a population explosion. More and more demands, for more and more services, are being made by this growth.

Higher education, being just one of the services, will have to compete for its share of gold from Florida's coffers—and we wonder just how well it will fare.

As students at Florida State University, we are more than slightly concerned with our institution's future. And its future, we realize, is directly related to the amount of money it receives.

WILL THE BUDGET committees of the state Legislature be as concerned as we are that FSU receives adequate funds?

We hope so. But the state budgetmakers may not see eye to eye with our views—they may think higher education is receiving entirely too much of the state's finances.

This may be true. Just how much of the state dollar is higher education receiving in Florida?

A table published recently by the New York Times compares all state's expenditures on higher education—and if its figures are correct, Florida stands low on the list.

FLORIDA IS listed as spending $8.41 per citizen per year on higher educatinn. This compares with such states as Colorado, $17.23; Michigan, $15.08; New Mexico, $18.76; California, $18.45, and South Carolina, $11.28.

It is obvious that this state is not exactly top on the list. There are other states with lower per capita expenditures —Vermont is the lowest with $2.64—but in general these are states with declining population. Florida's $8.41 is significantly below the national average of $9.15. This is practically disastrous in view of the state's goal of general betterment through increased education.

BUT, CRITICS of these figures may say, some states are "richer" than Florida—they have more industry, or income through such things as oil, wheat, metal, gambling or other sources. Fine. But it could be maintained, does not have as much money to spend for the simple reason it does not have as much income. Prosperous citizens make a prosperous state.

Disregarding the question of Florida's prosperity, the extent of its support of higher education can be measured in another way—through percentage of general expenditures spent in that area.

The Times' table also listed the 48 states in this category. Florida is said to spend 13 percent of its total state expenditures on higher education.

THIS COMPARES with the following percentages California, 10.5; Colorado, 13.3; Georgia 7.4; South Carolina, 10.2, and Indiana, 16.1. National average is 8.5 percent.

In both categories of measurement, Florida not only falls far short of what should be expected of such an expanding state, it falls BELOW THE NATIONAL AVERAGE.

Florida is a hustling, bustling concern, bent on better things. It will not achieve its goals, however, unless it devotes more attention to higher education.

It is important, of course, that the money received by higher education be spent in the manners most compatible with education's true objectives.

But that is another topic.

Intelligent Faith Week Could Offer More Diversity Of Opinion, Emphasis

Those students who attended the debate in Longmire Building Wednesday night at the close of Intelligent Faith Week were treated to a debate on a topic that has caused quite an uproar recently in religious circles.

There has been a noticeable increase in the past decade in the number of persons attending churches in the United States. On this trend people agree.

The difference of opinion comes in, and this is the bone picked Wednesday night, when the increase is said to mean that society is becoming increasingly religious. Clergymen have taken a stand on both sides of this proposal—as was demonstrated here.

IT IS DOUBTFUL that the interpretations of panel members or other groups will be able to decide this question. But, at least, during the discussion of the topic the participants and spectators will be forced to consider it in their own minds.

This kind of consideration may amount to an agonizing reappraisal of one's religious beliefs, which in turn may lead to firmer convictions or a desire for more knowledge. In either case the resulting faith is truly more "intelligent"—it is based upon one's own thinking rather than the accumulation of dogma to which one has been exposed.

SUCH AN EFFECT—which might be termed the stimulation of thought—comprises the real value of such an event as Florida State University's Intelligent Faith Week. This type of thing, accordingly, should be the objective of planners as they prepare for the "week".

Those who handle IFW next year should bear this in mind—that the speakers selected be those who encourage, not preclude, talk topics chosen, should all be intellectually rewarding.

STUDENTS HAVE little need for the presentation of oft-stated themes. What they want is material that will offer a challenge to their intellects. This means the speakers should reflect a variety of viewpoints and emphases.

If this year's IFW lacked anywhere, it was in this respect. We believe the students cannot help but benefit if the coming session offers more difference of opinion and range of viewpoint.

Calling The Card

'Critic' Says 'Sing' Was Held!

By JIM McINTYRE

Since it seems that the Flambeau music critics have seem fit to a good deal of criticism by members of the music school faculty, I feel compelled to take the burden off them by writing my own critique of the event of the weekend past in the musical world, the annual Campus Sing.

I feel singularly qualified to do this since, (1) I know nothing about music, and (2) I did not attend the concert.

I did arrive at the final presentation on Sunday in time to hear the decision of the Judges.

On the basis of the information I picked up on the scene, I feel that it is safe to say that, musically speaking, the women's division was won by Delta Zeta because the judges felt that they sang better than the other groups.

ODDLY ENOUGH, the same generalization holds true in the men's division. The Pi Kappa Phi team received the most votes and thus won.

To be specific, in the musical critique, the basic difference between the two winning groups was that the girls sang much higher than the boys.

TWO OF THE men's groups were collegiate type sweaters while the other wore tight T-shirts. It is the feeling of this writer than the quality of the performances would have been enhanced and the aesthetic appeal improved had the ladies followed suit.

The opinion in this corner is no matter what the uneducated human music thinks, that the brass choir under the direction of Arturo Buhrman presented a stirring performance in support of Don Westbrook as he read the results.

ANOTHER DIFFERENCE is here noted in the performance of various groups. The bass choir did not sustain as nearly as distinctly as the singing groups.

The writer would like to suggest a revision in the rules for this annual contest in order to make it more of a representative event. We make this suggestion on the ground that all of us established music-type critics should take their duties up right seriously, so I feel that it is safe to say that, musically speaking, the women's division was won by Delta Zeta because the judges felt that they sang better than the other groups.

I WOULD LIKE to suggest that there be established a new division in the contest, one for mixed choruses representing faculty organizations other than the School of Music.

The Philosophy Department could come through with a rendition of "The Descartes, Leibnitz, Kant and Hegel Blues." The Chemistry and Physics Departments could combine in two old folk songs such as "Nuclear Fission" and "Way Out West Where Electrons Are The Best and AEC Investigates All Day."

Such suggestions will, I know, be appreciated. My only hope is that Phi Mu Alpha and Sigma Alpha Iota will not censure me for the preceding criticisms of their concert venture.

West Doesn't Want To Anger Israel

LETTERS to the EDITOR

TO THE EDITOR:

I read your editorial, "Israel cannot leave Gaza unprotected." I am going to discuss the four points which you raised.

1. "Suppose, for example, a foreign power occupied Staten Island in New York harbor and bombarded white bound ships out . . . Why didn't you name it . . . a foreign power occupied Staten Island in New York harbor. Would not that be enough violation to the U. N. principles? Your example does not describe the situation. It was Egypt with the help of Great Britain and France, who attacked Egypt.

2. "NASSER HAS already closed the Suez Canal to Israel, in defiance of every international treaty . . . First, the Suez Canal was closed to Israel since the birth of that State in 1948, that was before the time of Nasser. Second, there is no defiance to any international treaty, on the contrary Egypt is abiding by the international law in that concern. Israel and Egypt are still technically speaking in a state of war, since no peace treaty has been signed up till this moment.

3. "The little nation of Israel, whose citizen army sent the vaunted troops of Egypt, armed with their Russian made weapons scurrying for safety.

You are contradicting yourself in this statement. Israel is described as the stronger and the conqueror, yet in the same sentence you said that the vasts guarantees against the weak scared defeated army of Egypt . . . ! Your sentence should have been modified instead if you had mentioned that the Egyptian army did withdraw from these areas according to a previous plan to defend the Canal — against British and France — leaving behind "the bride Nation" receiving a false victory gained by a dirty trick.

4. "DULLES SECRETARY of State speaks of 'moral force,' which he is sure will keep Egypt out of the area of attack on Israel once the Gaza Strip and Gulf of Aqaba are open territory. Did 'moral force' mean anything to Poland in 1939? . . . And then you continue to prove that the 'moral force' had failed many times in the past. What were the results of the failure of the moral force in the past? I am sure that you remember. We don't give it up just because it failed in the past, but instead you have to believe in its need more and more.

The trouble is, why do the Western powers hesitate to act? Obviously because they do not want to alienate Israel, since the mighty Zionists in the U. S. is very influential in ehanging the American public opinion. Their influence on the press, the radio and films in this country is considerable. In Britain the Zionist policy—and they do indeed have a policy—even if it runs contrary to that of the British government and against the vital interests of the British people. When it comes to supporting Israel's aggression and arrogance the interests of the Western powers in the Middle East oil, markets and defence fall meh away. Professional politicians are ready to sacrifice fifty million Arabs to seek the pleasure of one million Zionists.

Sooner or later the Western powers will have to face the realization. Which is more important—submitting to Zionist domination and influence on their political and economic life or fulfilling their pledges to maintain peace in the Middle East on the basis of the United Nations Charter and resolutions?

Liberals Unprincipled

TO THE EDITOR:

Dr.Kman's "Segregation Ads Asian Red Spread" in last Friday's FLAMBO was typical of Liberal prasa unobjectivity. Pase one was all anti-segregation, on page six I found this "Mr. Spottswood said that communist success in Asia has been due mostly to inequities in land ownership, and to ignorance and poverty among the people.

Dyckman neglected to quote Mr. Spottswood truly, especially when in answer to a question he admitted that Asians also had racial prejudice, in this case toward some "Negroes". Imagine that!

What Dyckman wished was to put forward the Integration-at-all-costs, also underplayed was the statement of Mr. Spottswood, a Mississippian, that the coercions of the Supreme Court the called them "laws" were not going to be able to force the South to integrate.

QUOTED WAS Mr. Spottswood's remark that "for better or for worse, we Americans have shared too much of brotherhood."

This same "brotherhood" was the brotherhood that created the United Nations, which even the anti-leftist label as impotent. Mr. Spottswood described the deal he thinks Nehru and the U N. Afro-Asian block are aiming to run in order to get Communist China admitted. This will be only another failure in the long line that New-Deal, Liberal U. S. leadership has subsidized: Malta, Poland, East Europe, Indochina, Korea, Formosa, Greece, Hungary, and Suez. Rabbi Zeitlin's picture of confusion: THESE ARE IT! How much have we gotten for our foreign aid? To Egypt? To India, which has just finished off its imperialist conquest of Kashmir? When will Americans realize that the Russians are not idealistic, but are only repeating their imperialistic history? And we are now aware of the cause of Freedom at home enough to help the Hungarians, as the PLAMBO suggested.

I HOPE someone will examine these statements and prove them wrong because if they are true we live in a "democracy" which does not cherish its freedom enough to fight for it. But remember, friends, if we win the first war at whatever cost we will have lost our principles! Liberals to lose the peace! Is that what the Hungarian student what he thinks of U N. Brotherhood

Degree Seen As End Of Students' Learning

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

It hasn't happened yet, but someday a student will proceed to Westcott, where the proper power-that-is will ask of him:

"You're a junior, and you've declared no major. You've taken a hodgepodge of courses, made good grades, fine, but no major. Well?"

No doubt our hero (for he certainly will be a lone individualist) will reply, "Can't I major in learning?"

Amid the boos of Florida State University's by-then 19,000 academic specialists, our hero, with the ridiculous ambition to major in learning, will be ordered off campus, probably for forever.

IT'S COMING to that.

The catalog bulges fatter every year with new courses in dozens of old fields and some new ones.

A student can get a fine training, and with his diploma a sure arm and his life in the wilder—don't all students have a degree married is qualify for graduation?—can get a highly specialized job assured of earning at least $5,000 a year.

The qualification is this: he may be a fine scientist, or research journalist, or baking executive—but the odds are against having a mind.

THERE IS WITHIN educational circles a cold war between liberal and progressive factions regarding the nature and purposes of higher learning.

The former say that an acquaintance with the heritage of the ages—and so implanting of the desire to seek knowledge—is the best gift a university can bestow on its students.

The latter insist that the idea of a well-rounded person is outmoded. Whatever its abstract merits, it doesn't turn out scholars or machines. It doesn't inspire technology; it doesn't guarantee the extra $1,00 000 lifetime earnings or so a degree is supposedly worth. So you can award the Bachelor's degree in business Arts or specialized fields—or vocation, as you choose—has taken the 41 semester hours designed to give him knowledge of the world a culture.

COULD INDEED TO teach nothing but what we would today call general education. It was more extensive. The classical curriculum of literature and history served to open up and inspire mankind, were read in their original languages and disinspected by students who were being studied one by one, but to help the student evolve his own philosophy, aesthetic, history, law—all these were offered not to make the student an artist, historian, or lawyer, but to help him to be himself, to help him do the lonely road toward knowledge.

There were flaws in the classical curriculum, of course, and were not so highly developed, but that should not stop us today from finding the proper balance. It has been ignored.

CERTAINLY, IT is unrealistic to expect teachers to understand child psychology. But is she likely to be a scholastic machine after completing the junior and senior years with nothing for only two hours of electives?

The Bachelor's Degree used to be awarded in recognition of some achievement, as the promise of the scholar's going forth forever to learn.

Commencement is now the end—the degree is the equivalent of a paycheck.

IRONICALLY, ALL the courses are taught here, that would make the student a well-rounded man, the ideal citizen for whom to society would really be very great since there would be little he could not do.

But no, declare a major. Specialize. The world is different today. I do not think for the better.

'Dance' Was Good Art

By LOWELL RODDENBERRY

Like any contemporary art form, modern dance is a hybrid. Unlike classical ballet, where is primarily abstract, it is highly subjective and deals in highly stylized movements. It is governed by the same laws of coherence that are applicable to any other art—those of balance and form. The idea need not be obvious nor is it necessarily discernable, but should combine to give the semblance of cohesive order.

THESE QUALIFICATIONS were achieved throughout the whole evening of Modern Dance, which was presented in Westcott Auditorium last Thursday and Friday night. The program included three works by student choreographers which in itself explains certain inherent weaknesses in the show. The vocabulary of the student can hardly be considered the conquest of and one must be cautious not to impose the same standards of criticism.

Nancy Smith's aptly stylized "Mambo" started the program off auspiciously. The basic underpinning of the mambo as simplified by Miss Smith and her dancers was a delight to watch. She served as a vehicle for technical introduced Diane Kagan's first choreographic attempt which was "PATTERNS," a repetition from last year's program, has gained a better technical polish since its first presentation. The dancers are to be commended on their delightful lighting was quite frankly distracting.

Miss Smith handles her materials skillfully and sensitively. Her best work as well as the best presented by her "Female Approach" and as performer particularly in her own "A Woman Alone." The Bungalow Kid" was a delightful manipulation of intricacies which formed. Katherine Hartley with a dance for the third consecutive year demonstrated much experience. This year's work lacked the clarity and structure arrap of her materials that her previous two and was by far the least successful of her balance with the musical accompaniment by Edvard Edwards.

The enthusiasms and freshness of Nancy Adams was particularly apparent and therefore pleasant in Charles Robinson, in his second year as a dancer, did not improve and therefore grown in conceptional work and is undoubtedly the best technically equipped dancer to have joined the dance group November 8. Charles deserves mention.

THE SHOW couldn't be complete without a comment on the

No Grid Set Up?

Florida State University's athletic department is expected to start a new director in the next couple of days and all signs point to one man—Thomas N. Nugent.

It's folly to deny that the machinery to move Nugent into the top dog's spot began a month or so ago when the affable Seminole grid coach received a three-year contract and his new appointment of football.

Though the university's top officials would undoubtedly deny it that move assumedly was made to take Nugent out from under the jurisdiction of departed athletic director Dr. Howard G. Bashed.

There was no evidence of ill will between the two at the time, but Nugent apparently figured he could do more with his own appointment.

So a month later, Danford mysteriously resigns and another officials immediately deny it had anything to do with the split between football and the athletic department.

DOESN'T MAKE SENSE

It just doesn't make sense that a man who had done so much for Florida State athletics in 10 short years would suddenly want to start all that giving no reasons and disappearing at the time his reputation was turned in.

Though Dr. Kenneth Miller, Danford's assistant and currently acting athletic director, is now in charge, Nugent seems destined to be sure over shortly.

This would give FSU a situation similar to the one at Florida where football coach Bob Woodruff is also athletic director. It is a situation not uncommon in many universities.

Should Nugent get the job, the Department of Football seems to be dissolved. It will no longer be practical, nor necessary, to have an athletic director. Nugent would be completely in charge and a more most of the money goes anyway and that's really all he was interested in when the department of football was established.

Actually, since its unofficial forming, the department has done very little functioning. Should it remain, the department's budget won't go into effect until July 1, anyway, and they can do very little without money.

Nugent originally planned to have his own publicity setup, but thus far without a budget has done nothing to establish a separate publicity department for football.

Athletic business manager Eddie Cubbon has also been mentioned for the athletic director's post, but it seems unlikely he'd give the post unless Nugent turns it down, as he reportedly has done on one previous occasion, un-publicized.

Hoopsters End Season At 9-17

Soph Durham 2nd To Hit 500 Points

By LARRY BLOCK
Assistant Sports Editor

Basketball fans at Florida State University will not forget the name of Hugh Durham very easily.

Probably because he's only a sophomore and will be back for two more seasons to haunt the Seminole's future foes.

With only one season of college ball behind him, the flashy guard from Louisville, Ky., a state that produces some of the finest basketball players in the nation, already holds two all-time FSU records.

This season Durham dropped 509 points through the hoop, for a 19.5 average per game and became the second caser to score over 500 points for Florida State in one season. Jimmy Oler did it twice as a junior and senior as a senior.

45 IN A GAME

On January 14, as the Tribe dumped Stetson 104-86, Durham, on a last second dash, set a new individual scoring mark for a single game with 45 points, breaking by one Oler's former record.

Ham Wernke's sophomore record of 488 in a season fell by the wayside in the caser's last home game of the season against Tampa.

Durham has started every game but two. The opener with of the football, basketball, baseball and track teams for four years.

But his first love is basketball and he proved this by turning down a football scholarship from a big-ten university.

Everyone agrees with Kennedy when he says that Durham has a great future ahead of him and we'll be looking for number 11 when basketball season rolls around again.

Durham and Tampa when Coach Bud Kennedy opened with his five graduating seniors.

He didn't really begin to pour in the points until the Sentor Bowl Tournament when the Tribe ripped Furman, 104-86 and Durham accounted for 31.

From then on, except for games with Florida Southern and Miami where he scored 18 and the last two road games with Centenary, 14 and Loyola 8, he began to score over 20 a game sometimes over 30.

NOT ONE WAY

"And he's not just a one way player" says Kennedy, "he's a fine passer and many of our inside baskets have come from his passing."

Durham came to FSU just as did Wernke and Oler—no scholarship and went out for frosh basketball. He led the freshmen in scoring and averaged over 20 points a game winning a scholarship for his pre-performance.

Sports is an old story for Durham. He won 16 letters while attending Eastern High School in Louisville. He was a member

The Loyola Wolfpack held Florida State star Hugh Durham to eight points as they whipped the Seminoles 83-56 last Saturday night in New Orleans.

Going into this game Durham had scored over 500 points and ended the season with 509. The loss gave the Tribe a final record of nine wins against 17 defeats.

Loyola took a large early lead and at the half had a 42-25 advantage. In the last half the Tribe did not threaten until the final minutes of the game when they cut the Pack lead down to 20 points.

Forward Pete Gaudin was the game's high scorer with 28 points. Bob Waltz and Larry Strom teamed up to score over half the points for FSU as they scored 15 field goals for 14 points each.

Friday night Centenary, led by guard Milt Williams, put on a burst of strength and rolled over the Tribe cagers 92-74.

FSU led most of the first half but Williams hit a hot streak and tied the game. Williams finished the game with 32 points which enabled him so capture the high score honors.

The Gents, using a bit of strategy placed two men on the Tribe's Durham and held him to 14 points. Durham passed the 500 mark however and became the second player in FSU cage history to accomplish this feat.

Top scorer for the Tribe was Waltz who hit for 16. He was followed closely by Strom with 17 and Bob Ward who had seven points for FSU as they scored 15 field goals for 14 points each.

The Dorm volleyball season opened last week and with the Rebels furnishing the big upset. After losing to Methodists, they turned on their favored rivals and beat them 15-9, 15-6.

The Methodists were last year's champs while the Rebels were on the bottom.

Magnolia Hall also got off to a good start with a 15-8 and 15-6 over Baptists.

Schedule for tomorrow night:
7—Feds vs. Lutherans
Rebels vs. Senior Hall
8—Vets vs. Bentats
Methodists vs. Penthouse

BADMINTON

The badminton doubles got off to a flying start with the Lutherans beating Methodists 15-6, 11-8, the Vets defaulted to Methodists, the Feds won a long match from Baptists, 15-11, 10-15, 15-12, the Rebels beat the Penthouse 15-6, 17-15.

Tomorrow night at 7:30 the semi-finals of the losers bracket is scheduled.

Seminole Golfers Top Auburn, 20-1

Florida State's golf team defeated Auburn 20-1 Saturday giving the linksters their 15th consecutive dual meet victory.

Bunk Berry with a two-under par 70 was medalist for the day, while captain Ed Jenkins and Bob Shaw came in with 71's for one-unders.

Jack Weaks and Harry Shoemaker, a southpaw, also picked up points for the Tribe. Auburn's medalist was Johnny Gross with a 72.

On Saturday, the Seminoles put their unbeaten string on the line when they face the University of Florida here at the Capitol City Country Club.

Freshman Cagers Finish 1-9 Season

The University of Florida's Baby Gators overcame an eight-point halftime deficit to top FSU's luckless freshmen 55-52, here Friday night.

The loss ended a disappointing 1-9 season for Jimmy Oler's quintet. Their lone win came on a 78-77 decision over the Miami frosh.

Playing without the ailing Jerry Hohne and Tom Adams, the Baby Seminoles started slowly, but midway in the second quarter they took command on the shooting of Buddy Cash and Tom Somers.

Between them they accounted for 22 of Florida State's 28 points at halftime.

Florida narrowed the gap at the opening of the second half, but Charlie Rogers began a scoring spree that kept FSU six ahead midway in the half.

Carroll and Hazelwood, of the Gators, countered with a pair of hoops and put Florida ahead for good. A last minute burst by Rogers and Williams was nipped in the bud, and Florida recorded their second win of the year over the Tallahasseans.

Rogers paced the evening's scoring with 17 points followed by teammate Cash who drove for 16. Sherwood led Florida with 15.

Say Planning Needed

Officials Seen 'Interested' In Bikes

By DAVE FLETCHER

University officials are viewing with interest a "sudden increase" in the amount of bicycle traffic on campus.

Enough bicycles have been observed around classroom buildings to indicate a slow shift to that mode of transportation, one official noted. Perhaps this interest is encouraged by the freshman car ban, he speculated.

Dean of Men Dr. Sam Neel expressed interest. "With the present critical traffic and parking problem on campus, I would favor such a shift," he said. "Bicycle traffic would need to be controlled and planned, however. I favor bicycles if they are used as a substitute for automobiles, and if their use is regulated to assure safety. We know that bicycle programs are working on many other campuses throughout the country," Dr. Neel commented.

FACILITIES PROMISED

Dr. Harry Day, director of service units, has also expressed enthusiasm. "I feel that this trend should be encouraged," he stated. The university is ready to provide parking and storage facilities "as soon as sufficient need arises," he added.

Warren Neel

Dean of Women Katherine Warren said she does not have any comment to make on bicycles.

The Flambeau distributed questionnaires to some of the bicycle riders on campus. Several replies were received, with most of the replies expressing the same point of view. Bicycle rider Eli Ask, who lives off campus stated that he started riding his bike to school when his car ran out of gas one morning, and found that it was less expensive. One of the greatest difficulties he has encountered has been the campus "hills," but "it's a good way to lose weight," he added.

To the question "do you find bicycle riding enjoyable?" most riders said that they "didn't mind it."

Advantages poured out by the students include gas saving, parking problems eliminated, and avoidance of traffic tie-ups. Quite a few replies stressed the disadvantages created by bad weather. "It's tough pedaling when it's raining," one reply said.

Every respondent expressed hope that the university would soon place bicycle racks in strategic locations, the reply from James C. Reed, who rides a motorbike suggested that the racks be built to accommodate motor-bikes and scooters as well as bicycles.

"Such a rack would provide parking spaces for motor-bikes and scooters so that they would not have to park in the yellow loading zones or automobile parking spaces," he said. He pointed out that six or seven scooters could be parked in the space allotted for one car.

Coed Bowling Starts Thursday

A spokesman of the University Recreation Association said coed bowling will be sponsored at the women's gym bowling alley between 7:30 and 8:30 p.m. Thursdays beginning this week.

Frosh Meeting To Set Project

A freshman class meeting has been set for 7 p.m. Thursday in Lonsmire Auditorium "to decide on our next project," said Marilou Hall, president.

He asked all freshmen to attend. The class' last project, a trip dance in January, was a success, he said.

Philosophy Club Slates Yoga Talk

Indian philosophy and Yoga will be discussed at the Thursday meeting of the Philosophy Club, said William Nesbett, graduate student who will present the topic.

Honor Court Reveals Theft Conviction

A conviction for theft was given by the Honor Court in an action earlier this week, according to Bill Jones, Chief Justice.

The action followed a series of thefts in campus residence halls which was brought to the court's attention.

Jones said that the student in question was presented with the charge before the court and pleaded guilty.

"The amount stolen," said Jones, "was in the grand larceny classification." Because of the student's pleas and the seriousness of the offense, the court recommended immediate suspension from the University. The decision was upheld by the Faculty Honors Committee.

The student has returned the money and will not be subject to prosecution in civil court, it was indicated that, due to Honor Code regulations, he was unable to divulge the amount in question or the area of his offender.

Student Body President David Swann has filled two newly-created vacancies on the council. Carol Roth and Courtney Polk Swann are interning as secretary and have been replaced by Mary Louise Peacock and Sarah Jane Griffin.

Martha Burkhardt, one of the newly-elected, will move into the Honor Clerk position with the two appointees both becoming assistant justices.

Alpha Gams Top Sorority Grade List

Alpha Gamma Delta topped the sorority grade averages last semester, the Dean of Women's office announced today.

An officer of Pan-Hellenic Association said it is possible Alpha Gamma Delta may be given permanent possession of a trophy awarded each year to the highest sorority in grade point averages. Alpha Gamma Delta has won the previous two years and this is their first consecutive semester at the head of the list.

ACTIVE HIGH

The Alpha Gams were the only group whose active members were better than a B average—they had a 2.033, which, however, didn't please pledges' 2.458, who made their average to 2.033 the previous semester they had a 2.8410.

Second place was Alpha Xi Delta who rose from 12th in the previous semester of 1956. Alpha Xi Delta overall was 2.769.

Following were Zeta Tau Alpha 2.749, Kappa Delta 2.737; Kappa Alpha Theta, 2.730, Delta Zeta, 2.681, Pi Beta Phi, 2.666, Alpha Delta Pi, 2.662, Chi Omega, 2.646, Phi Mu, 2.646, Alpha Chi Omega, 2.636, Delta Gamma 2.636, Alpha Phi Beta, 2.563, Alpha Omicron Pi, 2.527, Delta Phi Delta, 2.524, Alpha Omicron Pi, 2.479 and Sigma Kappa 2.470.

PLEDGES BEAT ACTIVES

Pledges of two sororities were better than their elected actives. Pi Phi pledges outscored actives 2.702 to 2.643. The overwhelming pledge's class was that of Chi Omega, scored 2.746 although the members' 2.636.

Grade compilations for fraternities were not ready for release yesterday, the Flambeau Key Raders was informed by a reliable halla and the campus in general.

Lobby, Installation Bills Get Approval

Bills to establish the student lobby group within the jurisdiction of the secretary of state, and to amend the process of installing class senators were unanimously passed by the Student Senate Wednesday.

The amendment concerning both bills stipulates that the secretary of state will be given the power to co-ordinate and consider lobbying groups and stipulates that no one can lobby for and one solicitor be appointed to the committee.

The sophomore will be retained as a lobbyist this semester year to provide the committee with an experienced member.

The bill also provides funds for the operation of the lobbyists group during legislative years.

RELATIONS

A bill to install class senators each after spring elections in October, instead being elected a week after fall elections will be considered by the senate immediately following the start of the school year.

Offices of the living area senators will end at the official closing of the spring semester in which they were elected and the incoming senators more quickly.

The Senate also referred two measures to committees for further study and tabled another.

These included a resolution introduced by Senators Cynthia Lawrence, Patsy Pace Hunter, Kay Reedy, and Charlotte Parker to provide a calendar for next semester between 6 and 7 p.m. when no classes, meetings, or practices would be scheduled.

Senator Homer objected to classes being held during the hour when sororities are served dinner.

Senator Frank Pain, criticizing the resolution, asserted that individuals should make arrangements for this and not handle it through Senate.

Another bill to establish the secretary of organizations as cabinet position met with little opposition from senators. It was referred to the Organizations committee for study.

Position relating to organizations are now handled by no undersecretary.

LOUD SPEAKERS

Senator Ramon Arnold introduced a bill to "control the use of loud speakers and similar devices on motor vehicles" on campus, but it was held for further discussion.

This would require organizations to register their vehicles with the Clerk of Traffic Court and would restrict the hours in which such "noise makers" could be used.

It would be unlawful for anyone to register or abuse the law regulations would make such persons subject to a maximum $25 fine according to

State Party Adopts Platform

State Party adopted an eight-plank platform, including promises to work for expanded campus bus service at its convention Tuesday night.

"We advocate an increase in bus facilities to include bus service to the men's gym," the group declared.

Other planks accepted by vote of the delegates were:

BOOKSTORE MENTIONED

"We advocate that space be provided in the new student union for the Alpha Phi Omega bookstore.

"We advocate that the university extend its laundry pick-up service to fraternities and sororities.

"We advocate extension of university clinic hours from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

"We shall urge the university to name the streets on campus and also to request the university to obtain street markers that would aid visitors, transfers, and new students.

EXPAND SERVICE

"We shall urge the university to work with the telephone company to install a more extensive telephone system on campus.

"We advocate synchronization of all clocks on campus in order to facilitate the students in arriving to class and being excused from class on time.

"We shall urge the installation of at least two additional U. S. mail boxes on campus.

The keynote speech was delivered by Paul Ort who said "State Party members are proud of the fact that only students are active in the party."

"NOT INFLUENCED

In what was interpreted by many as an attack on the Student Party, Ort said, "We are not influenced by any campus officials as to our organization, to candidates, and we do not run puppets for office in order to have a full slate."

In past years, three Student Body presidents nominated by Student Party have been son of FSU deans or faculty members — Milton Carothers, Pat Hunkoff and Coyle Moore J.

PARTY OFFICERS

Gerry Gordon was elected party chairman. Bill Wrich vice-chairman, Jane Selby, recording secretary; Patty Marles corresponding secretary; Kaki Ramsey, treasurer; and Sue Slivers, public relations director.

The party will hold another convention beginning at 7 p.m. Tuesday in 124 B-C to nominate candidates for major Student governm. ot offices.

Coffee Hour To Present Joyce Reading

James Joyce will be the subject of today's English Coffee Hour at 4 p.m. in the Westminster House.

English graduate student Bernd Bentcock will present a group reading of Joyce's psychological novel of all mankind, Finnegans Wake.

Before reading the ten selected passages Bentcock said that he would explain the book as a whole as well as the meanings of each part. Most of the selections will be from the humorous or poetic" he continued.

Finnegans Wake deals with the dream of a Dublin saloonkeeper, C. C. Earwicker who represents all mankind. During the dream the feeling of all human guilt comes up.

The complex novel starts with the funeral of Finn MacCol, an Irish hero. The plot continues as Earwicker manifests guilt-feelings from ao indiscretion.

Earwicker's two sons represent the opposites found in every man. Joyce satirizes Shem as the introverted inventor, and Shaun as the bourgeous extrovert.

Bentcock also explained that the group of readers will be portraits of the individual characters, such as the tale of Jarl van Hoother and the Prankquean.

Bentcock continued by saying that the difficulty in reading Joyce is that the novelist has his own language. "It is a dream in all languages, which in reality resembles butchered English. But I hope to untanale this problem by explanation" he concluded.

In addition to Bentcock the readers include Mrs. Halgren, English graduate student, Barbara Waddell, undergraduate in English, Bill Bass graduate student; and Jacque Spencer, art major.

ROTC To Receive Rebel Banner

Ninety-two years after cadets at Florida State University's predecessor, West Florida Seminary, helped keep Tallahassee from falling into the hands of the Union Army, FSU Army ROTC units here are receiving a battle streamer to commemorate the event.

The battle streamer—which will be displayed over the colors of the Army ROTC and Air Force ROTC—says in white letters on a blue-bordered red field: "Battle of Natural Bridge 1865."

The streamer commemorates participation of about two dozen teen-age cadets at the seminary in a battle near Tallahassee in which Confederate home guards turned back a Federal assault on Tallahassee on March 6 1865.

The battle streamer is to be officially presented to student commanders of the units of the ROTC and Air Force ROTC in ceremonies at Doak S. Campbell Stadium at 12:30 p.m. next Thursday.

Participating in the discussion which will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Lonsmire Clubroom will be Dr. Ernest G. Campbell and Dr. Charles M. Grass of the sociology department, and Dr. James Preston, political science, who made a joint study, "An Emerging Two Party System."

No Sandspur Again; Lack Funds, Interest

No, Virginia, there won't ever Sandspur.

Not according to Dr. Hilda Tinney, faculty advisor for last year's Sandspur weekend, anyway.

Dr Tinney, speaking about the nonexistence of the campus production the past two years said, "There didn't seem to be a need for it last year because of the many activities of fraternities and sororities. The students who participated last year did not have enough time to devote to the project along with their other activities. But an event should be supported by the entire student body, not by just one small group."

Sandspur, for those unfortunates who have only been on the campus these two years, was a weekend during which a production, features produced, and edited by students was presented. There was a dance on Saturday night to cap the festivities. A good time was usually had by all.

But, last year there was a lack of interest and the availability of only one script, and that rejected "as not funny" Sandspur was not held. This year "the weekend of March 22-23 was set aside on the Organizational Calendar as Sandspur Weekend.

However, no money was appropriated for it by Student Government, and no committee was set up to plan it.

Student Body President Dave Parham said yesterday that Sandspur would definitely not be held this year and that it was not to be held anymore in the future. "I would be in favor as a result of increased student interest, but Student Government action

Board Discusses Signals Future

Charlet Poitevint, junior Journalism major was yesterday elected Flambeau Editor in a Board of Publications session marked by a slightly controversy over the future of Smoke Signals.

Others chosen were Ray Hyman Flambeau business manager, Eric Morris Talla-Ho Editor, and Arlene Swasand, Talla-Ho business manager.

Both Miss Poitevint and her opponent Bob Simmons, told the Board they favor only minor modifications in next year's Flambeau. Miss Poitevint currently Flambeau associate editor, said she intends to modify the present Senior Staff arrangement of the newspaper into an Editorial Board. But she said she intends to follow a "progressive policy."

No appointments were made to fill positions in Smoke Signals, student magazine. The Board reviewed an application from Pierce Lehmbeck for Editor, but voted to defer the appointment to the next meeting.

The Board set aside Constitutional requirements for a fall Smoke Signals Editor and Business Manager need more than two full semesters of experience in responsible positions on the magazine.

REVIEW SIGNALS

Several Board members indicated a desire for changes in the present Smoke Signals set up. Student member Ross Parish recommended changing the publication from a humor to a general campus magazine.

Malcolm, under his proposal, would include stories and fiction of all types, essays, poetry, profiles, articles, and picture stories. He said it would be judged "on excellence and merit, not by classification or type."

Smoke Signals Editor Marcello Tramontin countered with the argument that many type of material will be accepted for publication in the present magazine. "It says strictly a humor magazine" he said.

REGARDS LETTER

The Board received a letter from the student government secretary asking that regulations be set by the Board which it would be required to follow. Smoke Signals to meet. The letter also stated, "We have received complaints that the Board's decisions were rejected without examination by the staff. We feel this could be avoided by a better organization of the staff who in turn could broaden the basis of contributions to include more students."

Dr. Ralph A. Cout to serve consideration changes in the status of next year's magazine until a full meeting.

Flambeau Editor Oscar Johnson was absent from the Board of yesterday's late meeting will be published at a later date

An Impasse Has Been Reached In Campus Food Controversy

The food situation seems to have reached that stage known in chess as stalamata.

Students say the food is poor, the prices high, and consequently, Morrison's must be making too much money. Morrison's says the food will get better and it has been losing money.

Neither combatant can convince the other unless it proves its point. To date, they haven't done so.

We do not hear Morrison's maintaining its offering are the criterion of gastronomic succulence; they have a not placed table cards for the registering of patrons' complaints as they do in their other restaurants. Evidently, the point of agreement is that the food, at present, is not the finest.

THE QUESTION of profit is much more complex—you can't taste the difference between red and black ink, and the problems of management are equally intangible. They require a four-year course to gain even an adequate insight.

Thus the situation will have to be a wait-and-see deal. If Morrison's can improve its food, as it says it can, then everybody should be satisfied. (We hesitate to advance any kind of hope that the prices will be lowered—that topic seems to be viewed as "untouchable" by the firm.)

WHEN THAT HAPPY state arrives — when students will be able to obtain good food on campus at fair prices—then our hats will be off to Morrison's.

Right now, we're waiting.

Bi-Racial Committee Would Improve Present, Future Relations At FSU

The storm is over. There have been no riots here between integrationists and segregationists, and the few students who tried to enlist others in a cause for integration are alone.

But some or later we will all graduate, leaving behind us FSU's splendid isolation from the toils of life.

Perhaps now we can begin to anticipate a time when segregationist's scope will be reduced in great measure.

WHEN THAT TIME comes—and it may not be far away—Florida will need citizens of both races who know each other as men, not enlcors; who can approach problems objectively instead of emotionally; who can cooperate toward the ends of law and order.

It has been suggested often that Florida State University and Florida A&M University permit—indeed, facilitate the organization of a bi-racial committee of students to look toward the future.

When the future becomes the present those who are now students will be among the leaders of their communities. It is necessary they be compatible leaders.

Students from FSU and A&M could meet to discuss attitudes, probabilities, problems and necessities. Any discussions should by no means be limited to those who agree that integration is a good thing.

THEY WOULD speak not of buses but of years to come, not of law suits, but of people, not of abstract ideals but of ways to persuade their fellow citizens — black and white—that there are better ways to deal with one another than with threats, fists, and recriminations.

The commission would provide an arena wherein students of all viewpoints could express their thoughts without having to resort to open demonstrations. Indeed, it could be said that the elimination of fear contributed to racial tension by not providing a place where students can peaceably work toward their goals.

THE UNIVERSITY has an obligation to protect the student body from violence of latent among the more rabid segregationists. It has an obligation to protect students, whose acute sense of right and wrong makes some kind of action necessary, from the legal stumblings of the kind of judge who will admit a law is designed to further segregation on a public conveyance and then ignore the fact that such a law conflicts with the Constitution of the United States.

The climate is calm enough now to permit the establishment of such a program. The worst that could be said of it is that it would accomplish nothing. The best depends upon the dreams of men and women of good will.

And The Voice Came From On High—

"Thou Shalt Speak No Evil . . ."

Students may well pause to consider the implications of the Music School's faculty's attempt to quell the voices of the Flambeau critics.

If their wishes were carried out, what would there be to prevent, for example, banning of discussion of philosophy on the grounds it disagreed with the opinion of the faculty of the department of philosophy and religion? Or discussion of politics because the political science department didn't like students to disagree with its viewpoint?

Fie on the Music School silencers. Do they consider themselves as above criticism?

THERE HAVE been critics as long as there has been music. Possibly the gentlemen of the Music School believe students will cease criticizing their efforts if the Flambeau's critics stop discussing it. This is amusing.

In fact, the whole "controversy" borders on the ludicrous. We are inclined to believe that the School's faculty doesn't really think the way its actions would indicate.

The fact that the Music School went to such trouble to keep the matter out of the faculty of the department of philosophy and religion? Or discussion of politics because the political science department didn't like students to disagree with its viewpoint?

Summing it up, we believe there is a general good will on both "sides." If the critics and the faculty can convince each other that their intentions are honorable (and we believe they are), then we shouldn't hear much more about this less than magnificent feud between the Oracles of Opperman and the Ogres of Longmire.

Take Away Power Of Women's Senate

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Whenever someone has complained of the social rules have reminded them, "Patience! Courage! Don't despair. Women's Senate is working on them."

They sure are.

Men's Vice-President Frank Fain reported to Men's Senate Wednesday just how a few women senators are considering "modernizing" the closing hour.

In all fairness, it must be said the following proposal is only in the discussion stage, but its publication should serve to keep it there.

FRIDAY AND Saturday hours would be extended until 1 a.m. So far, so good. But weekday women's hours would be cut back until 10:30 p.m.

Simple, isn't it? For those two extra half-hours of parking time and weekends, all that must be sacrificed is a total of two and a half hours during the week.

IF A WEEKEND extension could be obtained from the Dean of Women that would be all right, however, one must suppose. Why allocate really need more time in Tallahassee, where no one out after midnight is most usually a burglar.

But the catch clause—the idea of moving up the weekday closing—is untenable. It would rule out weekday movies, dates after library closing many meetings, the FSU Film Societies, Alpha Series, and many other activities as well as a step backwards in double time.

TO SUM IT UP, a weekend extension would be welcome, not at such a great price.

Pain found out about the plan from a woman senator violated what must be her colleagues' unwritten rule: Don't the men know what social regulations they and their dates must keep until it's too late to change them."

Fain ignored his friend's pleas not to break the news. Women's Senate was ready to report on the extension proposal.

Then, he observed, it would be too late.

A FEW YEARS ago, freshmen women's hours were midnight from 11 to 10:30 p.m. by Women's Senate over the protest Men's Senate, who thought they should be on an equal with President Fain, as a matter of fact, can make a good case male superiority in this legislative regard. "Who" he asks "is for the dates?"

IT IS POSSIBLE Women's Senate might never have sensed its own power. But to have seriously considered one have given certain occupants of Westcott ideas which might be done about putting into practice. Senate or Senate.

What Student Government needs is a check upon the impulse making power of Women's Senate. Actually some of their progressive suggestions have been rejected by the Dean of Women. But all of them should be subject to censorship.

Therefore, the Constitution should be amended to require the bills and resolutions to change the social rules could originate only in Men's Senate, and be voted upon by the Student Senate. This would be much like the provisions governing revenues in Congress must come from the House of Representatives.

Ballet Draws Enthused Response

By DAVID WARD-STEINMAN

The National Ballet of Canada which performed Tuesday and Wednesday nights in Westcott Auditorium drew enthusiastic response from the capacity audiences that attended.

With emphasis on the spectacle and plain rather than the polished movements, the dancers presented a diverting evening a situation which they could found most enjoyable if not elevating.

THE OPENING number on the first program was Ashton's Les Patineurs to music by Auber. This was the "Classical" ballet of the evening and presented interesting movement and ensemble patterns. Most of the dancers displayed good forms of the convention. The women were well trained and the youthful corps were most enjoyable and breathed life into what would otherwise have been a static entertainment piece.

WORK TO DO

(ACP)—Michigan State university's NEWS criticized the school's Student Congress for its "apathetic state" and were in turn criticized by congress members who said the paper should be "more constructive and offer ideas."

The NEWS came back with 24 suggested projects for the student politicians to work on. Possible programs for any student government group, they include getting traffic lights put up at busy campus crossings, working out a civil defense plan for students, regulating elections (don't let campus become a "billboard jungle"), doing something about dorm food and crowded rooms, planning coffee hours so students could meet famous persons who come to campus.

PAPA WAS A STUDENT

(ACP) — Moving college and marriage can sometimes be too much for one's nervous system. Upon the arrival of his second child, a student at Northern Oklahoma Junior College—so says THE MEVERICK — called friends with the news:

"It's a father. I'm a girl! I'm a girl!"

The Fisherman and his Soul, adapted from Lord Wilde story by Grant Strate, who played the Soul, and set to music by modernist Harry Somers, was the most colorful and exotic production of the evening.

BRIEFLY, the story concerns a Fisherman who catches a Mermaid and falls in love with her. His Soul obtains since the Mermaid is one of the soulless and the Fisherman then attempts unsuccessfully to get rid of his Soul. The Mermaid eventually dies of grief when the Fisherman refuses to keep her. Fisherman. When the latter comes upon her body he carries her into the sea to die with her.

The choreography was a mixture of ballet, and modern dance techniques but contained a rather surprising amount of pantomime and obvious sensationalism. Somers' new musical score was unextricably effective. I feel particularly disappointed as composition. Lotte Jarvis was a most intimidating Mermaid, and Earl Kraul made a popular Fisherman.

THE FINAL NUMBER of the evening was Blandis titled Offenbach in the Underworld, and failed to be anything but a disappointingly inoffensive collage of a half-dozen Offenbach scores from his opera which included "La Gaite Parisienne", "Tales of Hoffman", etc.

Certainly a tour de force, this was in all respects the most successful of the Lucia Admirably plotless the sheer exuberance and vitality of the dancers made this ballet eminently convincing. Here was unabashed frivolity, and made more so by fantastic sense and was performed with unbelievable gusto. Gilbert the conventional Rendezvous or the somewhat naive Fisherman.

THERE IS a Biblical parody of life can-can and much unrefined fun throughout, culminating in an incredible free-for-all. The entire production, we suggest, must have been conceived with tongue-in-cheek.

Paper Leaves Out Significant News

TO THE EDITOR:

I am sick and tired of seeing real news being suppressed for ridiculous fake pictures or otherwise comparatively worthless garbage. One particular picture I have in mind is the Azalea debate. This story was fine, but why in the world did it have to be accompanied by a picture of a mop? I realize that pictures add human interest but a smaller one of the boys themselves would have unquestionably served the purpose without cutting down on valuable news space.

ANOTHER THING I'd like to mention is the fact that I didn't see anything in the Flambeau about Fashion Day. I'm afraid I didn't carefully scrutinize every word in your paper, but is that necessary to find something as significant as Fashion Day? Four magnificent speakers from New York who have valuable time to come and speak in a little backwoods burg should be given due publicity. Or maybe the backwoodsmen are too simple to recognize celebrities when they are exposed in them.

MARGARET BURNS

Editor's Note: The allegation that real news has been suppressed would be difficult to either prove or disprove, since news is a matter of judgment. The staff feels its judgment has not been too bad up to the present because the high demand for the paper has created far as the problem of finding funds to print more Flambeaux.

We backwoodsmen are we Yankee radicals?; did print a feature article "Third Annual Fashion Day Slates Margaret DeMille", in the Friday, Feb 15 edition, at the top of page six. The headline was three inches wide, bigger than the headline on the drama story, and the story was about 13 inches long.

We feel that this would be sufficient notification for those student's who would be interested in Fashion Day Thursday, Feb 21, and the personalities themselves were of a nature that would have probably interested few students other than those who attended also. The proceedings occurred on a day that happened to be a Flambeau deadline day. Thus it was not expedient, in light of the limited interest, to report them in the Friday Feb 22 Flambeau. By the following Tuesday the news was stale.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by Dick Bibler

NOT JUST JUNK

(ACP)—Old newspapers, wood shavings, bits of cloth, leather, yarn, etcetera are being used from the refuse of the University of New Mexico student union dining room. NEW MEXICO LOBO reports, but no one complains.

The waste material had been fashioned into animals and other "things" by students in art education. Articles were selected for exhibit "for their clever use of common materials and imagination."

The union hopes to have exhibits from other school sections "to give students an idea of what is going on in other departments of the university," according to the union program director.

Linksters Take Over

Golf coach Don Veller is literally walking in the clouds these days for he is the proud possessor of the longest win streak of any athletic team on the campus.

As his linksters take to the course against the University of Florida here tomorrow afternoon, they take a 19-game win streak with them.

The golfers haven't been beaten in a dual match since 1953, got last year they won 11 of 11 matches. Thus far, this year, they have downed Wisconsin 25-2 and Auburn 20-1.

The Seminoles and Gators have met twice previously on the green and twice the Florida netters came out on the short end both times.

The Seminoles buried the Gators under an avalanche of long drives and successful putts 22½-4½ here, and edged them out 13-12 in Gainesville.

The Seminoles' key man, or one of them, is par-breaker Edwin Jenkins, who has twice toured the local course in the amazing low total of 62 strokes.

Par for the course is and about 80% of the courses over the country is 72, but Mr. Jenkins and another Seminole golfer feel that they are not doing it justice unless they break par.

The other Tribe shotmaker to tour in 62 is Billy Thornton, a statistic who is inexhaustible this year.

Expert Or Duffer?

For you non-golfers, par is the supposed number of strokes that an expert can tour the course in on an average day, and the a duffer cannot tour the course in without a miracle.

However, as we said, Messrs. Jenkins and Thornton both have toured the course in 10 strokes less than par, something which no other golfer has done in the history of the course.

To those of an "weekend" golfers who only every now and then can make the rounds in less than 90 strokes, this seems like an unbelievably low number of strokes.

Anyone who rarely breaks 90 at the sport or as often as the now rarely breaks 100 is known colloquially among the better golfers as a "duffer" or "hacker."

The principal difference between a duffer and a golfer is that the former wraps his club around a tree after blowing or missing a two-foot putt, the latter, after a down-hill, sloping 35-footer has just rimmed the cup and it'll be ten get out of the lip a a miserable foot or five.

This fascinating (and very tiring) sport has been sometimes referred to by those who refuse to try it for one reason or another usually they have tried, failed and refuse to admit it) as an "old man's game."

To anyone who has walked the 6000-7000 yards around an average-sized golf course as I often have, it is obvious that it takes a sturdy old man to even walk the distance much less hit a ball a little pellet every now and then along the way.

If any of you doubt that the game takes timing, concentration and co-ordination of a rare degree, try it a few times.

Veller's golfers spend long hours every day on the course and the practice green, perfecting their art. Without those long practice sessions, any golfer is lost.

So if you should by accident happen to wander out in the general direction of the Country Club tomorrow, stop by and watch the boys in action.

Or better yet, shoot a round yourself. See you in the woods or the first tee!!

SPORT SHORTS. When Michigan State brings its baseball team here March 25 for the second annual Florida State Invitational Tournament, there will be a familiar name in football circles in the Spartans' third baseman. He's Dennis "The Menace" Mendyk, an All-American halfback for the Spartans and the first draft choice of the football New York Giants in the recent reams in the country beside the Seminoles will be Duke and Yale.

The Blue Devils of Duke bring back several lettermen from the same team that downed the Seminoles in the NCAA regionals in Gastonia, N. C. last spring. Duke later fell to Mississippi which went on to the national tournament. Locally many observers feel the Seminoles have a potential national champ brewing here. . . . The tournament will give a good indication of the theory.

Nugent Selects Garnets, Golds

By FRANK RAMOS
Flambeau Sports Writer

Tom Nugent, Seminole head football coach, Wednesday selected the Garnet and Gold teams that will clash March 15 in Campbell Stadium, at 8 p.m.

The Garnet team will be captained by Ronnie Schoenberger, who'll play left end and Bobby Renn, who'll start at quarterback.

Leading the Gold squad will be Eddie Johnson, fullback, and Bill Masselinas, tackle.

Running down the Garnet team we find Schoenberger and Ham Bisbee at left end right end respectively. Jerry Lane and George Boyer will open at the tackle slots.

SOPHOMORE GUARDS

Two sophomores to be bold down the guard slots for the Garnet team. They are Al Ulmer and Abner Bigbee. Troy Barnes will open at center, the same position he held on the starting eleven last year.

Deceptain Renn, will handle the quarterbacking chores while Stan Dodson and Gerald Philp will be at the halfs. Carmen Battista has drawn the starting fullback at the halfback post.

TALKING THINGS OVER. Seminole grid coach Tom Nugent discusses the forthcoming Garnet-Gold clash with sophomore Tony Romeo, who'll start at end for the Golds.

Promising Sophs Will Bolster Veteran Seminole Baseballers

In addition to having a number of returning lettermen, the Florida State baseball team has a group of promising newcomers who should see a lot of action this year.

According to assistant coach Jim Ralston the varsity received a very sharp bunch of men from last year's frosh team. The Tribe has two first rate pitchers from last year but the staff should be bolstered by the addition of Al Zyla and Don Axon, two sophomore hurlers who pitched a lot last season.

Zyla is a right-hander who is very strong and has a live fast ball. Axon a lefty who is known as the "junkman", has a wide variety of pitches.

Ralston explains that the hitters never know what to expect consequently he is never hit very hard.

Also slated to see mound duty this season are Bruce Sussex, Jerry Boyer and Rudy Ecee. All of these men were on the varsity last season may come into their own this year according to Ralston.

Boxer Improved

"The biggest question mark on the staff is Boxer," stated Ralston. "The big red-haired right-hander is the fastest pitcher on the team and could be a good starter if he can gain poise and control." Ralston stated that Boxer was very erratic last season but his control has improved this season.

The Tribe has a weak spot behind the plate with only one seasoned catcher on the squad, John Sheppard. Mike Coppe, an infielder on the frosh team last year has been moved to catcher behind Sheppard.

Ralston says "Coppe has such a strong arm and such a will to play we feel we can use him at most any position, but catcher is where we need him most."

Another sophomore infielder Dale Koch is rated as an able man to fill in anywhere in the infield. He is a good hitter and Ralston says he is a good all-around player.

Wayne Long, younger brother of last season's top pitcher Max Long, is putting forth his best effort to win the first base job. Jerry Couch, a hard hitting catcher, "should help the Tribe at the plate but his defensive ability is not as polished as we would like it," asserted Ralston.

Golf Captain Jenkins Eyes State Tourney

By BESS WELLER
Flambeau Sports Writer

Ed Jenkins, captain of the FSU golf team, hopes to win the State Intercollegiate Tournament this season.

In the same tournament in 1953 Frank Boynton, now a professional golfer, and then lost to him in a sudden death play-off.

Ed took up golf when he was 11 years old strictly as a hobby. He had become interested in the game while caddying at a local course in Jacksonville, Fla., his home town.

At the age of 12 he entered Junior tournament competition. His first major win came at 15 when he won the city amateur championship at Jacksonville.

WON JUNIOR TITLE

Ed took the city junior tournament in 1954, and again won the city amateur championship in 1955.

The versatile golfer attended Robert E. Lee High School in Jacksonville where he played football until he sustained a serious knee injury as a sophomore.

Head golf coach Don Veller showed interest in his golfing ability when Jenkins was still in high school. After graduation Veller offered him a golf scholarship to Florida State.

Jenkins averages 72 strokes per game, and has a low match score of 67 strokes. The fact that he is captain of a team that was first in the state and fifth in the nation last season speaks for itself.

A marketing major, the senior golfer hopes to go into the insurance field in Jacksonville after graduation.

Coach Veller says, "Ed is a fine golfer and a fine competitor. We are all very proud of him."

Seek 9th Victory At Florida Pool

By TOM HALE
Flambeau Sports Writer

Florida State and The University of Florida resume their intrastate rivalry tomorrow at Gainesville as they square off against each other for the second time this year in a dual swimming meet.

In their previous meeting last month, the Tribesmen left a record in the books as going on a comeback from-behind 46-40 victory over the then undefeated Gators.

FSU will carry eight dual wins and a Georgia AAU title against losses to Georgia Tech and SMU, into the match, while Florida's only loss in 10 meets was at the hands of the Seminoles.

Coach "Bum" Stults of the Seminoles is confident that his team won't start a Gainesville "Jinx," after losing there by two points last year while winning in Tallahassee by 50 points.

NO OVERCONFIDENCE

Stults said that "The boys might have been a little overconfident last year and maybe that is the reason we lost." But he continued, "we aren't this year."

The Gators seem to have at least four events wrapped up with Phil Drake in the butterfly and breaststroke and Jim Watrous in the two distance freestyles. Together the two accounted for half of their team's point in the last match between the two schools.

The Seminole mermen have most of their sure points concentrated in the short sprints with Jim Jollies, Ryan Ray, and Don Lewis leading the way.

The 400 yard medley relay first event of the meet, is rated as a toss up. Last time FSU won it by less than a yard.

The last event, the 400 yard freestyle relay is conceded to the Tribe as they broke an all-time FSU pool record last week against Miami in a time of 3:33.6. Florida's best time in this event is only 3:40.

SECONDS DECIDE

"The second and third places will decide the outcome," said Stults. "Last time we met them we got only two first places. Besides the relays, out of eight events and we still won."

Freestyler Don Lewis commented that, "To win we will have to get second and third places in the butterfly and breast stroke events along with our other first places.

Florida pool records may fall in the 50 yard freestyle, 400 yard medley relay and the 400 yard freestyle relay all events in which FSU has yet to be defeated this year.

Golfers Battle Florida Here

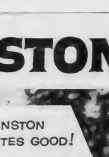
The Florida State University golfers meet the University of Florida linksters here Saturday, and the Seminoles are looking for their 20th straight victory.

Coach Don Veller's shotmakers already have two wins under their belt this season having buried Wisconsin and Auburn by 25-2 and 20-1 scores respectively.

Veller's golfers have won 19 straight over a three-year period dating back to 1953. Last year, they were undefeated in 11 matches, and won the Florida AAU crown.

The Seminole and Gator golfers met for the first times with the Seminoles winning both encounters, winning 22½-4½ on the home course and 13-12 in Gainesville.

The two leading candidates for low man for the Seminoles are captain Edwin Jenkins of Jacksonville who holds the Tallahassee course record, and Bunk Berry of Tallahassee.



Jenkins holds the course standard of 62 for the Capital City Country Club, and he has done it twice. He and Billy Shelton were seasonal low scorers for the Tribe last year, with a 72.1 average.

Berry finished second in the recent George Washington Tournament here missing the title by the bare margin of a missed three-foot putt.

Florida has lost its ace of last year, Florida PGA champ Dave Fagan, by graduation. The key to the Gators' success chances is Bob McCoy, currently their number one man.

The Gators have had one match thus far this season, losing to Rollins.

FSU '50-Year Plan' Said Running 30 Years Ahead Of Schedule

By BOB SIMMONS

Apparently, clocks aren't the only things running ahead of schedule on this campus.

Work on the university's expansion plan is running about 30 years in front of schedule if you heed its official label — The "50-Year Plan".

Prior to 1947 when the university was a haven for scholarly aids named Florida State College for Women, the school was developing according to a pre-arranged plan, according to Dr. Doak S. Campbell, FSU president.

In 1947, with confirmative of university status and the recognition of co-education, it was necessary to change expansion plans, he explained. Projections on enrollment showed that "by 1962 we would have 10,000 students, if we could accomodate them."

The cloaner of plans called for expansion of the school's physical plant, educational programs and off-campus works. According to the projections made by study groups, the plan would guide FSU through 15 years of expansion and would handle the expected growth of the student body at the end of the period, said Dr. Campbell

15 'Frightening'

A scale model of FSU of 1962, prepared from information provided by the architectural firms was presented to former-governor Fuller Warren and his cabinet for approval. With a twinkle in his eye, Dr. Campbell recalled the governor's suggestion that the plan be called the "50-Year Plan" instead of the 15-year plan "because it might "frighten the people."

Most people thought the expansion plan was a dream that would be a long time coming true," said Dr Campbell as he looked out a window in the president's home, overlooking campus.

"Puritans," he added, "they did not foresee the growth of the university."

Campus planners and architects were engaged to chart the expansion of the university's physical plan: Of their finished plan: five classroom buildings a health center a 3,500 seat capacity auditorium, three residence halls similar to the West Hall prototype, and a residence hall for women like Broward Hall, are all that is left to be completed.

Mode Progress

During the expansion of the past 10 years, the university remodeled Bryan Hall, added one floor to Reynolds Hall, built the maintenance and operational building, as well as the Student Center. ROTC building, Conradi building, new library building, men's gymnasium, and the geology building.

Also undertaken were the Home Economics building Florida and West Halls, Senior Hall, Campbell Stadium, Florida Hall's demonstration school, and the new education and business administration building are now under construction. In addition the university purchased Dale Mabry Heights for married students and built eight small dormitories which the presently leased to fraternities.

With financial aid from the Legislature, during the next ten years, the university expects to begin construction on one of the 11-floor men's dorms and the 5-floor women's dorm mentioned in the "50-Year Plan", said Dr. Campbell.

Two years ago, the university applied for a government loan to construct these buildings, but when the loan was approved last fall, material prices had increased, making it necessary for the school to seek aid from the legislature in order to meet construction bids, the president explained.

"We projected our educational usage program an educational planning committee" commented Dr. Campbell, prefacing his remarks on the university's educational expansion

"At the time, in 1947, when we changed status, we had four schools—arts and sciences, education, music, and home economics —and practically no graduate work," he said. "The educational committee suggested a full-scale graduate school, a school of journalism, library school, a collegiate school of nursing, a business school, a school of public administration, and a school of social work".

Florida State University now has these

The progress of the Graduate School has been interesting, according to the president. It began in 1947 with a "handful of M.A." Today FSU's graduate school is "one of the largest accredited schools in the South," he pointed out.

It was necessary to provide a library which would support a graduate school, including doctorate studies, Dr. Campbell said. "The university library had around 200,000 volumes when the program began," he noted. Today, FSU's library has "around a half-million volumes

"Our various separate schools are accredited, by state regional, or national accrediting agencies concerned," declared the president, adding: "Our institution was the first in the United States to grant Ph D.'s in musical literature and performance."

The educational committee also suggested an engineering school for Florida State University when required by state needs.

"The possibilities of an engineering school for the university are very strong," asserted Dr. Campbell.

In the educational field, the university is developing and experimenting with closed-circuit TV for use in classrooms, the president revealed.

According to indications, any teacher can do a fine job with educational TV, said Dr. Campbell. Use of closed circuit TV could alleviate the manpower problem in teaching and make use of all available facilities, commented the president. With educational TV we could take care of 10,000 students—or more—easily, if we had housing facilities," he explained.

Big Bootstrap

At the present time, FSU is involved in "a very large amount of off-campus, so called, general extension," said Dr. Campbell. "We have 1,200 people enrolled" and could accommodate more if we had a bigger staff, he said.

The extension work began with programs on military bases, developed at the request of the Air Force, who found their most of their men's education were interrupted by military service.

Brains as an experiment, the "Bootstrap" program proved a success, said Dr. Campbell, "it expanded until we now have four resident centers as bases within 150 miles of the university. We also have one in Puerto Rico, one in Cuba and three in the Panama Canal Zone."

The other branches of the armed forces took advantage of the experiment. The university is represented in the Army, the Navy, and the Air Force by the three resident centers in the Canal Zone and the educational installation in Cuba is on a Navy base, according to Dr. Campbell

New Program

All of this has taken place in the development of the "50-Year-Plan", but the university will not wait until 1997 to formulate its next expansion program. The work has already beaun

The whole educational program is under re-study now to project for the next 10 years," explained President Campbell. New developments "call for evaluation and re-study" to determine the direction of expansion of the university in the future, he said.

'Teahouse Of August Moon' Is Whimsical

By ALAN KASS

"Teahouse of the August Moon" as a movie retains the basic comedy appeal that brought the Broadway comedy a smash for three years.

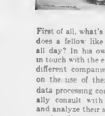
Daniel Mann, the director has added some slapstick for broader humor—and has come up with a topnotch, whimsical comedy.

The story remains the same, dealing with the assainment of Capt. Fisby (Glenn Ford) to bring the benefits of democracy and free enterprise to the Okinawan village of Tobiki. The plan, of course, clashes with age-old oriental tradition—as the natives do as they want anyway. This is done in keeping with democratic standards.

The happy ending is achieved when news of a flourishing enterprise in self-determination reaches American shores. To see these native habits come to screenamen and magazine reporters. Final scene has teahouse built in a matter of seconds. This scene was the smash scene of the original.

The screenplay keeps almost all the humor except for a few references to sex which were removed in Brando's opening scene and his replay on Okinawan customs, will be classic moments for many years. This and the many phone call scenes in the tea house will be classics although it seems that almost every line is delightful.

Brando stated in an interview "I will never attempt an Oriental in any situation again" so evidently the last of comic scenes were not of Brando doing Jim Crow stage play. Basically was the center of laughter. Brando does give an excellent portrayal, getting better as the picture moves along, although he is physically a bit too beefy and tall and he lacks the smoothness of a native. His make-up also seemed bad. It made him look rather funny which doesn't seem to be the intention.



What a MATHEMATICIAN can do at IBM

Mathematics is an ancient but ever-advancing science that contains many forms. It shouldn't surprise you then that it took some time before John Jackson discovered the one brand of mathematics that seamed custom-tailored to his ability and temperament. John is an Applied Sciacca Representative, working out of the IBM office at 122 East 42nd Street, N. Y. C.

First of all, what's it all about? What does a fellow like John Jackson do all day? In his own words, "I keep in touch with the executives of many different companies—advising them on the role of their IBM electronic data processing computers. I personally consult with these customers, and analyze their scientific and technical problems for solution by IBM. Occasionally, I'm asked to write papers, and give talks and demonstrations on electronic computing. All so all, it's pretty fascinating . . . something new pops up every day."

In other words, John is a full-fledged computing expert, a consultant . . . and a very important person in this coming age of automation through electronics.

Calling on a customer

Since the IBM laboratories are always developing easier and faster ways to solve the problems of science, government, and industry, an Applied Science Representative can never say he's learned his job and that's the end of it. At least once every two months, he attends seminars to be updated on the latest developments in engineering and operations research.

Introduces new methods

During the two years that John has spent with IBM in Applied Science, he has guided innumerable IBM customers to new and better ways of doing things electronically. For example: about a year ago, a leading aircraft manufacturer wanted to experiment with a radically different design for a nuclear reactor. Although the basic format had been established, the project still required many months of toil with mathematical equations.

The aircraft people decided that they couldn't afford to wait that long, so they called in IBM. After discussions with top executives, John helped to map out a computer program that saved the organization over 100 days of pencil-chewing, nail-biting arithmetic. Later, for this same company, John organized the establishment of computer systems for aircraft performance predictions . . . for data reduction of wind tunnel tests . . . and for wing stress analysis. At the same time, he worked with this company's own employees, training them in the use of IBM equipment. John still drops around to see that everything is running smoothly.

Mapping out a computer program

Another service that John performs is the constant reappraisal of each customer's IBM operation. Occasionally, a customer may tie himself in knots over a procedural "stickler." Periodically, in fact, John brings IBM customers together . . . just to talk over what's happening in each other's business—so every body else handled that old bugaboo to any industry . . . details.

New field for Mathematicians

John is exercising his mathematical know-how in a field that was practically unheard of ten years ago. Even now, this kind of work may be news to you. It was to John Jackson a few years back when he was an undergraduate at the University of Colorado. At that time, he was considering actuarial work or mathematical research. But John liked the excitement and diversification of science and industry and he wanted to use his mathematical background in both of those areas. It was not until he was interviewed by IBM that field computing whetted his scientific appetite. A few months later, John launched his own IBM career as an Applied Science representative.

Promotion-wise, John has come a long way since that time. He's now an Applied Science Representative in one of the busiest, most responsible offices in the IBM organization . . . mid-town Manhattan.

With his wife, Katherine, and daughter, Lisa, 20 months, and John,

Discussing a problem with colleagues

Jr., 6 weeks, he enjoys his suburban Port Washington home. He's happy and he's satisfied. And then, too, John knows a few vital statistics about IBM . . . such as the fact that the Applied Science Division has quadrupled during the past three years, and that in 1956 alone, over 70 programmers were conferred. If ever a future held promise, here is one.

Tarpon And Military Ball Keep Social Whirl Going

The biggest social events on campus this weekend are the Tarpon productions and the Military Ball, but there are also a number of smaller events to keep the social merry-go-round turning.

The TARPON CLUB'S annual production is based on a fantasy land theme this year. The water festival will begin in the pool of the Women's Gym at 8 tonight and tomorrow night.

The ARNOLD AIR SOCIETY, Air ROTC honorary, and Scabbard and Blade, Army ROTC honorary, will turn the Men's Gym into a land of enchantment for the annual Military Ball. Ray Eberle and his orchestra will furnish the music for the members of University ROTC and their guests.

Candy Land is the theme of the dance FLORIDA HALL is planning for next weekend. A Gingerbread house complete with a lollypop fence in a candycane forest is the dream of the decorations committee. The semi-formal dance is scheduled for 9 p.m. Friday, March 15.

The pledges at the PHI DELTA THETA house are pretty busy these days. They're hard at work building a barbeque pit for the chapter to use for outdoor parties. If all goes according to plan, they'll be finished in several days.

PHI MU will herald the sorority's 105th anniversary tonight. Collegiate and alumnae members will observe the anniversary throughout the United States with contribution of pennies, one for each year of the sorority's existence. These funds are used to provide loans and scholarships to undergraduate and graduate Phi Mus.

Further aid in the realm of education is given by the Bellwood sorority in its annual $1,000.00 international scholarship grant under the auspices of AAUW.

Phi Mu is identified in the field of service to children by virtue of its more than 80 hospital Toy Carts maintained at a local level throughout the country. Phi Mu at FSU bought a new cart for Tallahassee Memorial Hospital and filled it with toys for the children. Another local service contribution was two baskets of food for local needy families at Christmas.

The Silver Slipper was the scene of a banquet to honor DELTA TAU DELTA'S new actives Sunday night. The men told of their experiences on their road trips to varying parts of the South.

Also planning an initiation banquet are the girls at ALPHA CHI OMEGA. The formal banquet will be at the house with the complete chapter, pledges, actives and new initiated attending.

KAPPA DELTA held their third annual State Day here last Saturday. Alumni and active members from all over the state gathered for business meetings, panel discussions and the formal dedication of the chapter house. Afterwards a luncheon was held at the house with Miss Katherine Warren as guest speaker.

Lavanta Osvath, FSU's Hungarian Student, was a special guest at the KAPPA ALPHA Mansion last Tuesday night. The KA'S enjoyed hearing of Levante's experiences in Hungary and his reaction to campus life in Florida.

Here's Way To Remove Pain From Rain

By MARGARET McLEAN

I've decided to attempt to change my opinion of the "rain scene". If I'm successful then there's hope than rain can mean more to me than a sore throat, straggly hair and soggy clothes.

Since rain does little for anyone but dampen them, I'm launching a new campaign for removing the pain from rain. Even if you love every precious drop of rain you can benefit from listening to the plan.

SECTION ONE of my plan is quite simple. It consists of taking two giant steps to the washbasket and dropping there in a giant gold thing that I once had the audacity to call a raincoat, but quoth the Raven—"nevermore". In this instance hasn't certainly won't be a waste, but rather a pace in the right direction.

I, FURTHERMORE, suggest that anyone who has lurking in their closet an old Alan Ladd number or a raincoat of any kind that repels more than water that they join the procession to the local trash receptacle.

SECTION TWO of the plan is to evaluate the needs of the situation as accurately as possible. A raincoat's ideal should encompass an ernest endeavor to keep it's wearer dry. A raincoat should be made to make it wearer look as attractive as possible and as inconspicuous as possible. A raincoat should protect the wearer completely from collar to hemline without letting the hem flaps blow sally in the rain causing those delightful wet VS on the hem of the dress as a result.

SECTION THREE of my plan involves the most rewarding step of all—a new raincoat, all shiny and waterproof. This more can be approached from several angles. Here they are; write your mother for the money, sell your typewriter for the money, casually go shopping if you already have the money, remodel the old raincoat and save the money, or do what I did. I am making a new raincoat and if your finer is nimble with a thimble, so can you too.

I bought a very conservative pattern for a good looking coat, not a raincoat pattern, purchased five yards of corduroy in black, and then bought enough printed cotton to make a lining. When the raincoat is finished (surprisingly enough, very simple to make) I will take it to the dry cleaners and have it water-proofed RESULT—a movie star raincoat for a tenth the retail shudder) price.

IF YOU EVER decide to make a raincoat or any coat, be sure to select a pattern you can handle with ample lines and lack of ornate detail. Ignore the instructions and buy the same amount of fabric for both lining and coat. The color should be fairly dark and basic for practical reasons and it should harmonize with as many as many of your clothes as possible.

When sewing wool, the process is if your wool machine has elastic. The coat and the lining should be identical in proportions so that when you turn it a even bigger thing will fit perfectly and the essential result be a reversible coat. I never intend to reverse mine but I make it in that way in order to make it look more sophisticated.

THE INSIDE print can be as wild or mild as you choose, but be sure it harmonizes with the exterior color. Any coat can be water-proofed at the cleaners, so a good looking street coat can be easily converted into a dual purpose coat. When selecting a pattern choose one that can be worn as a light weight coat or as a topcoat.

As a clever extra, a lined hood lined like the coat itself adds a great deal appearance and keeps the hair much dryer than a scarf does. The hoods can be bought however, to match.

NO PACKAGED FREEDOM

ACP—Cincere's Sr. Hungarian students is still a big story on most college campuses. At Ohio State University, for example, students are trying to raise $5,000 to support five Hungarian students here.

Ohio State students met two Hungarians awaiting entrance to their school. One American asked Bela Lukacs, one of the pair, "What can we do now to help those still in Hungary?"

Lukacs lowered his eyes as the question was explained. His voice was soft but firm as he answered. The interpreter said "Nothing. He says they want their freedom, and it doesn't come in CARE package.

THE SOLUTION
ACP!—And here is a way to end the cold war, suggested by a student and commented upon by CONNECTICUT DAILY CAMPUS, Storrs, Connecticut:
A college student has offered a suggestion to end the "Cold War" between the United States and Russia.
He contends that the United States should challenge Russia to an international debate on Communism vs. Democracy. The rules of the game? Neither country would regard the outcome of the debate as the winning of a battle. No one would judge the victor, except the people. This would be done by having both countries agree beforehand to publish the complete texts of the debate far and wide within its own boundaries.

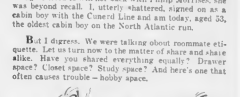
TWO CAN LIVE AS CHEESILY AS ONE

Now in the final months of the school year, one thing is certain: you and your roommate are not speaking.

But it is not too late to patch things up. Examine the rift calmly. Search your soul with patience. Perhaps the fault is yours. Perhaps you are guilty of violating some of the basic rules of roommate etiquette.

For instance, in decorating your room, have you forced your preferences on your roommate without regard to his or her tastes? This is a common cause of friction. Indeed, it once happened to me back in my freshman year when I was sharing a room with a boy named Rimsky Sigafoos who covered every inch of our wall with 850 pictures of James Dean.

"Rimsky," I said to him in gentle reproof, "please don't think me unduly, but I had hoped to put a picture of my fiancée Mary Beth Thermidor on the wall."



Rimsky examined the picture of my fiancée Mary Beth Thermidor. "You're kidding, of course," he said and dropped the picture in the wastebasket.

Well, that got my dander up, and I was mad as a wet hen till Rimsky gave me a Philip Morris Cigarette.

As we all know, there is nothing like a mild, natural, Philip Morris. Treats a man right. No filter, no foolin'! Anger melts and frowns become smiles with Philip Morris, all seems right in the world, and no man's hand is turned against you, nor yours against any man.

So, puffing a pacifying Philip Morris, I forgot all about Rimsky's slight in Mary Beth Thermidor. In fact, with her picture out of sight, I soon forgot all about Mary Beth Thermidor, too, and one night at the Freshman Frolic, spying a round young coed over in a corner, I came up to her and said with a fetching leer, "Excuse me, miss. We don't know each other, but I would like to rectify that sad omission." And she said, "Oh, you horrid, horrid youth! I am your fiancée Mary Beth Thermidor." With that she stomped furiously away, and though I tried to win her back with Philip Morrises, she was beyond recall. I, utterly shattered, signed on as a cabin boy with the Cunard Line and am today, aged 33, the oldest cabin boy on the North Atlantic run.

But I digress. We were talking about roommate etiquette. Let us turn now to the matter of share and share alike. Have you shared everything equally? Drawer space? Closet space? Study space? And here's one that often causes trouble—hobby space.

...it took two or three Philip Morrises to restore my native sweetness

When, for example, I roomed with Rimsky Sigafoos, my hobby was stamp collecting. I did not take up much room. All I needed was a small corner for my stamps, my album, my magnifying glass, and my tongue. Rimsky, on the other hand, was by hobby a cat burglar. Hardly a night went by when he didn't burgle twenty or thirty cats. You can imagine how crowded our little room used to get. Mony's the time I got so exasperated that it took two or three rich, natural Philip Morrises to restore my native sweetness. © Max Shulman 1957

We, the makers of Philip Morris and sponsors of this column, know that you and your roommate are getting along just fine. But if you ever do have a little tiff, don't try a pierce pipe. Try a good, natural smoke — Philip Morris!

the resolution.

The Senate refused to pass a resolution intended to restrict the number of fraternity and sorority parties held to two per month.

In a discussion of the proposal, Senators asserted that that power is not within the jurisdiction of the Senate, but is a problem for Inter-Fraternity Council and Panhellenic.

Greenfield said the Student Party will also propose a plank to take ...ffirm action on working toward more equitable book exchange rates.

"The committee's proposed platform is by no means final, and we encourage suggestions and recommendations from delegates to the convention," he asserted.

The party will sponsor a day students meeting Tuesday to select delegates for the convention. It will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Longmire Building. Anyone interested in serving as a delegate but unable to attend may phone Jim Soles 3-2086, to register his name and address.

IT STRETCHES — English Debaters Morgan, left, and Davies try out muscle builder used by Fred Roberts in International Debate. Roberts used it to make 'point'.

English Debaters Call Car Mess 'Incredible'

By RUTH FRITCHIE

Two English debaters came to FSU Tuesday and Wednesday, took one look and shook their heads in amazement.

The traffic situation-parking problem and lack of students riding bicycles—is entirely different from the English manner they said.

Gareth Morgan, University of Bristol, and Merrion Davies, University College of North Wales said the thing that struck them as most unusual was that students have enough money to come to college—but then find jobs so as to afford cars.

"INCREDIBLE"

This, they said, seems incredible.

Morgan and Davies recalled a conversation they had with an American fellow previously on their debate tour of this country. The fellow was a full time university student whose job was made necessary only by the need to make car payments and buy gas.

The debaters arrived on campus Tuesday afternoon to participate in the Eighth Annual International Debate Tournament. The negative debate team of Arnold Greenfield and Fred Roberts met the affirmative team from England to debate on a light vein "Trial Separation is Compatible with Democracy." The debate featured lots of facts and "figures," with Great Britain winning.

STRANGE ATTIRE

The "Red Coats" appeared on stage sporting slacks and Argyle sweat athletic shirts. Taking note of the opposing team's apparel, FSU's Greenfield mused that he and Roberts should have borrowed some bodices from the Cavalier Ballet and that they "could present some interesting figures along with their facts."

Gareth Morgan, University of Bristol, in his opening remarks said that after five days of "rock and roll" crossing the Atlantic he and his colleague Merion Davies, University College of North Wales were glad to be here in the "colonies." They had taken a ship which docked in Halifax, Canada and then moved across the "statue of Liberace" in the New York Harbour.

FSU Turntable

By PATTI WISNER

In our very first Turntable column last fall Lewis Scouten predicted that calypso music would move to the front at least on the F-S-U campus. How right he was.

The Robin's Nest now has all of Harry Belafonte's sonas on 45 singles, just 89c apiece. Everything he's done for his RCA Victor albums is there, including "Day-O" "The Banana Boat Song" "I Do Adore Her" and "Shenanigan."

A new series by Decca at the Nest features the music of his cuzes at midnight. Those of you who went to the Mardi Gras this next week-end will especially like New Orleans at Midnight with Marvin Ash and his Dixie Blue Blowers.

Hollywood at Midnight has Andre Previn at the piano with rhythm accompaniment. Other Midnight albums visit Rome, Paris, Rio, London, and Manhattan.

There are dozens of good records for $2.98 in the Buy-of-the-Month bargain section at The Robin's Nest. And you probably know that all 45 Extended Play records that were $1.49 are now $1.29.

FACULTY PAY BOOST SOON?

12% Increase To Put FSU On Equal Basis Depends On Legislature

Salary increases for faculty members amounting to 12% 938 may become a reality if the operating budget recommended for Florida State University by the State Budget Commission is approved by the Spring Legislature.

This recommendation of a 12 per cent increase over 1956-57 salaries was based on a survey of 21 comparable universities in an attempt to put salaries at FSU on a competitive basis with these institutions.

The fact that 22 of the 28 faculty members who resigned their positions at the university went to higher paying universities was a factor that influenced the Commission's recommendations, The Flambeau was told.

"Contingent upon Legislative appropriation, salary increases for faculty members will average approximately 10 per cent the first year of the coming biennium, and five per cent the second year," said Dr. A. B. Martin, FSU Vice President.

"In case of exceptional merit," Dr. Martin continued, "individual raises may exceed 10 per cent. However, in other cases little or no raises were budgeted in the original request."

NEW JOBS CUT

Cuts in several areas of the Board of Control's budget affected recommendations brought the requested increase from $16,234,132 to $14,234,132 for the biennium.

The largest single cut in the request was in the category of new positions. The university, anticipating a 20 per cent increase in enrollment during the next two years, asked for 134 new positions—professional and staff—exclusive of hourly laborers to provide personnel to accommodate the increase.

The Budget Commission made a flat 10 per cent cut from the Board of Control's asked-for appropriations for new positions.

The figure recommended by the Commission for the Legislature's approval does not necessarily mean that the university will have as many as 134 new positions in half during the coming biennium, said John Swanson, Budget Director. He emphasized that many factors are involved in creating new positions.

OTHER FACTORS

Some "adjustments" are made to the university in lump sum Retirements, normal delays in filling positions and the hiring of more assistant and associate professors rather than full professorships contribute to creation of additional funds for faculty and staff salary increases, Swanson said.

Cuts have been made however, and according to Dr. Martin, "who gets what will be the next step in the budget-preparation process."

The Budget Commission has recommended an increase of $240,938 in maintenance expenses. This is a total of almost $185,000 from the request made

Honor Court To Investigate Rack Thefts

[illegible] Morning Honor Court Chief Justice said yesterday that the court will begin to investigate thefts from vending machines and the campus' racks.

Morning said that the honor court has been asked by Student Center officials to investigate thefts from the machines. He said the court will not investigate the complaints of others taking the items without leaving payment for them.

Morning also hit the abuses of the coin-operated dispensers in the dormitories. "In one dorm," he said, "a cracker machine was taken into the controls emptied. The mechanism almost totally destroyed."

Morning admitted it is possible some of these violations being committed by non-students.

"If there are students doing it," Morning said, "then they have no place here and should be [illegible]."

Carlisle Floyd Wins Award For 'Susannah'

Carlisle Floyd of the Florida State University music faculty has won the New York Music Critics Circle opera award for 1956 with his "Susannah."

Ralph Vaughan Williams, British dean of English composers won the symphonic award for the Music Critics. Stipulation for awards for chamber music, ballet, and dance were not given by the Music Critics. Stipulations for awards was that works must have been presented in New York in the last year.

Susannah had its world premiere at the Florida State University on February of 1955. Its New York premiere was in October of 1956 at the New York City Center Opera Company. Phyllis Curtin of the company had the title role in both productions.

A native of South Carolina, Floyd is also the first man to receive a Guggenheim Fellowship who had the leave accepted to return to his FSU teaching in the fall of 1958. At present he is at work on Tully Farmer on a piano sonata and an opera.

Bolint Vaszonyi Refugee Promised Music Scholarship

A 21-year-old pianist among Hungarian refugees in Vienna has been promised a scholarship to the Florida State University.

He is Balint Vaszonyi, who cabled foreign student advisor Frank Bean yesterday that he accepted the offer and will try to get to the campus.

Sponsoring him will be the Westminster Fellowship, Protestant student group which voted that fall to establish a Hungarian refugee scholarship. The Westminster Presbyterian

In a letter received previously by Bean, Vaszonyi said he would have completed his studies at the Academy of Music in Budapest this coming summer had the Hungarian revolution not begun last October. He said he can read and write English but can't speak it well.

The Westminster Fellowship, in meeting the scholarship announced, it would pay all necessary expenses, try to help the recipient find part-time employment and find him housing.

Bean said the Westminster sponsorship would be sufficient to get Vaszonyi admitted to the United States.

Smoke Signals Editor Post Still Open For Applications

Applications for the unfilled positions of editor and business manager of Smoke Signals magazine will be accepted until Wednesday, March 20, revealed Board of Publications Chairman Don Heidel.

The Board will meet on the following day to consider applications.

The Smoke Signals election was deferred until March 21 at the last board meeting after a proposal to change the contest date of the magazine was submitted by student member Russ Parish. The board discussed this and a similar proposal from the student government chair that Smoke Signals be allowed from a humor magazine.

Truzzi

After it was said that no rule existed limiting it to a humor contest and it was the editor's prerogative to publish a magazine of any format, the board adopted unanimously a recommendation "that in the future it be a matter of policy Smoke Signals be broadened into a general interest magazine."

Since no member of the applied for editor and editor Marcello Truzzi indicated he thought none would, the board also waived a present qualification stating the applicant "must have had over two full semesters of experience in a responsible position on the respective publication staff."

OTHER RULES APPLY

Chairman Heidel noted that the other qualifications are still in effect. The applicant must have an overall average of 2.30 for the position of editor-in-chief, or 2.00 for business manager or have achieved these respective averages in the semester preceding their application.

The Board has received an application for editor from Pierce Lehmbeck and applications for business manager from Don Ramsden and Phil Kemblowski. None of the three have worked on FSU publications.

The Board tabled until the next meeting consideration of additional student cabinet recommendations concerning Smoke Signals. These included the possibility of discontinuing the printing of the last issue this year and saving the money to print more copies for the second and third issues. Attention was given to claims that there have not been enough issues printed to meet the demands of students and that the last three issues will be crowded into the latter portion of the second semester.

DEADLINES SOUGHT

Other recommendations asked that the magazine set deadlines for all issues, establish a better means of distribution to avoid complaints, and set up a better staff organization to include more students. Complaints had been received that several contributions were rejected without explanations by the staff, the Cabinet said. Editor Truzzi was asked to study the recommendations and report on them at a meeting.

Also included in the Student Government Cabinet report was a proposal that a lump sum of money be given to the Board of Student Publications each year for all publications. The board would then budget this lump sum to the publications.

Delayed Issue Out Soon – Truzzi

The delayed March issue of Smoke Signals should be out within ten days announced editor Marcello Truzzi yesterday.

Meanwhile, Truzzi said, he is seeking material for a literary issue to come out in April. All types of manuscripts are accepted, while fiction, essays, poetry, photography, short stories, art work and reviews, he said. They are to be turned in at the Smoke Signals in Longmire by the first of the month.

Coeds To Parade Friday In 'Miss Football' Frolic

A late surge of entries last week boosted the total of coeds competing for the "Miss Football," cover girl title to 34, according to contest officials.

All 34 entries will be in the finals at halftime of the Garnet and Gold intrasquad football game at Doak S. Campbell Stadium Friday night.

Most entries are sponsored by fraternity and sorority groups, but contest officials said dormitories are probable better represented than in any previous contest.

Many of the entries have reigned in queen's courts of many of the campus' clubs.

According to Elgin White Director of FSU Sports Publicity, all entries must be approved by student standards about ten minutes before halftime.

They will be lined up according to numbers and paraded on the center ramp, through the stands and onto a platform on the student side of the field.

TWO OR THREE PASSES

Because of the limited contest time limit, there will be time for only "two or three passes" before the judges' decision will be announced until the winner is chosen.

Paula Parsons of Miami, who won on the cover last year, will be crown the evening's traditional Indian princess headdress of white feathers.

Last year's football brochure was judged second only to that of the U. S. Naval Academy by the American College Public Relations Association.

According to White "we were relatively surprised at the great influx of entries and the obvious interest that was displayed" in the contest.

"We had some very fine and very original plans but had to drop them because there would not be enough time with the great number of entries."

The Garnet and Gold game is scheduled to get underway at 8 p.m.

ENTRANTS

Entries and their sponsors are Barbara Emmett, Alpha Gamma Delta, Lynn LaGrange, Gilchrist; Martha Douglas, Chi Omega;

Teschke, Greenfield To Vie For President

Reveal Quest For Nomination

Arnold Greenfield and Graham Teschke yesterday revealed they will seek the respective nominations of the Student and State parties for Student Body President.

The State Party will nominate its slate of candidates for offices to be voted upon April 2 at a convention tonight in 124 Science Hall, beginning at 6:30.

Student Party will convene Thursday night after a banquet to nominate candidates, adopt a platform, and select party officers.

NO FIGHTS FORESEEN

Campus political observers do not think either Greenfield or Teschke will encounter opposition within their parties for nomination to the top Student Government position.

No one has publicly indicated candidacy yet for any of the other offices at stake April 2, including the Student Body vice-presidency, the men's and women's representatives, and the Chief Justiceship of Honor Court.

Both Greenfield and Teschke are juniors. Greenfield, currently serving as Attorney General, has been active in Student Party affairs, a member of the elections committee, a Florida Flambeau columnist, and a captain of the varsity debate squad.

If he wins the presidency he will be the second consecutive Student Party chief executive to do so. Pete Nimkoff, president in 1954-55, was the first.

TESCHKE

Teschke served two pottons as Freshman Class President two years ago, has been on the planning team and has held fraternity offices of treasurer and chaplain.

Working closely with the president this year has convinced me that student government can make a real contribution to the welfare of the students" Greenfield said.

The would-be Student Party leader said that trips to other campuses have made him aware of the need for closer communication among the student groups on campuses throughout the southeast and the United States.

"I want Florida State University to take a more active part in intercollegiate organizations designed to bring about inter-campus cooperation.

SERVICES

"Also I want to stress the value of student government in providing services for the students on campus," said Greenfield.

Teschke said an important object he holds is to establish good relations with the Student Affairs Board of Control selects as next FSU president.

He said he will attempt to carry out all planks in the recently announced Student Party platform, particularly a request for more extensive laundry pick up and delivery service.

TESCHKE PRE-MED

Greenfield as a political science major is also a member of the chairman of the FSU Student Speakers Bureau, and is chairman of the Student Party platform committee. Last year he won the Tau Kappa Alpha national public speaking championship.

Teschke, from Cleveland, Ohio, is a pre-med major.

Parties Slate 'Slate Parties'

By CHARLET POITEVINT

Plans for spring elections are now in full swing with the State Party nominating convention set tonight and the Student Party organization-nominating convention and "loyalty dinner" slated Thursday night.

Registration will begin at 6:30 p.m. for delegates to the State Party Convention in 124 Science Building. Guest speaker will be Charlton Pierce, county chairman of the Democratic organization, according to Gerry Gordon, chairman.

Gordon said the State party will not devaate from its "previous practice of keeping the party running a positive campaign," he declared.

Tickets to the Student Party "loyalty dinner" to be held prior to the organizational-nominating convention are on sale fast, according to Karl Edwards, chairman.

Over 150 tickets have been purchased to the dinner at which Justice Stephen O'Connell of the Florida Supreme Court will speak regarding the need for more college students to take an active role in government, Edwards said.

The dinner will be held Thursday at 6 p.m. in the Ballroom Room. The convention will follow at 7:30 p.m. in 128 Geology Building.

Adoption of a party platform, election of party officers, and nomination of candidates for student body offices are on the Student Party agenda.

Tickets or reservations to the dinner must be bought or confirmed by 5 p.m. today by contacting Barbara Burkhardt at 3-4776. Edwards said

He added that it is not necessary for students to attend the loyalty dinner in order to attend the convention.

"Conventions in the past have been concerned primarily with conducting party business, but this year it will be empowering as well," asserted the chairman.

Filing Begins Today For Political Posts

Would-be student officeholders, active in politics since classes began last fall, can make their campaigns official beginning today.

According to elections secretary Mitzi McCullough, it is the first day for filing declarations of candidacy for 15 offices at stake in April 2 elections. Closing deadline is 5 p.m next Tuesday.

The offices include those of Student Body President and vice-president and men's and women's vice-presidents.

OTHER OFFICES

Also at stake will be the offices of Senate secretary, Honor Court Chief Justice, Honor Court clerk, chairman of judiciary, Student Court justice and three seats on the Board of Student Publications, and Student Body representative to University Recreation Association.

Miss McCullough said the deadline for filing candidacy statements will be enforced "if they don't get their declarations in on time they don't deserve to be elected," she said.

The qualification requirements, as well as other election rules, are fixed by Student Body statutes.

ESTIMATES NEEDED

Expense estimates will be due a week after the qualification deadline. March 26 at 5 p.m.

Sororities' Scholastic Competition Should Be Copied By Campus

Sororities and fraternities have been chastised as based on social elitism and as discriminatory, but the recent announcement of sorority grade averages here shows one advantage of their existence.

Alpha Gamma Delta's overall 2.833 is a mark that any student could be reasonably proud of. As a group average, it plainly demonstrates the existence of considerable initiative in the direction of scholarship. Some of this striving, we believe, is tractable to competition among sororities.

IF SORORITY life tends to better a student's academic efforts, what about the fraternities? Fraternity grades have not been announced as of this writing but it is a good bet that the grade of the highest fraternity will be nowhere near the Alpha Gams' 2.833—or the Alpha Xi Deltas' 2.769, the Zeta Tau Alphas' 2.749, or the Kappa Deltas' 2.737, for that matter. Possibly, the highest fraternity will even be below the lowest sorority.

High grades, it is evident, may in some measure justify the existence of sororities, but fraternity life seems to actually have a negative effect on scholarship.

THE SUPERFICIAL competition among social fraternities and sororities may be of passing interest to the groups' members, but we feel that it is of little meaning unless in so worthy a field as scholarship.

The element of competition is almost lost in the world of mass-produced education where students in huge classes vie for "Cs" with unseen students in other large sections of the same course. If academic competition were as evident among all students as among sororities, then the standards of this institution would be noticeably higher.

Publications Board Heard No Protests When It Met To Select New Editors

It was not too long ago that letters of protest over the Flambeau's stand on integration were a common sight on this page.

We were somewhat surprised, therefore, when none of the segregationist authors bothered to come to the Board of Publications meeting last week when the Editors of next year's student publications were to be selected. The meeting, announced in a front-page story in the previous Flambeau, drew no outraged pleas that next year's Flambeau Editor take a more retrogressive stand.

There were some questions addressed to the two candidates over whether they planned to make any "changes" in next year's paper, but from the lack of immediate criticism at the meeting, there was no reason for the board members to believe that any students desire a change.

THE BOARD meeting was, as are all board meetings, open to the public. It was clearly the place, the arena, where any arguments for changes in Flambeau editorial policy, should have been advanced.

The Board was created two years ago by vote of the student body. Students delegated their authority to select the Editors to the Board, also approving constitutional provisions to have student representatives on the Board, to make all meetings public and to have announced times for choosing the publications' higher officials.

IN EFFECT, the students set up machinery whereby operational and administrative details of the publications program could be worked out with the least trouble to the student body as a whole—yet with the ultimate control of the authoritative voice in making decisions.

Last week, important decisions were made, among them the decision which will be paramount in the determination of next year's Flambeau policy. It is clear that students were so little concerned with Flambeau policy that they left this decision to the members of the Board seems to use apt demonstrations that this paper's policy is objectionable to only the barest of minorities.

IT MAKES US wonder whether the letters writers were sincere in their criticisms—or were so unsure of their objections they were afraid to air them face to face with persons who would try to examine them logically.

Perhaps a few of the writers will now say they did not realize the meeting was scheduled. If this happens, students with objective viewpoints will no doubt be left in the dark as to the logic of individuals who do not read the Flambeau. We criticize what they somehow "know" to be in it.

Students Who Aid Government Increase Its Benefits To All

Early last fall, a County tax collector was found to have turned in $20,000 less than he had collected.

As the unopposed democratic nominee for reelection in the general election, the voters put him back in office despite efforts of four write-in candidates to unseat him.

HE WOULD probably be in office now, had not Governor Collins decided to discharge him, a man indicted for embezzling slightly less than $19,000.

Not all candidates, have, of course, absconded with $20,000, but this illustration of voter apathy might apply to the campus in other ways.

Support of student government is a subject that brings varied reactions when discussed among students—some scoff, some express doubt, and a few actually do what they can to help it.

WE BRING the subject up now only because election time is just around the corner. This is the time when students will be most effective in their demands for improvements in the quality or nature of our student government.

If they want the officials to be more responsive, then the conventions (they are scheduled this week) will be a good place to work for that goal.

FEW WOULD expect a student to maintain a running interest in the actions of student government—he more or less leaves it up to his representatives to take care of things. But election time is the time when he should devote more attention to the issues, the personalities and the parties involved.

Calling The Card

Beer Party Hoopla Begins Anew

By JIM McINTYRE

Toward the middle of the merry month of March, a mandatory metamorphosis begins to creep over the hall-wed halls of the building of Rowlins Longmire. Even as this is being written there is a scurrying of little footsteps outside the office door.

There can be only one explanation. It's almost time for the political conventions to get into full swing.

You open the door of the Flambeau office and hear the undercurrent of mutterings. Present Student Government officials talk to prospective Student Government officials and woe unto the poor sinks in and out of darkened doorways, surrounded by the dark cloaks and with their daggers in hand.

IN ONE CORNER you see the presidents of two leading fraternities talking to a party organizer.

"The Sigma Phi Nothings are ready to deliver, seventy-five sparkling votes in return for the discriminatorship of the sanitation committee."

"I think it can be arranged," says the Party boss. "How about house guys ovuh at the Tappa Nu Keg palace?"

"We're ready to swing to the Beer Party if you guys come through with an office or two for us. We might go in a block for your boy if our house-manager can be appointed to the Committee for Bigger and Better Holes in the Roads."

THE CHAIRMAN of the Beer Party strokes his beard in sagacious contemplation. Then says, "That's a pretty important committee."

"We're pretty important guys."

"O.K." take the oath, and no fair crossing fingers."

"On my honor. I will do my best to obey the rules of the Beer Party at all times . . . etc."

Now in the know, you see a conversation going on in one corner of the hall between a well-known campus politico and a young lady who has a lot of ideas and personally ambitious. This is of obvious political import, so you creep up behind them to listen in.

"BIT HONEY," he says. "We could go down to Blue Sink or out to the airport after the convention and . . ."

You creep away, the political import of this conversation somewhat escaping you. This type of politics is beyond the jurisdiction of any party.

The mutterings as a whole rise to a more consistent hub-hub. You hear such words ringing through the corridors of the Party . . . votes . . . cabinet . . . senate . . . committees . . . etc."

The Beer Party boys are busy rushing a freshman for the head of the Party." Their opponents, the Beer Party are talking through an hour of debate on an unimportant new senate bill. They are sure, can sense all the freshman dorms have won.

AND SO IT GOES throughout the day, a murmur of discontent, a hint of intrigue, a snow-job being done. It's awfully easy to just sit back, criticize and poke fun at the efforts of the campus politicians.

But one has to admit with a tince of admiration that the benefits that have been gained in the past, and the advances made for students in the future are directly attributable to this group.

We can ridicule, but we should do it with our hats off.

India Biggest Democracy: Student

By PRAKASH SOOD

"I have seen the spectacle of more than 40 million free Indians going to the polls . . . the world's largest free election (1,000 M.) . . . and I can imagine the achievement greater were the comment United States Ambassador to India Chester Bowles. Three two weeks' hearing, February 24 and the spectacle is at the enacted.

MORE THAN 193 million voters are grand total population of the United States is about 170 million. Two million people in the fourteen state legislative assemblies and national elections. This unparalleled event takes place at more than 200,000 polling stations, using about three million ballot boxes, and is manned by over one million officials, excluding the police personnel.

On the basis of the present size of the population and on the last general elections four political parties were in it. India recognition by the Election Commission. The Indian National Congress, the ruling party, which had carried the struggle for Indian Independence from as early as 1885 drawing its inspiration from Mahatma Ghandi and its strength from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru all other leaders, as the only party to contest nearly all the seats. Out of the unrecognized parties, the Communist Party is a cadre-based group of Congress which says having stress on the different aspects of the Congress program and which started its politics in 1952, it has its main follow-up in the urban areas and certain sections of educated classes. Its main emphasis is on the cultural heritage and traditional of ancient India. The Communist Party of India (S.P.I.) aims to build the broadest united front of all the people for a People's Democracy.

Several other parties and a very large number of independent candidates about double the total number of those bearing party labels have entered the field to make most of the contests multi-cornered. However it is evident that the Congress will secure a good majority at the centre and in most of the states, and Nehru is to continue to pilot this young nation to further achievements.

Enter the president of PSP Acharya Kripalani, recently said, "India doesn't a safety and prosperous one in the change of leadership." The main point of interest will be to see which party turns out to become the effective opposition.

IN VIEW OF the quite satisfactory progress of the nation during the first five-year plan period, and the general pattern of the second plan already set, there are no widely divergent issues for the elections. On the question of foreign policy nearly all the parties agree to the policy of Panchsila. Five Principles of Co-Existence and non-alignment with power blocs. A question, which never commanded substantial appeal, is the continuation of India in the Commonwealth. At home the major question is raising the general standard of living which calls for education, health, communication facilities, etc., and the expansion of industry. The differences in various elections manifested are of degree rather than of kind.

IN SPITE OF the illiteracy, mediocrity of languages, caste system, centuries of subjugation and foreign exploitation, and other complexities inherent in society the elections in general are very orderly, peaceful and efficient. In words of Robert Trumbull, New York Times correspondent in India for more than seven years, "Although India is new as a sovereign independent Republic, her tradition in democracy is very old, stemming from the ancient village system of popular government through Panchayat Council of Five . . . Building on this basis the Republic of India is the largest democracy in the world."

TO THE EDITOR:

As you know, the student body elections will soon be at hand, followed by the class elections. It is very important for you, the students, to know the type of candidates who will be representing us next year.

I would like to extend to all of the students an invitation to come to the State Party Convention which will be held in 124 Science Building tonight, March 12, 1951. This will be the State Party Nominating Convention for the upcoming Student Body Elections.

OLYMPIC SPIRIT?

"ACP — Worried over the "true spirit of the Olympics" the CAMPUS NEWS at East Los Angeles Junior College, California

"It seems the American sports writer is placing before the people a very distorted idea of the true spirit of the Olympics . . . Indeed we should be proud to claim athletes like Rev. Bob Richards, Greg Bell etc. But why are the writers comparing America's triumphs to Russia's defeats?

COED IN AEROTC

"ACP — Texas State College coed Elnita Fisher has been interested in flying since she was a little school youngster when she enrolled at the Boarding College "There was nothing in the estalog that said girls couldn't join" so she became the first coed to enroll in ROTC in the school's history

Miss Fisher has now been enrolled in a newly-established WAF-AFROTC program in 10 selected schools.)

COMMANDMENTS NEED APPLICATION

"ACP — The Ten Commandments are the "Do's" of the interpretive product-director Cecil B. DeMille told students at University of Southern California, reported the DAILY TROJAN.

"They are alive," he said, "and should serve as an universal way of life to all people on earth. It is true that the people of today do not bow before graven images of stone or brass, but those are paralyzed by the dollar sign and selfish vanity"

Those Who Hit SG Cause Its Failure

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Most students do not appreciate the enthusiasm and dedication of the campus politicians. They seem to think Student Government is so much wasted effort.

Student Government cannot tax them and it cannot take them from civilian pursuits—of money and other things—for six or more years in uniform. So they ignore it.

With the annual elections coming up again, however, it would be a good thing if the disinterested students could change their attitude—particularly at this state in the Florida State University's development.

Student Government is not a farce—unless the students by their attitude make it so.

Student Government has the potential ability to help make the university a truly great institution — but this ability can only be made a real thing if students who have the desire to do so, and the ability to complish great things, are elected.

SADLY ENOUGH, these very students are the ones most importunately shunning the Student Government.

They may be idealistic in all other respects, including relationship of Russia, city, state, and national governments, but are decidedly cynical about campus government.

They seem only to remember high school governments shown by popularity contests, and take potshots only of those college governments which limit themselves to athletic and extra-curricular interests.

SO IF STUDENT government does become a matter of popularity, and student senates sound chambers for wasted words and sensational egos, they have only themselves to blame.

Despite the appalling apathy prevalent here, Student Government has done some things that never would have been accomplished without its attention.

This year, for instance, Student Body President Dale Beaman, with a student and Hollywood delegation, backing has presented to the university a reasoned request for higher student wages. It was granted.

Student Senate, acting as the voice of the Student Body asked the University to keep the library open Sunday evenings. This request also was fulfilled.

THE CREATION of the student lobby delegation to the State Legislature, which will be formalized to improve the state's lawmaker that some students at least are actively seeking unity interested in the welfare of the university.

These and other things have been voted to bring about, has been rejected by the university administration. Nevertheless, in the past few years, the students have proceeded Student Government more recognition, admiration, and respect.

This is unfortunate because the university is not obligated in any manner to recognize student government. The power that is vested in the Board of Control and through it to the president of FSU, is the power to govern the university. There are many restrictions of a constitution which nowhere mentions Student Government.

Student Government's voice in matters of administration—such as traffic and class scheduling—can be regarded either with cordiality or with disdain. It may advantage the university, but it may also lack proper power, but one could also note that its power does not become over the years.

Enforcement of high standards of honor, for example, is properly a matter only students can handle, and is gradually being accorded to Student Government.

SOME DOUBTFUL social rules are still kept from Student Government interference, but if more students took part in government, Westcott would be obliged to allow more authority.

These are just a few considerations worth remembering as another election campaign begins.

Those who laugh at student government, by their attitude work to make the laughs ring true.

Symphony Performs

By DAVE WARD-STEINMAN

The University Symphony, under the direction of Robert Sedore presented its fourth concert of the spring season in Westcott Friday night. Three student soloists — Mary Jane Mairott, soprano, La Belle James, violinist and Daniell Revenaugh, pianist—were featured. A Prokofieff concerto for piano was scheduled to appear but Revenaugh decided to play Rachmaninoff Third Concerto but has ill and did not play. Nevertheless the writers comparing have been rescheduled and will be performed later in the season.

The orchestra opened the program with Smetana's Overture to "The Bartered Bride" This stirring section was a success in some of its exposed passages. Miss James played her brilliant and spirited tempo with the utmost ease and some of the woodwinds and brasses kept things moving.

The concerto for first soloist sang Renaud: Renaud: invocational, tone poem and Monica's Walla Song from Menotti's "The Medium" Miss Mairott's voice was warm and vibrant in the Verdi in the Menotti she was somewhat nervous; her high notes were tense and those of us who heard her at the Florida Collegiate "See the Wind" last semester know that she is capable of projecting a remarkably-controlled line with seeming ease. She has a beautiful clear voice should stand her in good stead in the forthcoming "The Bartered Bride" when it is produced by the Choral Union. We look forward to hearing her.

Linksters Seek Tourney Crown

Florida State's golfers leave tomorrow for Ocala and the Florida Intercollegiate Golf tournament after losing to Florida's linksmen Saturday, 14½-12½.

The Seminoles will be seeking their second successive Florida Intercollegiate title with their strongest contender coming from Florida Rollins and Stetson

Low year, FSU's Ed Jenkins took second in the individual scoring for the tourney and Coach Vetlar says he expects him to turn in a par breaking performance.

FSU's loss to the Gators broke a 19 dual meet winning streak and marked the first time that a Veller-coached team had lost to Florida.

AARON MEDALIST

Tommy Aaron, of Florida, was medalist for the afternoon with a three under par 68 Florida State's low scorer was Bank Berry who finished with a 71

Jack Venable and Bob Shave, two of the Seminoles better golfers, turned in two of the poorest rounds of their collegiate careers. Virginia enjoyed a one-two-three finish and sophomore Shave had an 80. FSU will get another crack at the Gators in a dual match at Gainesville on April 1st.

FROM ONE SPORT TO ANOTHER. FSU senior Fred Twomey, along with several other two-sport athletes, is currently making the switch of uniform from basketball to baseball. With the cage campaign over, he'll take over duties as a first baseman-outfielder on the diamond.

Gator Swimmers Avenge Defeat

By TOM HALE
Flambeau Sports Writer

The University of Florida swim team Saturday led by sophomore Ted Robinson, avenged an early season defeat with a 52-35 win over Florida State

Robinson who used his backstroke specialty by competing in one event, was the difference as the Gators won a school and pool record in the first event for the Yd medley relay in a time of 4:02.3 to pull ahead early to go on to unleash the lead. The Seminoles second place time of 4:10 was the best effort of their season.

Coach "Bim" Stulle of the Gators were accredited that "It was the combination of Robinson and Florida's own pool that beat us

He went on to say "The boys did very well the team this year is as good if not better than any other team we have ever had here at FSU"

SIX FIRSTS

In all the Gators captured six first places in the Seminoles four. Dave Cissin from Florida was the individual high point man with three pieces in both the distance and one mile events.

Hall man for FSU was Ryan Ryan who took the 50 Yd free style, second in the 100 Yd free style, where also a member of Florida Bain's winning and Yd freestyle relay team

Florida's Bill Ruggie set another school record in the 200 Yd. backstroke, winning in a time of 2:19.8.

FSU's Joe Jacobs surprised Gator Phil Drake as he defeated the ex-world record holder in the 200 Yd breaststroke The time was 2:33.9

Florida State, whose dual record now stands at eight wins and three losts, closes out the regular season Friday night in a meet with the University of Miami

NAAU Champion Chick Cicio Excels In Gymnastics, Music

Gymnastics and music go hand and hand with Florida State's NAAU free exercise champion Chick Cicio.

Cicio a native of Brooklyn, has been the backbone of the Seminole's gymnastics victories so far this season by being their number one point setter.

Since his victory in the 1956 AAU's he has took only twice in the free exercise competition once to Jamie Kihonny, NCAA champion, and once to Larry Mainella, freshman gymnast at FSU in the Florida AAUs.

An early interest for singing led Cicio at the age of 13 to Carnegie Hall where as a member of Boys Town School glee club he sang a solo

Wins Contest

A year later the young tenor won a singing contest and sang an operatic aria in Madison Square Garden under the direction of the late Arturo Toscanini.

Florida State students will renew many him in the Little Opera Guild's production of South Pacific in which Cicio played the part of 'Stewpot.'

In December of 1951 Chick joined the New York Turnverein Club, the first gymnastic club in America.

Cicio's win in the NAAU last year came at the expense of Dick Bickner, a member of the 1956 United States Olympic team.

Plans Therapy Work

Only a sophomore, the 25-year-old Physical Education major plans to do physical therapy work in the New York area.

Cicio is married and the father of two children, Robert, six, and Cindy, five.

Coach Hartley Price is banking heavily on Cicio in this year's NCAA competition next month at Annapolis. He was only a freshman last year and will use Cicio in duals to compete, but in all there this time says Price

Graduate Club To Sponsor Bridge Parties

Beginning Friday night, the Graduate Club will sponsor a bridge party in the student lounge of Lonzmire according to Don Spille, organization president.

The parties will be held each Friday evening at 7:30 for all those interested, explained Spille. The bridge parties are not limited to Graduate Club members only, Spille said that a "beginner's class" would be provided for interested persons who would like to learn how to play bridge.

We're 'Mortified' But Proud, Coeds Say

By JIM McINTYRE

"Most every college has a Mortar Board chapter, but where but at FSU can one be a member of Mortified?" asked smiling Nancy Cubbon, retiring Czar of the organization.

Mortified, a semi-honorary organization for senior women, was started on the FSU campus during the time when hallowed halls were inhabited by women alone. Tapping for Mortar Board scholastic and leadership honorary for the next year's senior women, was done each spring in a mass convocation in the old Westcott Auditorium. It was a solemn and dignified ceremony.

Around the turn of the decade moving from the 20s to the 30s a group of senior girls who were not members of Mortar Board, jumped to their feet at the end of this ceremony and announced that another tapping would take place. They then proceeded to tap a group of juniors who had been passed by Mortar Board and their own honorary. This was Mortified born.

PROUD NO-OTHINGS

According to Miss Cubbon Mortified is the only organization on campus that does absolutely nothing. They sponsor no projects, do not raise money, nor do they have a benevolent interest. Their activities are limited to parties to which no one else is invited.

By some means unknown to the members of Mortar Board, the Mortified exist apparently obtains a list of Mortar Board taps each year and use it to formulate their own lists. They tap one person less than Mortar Board. "This makes it a more exclusive organization," declared Miss Cubbon.

The girls are chosen on the basis of leadership, character and activity. The other Mortar Board is thinks academic, the Mortified qualification, scholarship, is conveniently overlooked. While tapping the girls of the past year travel around in white skirts, red blouses and mortar boards shouting cheers for leadership, character, activity, and men. There are only boos for a shout of scholarship, however.

NEW TAPS

Despite their avowed aversion to Mortar Board, the Mortified have been tapped eleven women, the women of Mortified made the following and tapped six. They are Polly Atwater, Linda Broderick, Barbara Burkhardt, Molly Carroll, Sue Ford, Chris Gonsoulin, Sarah Jane Griffin, Betty Faye Horner, Barbara Jean Little and Priscilla Moss.

They only activity during the coming year will be to wear the tiny pin recently designed as the official Mortified emblem. It is a tiny dunce cap in pink and green.

Barbara Burkhardt, the newly appointed Grand Czar, has stated that despite pressure in that direction, Mortified will not go national this year.

FACULTY PAY

by the Board of Control

"Since undergrade funds during the past biennium have made it necessary to postpone repair and maintenance work wherever possible, the maintenance needs of the university probably represent the greatest area of need," said R. K. Pitts, university Business Manager.

"We have the problem of catching up as well as keeping up with the necessary maintenance of an expanding campus," declared Shaw.

CAPITAL OUTLAY

An operating capital outlay of $939,268—up 14.3 per cent over the past biennium—has been included in the Commission recommendations to be formally submitted to the Legislature in April.

Of the total operating recommendations, $14,380,602 is set aside as general revenue funds and $8,143,922 is scheduled for trust funds, including self-supporting auxiliary funds such as those for the operation of dormitories and the university hospital.

WESLEY ACTORS TO PRESENT RELIGIOUS PLAY

The Wesley Players will present Robert St. Clair's "He Couldn't Marry Five" as part of a fund raising effort to bring better religious dramas to the FSU campus.

Walter Sarle spokesman for the theatrical group, explained that proceeds from the performances, March 22, 23, 25 and 26, at 35 cents a ticket, would be used to buy better stage and lighting equipment for Wesley Players productions.

Tickets may be obtained from any of the Wesley Players members, said Sarle.

Members of the comedy cast are Nancy Worrall, Walter Sarle, Jamie Conner, Cherry Corbin, Mary Leah Lasseo, Diandra Dail, Sally Mathews, Beatrice Smith, Sandra Reese and Bob Painter.

"What's it like to be in BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION AT IBM?"

Two years ago, Robert Everett asked himself this question. Today, as Administrative Assistant to the Divisional Controller, Bob reviews his experience of IBM and gives some pointers that may be helpful to you in taking the first, most important step in your business career.

"What's it like to work for a big, expanding company like IBM? What would I be asked to do? Would I get ahead fast?" These were some of the questions that filled Bob Everett's mind as he faced up to the big problem, "How can I put my M.B.A. training to the best possible use?"

Bob came directly to IBM from Cornell in July, 1955, with an M.B.A. in finance. He was immediately assigned, with twenty-nine other M.B.A.'s, to a Business Administration training program. This six months' program comprised general orientation in the entire IBM organization, a six weeks' field trip to the

Developing a new system

San Francisco branch office and several months at the Poughkeepsie manufacturing facilities. There he gained a first-hand knowledge of IBM machines, particularly the 700 series of giant electronic computers.

His training completed by January, 1956, Bob was assigned to the Methods Department as a Methods Analyst at IBM World Headquarters in New York City. Here, within the cooperation of operating department personnel, worked on the development of systems and procedures for the various Divisions areas. In addition to personal methods techniques used in developing systems and procedures, he studied those projects in terms of possible machine application for either IBM high-speed giant computers or conventional accounting equipment. One project was the study of the Machine Ordering procedure with the objective of simplifying and mechanizing it and at the same time improving the source information to provide for a more complete analysis of sales and production backlog.

Filtering out the "hot" projects

Promoted the same year

By December of the same year, Bob was promoted to his present job—Administrative Assistant to the Controller of the Data Processing Division. "The first function of an Administrative Assistant," says Bob, "is to filter out the 'hot' projects from those that can be handled later. You follow through on projects assigned by the controller and keep him posted on their progress." Bob's new position affords a pleasant divergence of work, charting divisional responsibilities of the controller's function . . . plans for decentralization . . . costs of regionalization . . . summarizing key financial and statistical information for presentation to top management.

Bob points out that there are many areas in Business Administration at IBM for men with an M.B.A. or a B.S. in accounting; corporate, general, and factory accounting; internal audit; methods; payroll and taxes. Administrative and management positions constantly open at World Headquarters. IBM's 136 branch offices, many plants and laboratories

Keeping the boss posted

Why Bob picked IBM

Bob made a careful study of existing opportunities before selecting IBM for his career. He had a campus interview, took nine company tours. IBM's M.B.A. program interested him—because, as he says, "It gave me a chance to review the entire company before starting an actual line assignment." He was intrigued by the increasing use of data processing equipment in finance and he knew that IBM was a leader in this field. Salary-wise, he found IBM better than many, but it was company growth potential that motivated his choice. "Opportunity certainly exists at IBM," he says. "Growth factors alone will account for many new executive positions. A second factor is the trend toward decentralization, which also creates new jobs. These factors, plus IBM's 'promote-from-within' policy, add up to real opportunity."

Campaign Started To Aid Stricken Child

A campaign to provide both money and blood for the leukemia-stricken daughter of an FSU student was begun this week.

The "Life For Denise" fund is being sponsored by the Insurance and Real Estate Club as an effort to save four-year-old Denise Roberts from the disease. Her father, Jerry Roberts, is a member of the group.

Both daughter and mother will fly this afternoon to New York City for special treatment under the auspices of the campaign. According to chaplain Edwin Hartz, donations of both money and blood are needed in order to keep them in New York for the treatment.

The sponsoring organization made an appeal directly to all FSU students to donate blood in the name of the campaign at the Leon County Blood Bank, 309 East Gaines Street. Students under 21 must have the permission of their parents or, if married, the permission of their spouses. Students in the ROTC program may gain permission through their office.

The Leon County Blood Bank is open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m., Saturday the bank is open from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m.

The little girl has type "O" blood.

The Insurance and Real Estate Club is now making plans to establish campaign chairmen in dormitories, sororities, and fraternities. Money may be given to these people or to the Chaplain's office in the Suwannee Arcade. Checks should be made payable to "Life For Denise" and sent to the Capital City National Bank.

Fred Siegrist, a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity from Orlando, who fell victim to the same disease earlier this year, died Sunday afternoon.

Members of his fraternity have announced their intentions to establish a scholarship for Siegrist's younger brother who will enter FSU next fall. Ronnie Blue, fraternity spokesman for the scholarship plan, told the Flambeau that the scholarship would be aimed at similar young Siegrists at start at the University and possibly enabling him to find part-time employment once he is started. Blue also said that plans were being made to house him at the fraternity.

Dohnanyi Work Premiere Set Tonight, Minneapolis

The world premiere of Ernst von Dohnanyi's Second Symphony will be played by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra Antal Dorati, conducting tonight in Minneapolis.

The composer, who is now professor of piano at Florida State University, will attend the premiere accompanied by his wife. He began writing the symphony in his native Hungary in 1944 and completed it two years later as a refugee in Austria.

Three years ago Dohnanyi decided to rewrite the symphony, and only completed the revision a few weeks ago, since much of his time is devoted to teaching piano students.

...won't be the only ones racing on pedaled vehicles tomorrow.

The "Little 500" 30-mile bicycle race for fraternity men will be preceded in the morning by a "Teenie Weenie 500" for women students.

The objective of the big race, they said, will be 24 women's teams of girls and sororities will race 30 miles, but from one end of Westcott Building around the fountain to the other. And they're riding tricycles, not bicycles.

It will start at 11 a.m.

A Sophomore Class spokesman said only one team member will be on the south door of Westcott and turn her tricycle around to relief rider in West Hall, who will complete the 30 miles north of Westcott.

SIX HEATS

Winners of six heats will compete in semi-finals and a championship ride.

"I thought a Thunderbird was small," exclaimed a student at the practice session.

STRANGE REQUEST

The coeds, they related, did manage matter. Tallahassee merchants by asking to borrow tricycles.

The Sophomore Class refuses to say what the first place award will be. There are rumors that it will be a small golden tricycle or a silver loving cup, or a new set of tires in case the race burns up the other tires."

Bill Clendinen, Sophomore president said he hoped the "Teenie Weenie would be accepted as a part of the bicycle race weekend which the class intends to make a tradition.

"Besides giving woman sufficient a boost, this event also become part of the tradition building around the bigger race, and soon —maybe next year—we can have an entire weekend devoted to race time."

Sig Kappa Team Favored To Win

By BOB MOREN

The Sigma Kappa bicycle team, first in preliminary time trials, ranks as pre-race favorites for the "Little 500" tomorrow night beginning at 7:30 on the Florida High track, sponsored by the Sophomore class.

Members of the squad attempting to squelch Theta Chi's bid for a repeat victory of last year's race are sophomores Wynn May and Richard Fowler and seniors Bert Bilsky and Frank Kirchner.

Co-favorites and runners-up in the preliminaries were the red-and-yellow-attired Phi Kappa Taus and West Hill Rebels who finished second and third respectively. Rounding out the top four was Delta Delta Delta led by Bob Carter who set a one lap record of 37 seconds in the trials.

One hundred door prizes including toy lease bike, cuff links, and all sorts of trinkets have been secured from Tallahassee merchants and will be presented throughout the race.

Commencing "Little 500" week there will be a parade starting this afternoon at 2 p.m at Doak Campbell stadium. The parade which will include three convertibles decorated by each of the teams in the final race, will wind through campus and city.

Body Approves Penalty Choice For FSU Court

By CHARLET POITEVINT

The Student Senate Wednesday passed a bill designed to give the student-elected Honor Court power to use discretion in administering penalties.

The proposed amendment to the Student Constitution was written by the honor committee and Honor Court, who have been working on it for several months to oost a year in order to make present penalty rules more flexible.

The amendment will be reviewed by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs, after vote at the second session by the student body in the coming spring elections.

Bill Manning, Chief Justice of Honor Court, recommended that the Honor Court be conditioned. He said, "As the Constitution now stands students cannot participate on teams, hold office, or receive scholarships for the duration of their stay at FSU after they are convicted and sentenced by the Honor Court.

HONESTY

"In the past, any exceptions to this rule have been waived by the administration," he said. "The amendment will merely give the Honor Court authority to use its own discretion in such cases.

He said a freshman accused of lying and convicted in Honor Court at present could not be allowed to participate in activities for the duration of his college career.

"If a student proves he is worthy, it is the opinion of the student body that he should be restored," said Manning.

Senator Jim Hill proposed amendment. Student Body President Dave Bachman, said it would provide a program of rehabilitation instead of punishment.

STUDENT RESPECT.

He said the proposal not only gives the Honor Court more power, but will raise the students' respect for the Honor System.

The amendment was introduced in Senate by Merdy Vine President Frank Fain and Senator Polly Atwater.

GRADES TOPPLE PREVIOUS RECORD

The student body grade average for the fall semester was the highest for that semester since 1949, the university announced yesterday.

The announcement was made by Willie Caldwell, assistant registrar. He said the final comparative records were taken in 1949.

"Freshmen have the highest average of the four classes," Caldwell continued.

President Doak S. Campbell, when releasing the averages said, "The higher freshmen grades are due, in part, to a more selective freshmen class and a faculty effort for more consistent grading."

The student body average was 2.4620 as compared to 2.4294 for the fall semester of 1955-56. The men's average was down from 2.5665 for the fall of 1955-56 to a 2.3382 The women raised their average from 2.5929 to 2.5960.

This year's freshmen improved their average over a 2.0168 for the fresh class who entered in 1955-56 to a 2.1880 for this year's class.

The average increased as the years apeirs in college increase. Seniors averaged 2.2578, Juniors, 2.4813, seniors, 2.8038, with the graduate class topping all others with a 3.2222.

Money Spent On Teaching Salaries Will Be Paid Back State In Future

Although gripes of low pay are legendary among faculty members, they are made up more of truth than humor.

It is to the university teachers' credit that they are good-natured enough to treat lightly the inequities in their salaries. For instance, a Florida State University associate professor whose years of education have won him but $6450 a year may not view too happily the fact that his pink-cheeked students can graduate into positions paying from $460 to $500 a month.

In all too many instances a bit of sober reflection upon the lack of justice in this situation leads to a decision to quit university teaching for a more lucrative field. Certainly the temptation to obtain a job where the ivy is greener must have flirted with the fancy of many an FSU prof. Some have heeded the call, to the consequent loss of the students, the university and the taxpayers.

LET US VIEW with interest, therefore, the prospect of salary increases for faculty amounting to $1,098,928 — the amount recommended to the state Legislature. This bit of change would make a nice addition to the family.

The gentlemen of the Legislature are a learned lot, and we hope that they will be kind to their brethren on the state payroll. FSU has 508 persons on the teaching staff (471 full time) and most of them deserve to get more than they do from the many years they have put into preparation for teaching.

The important thing to remember in considering the FSU budget request is that the buildings cannot run off to New York or California. The faculty can.

HIGHER EDUCATION nowadays is not a student on one of the logs and Mark Hawes on the other, but proper emphasis should be given to the superior importance of good teachers as compared to physical progress.

The purpose of this institution being education, the state's taxpayers will not be getting their money's worth if their sons and daughters do not get educated here. The only way to accomplish this is through competent personnel on the teaching staff. Buildings are necessary, but incidental.

The idea that educataion is a good thing is not new, admittedly, but we do not bring it up merely to repeat what the legislators already know. Neither do we maintain that the state should spend more in proportion on the persons in its higher education program than it should spend on those who benefit by its other socialistic programs.

WHAT WE SHOULD like to point out is that money spent on education pays higher dividends, in terms of money, than does that spent on the other programs. This is because persons with university educations make higher salaries, on the average, than do non-educated persons. Thus they will pay more taxes to the state in the future.

Money spent now to educate Floridians will be paid back in future years not only in tax form, but in the form of greater social contributions of an enlightened citizenry.

Money spent on higher education is money well spent, and from a student standpoint the most vital thing in education is the teaching. The way to keep the best teachers is with the best salaries.

"We're Still Wrestling With It"

Stealing From 'Open' Campus Newspaper Racks Leads To Worse Violations Of Honor System

Honor Court Chief Justice Bill Manning is justifiably perturbed over the incidence of theft from newspaper "honor" racks and from vending machines.

There was a tacit admission of a dishonesty among students when the companies last year began replacing their "honor" racks for the pay-as-you-read variety; they did not say much about it, but the presence of the new vendors was adequate testimony of our dishonesty.

It is sad enough commentary when newspaper companies must sell their wares in vending racks, but when theft gets so commonplace that proprietors must complain of losing money — then the students' honor can no longer be upheld.

The point is not that students should be more honest than anybody else—it is that pilfering newspaper racks is dishonest, for students, for anybody. Those lost nickels add up to lost dollars for the newspapers and lost prestige for the students' honor.

Has theft from "open" newspaper racks become so common that it is accepted as right? Our guess is that it is not—that the students who so casually lift the paper from the rack without paying have to stifle the voice of the conscience.

That little dishonesty can lead to worse violations of personal integrity. Let's be honest in a big way; after all, we must live with ourselves.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

Bikes OK-- UF Student

TO THE EDITOR:

I am a student at the University of Florida and receive your paper each week. The paper of February 22, 1957, was especially interesting to me as it had on its editorial page something of interest to U of F students. I am speaking of the column called The Dissenter written by Martin Dyckman and the article "Bicycles Will Bring Problems." As anyone who has visited the U. of F. campus knows, we have quite a few bicycles here so I feel doubly qualified to comment on your column, as I am one of the mass who has a bicycle.

IN THE FIRST place Mr Dyckman suggests that bicyclists will ride on the sidewalks and not on the streets. Apparently Mr Dyckman overlooked the fact that it is much easier to ride on the streets with the cars going in your direction than to try and drive through a mess of students on the sidewalks going every direction possible.

In the second place Mr Dyckman says there would be a parking problem for bicycles. That problem was solved quite easily for us: bicycle parking racks were set up at different places on the campus, which were, incidently, much less expensive than new parking areas for automobiles.

I WOULD LIKE to also say that the person who rides a bike isn't riding it to see how many people he can hit before he gets to class. True, accidents do happen, but 9 times out of 10 it's the pedestrians fault that the accident occurs. Why? Because the pedestrian thinks he can step out in front of a bicycle and expect the bicyclist to have perfect coordination and the bike to have power brakes.

So don't kill the idea of bikes at FSU. It's worked out fine at the U of F and bicycles are a lot less expensive to run than cars.

Sincerely,
K. HAINES SASNETT
University of Florida
Gainesville, Florida

Editor's Note: We are, first of all, happy that the Gainesville students have located a readable college paper. Mr. Sasnett, however, should realize that "The Dissenter" was more intent on poking fun at the bicycle situation here than belittling bikes.

Circus Leaves On Road Trip

FSU's circus, "Flying High," hits the road today for its second out-of-town show of the year.

They will appear tonight in Jacksonville and tomorrow night in Lake City. Two weeks ago the show journeyed to Cocoa for a weekend performance. The next trip will be to Vero Beach on March 23.

About 40 people will make the trip this weekend. Acts that will appear include the swinging ladders, breakaway, Spanish web, cloud swing, the "girl in the moon," balancing trap and other aerial acts. Bicycle, adagio, tightwire, skaters and clowns will complete the show.

TOWARD THE end of this past semester he suffered a distinct setback at the hands of one of the worst of diseases, a blood condition known as Leukemia. In bed for several weeks after this attack, he quietly passed away at his home. There was little or nothing that could be done by anyone.

And during this time tiny Denise Roberts fought the effects of the same disease. This time, we are told there is something that can be done about it.

Modernists Nix Artistic Ape

By OSCAR JOHNSON

Artists and painters who suffer through the jibes about modern art can view with understanding the plight of a group of California modernists.

They are fighting a move to have paintings of a Baltimore Zoo chimpanzee, "Betsy", entered in a forthcoming sidewalk art show.

"Betsy", an apparently talented, seven year old ape, likes to dabble in paints—and has sold several "abstractions" for $25 to $50 a canvas.

WHEN NEWS GOT out that "Betsy" might display some of her works in the show, other painters balked.

We have heard before of abstract paintings which won though displayed upside down, and of instances where frustrated painters turned in rags used to clean brushes, but the prospect of an ape competing with homo sapiens-type artists strikes at a more fundamental tenderness.

AN ARTIST, AFTER all, has to live with his own pride. As an abstractionist (or impressionist, to use another non-definitive label) he must listen to cries of "My kid can do better than that!" when he unveils his works in public. How much worse the ridicule would be were the ape to win . . .

It's a question of man over monkey.

Actually, the abstractionists have a point in maintaining their efforts should be recognized as serious art. The nonobjective medium appeals to some individuals, therefore, it should be tolerated, at least, by all.

THE SAME REASONING, however, could be said to apply to the finger-painting "Betsy". If a chimpanzee wants to smear colored paint on a canvas, it has a right to do so—and other painters should recognize that right.

Certainly the human abstractionists cannot be afraid of the competition?

The abstractionists' tender spot may have been touched by the presumptiousness of an artistic ape, but surely they will have regard for the feelings of "Betsy".

AFTER ALL, an artist such as "Betsy" has tender feelings, which can be easily hurt. Thus the painters' own soft-skinned susceptibility to criticism should make them recognize the same condition in another.

The California abstractionists have raised an abstract question—and we hope they are as objective about it as they would have the public to be over their own non-objectivity.

Band Presents Quality Program

By DAVID WARD-STEINMAN

The Symphonic Band, under the direction of Manley R. Whitcomb, presented an unusually interesting program in Westcott Wednesday night. The majority of the music presented was of high quality and intrinsic worth, and this in itself is unusual on a band program.

Fuetsner's Overture for Band, Op. 30 opened the program, and we felt it to be one of the finest pieces of contemporary band writing that we have heard yet. The harmonic language and the material used were all imaginative and fresh, and the colorful orchestration continually dazzled the ear. We must point out, however, that on first hearing the formal design was not immediately apparent and the piece seemed to lack organic coherence, but we are quite willing to trust the composer until we have had the opportunity of hearing the piece again. Certainly it deserves repeated hearings.

A TRANSCRIPTION of a Frescobaldi Toccata was next on the program, and it was given a very solid reading by the band. The transcription seemed to be rather heavily scored in places, but this may have been a result of excessive doubling in the band.

Three Choral Preludes composed in 18th century style (Baroque) by W P Latham were surprisingly authentic-sounding and ingratiating. When one reads of a 20th century composer doing something like this, the first reaction is to sneer "Philistine", or "musical prostitute", but the fact must be faced that there is a dearth of good band literature, and if stylistically balanced programs are to be presented, transcriptions must be resorted too.

But the point of all this is that the three Latham Preludes, conceived for the modern band and scored by a man who evidently knows what he's about, sounded much more authentic and idiomatic than most of the transcriptions we have heard —like the preceding Frescobaldi, for example. Therefore Latham completely justifies himself. If he can steep himself that thoroughly in the Baroque tradition and style then by all means let him write, especially if it results in improving the band literature.

THE 2ND movement of Strauss' youthful Horn Concerto, transcribed by sophomore John Bracewell, was well-played by hornist Sidney Wilck. There were a few technical slips but Wilck succeeded admirably in projecting long phrases with a full, warm tone.

The Finale of Shostakovitch's Fifth Symphony, in the Righter transcription, closed the first half of the program. This was a piece in which we felt the usual band doublings interfered with a stylistic reading. Nine horns, nine trombones and ten cornets and trumpets may have their place on the football field and in certain concert music, but when employed indiscriminately, we are ready to make a case for the Eastman-type wind ensemble, with one-on-a-part. The opening bars of the Shostakovitch, conceived heroically for brass (undoubted), lost the lift and energy it should have had. The one-on-a-part here resulted in stodginess instead of increased volume and power.

A Fanfare and Allegro by C[lif]ton Williams opened the second half of the program. The in[itial] material was good, but it [got] progressively worse as the pie[ce] continued and ended quite lamely.

THE WRITER'S transcrip[tion] of Howard Hanson's Serenade for Flute (originally for flute, harp, and strings) was extreme[ly] well performed by Dale Jens[en] and a reduced band. Balance and rapport between soloist and ensemble was remarkable, and left little to be desired. Jensen is a real find, and would be a welcome addition to any organization.

The program closed with two insignificant pieces of the sort that one expects to find on band programs. What was remarkable and encouraging about Wednesday's program was that there were only two. Let us hope this sets a precedant for future concerts.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by Dick Bibler

ALAN'S AISLE

'Great Man' Is Great

By ALAN KASS

The very talented Jose Ferrer has teamed up with Aaron Rosenberg to bring to the screen a superlative, flawless drama entitled "The Great Man."

Ferrer wrote, directed and stars in the picture, and in so doing comes up with a picture that should garner several award nominations come next year.

"The Great Man" deals with the sudden death of a radio-tv idol, beloved by his millions of listners. Ferrer, in doing a memorial show for the departed, realizes after long digging that the great star from coast-to-coast was really a first-class heel.

Honest Jose's crisis then is whether to play it straight, along with the network, or tell the truth and shatter the glamour of a celebrity and also lose his job.

This picture is classy in every way. The photography is expert, the music interesting, the dialogue believable and very amusing. The details shot in New York are certainly well thought out.

It has been quite awhile since the complete cast of a picture turned in such a satisfying performance.

Ed Wynn, as the small town station owner who gave the great man his break is the best of the many, heartwarming and real. He not only walks away with acting laurels but he is a cinch for a nomination as best supporting actor of 19[57]. His performance alone is wor[th] the price of admission.

Julie London as the dru[nken] cast-off canary, does very w[ell] in her first real dramatic cha[l]lenge.

Keenan Wynn, Dean Jagger, Russ Morgan and Jim Back[us] all give fine performances as the big men of the network stronghold.

One of the most likable mo[vie] stars of the decade Gene Kel[ly] is currently on view at the R[...] Theater in "Invitation to [the] Dance."

This picture, made in 1951, has had considerable comment sin[ce] the American premiere this summer.

Mostly in pantomine, it consists of three ballets each [...] minutes in length and each different in style and story.

It is reported that the second ballet, a sort of minature "La Ronde" with a score by Andre Previn is the best of the three. The last story has Mr Kelly dancing in "Sinbad The Sailor."

This picture seems to be an artistic success although certainly not a commercial one.

Garnet-Gold Grid Clash Tonight

Renn, Schomburger; Johnson, Musselman, Captain Squads

By FRANK RAMOS

Football returns to Campbell Stadium tonight at 8:00 with the annual Garnet and Gold football game.

The Garnet and Gold clash closes out the 20-day long spring practice. The popping of pads won't be heard again until next fall.

Leading the Garnet team will be co-captain Bobby Renn, quarterback, and Ronnie Schomburger, end. Eddie Johnson and Bill Musselman have been selected to captain the Gold squad.

Both teams have worked on offense all week after having spent the first two weeks of practice on defense.

LOT OF PASSING

"There should be lots of passing from both sides tonight," commented Nugent. "The Garnet has the better running attack and the Gold has the upper hand in the aerial department," he continued.

Slated to start for the Garnet club are at left and right ends, Ronnie Schomburger, co-captain from Pittsburgh and Hem Bisbee, a 190-pounder from Sanford. Fig Jerry Lane and George Boyer will operate from the tackle slots for the Garnet tonight, while two sophomores, Al Ulmer and Abner Bigbee, will open at the guards.

Last year's starting center, Troy Barnes, will be at the pivot post for the Garnet tonight.

Bobby Renn, who made the big switch from halfback to quarterback, will open at the latter of the two positions.

Performing in the same backfield with Renn will be Stan Daniels and Gerald Philp, both seniors at halfbacks. Carmen Battaglia will be at the fullback position at the opening kickoff.

The aerial-minded Gold team will have Pete Fleming and Tony Romeo at ends. Co-captain Musselman and Bonce Bryan hold down the tackle slots.

Opening at the guards will be hunch Joe McGee and Jerry Graham. Sophomore Paul Slaton will handle the centering duties. Others in the running for the Gold squad will be Jerry Henderson a senior from Pensacola, Fred Pickard and Billy Weaver will man the halfback posts. Rounding out the backfield will be Eddie Johnson the other co-captain at fullback.

NUGENT HAPPY

As spring practice comes to a close tonight, Coach Nugent finds himself satisfied with the overall progress of the 1957 Seminole squad.

"Tonight's contest will give Nugent an idea of how well he has solved his three biggest problems at the start of spring practice: at guard, fullback and quarterback.

Renn, like his predecessor, Leo Corso, is a converted halfback who has drawn considerable praise this spring as a signal-caller.

Spotlight On Renn

By Alan Whitmarsh

Starting the sports scene:

Head coach Tom Nugent unveils his prospective 1957 gridiron squads for local fans and students. . . The annual Garnet-Gold clash figures to have its share of thrills as always but doesn't mean much to the winning team. . . The spotlight centers on Bobby Renn, trying out as quarterback. . . For those of you who don't remember, however, Nugent was equally pleased with the work of Renn at quarterback about this time last year. . . Result, Renn started all season at halfback. . . Another point: how-ever, there are only a limited number of offensive assignments at quarterback.

In direct contrast with football and more in keeping with the time of year, Danny Litwhiler's baseballers get action underway on Monday. . . Danny a crew seems a good bet to go to the NCAA again, at least on the pre-season dope sheet. . . In the opening here, Litwhiler has produced a 41-11 mark. . . The Litwhiler baseballers incidentally are one of the few teams in Seminole's history who have never had a losing season. . . The all-time mark for the FSU nine is 129-83-1. . . The tie, something unusual to say the least in baseball was against Tampa in 1951 8-8.

TWO OTHERS PERFECT

The only other FSU athletic squads besides the baseball team who never had a losing campaign are the gymnasts and swimmers, both of whom have been national champions.

Dick Price's gymnasts have a 24-4-1 dual meet record up to now without a season on the wrong side of the ledger. . . Coach Dick Norena's high netters have a 184-78 game mark over the years.

Several other teams have only one or two losing seasons as such. Swimming 61-16 to date, on the losing campaign 1940 and 1941. Tennis 81-46 with one bad year (1951) and golf 68-28. football (53-33-2) and track (32-17- all with two losing years.

Basketball coach Bud Kennedy is still negotiating with various schools to complete his race schedule for next year. . . Kennedy is hopping for the ' best December schedule we've ever had. The proposed slate of games in December may include Alabama, Miami, West Virginia and others. . . The two games with the University of Florida Gators still look doubtful at this writing.

In the national scene unbeaten North Carolina continues its rise to prominence and grind towards an NCAA title at Philadelphia against Kansas. . . Our prediction that the Yankee Tar Heels will beat Kansas in the finals is still looking good. . . Kansas has a definite threat in Southern Methodist, tonight though and North Carolina will have to pass Kentucky to reach the finals.

Thinclads Face Southern Here

The Seminole track squad opens its 1957 home season here tomorrow morning against Mississippi Southern, at 10:30 at the Florida High track.

The Seminole thinclads will be seeking their third straight victory over the Southerners in their first dual meet of the young season.

Last year, Coach Mike Long's tracksters battered Mississippi Southern 89-32 and in 1955 the Seminoles defeated the visitors 68-58.

Long's chiefest threats have not meet title under their belts having won the Atlantic Coast Indoor Relays non-conference division in late February.

CHIEF SCORERS

Dash man Jack Terwilliger, hurdler and jumper Tommy Brown, high jumper Lloyd Lassen and miler Mike Conley are expected to gather a good majority of the Seminoles' points.

Conley is out to break his existing mile record of 4:29.3 which he bettered unofficially in the Florida AAU meet here last year.

Terwilliger appears to be a threat to the existing 440 standard of 49.4 and either Lassen or Brown could set a high jump mark.

After the Southern clash tomorrow, the tracksters will lay off until March 30 when they will compete in the Florida Relays at Gainesville.

Tribe Gym Team Faces Pensacola

Florida State's gymnastic team faces the Pensacola Naval Air Station squad tomorrow afternoon in a tune up for next week's NCAAs to be held at the Naval Academy in Annapolis.

The Seminoles' record to date in dual meets is marred only by a tie at Georgia Tech Earlier in the season FSU defeated the sailors in the only other encounter of the two teams.

Jim Austin, who ranked number three in tumbling in the 1956 NAAU's, threatens to place first in tumbling and on the trampolite and also be high point man for the naval station.

Besides Austin, Pensacola will unveil for the first time this year 1956 AAU tiring rings champ Hoerner.

Expected to carry the scoring load for FSU are three of Dr. Price's top men, newly appointed team captain Bob Murray, Chuck Cobb, and Jamie Ashmore.

By PATTI WISENER

If you want to the Ballet or Symphony last week you probably want to hear more of the music. You'll find most of it on records at The Robin's Nest.

The late William Kapell recorded the Khachaturian Concerto for Piano and Orchestra that climaxed the University Symphony concert.

Although the ballet Offenbach in the Underworld lacked only custard pie-throwing to make it a complete farce the music was relatively unharmed.

You can hear more of it on Offenbach in America, with the Boston Pops The record comes in a book-album that contains sketches and anecdotes of Offenbach's visit to this country.

Music from the outstanding presentation of the two-night ballet program- The Nutcracker Suite—is on a Capitol album, with Swan Lake on side two.

An album by the Ballet Theatre Orchestra backs up Chopin's Les Sylphides with Tschaikovsky's Princess Aurora, a suite of dances from The Sleeping Beauty.

The current Columbia buy-of-the-month is a record that's basic to every collection. The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra plays Dubussy's La Mer and Ravel's La Valse and Valses Nobles et Sentimentales.

Tribe Nine Meets Vols Monday

Kenney To Face Strong Tennessee

The Florida State baseball team will sport a lineup of veterans next Monday when they open their 1957 season against the powerful Tennessee nine at 3:30 on the East Campus diamond.

According to head coach Danny Litwhiler Tennessee is rated as one of the strongest teams in the Southeast Conference, matched in power only by Auburn.

Litwhiler's pitching choice for the season's opener will be Fred Kenney. Fred, a lanky right-hander, saw limited action last year and posted a 1-2 record. On hand in case Kenney should need help will be Jim Bristol or John Ash.

The starter at first base will be Fred Twomey. Twomey, a senior, hit .342 last season and according to Litwhiler, Fred has been hitting the ball very hard in practice.

HENDRIX AT 2ND

The Keystone sack will be handled by another senior Carlee Hendrix. Last season Hendrix hit a respectable .284 and played in all but one of the 29 games Carlee played third base last year. But Litwhiler thinks he will show improvement as a second.

The leading batter last season, Dick Hoxsey, will open at shortstop. Hoxsey hit 422 which is an individual record for FSU. He also set the record for most hits in one season with 38.

Down at the "hot corner" for the Tribe will be Phi Hand. Phi blasted the ball at a .368 clip most of last season and proved a valuable man in the field.

Three able veterans will handle the outfield duties in left field will be Bob Rosell. Rosell, small in stature, but a big man with the bat was the third leading hitter on the squad last year. The speedy outfielder hit .403 while playing sparkling defensive ball.

McCARRON OPENS

Owen McCarron, a converted infielder, will start in center field. McCarron had a .270 average with the bat last season and placed in all but two of the games. Litwhiler says he is a real hustler and should do a right fine job in right field.

Flanking McCarron in right field will be Lee Corso a senior with plenty of baseball savvy. Corso is being counted on in a big way by Coach Litwhiler.

He played in all the games last season and set a new record for bases on balls in one season. Corso hit .265 and led the team in triples and RBI's.

Behind the plate for the Tribe will be John Sheppard. This will be the first regular season for the stocky sophomore receiver but Litwhiler claims he is the number one catcher.

The Seminoles have plenty of bench strength in the form of Riley Sereno, Mike Coppinger and Dale Koch. The latter two men are sophomores who are expected to show some real talent this year.

Coach Litwhiler feels the Seminoles can have just as good if not a better record than last season. The pitching staff is our only question mark but if they come through we should be successful" claimed Litwhiler.

SENIOR CHUCKER Jerry Boxer will probably draw the starting assignment in the second game with the Auburn Tigers, Wednesday.

Students Will Pay To See Tourney

FSU students who wish to see the second annual Florida State Invitational Baseball Tournament beginning here a week from Monday, March 25, will have to pay 50c admission fee.

The athletic department announced that admission will be charged due to the fact that the tournament, to be a success, must pay for itself as it is a separate event outside of the ordinary baseball budget.

Seminole coach Dasoy Litwhiler commented that "The only way we can bring the best college teams here for such a tourney is to guarantee them a certain amount, to cover expenses plus the admission fee."

Yale, Michigan State and Duke are slated to oppose the Seminoles in the tournament which Litwhiler calls "one of the best in the area."

REBELS IN FINALS

The Rebels won their way into the dorm badminton finals by beating the Lutherans 15-9, 15-12. Last night the Methodists, Feds and Lutherans were playing to determine who would meet the Rebels on Monday at 7:30 for the title.

In the fraternity PDT went into the finals by beating LCA 15-8, 15-8. Meanwhile, DTD eliminated SAE 15-12, 15-13 and ATO took out PKA 15-8, 15-10.

The last time an FSU gymnastics team lost in a dual meet was back in 1952 when the U. S. Military Academy Army nipped the Tribe 49-46.

Feds Lead Intramural Independent League

In the Dormitory-Independent division the Feds hold a slim five point margin over the Penthouse gang in the race for the individual scoring title.

The point standing as of this date is:

Feds—612.56
Penthouse—607.98
Rebels—605.10
Magnolia—601.44
Rattlers—519.12
Lutherans—521.36
Methodists—521.36
Lutherans—000.10
Vets—000.00
Eagle—000.00
Y.M.C.A.—23.00
A.F.O.—0.00
I.M.V.—0.00

Scheduled for tomorrow are Hall and Penthouse continued unbeaten in the dorm volleyball leagues and the title may have to be decided when these two teams meet next Wednesday at 6 p.m. in the men's gym.

Penthouse beat Magnolia 15-8 15-10 this week. The Vets came thru with their first win of the year by beating the Rebels 15-11, 10-15, 15-4.

Last week finis to the Feds chances to win the title and stay in first place in the over-all point standings, when they won 15-9, 7-15, 15-12.

Matches are scheduled for Monday and Wednesday of next week and that completes the season.

Tomorrow morning at 9:30 Senior Sonny Sellers is the only one of this group who is not a second-year man. The other four lettered as freshmen last season.

Last year, the Seminole netters posted an 8-7 mark, but didn't beat either the University of Florida or the University of Miami.

Others besides the five lettermen, who Pitchford rates as top players include: Jack Crew, Bill Counts, Russ Rollinger, Dave Tirdo, the latter of whom is a transfer from Florida, who is ineligible for at least a year.

The Seminole coach believes he will have an outstanding freshman prospect in Howard Levy of Miami Beach, who has several of the top men in practice.

Other freshmen who may help next year are Dick Waters, Alex Sutor, Jerry Miland, Pete Penn and Butch Selling.

Young FSU Tennis Team To Face Ga. Bulldog Bite

Florida State University's tennis team will open its 1957 campaign March 18 against the University of Georgia here and Coach Keith Pitchford admits to a lack of experienced personnel.

"We don't have too many experienced men to tackle a schedule of 16 tough matches," Pitchford says. "In fact, four of our five lettermen are sophomores."

Pitchford rates opening opponent Georgia as "very strong" and says the schedule will include matches with Michigan State, Duke, Florida and always-powerful University of Miami.

The two top men of last year, Hal Schaus and Shelby Crouch, number one and two man respectively, are graduated.

FIVE BACK

The five returning letter-men are Fred Sherrell, Lex Hester, Frank Bryan, Sonny Sellers and Jim Maddock, who is currently on the sidelines with a broken thumb.

Swimmers Battle Hurricanes Today

By TOM HALE
Flambeau Sports Writer

Florida State closes out its regular swimming season this afternoon in Miami when they meet winless University of Miami in a dual meet.

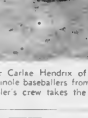
When the two teams met earlier this season, the Seminoles held Miami to just two first places as they dunked the Hurricanes to a tune of 61-25.

Saturday the swimmers will stay in Miami to compete in the Florida AAU's. The Tribe finished first in the Georgia AAU's and they are established as the top contenders for the Florida title.

OTHERS IN MEET

Other teams scheduled to compete in the meet are the Universities of Florida and Miami, the Metro Miami swim club and various other swimmers and amateur teams from throughout the state.

Expected to bring in the points for the Seminoles will be Paul Hammond, Jim Julian, Don Lewis, and Ryan Ray in the freestyle transfer student events, Joel Jacobs in the Breaststroke and Ken Abbott in Backstroke.



Paul Stroffregen, backstroke along with diver Joe Wood will be the top men for the Freshmen.

Florida's Phil Drake will be some competition in the All-Around, butterfly when he faces Joe Nelson from Miami. Drake has held the world record in the butterfly and is undefeated this season.

OLYMPIC MEMBER

Nelson was a member of the Olympic team last year in the butterfly event and was set to compete this year in the meets because of his being a transfer student.

If we may, as editor's note before we get the party-goo-ood spinning. Many of the groups, clubs Flambeau and sorority-ites on campus are receiving frequent coverage in this column, they have only one person to thank for and it isn't us. It is the person in the group who is interested enough to meet the deadline that has to be set for turning news in for Friday's paper.

The Flambeau deadline for all material to be ready to go to press is noon Thursday. In order that we may get the column written in time this deadline will have to have the information, typed, in the secretes box just inside the Flambeau office door before noon on Wednesday. Items turned in later will have to wait until another later issue. The only rules and regulations regarding what goes into the Party Scene are those of good taste, decency and limited space. Everyone has an equal shot at their coverage as can possibly be achieved with the information that is provided.

This is what we want you to turn into us: 1 all the information possible—it's much easier to subtract than try to add when there are no details 2 the date and time month, numerical date and day of the week, 3 complete details of all events during the past week and those planned for the coming week 4 if you have pictures available for print turn them in, or if there is an important event scheduled, let us know enough about it so that we can send a photographer. And 5 put your name and phone number at the top of the page or the name and phone number of someone who would know all the necessary details if more information is needed.

This may be an old line but nevertheless, this is your newspaper and your society page. If it is anything sad is worse you, you must be responsible for the news, we only write it, we don't make it.

A brighter post script before we go to the parties—in Spring a tricycle race. The motorcade will be made up of units from each Little 500" entries and plenty of extra pretty girls. The tricycle race, the "Teeny Weeny" will have entries from the sororities on the latest mode of transportation, the tricycle.

The Theta Chis, are partying at home. The house was turned into the "wild west" for two parties this past week. Dancing, card games, a ski- other entertainment and refreshments were the order of the day. Cowboy hats and boots are served up in the style of the old frontier to Delta Gamma and Alpha Xi Delta.

But event for the Alpha Chi Omega was the initiation banquet Monday night. Formal candlelight and carnations from the house. Another part of the ceremonies was the scholarship and activities cups for the best pledge, highlights. After chapter meeting, all the girls gathered for the monthly Carnation Girl" ceremonies and a special serenade for all the girls who are pinned and engaged. Sunday afternoon the open house at Alpha Kappa Alpha Theta, come see the "new movies of culture." Mixed in with the program were party refreshments.

Before they were initiated the Kappa Alpha Theta pledges held an unusual party. The theme of the items for sale were things that the pledges had put away and the delight of the sororities—from the natives. Ie. perfume letters, diaries photographs etc. Also the money collected is to be put in fund to be used to buy a gift for the chapter a T.V. set, maybe?!.

Kappa Delta had their week end this past weekend. Memories include a semi-formal dance on Friday night and a cruise party all day Saturday at one of the girl's house. Other recent additions to the Kappa Delta scrapbook of memories include the initiate banquet for the 9 new members and a party with the Delta Tau Delta men at the Delt house.

Activities that Build" will be the theme for Gamma Psi Beta at the Province VIII Conference here this weekend. The local chapter is playing hostess to chapters from Rollins, Birmingham-Southern, William and Mary, and the University of Maryland. The Conference will last three days with slumber and collegiates exchanging ideas and entertainment.

Highlights of the weekend will be a luncheon Saturday and a Carnation banquet Saturday night. Mrs. Joseph L. Picard, Interna-tional Alumna Vice President, will be a special guest and speaker at the banquet.

Phi Mu dreams are filled with memories of their weekend, which was last weekend. Friday things started with a spaghetti dinner and party, Saturday all the girls and their dates went to the coast. They returned for the Carnation Ball that night. Sunday was church and a buffet dinner at the house.

Congratulations go to Sigma Chi this weekend. It's their 8th "first" on campus. To celebrate, the men will hold a Founders' Day dance tonight and open house tomorrow afternoon at the chapter house. Tomorrow night they'll dance to a combo, Sunday attend church and conclude with a baked ham dinner. The Tallahassee alumni, the older part of the contingent will join to talk of the history of the Sigma Gamma Delta house during the week.

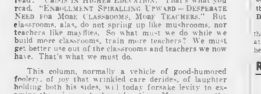
Pi Kappa Alpha celebrated its Founder's Day with a banquet at the Delt House. The highlights of the evening were the awards for the chapters' faculty advisor Dr. Charles Culhane, and for the Act Education Department.



A party was recently given in honor of the new pledges.

a young man's and woman's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love—or so we're told. At any rate thoughts of love come eagerly to media, formal pinning and marriages. We'd like to add these announcements to the society page. To do so we need the same kind of information that goes to make their coverage as can possibly be achieved with the information that is provided.

This is what we want you to turn into us: 1 all the information possible—it's much easier to subtract than try to add when there are no details 2 the date and time month, numerical date and day of the week, 3 complete details of all events during the past week and those planned for the coming week 4 if you have pictures available for print turn them in, or if there is an important event scheduled, let us know enough about it so that we can send a photographer. And 5 put your name and phone number at the top of the page or the name and phone number of someone who would know all the necessary details if more information is needed.

FASTER, FASTER!

Pick up your paper every morning and what do you read? "CRISIS IN HIGHER EDUCATION." That's what you read. "SCHOLASTIC STANDARDS UPWARD — INCREASED NEED FOR MORE CLASSROOMS, MORE TEACHERS." But classrooms, alas, do not spring up like mushrooms, nor teachers like maybes. So what do we do while we build more classrooms, train more teachers? We must get better out of the classrooms and teachers we now have. That's what we must do.

This column, normally a vehicle of good-humored foolery, of joy that wrinkled ears tickle, of laughter holding both his sides, will today forsake levity to examine the crisis in higher education. My sponsors, the makers of Philip Morris Cigarettes, are bonnie a bunch of tycoons as you will see in a month of Sundays, have given cheerful consent to this departure. Oh, splendid chaps they are, the makers of Philip Morris! Oh, darlin' lyets they are, fond of home, mother, porridge, the Constitution, and country fiddling! Twinkly and eggaging they are, jaunty and sociable, roguish and winsome, as full of joy as packed with pleasure, as brimming with natural goodness, as loaded with felicity as the cigarettes they bring you in two convenient sizes — regular in the handy snap-open pack, and new long-size in a crushproof flip-top box — both available at moderate cost at your favorite tobacconist. Light one now. Light either one. No filter cigarette can make that statement.

Let us then, with the gracious connivance of the makers of Philip Morris — Oh, splendid chaps! Oh, gracious connivers! — take up the terribly vexing question of how we can turn out more graduates with campus facilities as they now exist.

The answer can be given in one word: speeding! Speed up the educational process. Streamline courses. Eliminate frills. Sharpen. Shorten. Quicken.

Follow up is a list of courses with suggested methods to make you more efficient.

PHYSICS — Eliminate slow neutrons.

PSYCH LAB — Tilt the mazes downhill. The white mice will run much faster.

ENGINEERING — Make slide rules half as long.

MUSIC — Change all tempos to allegro. (A collateral benefit to be gained from this suggestion is that once you speed up waltz time, campus proms will all be over by 10 p.m. With students going home so early, romance will languish and marriage counselors can be train-ferred to the buildings and grounds department. Also, housing now used for married students can be returned to the school of animal husbandry.)

ALGEBRA — If "x" always equals 24, much time-consuming computation can be eliminated.

LANGUAGES — Teach all language courses in English.

DENTISTRY — Skip baby teeth. They fall out anyhow.

POETRY — Amalgamate the classics. Like this:

Hail to thee, blithe spirit
Shovel it on, we want this old gray head
You ain't nothin' but a hound dog
Smiting the boy fell dead.

You see how simple it is? Perhaps you have some speedup ideas of your own. If so, I'll thank you to keep them to yourselves.

© Max Shulman, 1957

The makers of Philip Morris have an interest in any speedup. We urge our fine tobacco slow and easy. And that's the way it smokes—slow and easy—a natural smoke.

Tallahassee, Students Respond To Denise's Plight

By Staff Writers

An appeal for aid for the leukemia-stricken daughter of an FSU student has opened the hearts of Tallahassee citizens and FSU students and faculty.

More than $1,000 has been contributed within a few days to the "Life for Denise" campaign, begun to help pay what will be staggering medical bills for four-year-old Denise Roberts.

Officials of the Leon County Blood Bank said so many people volunteered to give blood for Denise Saturday that some had to be turned away. Yesterday, after 85 pints had been given, 59 of the donors being students, the Blood Bank asked that further donations be postponed till next Monday.

Leukemia is a relatively mysterious disease, described as cancer of the white blood cells, which is almost always fatal. The life of a victim, however, can be prolonged with treatment and transfusions. This is what doctors hope to do for little Denise, while medical science continues to seek a cure.

The Capital City National Bank, depository for donations, said yesterday afternoon $849.06 had been received from the university and $633.04 from townspeople.

Of the campus total, $614.67 was collected from the few thousand people who attended Friday night's Garnet and Gold football game.

Student Body President Dave Bachman, meanwhile, announced that the Campus Chest emergency fund of $300 is available to the "Life for Denise" campaign whenever it is needed.

Dr. James K. Dillinger, chairman of the "Life for Denise" campaign which is sponsored by the Insurance and Real Estate Club—her father, Dennis Roberts is a member—said he could describe the response only as "magnificent."

In addition to money and blood, almost every conceivable offer has been made to Roberts, a Korean veteran, and his wife, who have another daughter, one year old.

Dr Dillinger said calls were received offering winter clothing for New York, where the family has gone so that Denise may be hospitalized; discounts on airline tickets and jobs and housing contacts for New York.

"They came in so fast Roberts probably missed a few," Dr. Dillinger said.

He added, however, that the total expenses of the fight for Denise's life will be "staggering" and that contributions of money and blood will be welcomed so long as people are willing to give them.

The Blood Bank explained that there is enough in little Denise's account to last at least a week.

Whole blood, the kind used to treat leukemia patients, will not last over 21 days. It was explained.

Students under 21 and not in ROTC must have their parents' permission to donate blood, and food should not be eaten less three hours before a donation is made. Any type blood may be donated.

Senate Hears Report

'Understand' Aims, Infirmary Requests

By CHARLET POITEVINT

Infirmary officials would like students to try to understand the problems of the university hospital and realize the advantages received from it, according to a report made in Student Senate last week by a special committee to investigate infirmary conditions.

Frank Fain, chairman of the committee, quoted Dr. R. G. Mathaway, director of student health service, as saying students are allowed to spend 14 days in the infirmary with free shots, medicine, and nursing.

Fain said Mathaway told him that outside consultation may be obtained by students if they wish. There is no regulation prohibiting a student from calling a physician from town, as was previously asserted by some senators, Mathaway quoted.

ON CALL

"The university doctors are always on call and will come to any residence hall in emergency cases when the patient can be moved," the committee chairman said he was told. Fain was startled at some services available the students with no additional charge other than activity fees; the employment of a laboratory and X-ray technician, and the setting of broken bones.

"However, special hormones, vitamins, and meals must be paid for by the student," Fain said in the report.

Mathaway said it would cost students about $34 for an average stay in a public or private hospital, and $9 for a visit to a clinic, whereas students receive the same care for a nominal fee.

Concerning specific problems criticized by former patients in the survey conducted by the committee, Dr Mathaway gave the following explanation to the committee:

"Ants are a problem to the infirmary as well as to the students, and we are currently trying to control them by handspraying. An exterminator has made an estimate, but we lack funds to take any action.

"Because of the effectiveness of antibiotics, different persons using different ailments receive the same medicine.

"Staff quality is good since only registered nurses are hired," he said.

If the students will realize he is one of them who come to see the clinic each day and have more patience, then the infirmary staff would have time to be more sympathetic, Mathaway was quoted by Fain.

Ryan Edwards Wins Fulbright

Ryan Edwards, senior in the School of Music, has been awarded a Fulbright scholarship for a year's study in France.

The pianist and composer from Quincy said he will leave in September for the Paris Conservatory.

Edwards this school year produced his own one act opera "See The Wind." He has been a student of Carlisle Floyd and Phyllis Bryant.

Dr. Albert LeDuc, Fulbright scholarship committee chairman, said four other students have also applied for the scholarships, but that no applications are processed by different committees and decisions are announced individually.

Coed Sports Day Planned Saturday

The Women's Physical Education department will sponsor a college sports day Saturday with coeds from Pensacola Junior College and Valdosta (Ga.) State College as guests.

A department official said any FSU coed may participate if she registers by noon Thursday in the main lobby of the women's gymnasium.

Activities, beginning at 9 a.m. will include tennis, gymnastics, badminton, ping pong, croquet, shuffleboard, bowling, archery, softball and basketball, followed by an ice cream party in the gym.

The noon meal is to be held in the Seminole Club. A coed-out at the Reservation, for whom tickets will be sold beginning Wednesday, will conclude the day, the officials said.

FELLOWSHIP CALLS OFF MEETING

A meeting of the Inter-Faith Fellowship, scheduled for Thursday night in Longmire Auditorium, has been cancelled because of conflicting activities that night.

Soph Council To Sell Goodies

Sophomore Council members will be selling apples and donuts in all women's residence halls Thursday night beginning at 10 p.m. as a new Campus Chest project.

The project will take the place of the faculty auction held in past years. The apples and donuts will sell at 10 cents each.

ODK Banquet Honors Prexy

Florida State University leaders staged a surprise party at Waku'a Lodge Saturday night honoring retiring President Doak S. Campbell.

Dr. Campbell plans to retire on June 30 after more than 15 years as president of FSU. He was not informed in advance of plans by Omicron Delta Kappa, men's leadership fraternity, to honor him.

Invited to be on hand as chief speaker was Dr. John E. Duff, director of the Southern Regional Education Board at Atlanta and a long time friend of Dr. Campbell. Also on the speaking program to honor the Dr. Campbell was Gov. LeRoy Collins, invited along with members of the Florida Cabinet, and about 50 other guests.

The program awaiting Dr. Campbell at the Lodge included the naming of Dr. Doak a Life Good Fellow. Dave Bachman, president of the student body and of ODK, delivered a tribute from students, faculty and staff. Dan Heider presented an illustrated booklet showing high spots in Dr. Campbell's career at FSU and James Ralston sang "Stout Hearted Men."

Student Body President Dave Bachman recommended three appointments to the Student Senate Wednesday.

He named Barbara Burkhardt to replace Polly Swain, who will intern this semester, as clerk of Honor Court; Sara Jane Griffin to replace Mac Burkhardt as senior Women's Justice of Honor Court, and Mary Louise Peacock to replace Carol Bell, who will intern, as an Honor Court Justice.

No Centennial Event, Dr. Campbell Says

President Ends Student Speculation On Plans For FSU 1957 Celebration

By BETTY OTEY

There need be no more speculation about a centennial celebration for Florida State University this year. President Doak S. Campbell said that no plans are being made for a 1957 celebration.

A controversy about a centennial celebration during 1957 arose from the fact that the seal of Florida State University bears a founding date of 1857, yet many believe the founding date to be 1851. If Florida State was founded in 1857, then this present year would call for a few flags, speeches and dismissed classes.

Flags, speeches, and dismissed classes are not to be enjoyed by the present student body, however. If anyone cares to hang around until 2051 the opportunity to indulge in such a celebration will probably be presented again.

MILD OBSERVANCE

"Florida State University's centennial was celebrated in 1951, although not in a big way," revealed Dr. Campbell.

The reason for 1951 being celebrated this year is because the school was established by a legislative act in 1851, although classes weren't begun until 1857," he said.

"The majority of colleges and universities use the date of their charterns as a founding date although many years may pass before the first session is held," pointed out Dr Campbell.

Dr Campbell said he hopes to clarify the situation by asking the State Board of Control to change the official date of founding to 1851.

EARLY BEGINNING

Florida's university had its beginning as the West Florida Seminary. A legislative act on January 24, 1851, provided for the establishment of two seminaries of higher learning, one in each of the territorial divisions separated by the Suwannee river, and from these geographical locations they soon became known as the East and West Florida Seminaries.

Ocala was chosen as the site of the East Florida Seminary but the site was later changed to Gainesville and the school became the University of Florida.

TALLAHASSEE, LEON RIVALS

The site of the West Florida Seminary was not settled so easily. A battle ensued between Jackson and Leon counties for the location and the issue was not settled until January 1, 1857 when the General Assembly if Florida chose Leon county and Tallahassee as the site Classes began that spring.

The fact that classes did not begin until 1857 makes the class of 1957 the centennial class even if this is not the centennial year of the school.

Student Party Prexy Pick Is Greenfield

Clendinen, Atwater Murray Selected

Arnold Greenfield was nominated, unopposed, for the office of Student Body President by the Student Party convention Thursday night. More than 200 delegates attended.

The party assembled a full slate of candidates to compete in the Student Body primary election June 2.

Bill Clendinen was the unanimous choice for the vice-presidency race, while Polly Alwarez will vie for women's vice-presidency and Bob Murray for men's vice-presidency.

Nominee for the office of secretary of Senate is Gail Gardner; for Chief Justice of the Honor Court, Nancy Worrall; for chairman of the University Court, Martha Grizzard, and for chairman of Traffic Court, Bill McKimmie.

PI BLICATIONS

Ruth Pritchu, John Garrett and Ben Baiier were named to run for the Board of Student Publications. Jack Terwilliger will compete for president of the University Recreation Association.

After his nomination by Bob Temple, Greenfield accepted the party's backing with an appeal for campus support of politics.

"Campaigning and politics are a lot of fun," Greenfield said. "If people didn't enjoy them there wouldn't be so many people interested in participating."

WORK REMAINS

He added: However, after all the campaigning is over after all the speeches have been made and all the hoopla has ceased—

Kappa Alpha Cops Cycle Contest

Kappa Alpha's four-man team, taking the lead on the 20th of 120 laps, won the second annual "Little 500" bicycle race Saturday night at the Florida High track.

The KAs, who weren't conceded much chance after placing eighth in the preliminaries a month ago, were never headed after they once wrested the lead from the Phi Mu entry.

Members of the first place team were Kelvin Huehn, Roddy Andrews, Ramon Arnold and John Joiner.

LCA SECOND

Finishing second and again upsetting the "dope books" were the Lambda Chi Alpha riders, 12th place in the preliminaries, who nosed out pre-race favorite Sigma Kappa by 300 yards in this 30-mile marathon.

Lambda Chi riders were Hal Dyer, Tom Nusaike, Neil Marvin, and Phil Weiss.

Behind Sigma Kappa were the West Hall Reels, Phi Kappa Tau, and Theta Chi.

Twenty finalist teams of relay riders were assigned, and all but Sigma Chi finished their

"I Think I Begin To Get The Idea"

Laundry Fee Required Of Coeds Should Be Abandoned By School

Twice a year, when registration rolls around, Florida State University coeds pay, along with activity and room fees a sum of $9 each to the University Laundry.

In return for this fee, each coed is allowed to send each semester a limited amount of clothing (usually linen, in practice) to the university-operated plant to be washed and ironed.

This plan is convenient to the women students who live in dorms where the laundry has pick-up and delivery stations, but it still doesn't solve their laundry problem. Although quality of the work done by the laundry service on sheets and towels is excellent, few students have their better clothes cleaned there.

INSTEAD, if a student wishes to send all her clothes to the University Laundry she must send either clothes "special" and pay extra just as dry cleaning costs an additional amount.

The Laundry maintains a high quality of workmanship in these categories also, if you don't mind a few missing buttons.

Neither does the Laundry solve the cleaning problem of men students. Although they are not required to pay the required fee it is difficult in some cases for them to be served by the Laundry.

Beyond that, however, is the question of fraadom of choice. Admittadly, the price for most work is far below that charged by Tallahassee plants—and the service is convenient to some students. But the reason for the required $9 escapes us.

AS WE HAVE pointed out, woman students who pay the fee do not usually choose to send all their clothes to the university Laundry. In some cases they actually do not get $9 worth of cleaning done there in the semester.

There seems to use to be little excuse for attampting to force students to send their cleaning to ona Laundry—whether university-sponsored or not. It is fine that the service is there for those who want to take advantage of it, but it seams that some changes are in order.

'Little 500' Sponsors Can Now Remove Their Free Car Bumper Advertising

The sponsors of the "Little 500" are to be congratulated for the success of their project.

Whether or not it was financially fruitful, we're sure most of the persons in it, as well as the spectators, had a good time. (Evan with the cold weather.)

There is one detail, however, that the sponsors should clear up. Having taken advantage of numerous car bumpers as advertising spaces, without first obtaining the car owners' approval will they now do us the service of removing the bumper tags?

Investigations Uncover Problems Often Ignored By University

Investigations, the joy of newspaper headline writers, have not only been capturing national attention lately — there have been quite a few on campus in the last month.

Due to the inquisitorial antics of such lads as Joe McCarthy, investigations are sometimes thought of as side-shows in the legislative process, designed solely for the entertainment and amusement of the participants and spectators but without any real importance. The recklassnass, the injuries inflicted by some investigations are, some feel, sufficient excuse to get rid of all of them.

Do investigations, than, have a place on campus?

The anawar, we feel, is "YES"—with reservations. For one reservation, thara is the Jeppmannian concept that the students, being the campus prime concern are "outsiders" in the decision making process and should therefore stay out of it. There is some merit to this argument, but it does not hold true when the need for a decision becomas of great importance to the students, but is seemingly ignored by those in power. Such was the case, we felt, when the Flambeau began its article of the food service.

IN THE CASE of the Sanate's probe of the infirmary, there did seem to be justification in the form of numerous complaints. Investigations, then, seems to serva a purpose on campus if they bring to the attention of the "decision makers" the students' awareness of problams.

Those in power (the administration, for present purposes) may become calloused to frequent "investigations" — aspecially if they are afflicted with such ills as bias, lack of responsibility or concarn with mattars of a trivial nature. They should not, however, completely ignore them.

The students who do the investigations may not do a completely thorough job, and they may not maka any recommandations for a solution, but sama of the investigations shed light on problems which deserve administrative attention.

ADMINISTRATION is a process demanding of constant checking and rechecking. If the university seems slow in doing this, then the students must do what they can to check the problems.

The functions of the administration, after all, ar all directed toward providing for the welfare of the students. The students, then, are the ones who are in most instances most aware of the success of the administra'on's affors. They can often see wrongs unnoticed by others—and this is why we say "YES" to investigations.

Kasper & Co.'s Rights Violated, 'Left Wing' Group Charges

Action of the American Civil Liberties Union in criticism of a federal court's interference in protest against civil rights action in Clinton should remova all doubt as to the Union's sincerity.

The ACLU has sometimes been criticized by supporters of segregation as being "left wing"—a description that is supposed to bring shudders of horror to all citizens.

In this case the ACLU thought constitutional rights were violated when a federal court tried a contempt of court John Kasper and 16 others for their parts in attempting to maintain Clinton's way of life.

The citation, said the ACLU, was so broad in scope that it violated rights of free speech and association.

Let's see if Kasper, et. al. now criticize the ACLU.

'Bigger They Come' Acting Is Good

By DAVID WARD-STEINMAN

Ernest G Borrmann's play, The Bigger They Come, was premiered by the Speech Department last weekend, but out to be a not very thinkly disguised varsion of the life and times of Huey Long, Louisiana's infamous governor.

Dr Borrmann, an associate professor of speech here, has structed his play with no little theatrical skill. At its best, it meaningful study of political megalomania, which seems to point a warning finger at our McCarthyism. As it is worst, it becomes weak chronicle play, in which nothing new or unpredictable is added. But drama as Eric Bentley has pointed out, is a narrative art; if you have told your story, you have put over your play, and this is what Borrmann has done.

DON WESTBROOK, in the leading role of "Harry" the governor, turned in a steering performance that was, by far, the best acting in the production. He made Harry real and believable, and was poignant. Every gestiure, expression, and line was in character, and as such, was extremely convincing.

The complex personality of Dick, Harry's friend and executive protégé somewhat unconvincingly by Stanly DeHart, had probably the most difficult acting job in the play. DeHart had good sense, but Dick seemed an awfully shallow person going through the involved emotional torment that he evidently was intended for.

TOM, THE "advertising man," was played unsteinly by Fletcher. He seemed continually perplexed by the comings and weeping, and although this was quite logical in the first scene, it became suspect as the play progressed and Tom grew. became an intimate. Fletcher, as Fletcher, seem uncomfortable in the role, rather than Tom.

Regis Tony and Ron McCall provided good support. Pastrona and Willis. The more important part of Tinner played quite convincingly, we thought, by Miss Kress. Betty well was properly distraught as the emotional, chauvinistic rotary, but not always believable.

A FINE RATE job of character-acting was done by Alan Kass as the bodyguard, Moose. Kass, instead of making a stereotype out of his character, provided deft, subtle comic relief, making Moose an individual—and as such more believable and funny than if he had been a "type."

Steve Kivid, as Simpson, the business man, was perhaps the best supporting actor in the play. He had only two scenes, but they were perfect examples of timing, and acting in the AL MURPHY DID a creditable job as Pons Harrison Hannorn-fed sidekick. Hank McCann and Jack Rockett as reporters were unconvincing and stilted, rather failed to evoke character.

In retrospect, the ensemble-acting was unusually good in play, thank, no doubt, to the efforts of Director Paul W. Da The cast as a whole provided solid support for Don Westbrook who dominated the proceedings for the entire evening. Scenic and lighting were affectively handled by Charles Reimer, designer, and Jerry by Pat Cliff.

THE PLAY'S BEST scenes are in the middle. The opening scene and the Third Act were rather haltingly contrived but ending is the only part of clever and unexpected thing in the play. To Borrmann's credit is his way of realistically keeping characters in proper perspective.

We would like to see him apply his technical skill and imagination to a plot of his invention, or at least one that would be a definite personality, tone, or action from history a limited, local way.

The Dissenter

Honor System Change Definitely Worthy

By MARTIN DICKMAN

The Honor System amendment seems to be put before the Student Body is one of the most constructive measures ever passed by that body.

It is designed to give the Honor Court greater discretion in the fixing of penalties for lying, cheating, or stealing.

Under the present Student Constitution, as it now stands, it makes probation the minimum penalty upon a conviction. But this is a deceptive minimum. Even a probationee cannot participate in any university function, hold any office, scholarship, or join in any athletic activity.

The ends of justice are two: to discourage disobedience, and to reform the convicted offender. Often the latter objective is forgotten

THIS IS RATHER unfair, as Chief Justice Bill Manning has observed to deny a person convicted of a petty offense a freshman and extra-curricular privileges for his remainina three years

Serious offenses for which students are convicted are technically petty. A mala student who, in rudely wisecracking to a professor, tells him to go to hell is guilty of disorderly conduct. lying. True, he had lied But the Honor Court had no discretion, even while assigning probation, to give the malefactor a lesser penalty.

THERE ARE SOME students who commit offenses that deserve much harsher punishment than probation when exams were stolen and sold for profit, when people conspired to cheat repeatedly in examinations. Such crimes betray a contempt for everything the University stands for and academic standards that the university is their just reward. But not all Honor Court cases are as bad as these. Many are not.

Many offenses, even of cheating, may be sincerely regretted by the convicted student. But officially, he is under an inflexible penalty.

The amendment passed last week by the Senate (the rest of a series of amendments to the Student Constitution) will allow the Court to set flexible penalties, or to revise a previous one. It will grant the student the right to appeal to court and allowing him to reassume an active and honorable role in university.

CONVERSELY, IT would also grant the Honor Court a more responsible position. At present, the Constitution's stiff penalties have been established and amended from time to time by the student body, but by faculty review committees. Without debating the merits of the actions, it is clear that the Honor Court should not be a agency to modify in any substantial way constitutional authority to do so.

There are, of course, some who insist that there ought to be some review over the student courts, as protection against a misjudgment of justice. But the record has proved that the Honor Court has demonstrated this year an admirable pattern of fairness and logic, the faculty review provision is continued by the amendments.

The amendment is subject now to review by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs. The committee, with its judicial functions and administrative representatives took part in the drafting of the amendment. We see no reasonably expected reason for disapproval by the Student Affairs committee. Then it will be placed before the Student Body.

Closed TV Idea Can Be Extended

By OSCAR JOHNSON

The idea of solving the college teacher and classroom shortage by using closed circuit television is an overwhelming one.

As we understand it, the proponents of this proposal would have one instructor teaching each course by means of television, rather than having many instructors serving to do the same job. In addition, newfangled kinds of visual aids are more adaptable to TV than to face-to-face demonstration.

CLASSROOM space could be saved by installing TV sets in each dormitory room—the students would then be able to "attend class" without using a classroom.

Now, all of these things are nice—but their promotors are guilty of overlooking more far-reaching chances which seem to be possible. They are not thinking on a grand scale.

We would like hera to point out some of the more vital advancements that can accrue through the use of closed-circuit television.

FIRST, it need not be limited to education. It has been recognized by commercial stations which allow people to be married, buy a sports ravents and chat with famous personalities without leaving their homes. Ultimately, then, it is possible that one never leave the place where he is born. He could realize all human experience over TV. Even psychologically-tested and authorized "Mother" could raise all the children, so children would play childhood games through taped broadcasts so to TV kindergarten, grade school and high school students via the air waves.

Afterwards, all business transactions could be conducted over TV. Politics would be revolutionized since those running for office could reach voter over his own personal TV set instead of being

BY THE TIME this is thought about, men will no doubt have developed methods will through hydroponics produce all food necessary for human race. All physical needs will be automatically provided for.

All that humans will need to do will be to lounge at home watching television all their lives, their senses constantly stimulated by taped experiences —music drama, sports, travel, movies with people, everything.

EVENTUALLY the procedure would be so fully developed that the broadcasting of experiences would be handled by automatic equipment. Then the era of leisure will truly have arrived.

Nobody will do anything but watch TV and keep his eyes open. Second-hand existence will have become the norm.

Minor advantages to this will be a vastly simplified kind of life (it won't be necessary to learn how to read, for example), savings in money (no more books, libraries, theatres sports facilities, traveling facilities, and elimination of psychological failures of those who cannot face the hardships of today's life.

EVERYBODY will, no doubt, then be emotionally stable under-normal and socially acceptable.

This paradise may never come about, but one has only to observe for himself the gradual substitution of mass for individual experience. Education be TV will be another step along the way.

'57 Editor Advises Staff Posts Open

Several parting positions are open on the 1957-'58 Florida Flambeau staff, according to Charlet Poltevint, newly elected editor.

Students wanting these and other positions on the staff should start training for them now," she said.

Among paying positions which may be open include those of photo editor $5 per issue, society editor, $3 per issue, associate editor, $5 per issue and assistant news editor, $2.50 per issue.

The positions of sports Editor, $5 per issue and assistant sports editor, $2.50 per issue, will also be open.

"Columnists, reporters and proofreaders are positions unfrained students could easily learn," she asserted.

"Interested students should inquire at the Flambeau office this week, so they can begin working at once," she said.

Library Receives Hebrew Scroll

A Torah, or Hebrew Pentateuch, at least 250 years old and partially destroyed by the Nazis, has been presented to Florida State University to become part of the rare books display in the Library.

The 62-foot-long parchment scroll, 26 inches high, was presented to the university last week in behalf of the Southeastern Federation of Temple Sisterhoods by Rabbi Louis A. Josephson of Tallahassee.

The Torah, its hebrew letters in large lump India ink, was obtained along with the story about everything by Dr. Abraham J. Brasser of New York City and was presented to President Doak S. Campbell and Norman L. Kilpatrick, director of libraries.

Saved from the Nazis the last part of the Torah had been so mutilated another Torah was added to the original to complete it.

Renn Pleases As Garnets Tip Gold Gridders

By FRANK RAMOS
Flambeau Sports Writer

The Garnet topped the Gold 13-7, last Friday night at Campbell Stadium, but the most significant part of the game was not the Garnet's victory, but the satisfactory solving of the Seminole's quarterback problem.

"Bobby Renn, I believe has made the switch from halfback to quarterback satisfactorily," said head football coach Tom Nugent. "Our job now is to find a good second string quarterback."

Gene McCormick showed Friday night that he is ready and willing to help Nugent solve that problem of finding a second string signal caller.

The 5-8 sophomore from Miami surprised Seminole followers with his fine passing for the Garnet while subbing for Renn.

ONE TO PASS

McCormick completed four out of four passes good for 46 yards and one touchdown, a 25-yard toss to end Ronnie Schomburger. McCormick is out for football right out of the student body with no scholarship. "A very unusual situation at a big university," said Nugent.

The defensive play of the two often pressed teams, but the Seminole senior found the offense to be disappointing.

Nugent noted the improved defensive work of Jackie George Bower, end guards Jerry Graham and Joe McGee.

The improved blocking by Pete Fleming and Fred Rowe, ends; Royce Bryan and Jerry Lee, tackles; Al Ulmer and Abner Haynie guards, and Paul Slaton center, was also noted by the Florida head coach.

Nugent commented that end Ronnie Schomburger and tackle Bill Musselman have showed better all-around ability than any of the others have exhibited so far. "They have both improved offensively and defensively," he said.

Other backs receiving worthy praise from their head coach were Fred Pickard and Lee Meaking. "Both of them (Pickard and Meaking) will see lots of action next fall," stated Nugent.

The play of fullback Eddie Johnson and halback Billy Weaver also impressed Nugent. Johnson was the game's leading ground gainer piling up 31 yards in 11 tries for the Gold unit. Weaver gained the Gold's only touchdown on a four-yard run.

It was noted by Nugent that Johnson was playing with a bad leg.

DEFENSIVE WORK

The amiable head coach also noted the fine defensive work done by Bobby Renn. Nugent pointed out that Renn is often underestimated on defense because of his offensive prowess.

The FSU head coach stated that there were many other standouts in the intra-squad clash, too numerous to name.

It is the belief of Nugent that the problems that have to be problems

'Best Year'—Long

1956 High Scorer Terwilliger Primed For Top Track Year

By BESS WELLER
Flambeau Sports Writer

Jack Terwilliger, high point man in the 1956 track season, is primed for a good year as the 37 season gets under way.

"It looks as though this might be Jacks best year so far," says head track coach Mike Long.

The 23-year old junior from Dade City—attended Pasco High School during his freshman and sophomore years but as a junior transferred to St. Leo because they were known for their excellent track team.

Lettering three years, he was voted the most valuable track man at St. Leo in both his junior and senior years.

BREAKS RECORD

Jack broke the 220 yd dash record in the regional track meet his junior year, and in his senior season ran four events in record breaking the 100, 440 and his own 220 records.

He also tied the state record for the 220 yd dash in his senior year.

A physical education major, Terwilliger came to FSU on both a teaching and a track scholarship.

Providing Uncle Sam doesn't have other plans, Jack hopes to work on his masters after graduation.

Injured next fall are the building of a better offense, the finding of a second string quarterback, and the finding of more depth at the halfbacks.

Nugent hopes that Gerald Philp, a converted end, can do the trick and bolster the halfback situation.

The Seminoles are about set to end with Schomburger, Romeo, Babeo and Fleming, and the next season will find Bob Neilsima and Nugent stated that there is a chance that with such depth at the ends that someone might be switched to another position to help solve some of the present

Tankers Come From Behind To Take State AAU Crown

Florida State's swimming team overtook the University of Florida in the final event of the state AAU championships to win the annual event, 46-78.

Other teams scoring in the meet were Metro Miami, 29 points, Miami Beach Recreation, 21, Florida Freshmen, 20, Florida State Freshmen, 14, University of Miami, 12, South Broward, 4, Fort Lauderdale, 2, Greater Fort Lauderdale, 2, Miami Shores, 2, Palm Beach, 1, and Allapattah YMCA, 1.

The Seminoles took an early lead after the freestyle events, but went behind Florida midway through the meet and was in second place until the last event when a first and third place in the 400 yard freestyle relay put the Tribe on top.

The expected dual between Florida's Phil Drake and Miami's Olympic star Jack Nelson in the butterfly events came off with Drake winning the 100 yard butterfly with Nelson second, and Nelson winning the 220 yard butterfly with Drake second.

Marty Redlich of Metro Miami, with wins in the 220 and 440 yard freestyle events, was one of two double winners. The other was Bill Ruzzie of Florida who won the 100 and 220 yard backstroke.

Jim Jullian was the high point man for Florida State as he won the 100 yard freestyle and was a member of the 400 yard freestyle relay team that won the final event.

Rain Cancels Vol Opener Yesterday

By LARRY BLOCK
Assistant Sports Editor

Florida State's baseball team will give it another try today as it faces the Auburn Tigers this afternoon at Seminole field starting at 3:30 p.m.

Rain washed out yesterday's offical opener with Tennessee.

Fred Kenney, a shiftlander from West Palm Beach, who was supposed to face the Vols is still coach Denny Litchlter's choice for the opening assignment.

Kenney sas limited action last year appearing in four games while posting one victory against no losses.

His earned run average last year was just slightly over three runs as he walked and struck out nine.

BRISTOL OR BOXER

Either southpaw John Bristol or righthander Jerry Boxer will hurl in the second game on Wednesday.

Litchlier will send practically an all-veteran team against the Tigers headed by shortstop Dick Howser, the little man with the big bat.

The 5-8, 160 pound junior led the Seminoles in batting last season with a .422 average an all-time FSU mark.

He also led the team in hits with 38, eight for extra bases, with 12 runs batted in.

Handling the catching chores will be Jack Sheppard, who although only appeared in five games last year mastered .233 and is the team's number one receiver.

WAITS AT FIRST

At the initial sack will be Bob Waitz, at second is team captain Gene Hendrix with a .294 average and led the Tribe in runs scored while at third will be Pfil Hunt who tied with Leo Corso for most runs batted in with 30.

The outfield will be Fred Twomey, .342 in left, Gwen McCarron patrolling center field, .320, and possible clean-up hitter Lee Coron in right.

Thinclads Rip Miss. Southern

Florida State's track team opened a home season Saturday with a convincing 101-33 victory over Mississippi Southern.

Coach Mike Long's thinclads broke six meet records and set one school record as the team tallied 15 out of sixteen first places and tied the existing school record total, points scored in one meet, set two years ago against Stetson.

Leading the team, Jack Terwilliger broke the tape four times as he established a record in the meets high point max.

Terwilliger set a meet record in the 100-yard dash with a time of 9.7, the best effort of his career and only one-tenth of a second from a new school record.

COMPLETE WINS TWO

Mike Conley, the Seminoles' distance ace won the mile run and set a new school record in the two-mile race as he broke a two-year old mark held by Al Vernon Duce with a 10:15 time.

Second high point honors went to Bill Ruzzie of Florida as he collected 12 points in winning the broad jump with his 23-4" effort, for second in the 100 and 220 in addition to being a member of the winning relay team.

Coach Long stated, "The boys ran very good at this early stage of the season, and if they keep up the good work we will be hard to stop."

The trackmen have one dual meet remaining in the season and that is against the University of Miami on April 6. The next meet the Seminoles will enter is the Florida Relays held at Gainesville on March 30.

Gymnasts Win 5th

The Florida State Gymkana overcame a slight deficit at the end of the first three events to topple the Pensacola Naval Air Station 76-53 Friday evening at Pensacola.

Chick Chiou turned in five place performances in the floor exercise and on the horizontal bar to lead the gymkana with 27 points for the meet.

Captain Bob Murray and Joe Taylor earned 11 points apiece for second in the individual scoring for the Seminoles.

Taylor, a graduate student at FSU, won the side horse event, and the best Pensacola a Hoerner in the firing rinse. Hoerner holds the 1956 NCAA and NAAU firing rinse championship.

Each scorer for the sailors with 16 points was Jim Austin, who won the tumbling and trampoline events and placed second to Chiou in free-exercise.

Don Holder, former Olympia team member from FSU, remarked that "Austin is certainly the best gymnast and an excellent gymnast. His performances against us have proven that to me."

Lots Of Standouts

If Florida State football coach Tom Nugent is looking for answer to his quarterback problems in one Robert Renn, first impressions from many observers of Friday's Garnet-Gold battle will tell definitely have to revise his looking plan.

Renn was far from the standout, offensively or defensively, in the non-spoed clash, but Nugent was still optimistic about the chances of being his first string quarterback.

On the basis of Friday's performance, we're not so optimistic. It appeared as if there was a virtual stalemate in the race for an outstanding signal-caller, with possibly Gene McCormick of Miami looking best.

McCormick, who started the game without the blessing of a football scholarship (which $99.9 of the rest of the squad has), has moved up to at least number 2 according to Nugent.

However, a sophomore is still a sophomore and it takes a really good second-year man to direct a winning team. McCormick certainly has the goods, but experience is a mighty big factor.

RODRIQUE TAKING OVER?

The eyes may now point to one Ted Rodrique, a senior passing star from Lynn, Mass., who is probably the most impressive quarterback ever to step into football shoes.

However, Rodrique has shown signs of greatness on more than one occasion in the past, and at the end of last year, ranked Nugent's book as the number two quarterback.

For all his shining memories, though, "the man with the golden arm" has had some mighty bad ones, mainly when he sore at defense.

After Friday's contest Nugent vowed to give Rodrique nothing but defensive work from the start of fall practice until game time September 21 against Furman, in an effort to sharpen Ted Rodrique effort.

As for Renn, his passing still leaves something to be desired in most observers as well as Nugent. However, the running ability he flashed last fall still makes him a strong candidate.

RENN WILL STAY

Our guess is that Renn will stay at quarterback at least until Nugent gets a long fall look at the efforts of McCormick, Rodrique and senior Jerry Henderson, who also impressed Friday.

Stan Dobosz and Fred Pickard gave quite adequate accounts of themselves at the halfbacks Friday and Renn may not be called there as badly as at quarterback.

Lee Meaking, one of a strong contingent of sophomores made the same quite encouraging to view for Nugent and his assistants.

McCormick, halfback Fred Pickard and fullback Lou Manzini and Terrel Tessier were a few of the outstanding sophs, and Fred Jim Roberts may move up a notch on the strength of some very defensive play which saw him make eight tackles in the second half.

The spring games are the proving ground. The fall games are the test.

SHORT SHORTS.

Both the swimming and golf teams made up for previous defeats by Florida's Gators by whipping their respective Florida opponents titles Saturday . . . Most improved golfer on Don Veldhuis squad must surely be Bunk Berry of Tallahassee, who was the man for two meets in a row before his spectacular Florida individual title Saturday. . . The swimmers, incidentally, will defend their medley and freestyle relay records in Chapel Hill, N. C. this month for the annual NCAA championships.

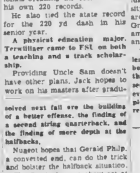
Jacksonville University will replace Florida State in the Florida Intercollegiate Basketball Conference next year. . . There was no indication that JU would be added to the conference, but the event that FSU would be dropped was the decision was made at the annual FIBC meeting two weeks ago, on mutual agreement of FSU coaches concerned.

GOLFERS WIN TOURNEY

Led by Bunk Berry, Florida State's number one team captain, they scored straight Florida Intercollegiate Golf tournament victories Saturday.

With four par breaking rounds of 70-67-71-70 Berry set an all-time record at the 6,420 yard par 72 Oasis municipal course, scoring a 14 under par 288 for the route match.

Bouncing back from a poor showing against Florida a week ago, Jack Veghte paced FSU's Seminole team with a second place entry par 277 and took second in individual play.



Jim Shave gave the Seminoles a clean sweep of the top three individual positions with a three lahasee.

Coach Don Veiel's team of Berry, Shave, Captain Ed Jenkins, and Harry Shoemaker won the tourney with a total 1,120 29 strokes better than the 1,149 scored by Florida.

Behind Florida were: Rollins, 1,171; FSU No. 2 1,175; Miami 1,176; Florida No. 2 1,245; and Rollins No. 2 1,251.

The Seminole linksters played Georgia Tech yesterday and will meet Alabama and Georgia Tomorrow and Thursday in Tallahassee.

Pressure Felt, However

'Florida Profs Not Restricted'-Roady

By ELINOR THOMPSON

Are Florida professors being completely restricted from politics?

Dr. Elston Roady, of the political science faculty, says "no" to this question.

"I do not feel on either extreme that were either completely restricted or are completely at liberty," he said. "I have never had anyone indicate to me in any way that I can't say anything I want to."

Dr. Roady admitted that there may be some feeling of pressure from FSU professors. "However," he declared, "it is an intuitive thing rather than a legal or administrative decision.

TAX PAYERS

"When you are a teacher the editors of newspapers exand are supported by tax payers, you cannot expect to have absolute freedom," he emphasized.

Dr. Roady added. Our freedoms are not absolute. They are restricted as to their impact on other people and we must realize it."

Florida professors, he noted, have the right to vote, the right to express political opinion, and the right to join the political club.

MAY WRITE LETTERS

They may also write letters to pressing personal opinions on partisan issues. And they may make campaign contributions to their party or to a particular candidate.

The professor and there is much uncertainty whether professors at the state universities can exercise some other rights enjoyed by the average citizen. These are the wearing of campaign buttons, the use of campaign stickers on cars, and running for non-paid, non-partisan offices, such as public school boards.

Campaign buttons may be worn off the job, but not while on duty conducting public business.

PARTISAN POLITICS

"We can not stand for public office unless we submit our resignation from the university," Dr. Roady continued. "The main justification is that it protects us from political reprisal."

A faculty member cannot, he emphasized, campaign actively for a party candidate or take an active role in political party campaigns.

The Florida Board of Control, Dr. Roady said, maintains there is no restriction upon a faculty or staff member's right to vote and "discreetly express a preference for candidates of his or her choice

ASSISTANTS ALSO

These rules extend to student assistants on the state payroll. They do not, however, affect the political activities of husband, wife, son or daughter of the citizen-professor.

"I can't tell my wife what to do," Dr. Roady laughed. "We do talk over things, but we don't dictate to each other."

Mrs. Roady is actively associated with the Democratic Women's Club of Leon County. She also plays an active role in the League of Women Voters.

Dr. Roady said "The citizen and the citizen-professor share a number of political rights." The citizen has a greater freedom to exercise these "political rights" than does the citizen-professor."

WOMAN'S COLLEGE

The most impressive thing about the film. according to Harvard and Princeton professors, is that the entire production originated at Randolph-Macon Woman's College. Lynchburg Va.

It all began on March 13. 1909. when the Alcestis of Euripides was presented at Randolph-Macon by Dr. Mabel Whiteside's students in Greek Subsequent stage productions of a Greek play have been given each spring since then at the College The idea of a film version to reach larger audiences came in 1954 because of Dr Whiteside's announced retirement. after 50 years of teaching Greek on the campus. She plays a major role in the trilogy. as the priest of Oresteia.

TALL GIRLS NEEDED

Major production problems have concerned costuming and hair dressing and the need for exceptionally tall girls—ancient Greek plays used all-male casts, and of course the woman's college has used all-feminine casts in presenting undergraduates. graduates and faculty members in its production. National Symphony Orchestra and Capitol Film Laboratories. Inc. cooperated in making the film.

The trilogy has been called "the epic story of the struggle of man to do away with personal revenge and substitute trial by jury." Agamemnon. his son, Orestes. and the Goddess Athena figure prominently in the plot—Orestes is presented as the murderer of his mother in avenging the death of his father. pursued by the Furies whose function is to punish murder, especially of blood relatives.

Moll Expects Even Budget; Larger In '57

The student budget will break about even this year said Evelyn Moll Secretary of Finance. yesterday

She continued by saying that next year's budget, which is being worked on now, will "probably be larger. "These are all due now Only the Flambeau and Smoke Signals are delinquent."

These budgets first go to the Student Budget Committee, which is a sub-committee under the Secretary of Finance headed by Vernon Edgar. Next they go to a student-faculty committee. after which they are finally approved by the Student Senate. which should release them about Easter.

The Budget Committee gets $3 10 per student from the activity fee They spread the money around to various representative organizations on campus with the largest part of the money going to the publications.

"As the student enrollment increases next year so will the student budget" Miss Moll explained "And if it increases new organizations will probably be added to the list which receives financial aid from the budget.

NSA Operation Told To Senate

By JIM McINTYRE

Student Senate heard the vice-president of the National Student Association describe the organization Wednesday.

The vice-president, Jim Pomeroy of Allegheny College. has been travelling in Florida and appeared before Senate at the request of Student Body President Dave Bachman.

Pomeroy outlined the structure of the organization and referred to what he said were advantages of membership.

Student Senate has on several occasions considered. but rejected, affiliation Observers think the Senate may be asked soon to vote again.

POLITICAL ROLE

Pomeroy said officers of NSA have been called to testify before Congressional committees on issues affecting students, such as tax exemption He said NSA participates in international affairs both as a member of the American commission of UNESCO and as a research agent "for clearing up misconceptions in the minds of foreign students"

The vice-president said NSA did impartial research into the Autherine Lucy integration disturbances at the University of Alabama. and, with the university's approval, relayed it to interested student groups abroad.

BOARDMAN CASE

He revealed that approximately 50 NSA schools had written the association concerning the expulsion in January of integrationist John Boardman from Florida State University The schools had. Pomeroy explained. received unsigned letters, ostensibly from FSU students. asking that they write letters of protest to the FSU administration.

Pomeroy said the NSA advised its members to get "the facts" first from FSU Student Body President Dave Bachman before getting involved in the controversy.

ASKS FSU JOIN

Pomeroy said his visit was primarily an effort to acquaint the Student Senate with the operations of NSA so that Florida State might join and "receive the benefits of membership"

Pomeroy said the NSA also does research into campus problems and conducts a travel service for member schools

Major foundations such as the Ford and Rockefeller foundations subsidize some of the projects, he said.

$125 A YEAR

The membership fee for a school under 7,000 and over 8,000 enrollment, he said is $125 per year. FSU has approximately 6.500 students.

In other action, the Senate tabled a resolution for two weeks that would provide a dinner hour between 6 and 7 p m on each week night. According to the resolution, it would request no classes tests, activities, or rehearsals be scheduled during that hour.

LOUDSPEAKER BILL

A bill to prohibit the use of loudspeaker-equipped automobiles on campus except during specified times was approved by the Senate after several amendments had gone by the board An amendment to the bill that was approved provided for their complete prohibition during final exam weeks.

Senate gave final approval to recent Honor Court appointments by Student Body President Dave Bachman Appointed to fill the vacancies left by Justices Barbara Burkhardt and Carol Roth were Mary Louise Pescock and Sarah Jane Griffin. Burkhardt will replace Polly Swain as court clerk for the remainder of the year. Both Miss Roth and Miss Swain are interning this semester.

Writer Describes Life At Lot

Circus 'Most Colorful FSU Event'

By NANCY GENE BROWN

The Circus is coming!

A carnival world of clowns, trapezes, cotton candy. and sparkling costumes will invade Campbell Stadium when "Flying High" is presented in May.

This aggregation of students. who play a dual role as circus performers. will stage FSU's most colorful event of the year. Daily for weeks before Circus Weekend in May, the circus practice lot will be a beehive of activity as coeds become graceful adagio and aerial performers. and Joe Collage is transformed into a clown or flyer executing intricate feats on the high trapeze

PREPARE ALREADY

Activity at the circus lot is now at its dizziest as around 250 performers go through their routines in preparation for road trips around Florida and Georgia. which lead up to the big home show. Seeking an opportunity to learn what circus is all about, I wandered down to the lot and watched the kids work out. I learned a lot about our "educated circus"

Amiable Circus Coach Jack Haskin spoke to me as I wandered into the circus domain "Glad to have you," he said. and urged me not to ask him questions—not impolitely at all, but with the idea that I'd "get a better story if I interviewed the kids themselves."

He introduced me to veteran circus performer Faye Moses. a graduate student. who not only eprforms but also coaches novices on the flying traps Faye spent the afternoon conducting me around the lot. explaining. introducing. interpreting and describing My orientataion into the carnival world had begun.

GRAD UP IN AIR

I found another grad student. Charlie Matthews, cavorting around on a unicycle on the tightrope. He invited me to climb up on the platform for an interview.

On the tight-wire. Charlie's original act used only a few simple tricks. then "graduated" to more complicated bicycle and unicycle stunts, with Faye riding on his shoulders

COMING AT YOU—FAYE MOSES SWINGS
Practices Breakaway Stunt, Other Photos, P 4

Charlie's circus career began 4 years ago with the "Golden Pair". an adagio on stage Later he was a part of a team that perfected the Quartette Adagio. Versatile Charlie can often be seen high above the net in an aerial displayed called the "Breakaway." with Faye as his partner Another amazing act on the double trap incorporates balancing feats and the iron jaw — they have even perfected a triple iron jaw

"Iron jaw is the easiest trick we do", said Charlie "We use it to start our act."

WHIP-CRACKS

All at once I thought the Fourth of July had arrived. But the loud cracks I was hearing were not firecrackers. but whip-crackers Les Childs and Fred Burkhart at work at the west end of the lot.

Walking over for a closer observation. I was startled when a 16-foot whip suddenly wrapped itself around my waist It was only part of the act they assured me—no cause for alarm

Fred and Les use whips of 6 8, 12, and 16-foot lengths to demonstrate their prowess at using two whips at a time. cutting. paper. catching straws, and knocking objects off platforms. To insure extra loudness, they use nylon parachute cord for "poppers"—"it's stronger than leather" said Les

SKATERS BLURRED

On an eight-foot circulator platform, two objects whirled around at a dizzying speed seeming to be just a blur of red and blue When the objects slowed down they turned out to be Pete and Arlene Wooten. half of the circus skating team The other two are Jim Heyward and Pat Weeks The four have been performing together for two years. defying gravity with tricky routines using a neck revolve. one foot revolve, various combinations of doubles. and a bar trick

Everything I was seeing around the circus lot was great, but I was particularly fascinated by several teams of adagio performers They had difficulty in defining exactly what they were doing, but finally agreed that adagio is a series of adagio tricks and poses, with grace form. and balance the most important factors

STYLE IMPORTANT

"How you do it is as important as what you do" said Deanne Head. who works with Bob Eglund Several other teams alternate when Circus goes on trips—they include Sue Herndon. Gordon Davis. Linda Hinshaw. Jim Gillard. freshmen 'Sunshine' Eddy, Sam Beamer. Gay Jackson and Alec Woodhull Their act gets its name 'Golden Pair,' from the fact that they wear gold sequin costumes and perform under amber lights

I watched Linda's sister Gail Henshaw, who is a senior, being tossed around by the three male members of the quartette adagio team As they went along, Deanne explained things to me. I had no desire to trade places with Gail when they began using her for a jump rope, or tossing her to a waiting partner who caught her in midair The grand finale found Gail spinning as her agile partner flipped her high over their heads That is called pitch 'pirouette' and it no doubt requires great coordination

BIKE FOR FIVE

Long ago I heard a song about a "Bicycle Built for Two." I was intrigued by the circus creation of a "Bicycle Built for Five" Somewhere under a tower of five graceful ladies was Jim Heywood patiently pedalling his way around the platform as his partners cavorted around atop his shoulders, the handlebars, and the back wheel The girls are Betty Lou Whittle Joyce Hooks Nancy King, Chris Parmalee and Ann Wear. Their act originated with only one boy and two girls, and grew to a crowd of five on one bike Their first performance was before the Sealtest talent scouts, who quickly signed up the circus troupe for what they consider the highlight in the circus' career

That was their performance

Tax Without 'Axe' Students' Lot In Supporting Big Time Football

Big-time football has been the recipient of diverse criticism, but the attack to which it is most susceptible is that it costs too much.

This is amply borne out at Florida State University. Here, each student pays something over $24 a year for intercollegiate athletics according to our estimations.

Whether a student receives his $24 worth during the year is a matter of individual opinion. Some do, doubtless. We believe the majority do not.

At the present time the allocation of next year's student activity fee money is being considered. We hope the budgeteers will consider these things:

(1) The students have practically no voice in determining the amount of money they are forced to pay to be admitted to this state university.

(2) Although a mandatory $150 has been imposed students have practically nothing to do with its allocation.

(3) There is no evidence to indicate that the students would distribute the money the way it is presently allocated had they a choice in the matter.

(4) In particular doubt is whether students wish $123,000 of the $150 Activities section of the budget to go to intercollegiate athletics—or whether they favor the addition $8 each "tax" for that purpose.

IN THE OLD DAYS this type of thing was called taxation without representation. Those who must pay the money are not allowed to wield the economic axe in cutting down the size of their burden.

If the university feels that its taxation is desired by the students it knows it not let them have a say in its spending?

The university can point to the $13.10 of the $150 it lets the students allocate (with the approval but why does it maintain complete control over the rest? Evidently it has reason to fear that the students would not spend it in the same manner.

The matter causes us to wonder as to just who FSU's "big time" football fiet's not kid ourselves—that's where the money goes) is supposed to benefit. Do the students get as much from their $150,000 spent on intercollegiate athletics as they do from, for example, the $13,500 the Artist Series gets? We think not; that this and other things under the University Activities section of the Student Activities budget are neglected in favor of an activity designed more for townspeople than students.

IF ANYBODY DOUBTS this he has only to recall the FSU football games played when students were away from the campus (over the Thanksgiving holiday in 1954), or the games played away from the campus (we rather doubt that the forthcoming FSU-University of Florida games will be played in Tallahassee — there aren't enough people here, only students.)

We would like to point out here that we enjoy the football games we are privileged to see as much as anyone else; we also like to attend the contests of the "minor" sports here. But we feel that we "only students" are being forced to bear too much of the financial load of an activity intended more for the satisfaction of others than ourselves.

Of more importance than the question of how much the students must pay for football is that of how much they pay for their own education. As it stands now, $38 of the $150 a year goes for matriculation—expenses of running the university. Thus only one third of what we pay goes for such things as buildings, teachers and other things fundamental to a university.

OUR QUESTION on this point is a problem of values. Are we here to get an education or see football games?

These things are of enough importance to deserve more than passing attention. Many of the students here can ill-afford the $75 they must lay down each semester. Had they the choice, we feel, they would keep their $24 and forego the pleasure of intercollegiate athletics.

We leave these things for the university to consider. Perhaps there exists at their disposal some form of higher knowledge unattainable to us "only students," which makes their decisions inescapably obvious to them and in which our only role is to pick up the check.

Seniors--Forget About Grad Gift:

Alumni Group Will Take Care Of It All

Students often think that the Alumni Association is disconcerned with them, and regards students as nothing more than convenient workers for Homecoming and Weekend.

This is an unfair opinion. The Alumni Association, we have learned, is greatly interested in the happiness of FSU's seniors, particularly in what they receive as graduation presents.

Each semester the plush furnished Alumni Office in Longmire sends out letters which inform parents that their sons and daughters would like nothing better than life memberships in the Alumni Association as graduation presents.

Imagine that! Now you don't need to tell Pop what you want, and he doesn't need to worry about it. The Alumni Association does it for you.

Daughters Give History Odd Twist

In Handing Rebel Banner To Yankees

We do not wish to impute any unkind motives to the Daughters of the Confederacy, in their recent awarding of a battle streamer to the FSU ROTC units in commemoration of a Civil War battle.

If these ladies wish to preserve that unfortunate slaughter longer in memory than it deserves, that is their privilege.

But it seems rather odd to honor FSU's Air Force and Army ROTC units with a battle streamer commemorating the event, just because cadets from FSU's predecessor fought there. After all, the Army ROTC is part of the federal government—which took a licking at Natural Bridge—and not part of the Confederacy, to which something has happened. There, too, there was no air force on either side during the Civil War, unless you count a few carrier pigeons.

If the Daughters of the Confederacy wish to remember the Civil War, fine, but our ROTC units shouldn't be involved. After all, the flag over Westcott has changed.

Calling The Card

Writer Offers Political Target

By JIM McINTYRE

If one is to judge from the gleeful looks on the various countenances of those running for Student Government offices, the impression must be nearly gained that these people derive a certain type of pleasure from campaigning alone. Many have lost sight of the particular office they seek as they are caught up in a whirl of smiling hand-shaking and back-slapping.

They build up a type of friendly resentment toward their opponents and get joy thoroughly out of defending their own honor and reputation from the vicious verbal onslaught of that person.

Campaigners busily scurry from one place to another, whispering in an ear here, jotting a note there, and smiling at someone down yonder.

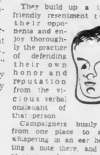
THERE SEEMS to be one group of executive officers that are left out of all the fun, however, and it is this group that I wish to protect.

They are those who are running unopposed as the sacrificial lamb up a poster. The girl with no adversary turns her head as a feeling politician makes her smiling way across the campus. It's enough to make a person feel left out.

"WHERE ARE you going?" she asks the young lady with the bundle of campaign literature under her arm.

"Out to get some votes," replies the fair one.

"May I go too? I'm just dying to do some red-hot campaigning. You see, I'm running unopposed."



The campaign-type wench almost drops her propaganda. "Unopposed?" she asks.

"Yes but I'd be glad to help you if you'd like."

Sorry, honey, but you know the rules about people like you. If you don't have an opponent, you don't get to campaign."

THE SAND FLY, the maiden lurches away into the shadows aware of the shame of it all. She envisions the scene by the side of a fireplace in years to come when she is showing her old TALLY-HO to her grandchildren. She mentions the office she held, shows them her picture, and then holds her breath. The smart-aleky grandson asks how many people she had to defeat in order to win the position. The Apple Admitte on student courts is written into the Student Body Constitution. The constitution was approved by the student body and another faculty committee. Behind the provision is the principle that there ought to be review over the decision of any court; that a person's future should not hinge upon the judgment of one court alone. The right of appeal, we may note, is integral in both federal and state systems of government.

The faculty committee has accepted most decisions of the Honor Court, but has altered a few others. Some student leaders believe the exceptions were undeserved.

Why Review Honor Court?

TO THE EDITOR:

The proposed amendment to the Student Government constitution, giving the Honor Court "greater discretion in the fixing of penalties" is without doubt a worthy one. Regarding the Honor Court's authority to enforce their decisions, we have assumed that their verdict was the final word. Certainly any court itself is not above review, but the honor system, to function properly, must honor the integrity of the court. Mr. Dykman, what—or who—is the faculty review committee? mentioned in your column of March 19? Are all cases reviewed by this committee? Will any action by this committee been deemed necessary?

Very truly yours,

New 'System' Devised To Honor Students

By OSCAR JOHNSON

The honor involved in membership in a society is a questionable subject that has stirred practically as many opinions as there are honoraries.

Some feel that honoraries amount to snobbery, others that they do not reflect true achievement. Others would feel honored to be in the honoraries they like, but complain of the choice of students admitted into the groups.

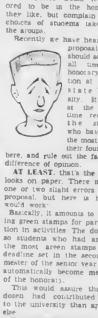
Recently we have heard of a proposal that should solve for all time the honorary situation at Florida State University. It would be the same time recognize the students who have done the most during their four years here, and rule out the factor of difference of opinion.

AT LEAST, that's the way it looks on paper. There may be one or two slight errors in the proposal, but here is how it would work.

Basically, it amounts to awarding green stamps for participation in activities. The dozen or so students who had amassed the most green stamps by a deadline set in the second semester of the senior year would automatically become members of the honorary.

This would assure that the dozen had contributed more to the campus than anybody else.

THE GREEN STAMP system would be absolutely fair and impartial. For instance each student who holds a political office would receive green stamps according to the rated importance of that office.



Beauty contests would be worth a certain number of stamps. Attending home football games would count, as would participation in athletics. Really gung-ho students could pick up a few random stamps through such means as never skipping any classes, attending Artist Series events, or cutting out swearing eating at the Seminole Club, etc.

ONE REFINEMENT might be the allocation of a number of green stamps every time a student says something dumb or gets caught cheating. Students around the university concretely aware of their stamps deducted from the books of those non-conformists who criticize the school.

The total cost for the service is $5.50, including $1.00 per registration fee. All those interested may contact Mr. Hall at Lamar, Magnolia Hall, or Kearney Hall, Reynolds Hall, before March 26.

JCs Can't Know All Rules--Who Can

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

A hundred and one young ladies have been chosen counselors for the coming year and there is no greater responsibility for which they could have been named.

To them will fall the critical task of explaining Florida University—especially its social rules — to the more than thousand freshman women who will enroll next fall.

Between now and then the counselors will receive advice on how to counsel freshmen from everybody — former junior counselors, faculty members, boy friends, parents, Dr. Crane, Mary Worth, and, last but not least, the Dean of Women's office.

Maybe I can get a few words in too.

The answer to "How can I possibly explain it all to them?" is simple.

YOU CAN'T. But don't feel bad. Who could?

Most of them come from cities larger than Sopchoppy don't see much in the many deadlines.

As we understand it, freshmen have to be in their sacleep—or faking it—by 11:30 p.m. week nights, and stay forbidden to leave their rooms during the night. The student body's schedule rather than vice-versa.

THEY ALSO HAVE to learn to meet a closing hour far more rigorous than that imposed by parents. No American living in a court; remember which airport is which, stay away from house meetings, attendance their vocal cords during study, attend the Dean's weekly orientation meetings, and memorize all leisure clothes are comfortable there's something there, somewhere, for them. That's a tall order for starting out, and to distrust the opposite sex.

Most difficult of all problems will be their learning of the deeper the Knowledge for College booklet, which, in one place defends the propriety of the "good-night" kiss and in another clause threatens to be getting it in the third clause against what goes on in parked cars.

THE BIGGEST disillusionment may come during orientation week, when hour-long indoctrinations by various student agencies, the Honor System, student services, extra-curricular activities and the Flash Bone, they will be told that classes had here

You counselors will have to console the ones who don't get secretaries and explain that the one who do is "only" trying to intercede between Freshmen and the powers-that-be to get them on good terms with both.

YOU HAVE to "set the example"—which, according to FSU standards, means no kissing, no close calls with the police, and, second, good grades—no dumb cluck proprietary in no smoking out of place—no nothing.

And last thus no pay. No free room. Not very much tuition. Aspirin will be free, but you'll have to go to the library to get it.

GOOD LUCK, JCs. Remember when you were young and foolish? Remember the months after lights-out on the Bermudas were under the tell-tale raincoat, the slammers in Reynolds Hall.

And don't forget the Articles of Faith:

"Nice girls don't come in late.
And they don't very often date.

"The biblical allusions to drink
Are there merely to make you think.

"Legs are for walking; shorts are forbidden.
The more you have, the more to keep hidden."

HE PLAYS BASEBALL TOO? Duke star Dave Sime, far more noted for his speed on the track, than his prowess on the baseball diamond, will, however play a lot of baseball for the Blue Devils beginning Monday here. He holds the world's record for the 200 yard dash and has tied the world standard of 9 3 in the 100.

Duke Vs. Yale

Diamond Tourney Begins Monday

Florida State's second annual invitational baseball tournament opens Monday afternoon when Yale meets Duke at Seminole field starting at 3 p.m.

The Seminoles take on Michigan State under the lights at Centennial Field at 7 p.m.

There will be four teams in this year's tourney as compared with the eight that participated last year, which the Seminoles won by defeating Illinois.

Coach Danny Litwhiler believes that this year's teams represent some of the finest college ball clubs in the nation.

Duke is the Atlantic Coast Conference champion and the team that defeated the Tribe in last season's NCAA regionals at Gastonia, N. C. Yale, the Ivy League champs last year and Michigan State, always a top contender for the Big-ten crown.

PARKER COACH

The Blue Devils are coached by "Art" Parker, former National League infielder with the Chicago Cubs, but mostly remembered as a great pro football player with the now defunct Brooklyn Dodgers.

Heading the list of returnees a third baseman Andy Cockrell, two times an all-ACC choice. He won the batting crown his sophomore year with a .424 average, but dropped to .360 last year. Duke's leading average men back.

George Dutrow and George Atkinson, first baseman, Lon Boocock at shortstop, Bill Dornhoff and Bernie Blaney, outfielders and catchers Steve Crihfield and Bob Wertzman.

A new face for Duke this year is the great track star Dave Sime, who is at present a candidate for a starting outfield berth.

MSU REBUILDS

Michigan State will have to rebuild as they lost their three top hitters and three of the four top pitchers from last year's club.

The Spartans are strong only at catching where seniors Al Lurz, captain, and Barry Fullerton are bark. Fullerton is occasionally switched to the outfield.

The second crew is led by southpaw Bob Perpetual, who posted a 5-4 won-lost mark. Behind him are Jon Davis, Bill Mansfield and Lou Meares.

First and second appear set with veterans Rocco Lino and Frank Palmaras, soph Jerry Korwek will get first try at shortstop while Ted Kearly and Dennis Mendyk will battle it out at the hot corner.

Mendyk nicknamed "Dennis the Menace" was an outstanding Hallbark on the Spartans' football team last season. He has been drafted by the New York football Giants. This will be his first season as a member of the baseball team.

YALE PROBLEMS

The Yale Bulldogs also have he problems of filling positions vacated by graduating seniors.

Gone are Don Pruett the Elis' leading hitter and top hurler Ken Lisk. Ken-Kenne who posted a 6-2 mark.

GOES TODAY. Jack Bristol, a junior southpaw from Sharon, Conn., will open on the hill for the Seminoles today as they meet Stetson in DeLand, in the first of a two-game series.

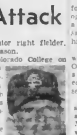
Vet Outfielder Rosell Bolsters Tribe Attack



Of the returning outfield, Bob Rosell senior right fielder, had the highest batting averase for the 1956 season.

Coach Danny Litwhiler hopes Rosell will better his 40 average in the 57 season.

The 21-year-old senior hails from Chicago, Illinois, where he attended Amundsen High School. A versatile athlete Bob interested in baseball and basketball, winning sectional honors in both.

Attending Colorado College on a baseball scholarship, he decided to transfer to FSU on the advice of a scout from Canada.

He made the change to a sophomore year and accepted a baseball scholarship from Florida State.

ROSELL

Bob has spent the past two summers playing baseball in Canada. He was a member of the Saskatchewan Privates.

A physical education major, Rosell has made the Dean's list several times, including the past semester.

The likeable outfielder has no definite plans for the future. He may attend graduate school here or study physical therapy at a mid-western school. If called by Uncle Sam, Bob will choose between baseball and the study of physical therapy.

Tribe Tops Tigers Twice, 8-2, 10-5

By BEN BALSER
Flambeau Sports Writer

With two victories already under their belts, Florida State's rising baseballers open defense of their Intercollegiate Baseball Conference title today, meeting the Stetson Hatters at DeLand.

Seminole coach Danny Litwhiler will nominate junior Jack Bristol of Sharon, Conn., to do the hurling, and little Tommy Garcia will probably set the nod against Stetson tomorrow.

The Hatters lost their top pitcher from last season but according to FSU head coach Danny Litwhiler, the Hatters will still be rough.

Litwhiler commented: "Stetson allows freshmen to play on the varsity and they always come up with a good batch of first year men."

BOXER LEADS

The Seminoles won their second game of the youths season last Wednesday when Jerry Boxer led the Tribe to a 10-5 win over the Auburn Tigers.

Boxer, a right righthanded pitcher, struck out 10 men and only allowed the Tigers seven hits. Besides his performance on the mound, Boxer wielded a big bat as he knocked two successive home runs.

Auburn picked up one run in the first inning, but the Seminoles came back in the bottom of the first to tally three runs. Pat picked up another run in the bottom of the second on the strength of Boxer's first round tripper.

The Tribe kept pace in the form of Billy Ray Robinson who opened the top of the third with a homer in almost identical the same spot Boxer had planted his.

Boxer led off the fourth frame with his second homer and Owen McCrirron followed with a single. Carlee Meddris grounded out, moving McCrirron to second.

Then the Tribe's hard hitting shortstop, Dick Hunt, connected a long drive into left center. McCrirron scored, and Hewett who had a clean triple, also scored when the infielder bobbled the ball from the outfield.

Two walks an error and a clean single enabled the Tigers to garner two runs in the top of the fifth.

Some slick base running by Phil Hinn and shoody fielding by the Auburn outfield helped FSU pick up two more in the bottom of the seventh. Bob Rosell hobbled first by the pitcher and was on first when Hunt came to bat. Hunt drove the ball into left field where the outfielder kicked it around.

By the time the ball was retrieved Rosell had scored and Hunt was on the base. Trying to peg to the plate was perfect but Hunt slid under the catcher's frantic reach, for an inside the park homer.

Hunt picked up another RBI in the eight when he singled in Boxer from second. This was the final run for the Tribe. Frank Skinner took over the Seminole second course in the ninth and struck out two men to end the game.

WIN OPENER

The Seminoles won their opener 8-2 on Tuesday against the same Auburn squad. A four-run third inning highlighted the Seminoles' victory. The Tribe's first baseman Fred Twomey knocked in two and two errors by the Tiger infield let in two more.

Fred Kenny, FSU's junior hurler, held Auburn to three until the fifth frame when Jack Burkett tagged Kenny for a solid triple and scored when Bob James singled sharply to left. Auburn tallied again in the seventh when James hit a sacrifice fly with a man on third.

The Tribe concluded their scoring in the bottom of the seventh when Litz by Twomey and Rosell, aided by errors by Auburn, scored three more runs.

Entries Close For Grapplers' Tournament

The first annual intercollegiate wrestling campus tournament is scheduled here sometime during the first week of April, wrestling instructor John Chevrette has announced.

It will be a single elimination tournament, with all campus organizations invited to enter contestants, on the stipulation that any participant must have thirty days of wrestling instruction before entering the competition.

A trophy will be awarded to the winning team, but Chevrette emphasized that since intercollegiate wrestling is just starting here, the winning organization will not receive intramural points this year.

There will be 10 weight classes: 115, 123, 130, 137, 147, 157, 167, 177, 191 lb classes and an unlimited class. Matches will consist of three 3-minute periods.

The deadline for entry blanks for all organizations wishing to enter a participant is Monday, March 25. After that, pairing will be made.

Any organization or individual wishing more information on the tournament can obtain such by contacting John Chevrette at the Men's Gymnasium.

Gymnasts Seek 3rd NCAA Title Today

By MIKE PLATTIN
Flambeau Sports Writer

Florida State's gymnastic team will make its bid for a sixth consecutive title this weekend when they compete in the 1957 NCAA meet at the U. S. Naval Academy in Annapolis.

To date FSU has won three NAAU and two NCAA titles. They are national championship earned in the 1956 NAAU's.

According to Coach Hartley Price the Seminoles will meet the tallest competition in Illinois, Penn State, Army, and Iowa, behind Illinois and Penn State.

Returning from last year's team to defend their individual titles for FSU will be Ronnie Amster on the high bar and Jamile Ashmore in free exercise.

Price voiced his disappointment in not being able to take Roger Webb, injured tumbler and free-ex man, to Annapolis. Webb did a fine job for us this season and we aren't taking him because he could damage or reinjure his ankle again.

"He will go to the NAAU's in April to get the experience that only comes with the nationals."

Price coach declined to give a definite prediction on the outcome of the meet, but said that he would be pleased if his Seminoles finished in the top five.

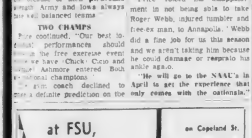
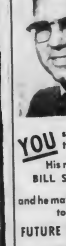
Hess and Reinhardt of the Lutherans squeezed the Feds out by the score of 15-12, 2-15, 17-15.

Don Veller, Florida State golf coach was an outstanding halfback at Indiana during his undergraduate days. He was named Indiana's top athlete and received the Balfour Award and the Chicago Tribune Award.



Netters Play Tech, Mercer At Home

Florida State's inexperienced tennis team will try twice this weekend for their first win of the 1957 season when they tackle Mercer today and Georgia Tech tomorrow on the home courts.



Keith Pritchard's sophomore dominated netters, outscored by the Universe of Georgia 5-0 last Monday in their season opener, which was curtailed by rain.

Pitchford's number one man, Fred Serrett did not play in the Georgia match, and he may be back in action today.

The Seminoles' scoring chances will probably depend on Serrett, Frank Bruno, Les Heiter, Jim Maddock or Sonny Sellers.

under the Seafest "Big Top" in the spring of 1956. The coast-to-coast television show was a real fea her in the cap of "Flying Hiah."

CLOWNS FROLIC

Of course, the frolicking clowns got in o the "Big Top" act. I couldn't begno to guess the identities of the six clowns at the circus lor, when I saw them being photographed in their humorous getups. Charles Johnson, Toto Terrell, Lee Childs who wore a badge labeled "Kop", Jackie Fortune, Alex Woodhull, and Buddy Jordan on his unicycle were complete by beyond recognition.

Charles isn't always a clown—I found him later on another trapeze, where he bas a routine of monkey rolls, flips, and bar-risins, and he even rolls across on a hoop.

As act that hasn't yet been introduced in a show is being perfected by Julie Miam. It's called "slack-wire", and involves balancing on a very rocky wire, which is no simple process. Julie's work was interrupted as I watched, by an old circus trad ion: some of the boys had heard via the grapevine that it was Julie's birtuday that day. They helped her celebrate, over her protests, by pouring on buckets of water, and sundoo demands Julie took an unplanned time-out in change clothes.

GLAMOUR ACTS

Every circus needs "alamour acts", of which "Flying Hah" has plenty. Coached by Jim DeCrumb, Jackie Fortune and Ken Hesen, the high flyers look absolutely professional. Catcher Leonard Devine has his hands full—the flyer leaves the platform, swings across a few times on the trap, than comes Leonard's part to be at exactly the right point at the right instant to catch the flyer's wrists, then release him at precisely the correct moment so he can return to the trap then to the platform. This is complicated by the variations the flyers use, and by Jackie's clown antics.

A veteran performer himself, Jackie was recruited in the FSU circus by his brothers, Johnny and Jerry. After they had graduated, Jackie arrived at FSU in 1953, and joined the Circus troupe. Initially he worked on the high-bars and had a comedy routine. Jackie had been a swinging trapeze artist at the show his brother produced in Ponce de Leon Springs, so he was ready to take a flying role when he came to college.

But it seems that there are no women brothers at home to become eighth flyers when Jackie graduates next January. "But maybe," says Jackie, "someday there will be some more little Fortunes. Boys, of course. Can't afford to have any Miss Fortunes!" That title play on words is a Fortune family joke.

HIGH SCHOOL CIRCUS

Catcher Darsey considers himself lucky to have attended Sarasota High School, where he was a member of the Sailor Circus Troupe. Three years of experience for him to begin work here last year. He's been first-string catcher since September, and makes all the road trips with the troupe.

A feminine touch is added to the high trapeze in the persons of Gail Meinhart and Arline Moore, who alternate, and Deanne Head, who is learning the tricks of the trade.

A lovely ballet act presented each above terra firma, where Phyllis Wessner and Pat Weeks replace the "man" and become the "Girl to the Moon." It's a graceful act that has had variations from time to time—for a while they performed on a floating anchor, and again on a huge star.

NEW MEMBERS

Pare Moses, the expert in the "Cloud Swing" department, spends a great deal of her time training new circus members, and has trained them ready for the big shows. Her apprentices are Anita Arango and Gail Waterman on the Cloud Swing, who do a graceful aerial adagio. Part of the Cloud Swinging act features a sudden dive from the trapeze toward the ground twenty-five feet below.

"Flying High" Goes On Tour

The "Flying Hiah" circus left for a tour of Arcadia and Vero Beach yesterday afternoon.

They plan a stop at Sarasot, to visit the Ringling Brothers Museum today, continuing to Arcadia for their first performance tonight. Saturday they will go to Vero Beach, give an evening show, and return early Sunday.

Gen-Ed Makes Apt Students —Stickler

General education in colleges and universities is destined to produce well-rounded students, a Florida State U. and University researchers told a lecture audience Tuesday night.

Dr. Hugh Stickler, director of educational research and service told the newly-formed Junior Builders audience that general education was made necessary by the ex-pliases tending "to sacrifice the well-rounded man for the pointed one."

He said that before Harvard adopted its free elective system prior to the turn of the century, curriculums consisted mainly of the classical studies. But, when other schools took the lead of Harvard, they occurred a proliferation of courses such as to stagger the imagination."

Dr. Stickler said the increase in courses offered led to a demand for "practical training" with "utility" the "prime criteria" and consequently the baccalaureate degree acquired an economic and social value. A good general education was often ignored.

General education, which is supposed to give the student a foundina in the heritage of the ages and an orientation for modern-day living places the student at the center of the educational process and is designed for his needs, rather than the needs of the subject matter, Dr. Stickler explains.

Education Is Aim

NEWARK, Del.—I.P — Education rather than recreation will be the theme of the University of Delaware's Campus Chest Drive this year, according to Shirley Bell, chairman. The committee has selected three charities and will educate the student body about them. These include the Newark Recreation Center, Crusade for Freedom, and American Heart Association.

Doing something for others is the motto of DELTA GAMMA this week. The girls worked up a program of songs which they had presented at Campus Sing, a skit and some songs for group singing and went out to the Florida Correctional Institute to perform for the inmates there.

Last Saturday and Sunday nights, the fall pledge class of KAPPA ALPHA THETA held a spaghetti supper, open to the public, as their major pledge project of the year. The dining room of the house was decorated with huge travel posters, simulated wrought iron grillwork cut from cardboard with paper roses "growing" over it and, of course, candlelight to add more atmosphere.

The girls wore costumes of various countries. Thursday night the DELTA TAU DELTA shelter was the scene of a calypso party with the Theta girls as special guests.

Senior Class Ponders Gift To University

Five suggestions for the Senior Class gift to the university were aired at a class meeting Tuesday night.

President Paul Ort said those already made were to build a select outside Westcott or the library; to furnish facilities for new buildings; to build a "Pennant booth" similar to one at Cornell; for planting evergreens; and to buy new chimes records for Westcott.

From the floor Dave Bachman suggested the thousand available dollars be used for a scholarship foundation, to which members of the class of 1957 would contribute if they wished, as alumni.

A motion to have the entire class vote on the gift was rejected by the meeting, at which only 56 seniors were present. Ort said a gift committee, composed of class officers, adviser Dr. Venila Shores, and Frank Fain and Clare Davis, will announce a decision in two weeks. More suggestions, he added, would be welcomed.

A proposal to have all seniors' names announced during commencement was voted down after Dr. Shores, who has been in charge of commencements for ten years, said it would greatly extend the length of the ceremony.

Permission was voted the class executive committee to decide upon an event which would celebrate the 100th anniversary of classes beginning at FSU's predecessor, the Seminary West of the Suwannee.

FSU FASHIONS

Start Wearing Things Spring

By MARGARET McLEAN

Today I shall dwell awhile on things spring. Speaking subjectively. Spring is unquestionably here because I certainly have all the symptoms in acute stages and with no complaints.

I have only to hear the word "SPRING" and I'm off on a wonderful tangent. Anyway, my usual gloomy temperament takes on a much more agreeable nature and "everyday" doesn't seem to have such a grim meaning. Result—I get terrible inspired about any and every thing but serious matters—here I stay perfectly normal. This is really nothing new, of course, I'm forever on an inspired kick.

SINCE MADAME SPRING changes our environment why not let her change points of view as well? She does to some degree—we all suddenly would rather sit around dreamily out of contact with here and now, and let ourselves cry in movies, and probably laugh at last season's wit, BUT that isn't entirely new.

You still will hate yourself for laughing at that awful joke, so, do something more worthwhile for the old morale. Buy a red dress, wear something terribly feminine, listen to June Christy, eat a lime popsicle, go to two movies in one afternoon and don't bother to hate either one of them, go to the coast, eat dinner off campus, write a sticky-sweet poem and don't let a soul read it, sit in on a jazz session at the Mecca—great bass man, and do any goofy thing your little heart and the university allows! You may think I'm absolutely mad, mentally bankrupt, and about as sharp as a bowling ball, but don't you wish you had half as much fun?

I'm actually more qualified to discuss things wearable than things boring. So here goes:

FASHION MAGAZINES are seemingly being consistent about their early forecasts of pa's suits and basics in pastels and greys with lavish and loud printed linings—see it shows checkline, sleeves, etc.), broad-brimmed hats with wide bands; return of organdy after years of extinction, easier and more casual long bobs; very pointed toe—believe this—very comfortable; closed pumps in white grey and print; lavender-blues, lavender-pinks, hotter shades of pinks and corals, olive-drab with mad stripe combinations, and much madras print in sports jackets—out of the common place into the girls.

For men—boxers to be worn with Bermuda shorts, and even madras printed slacks for sale or guys. In case you're wondering—madras is an irregular stripe or plaid in undarstated colors usually, that is hand-woven in India and "bleeds" when washed making the pattern even more unique; make-up is on the pinkey tints and lipsticks and nail enamels will be pink and viole; hued; lots of gold jewelry, printed accessories — plaid watch bands and eyewear for men; and sheer fabrics for formal wear.

Bathing suits again this year have the wide, all-in-one strapless look that is more water-worthy to say the very least, but bathing caps are wildly decorated and are nearly as elaborate as your best evening bonnet.

SUMMER FRAGRANCES are more fruity or flowery and for a delicious feeling after the weather really gets steamy, refreshers in your favorite perfume and stick cologne before you apply it—wow!

Look for prints in orange and pink combinations, as well as blue with green and black with brown. Look for wicker purses and beach gear cases, but above all look, listen, and leap into a really wonderful, wonderful spring.

CAMPUS JAZZ CATS DIG OUT THE MOST-TO SAY THE LEAST

By DAVE WARD-STEINMAN

The jazz group currently appearing at the Oasis Sunday nights is, to our mind, the best of the various groups to play there in several years.

It consists of Don Heckman (also sax), George Newall (piano), John Johnson (bass), and Don Heisterburg (drums). All are FSU students, with the exception of Johnson.

What is unique about this particular group is that they are more concerned with creative jazz than in just making noise and pecking up their paychecks. Heckman, who most frequently provides the spark, has a remarkable gift for linear improvisation, and his tone is not unlike that of his teacher's, Lee Konitz, though harsher and not as well controlled. The result we caught him, he was troubled by reed squeaks, but he played very warmly and impressively.

The pianist, Newall, is also a linearist, and therefore complements Heckman very well. It is difficult to describe his style. He is more of a rollicking, swinging pianist than Hershman, but is not nearly as consistent — possible because he has to fight to be heard as the room becomes more crowded. Newall's lines resemble Bud Powell's, but are more dissonant and sporadic. Couple with a swing that is roughly part-Peterson, part-Garner, and you will have some idea of his style.

The bassist, John Johnson, is a big asset to the group. He has tremendous drive and a beat that can't be swayed. His solo work is imaginative and tasteful.

FIRM BEAT

The drummer, Don Heisterburg, we know to be capable of better things than he was doing the night we heard the group. He has an excellent brush technique and a firm beat, but the acoustics of the place miserably his sound all out of proportion.

The first hour (9-10 p. m.) is the best if you're interested in serious listening. Then the room is relatively empty and the quartet is much more relaxed. As the place begins to fill, it becomes harder to hear even though the music gets louder. There is a corresponding drop in quality.

Missing from the group is trumpeter Denny Cunningham, who played last semester and added much drive and inventiveness. But the new sound of the group is quite agreeable.

On campus, there are two large jazz groups that make some pretense of creativity.

One is the Laboratory Jazz Band, sponsored by the School of Music, and directed by Robert Braunagel. This is a very large group, consisting of five trumpets, five trombones, two french horns, five saxes, and a rhythm section. It is an arranger's band, experimental in nature, and gives several concerts a year. Since these concerts will be reviewed, we will not attempt a critical analysis at this time.

TRADITION

The other group is a dance band, The Commodores, led by Tony Swain. This band is something of a continuing tradition, originally led by a senior who passes it on to a junior member as he graduates. Last year the band was led by Franz Valdes and next year Charlie Turner will take it over.

They play no stock arrangements, and have built (and are still building) a complete library of special, jazz-oriented arrangements. Current scores are by Roger McBride, Don Heckman, David Friend, Dick Hamilton,

6 The Florida Flambeau, Friday, March 12, 19

and, of course, Tony Swain.

GOOD BOOK

It is rare that we are enthusiastic about a dance band, but this is one that we feel is equal many name bands currently touring. The book is good, the musicians are capable, there is a great deal of feeling. What is needed to polish it is just several weeks or more of playing together regularly.

Personnel are: Tony Swain, Don Heckman, Charles Culbreath, Dick Reis and Manny Vega, saxes; Charlie Turner, Roger McDuffie, and Pete Cava, trumpets; Lyman Redmond, Dick Hamilton and Mac Wells, trombones; Pat Johnson, french horn, Sonny Hasbrouck, bass; George Newall, piano; Ivy Geiger, drums, and Anne Verran, vocalists—the latter an especially important asset.

ALAN'S AISLE

'Rainmaker' Is Film About A Fraud

By ALAN KASS

The philosopher John Stuart Mill once wrote, "Happiness is the principle of existence." On this premise N. Richard Nash's "The Rainmaker" is based.

The Rainmaker is basically a simple story, telling of the influence of a visitor on a group of people. He comes, he goes, but the memory of his presence is felt by all. The movie is very reminiscent of "Picnic."

The story briefly deals with a smooth-talking fraud, who professes to be able to bring rain to a small Southwestern town in return for their money. After convincing the daughter, whom the male side of the family are trying to marry off, that she's a plain but very charming the girl finds love and happiness.

At Starbuck leaves as he came, alone the rains finally come. It is amusing yet touching, funny but sad.

The performances are superlative all the way around. In fact, talking his way, Burt Lancaster is tops. It certainly is his most colorful performance since "Vera Cruz."

Kathy Hepburn, who seems to make a habit of meeting love in every picture remember Summertime?, is extremely convincing yet manages to make fun of her sad plight.

A film newcomer, Earl Holliman, takes off with the broad lasaha in his many family appearances and has love problems. This is certainly a big surprise area for him and if he's not typed he should have a good career ahead.

Wendell Corey, Lloyd Bridges, Cameron Prud'homme, Andrea de li Corey and Lloyd Bridges are all real in their roles as the father, the lawman and the brother.

The picture is two hours long but a remarkable pace has been set by Hal Wallis and Joseph Anthony. The picture a bit talky at times, always runs smoothly. The fine musical score of Alex North is also worthy of note.

THE LAST OF JESSIE

Apparently 20th Century Fox has been cheating the American movie public. Looking back on the years, the company released a movie entitled Jesse James with Tyrone Power and Henry Fonda.

Now we have "The True Story Of Jesse James" in the same vein. Who was with Jesse? Wyatt Earp and Jeffrey Hunter in the book.

Because new adventures as expected, brina nothing new or exciting to the screen. The box office was retelling the story in flashback, since then it becomes quite muddled.

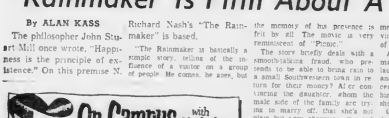
The picture is Cinema-Scope is easy to take the hero Hunter is the gun whom Yankee sympathizers make it tough for him to live on his ranch in the South.

Honor Court May Be Given More Power

The Honor Court will be given more power to designate penalties for students convicted of honor violations if a Student Senate bill is approved by the university and student body.

The constitutional amendment passed last week would eliminate mandatory harsh penalties and give the court power to use discretion. It would amend portions of the constitution as follows:

Section 1 Article V. Section 6 shall be deleted and replaced with the following:



A Any student found guilty of a violation of the Honor Code shall be given a penalty or penalties according to the degree of the offense as judged by the Honor Court, subject to review by the Faculty Review committee and the president of the University.

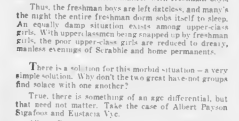
B A written statement of any infraction of the Honor Code of which a student is found guilty by the Honor Court shall be placed in the permanent record of the student involved.

C Any student while under penalty for a violation of the Honor Code shall be excluded from holding office, representing the University on any occasion, and holding or receiving any honor administered by the University, subject to review by the Faculty Review Committee and President of the University. The Honor Court also may recommend to any agency outside the University the withdrawal of any scholarship awarded by such agency.

D Any student found guilty of violating the Honor Code for a second time shall be liable for immediate suspension.

2 This act shall become effective immediately upon passage by the Student Senate and confirmation of the Student Body.

NOW YOU CAN BE YOUNGER THAN SHE IS!



It's a scientific fact that girls reach emotional maturity earlier than boys. For this reason freshman girls decline to make romantic alliances with freshman boys.

Thus, the freshman boys are left dateless, and many's the night the entire freshman dorm sobs itself to sleep. An equally damp situation exists among upperclass girls. With upperclassmen being snapped up by freshman girls, the poor upperclass girls are reduced to dressy, manless evenings of Scrabble and home permanents.

There is a solution for this morbid situation — a very simple solution. Why don't the two great have-not groups find solace with one another?

True, there is something of an age differential, but that need not matter. Take the case of Albert Payson Sigafoos and Eustacia Vye.

Albert Payson, a freshman in sand and gravel at Vanderbilt University, was walking across campus one day, weeping softly in his loneliness. Blinded by tears, he stumbled upon the supine form of Eustacia Vye, a senior in wicker and raffia, who was collapsed in a wretched heap on the turf.

"Why don't you watch where you're going, you squirt?" said Eustacia peevishly.

"I'm sorry, lady," said Albert Payson and started to move on. But suddenly he stopped, struck by a inspiration. "Lady," he said, "you're miserable because you can't get a date. So am I. So why don't we date each other?"

"Surely you jest!" cried Eustacia, looking with scorn upon his youthful head and body.

"Oh, I know I'm younger than you are," said Albert Payson, "but that doesn't mean we can't find many splendid things to do together."

"Like what?" asked Eustacia.

"Well," said Albert Payson, "we could get a third and play some one-a-cat."

"Bah!" said Eustacia, grinding her teeth.

"All right then," said Albert Payson, "we could go down to the pond and skip some stones and maybe catch a few frogs."

"Ugh!" said Eustacia, shuddering her entire length. "How about some rain-sheep-run?" he suggested.

"You are callow, green, and immature," said Eustacia, "and I will thank you to absent yourself at once."

Sighing, Albert Payson lit a cigarette and started away.

"Stay!" cried Eustacia.

"Was that," she asked, "a Philip Morris you just lit?"

"What else?" said Albert Payson.

"Then you are not immature!" she cried, clasping him to her clavicle. "For to smoke Philip Morris is the very essence of wisdom, in controvertible proof that you know rich, natural pleasure from pale, poor substitutes! Albert Payson, I am yours!"

And today they are married and run one of the biggest wicker and raffia establishments in Blue Earth, Minnesota.

Eight Found Guilty In Cheating Affair

Court Hears All Confess, Gives Each Year Probation

Eight students have been convicted by Honor Court for cheating during a test given to a general education class of 200 students.

Chief Justice Bill Manning announced the cases were given sentences of one year's probation each as well as failing grades in the course.

Both men and women were involved. the Chief Justice disclosed.

PROF CALLS COURT

He said the Court was called in by the professor. Apparently no students noticed or cared to speak to the professor.

Manning said the cases were made against the eight by comparison of test papers. The test was of a subjective short-answer type.

Manning said the professor called the Court on Friday, March 15, and he appeared before the class Monday, after comparing papers, to ask that those who had cheated turn themselves in.

PERSONS ACCUSED

When there didn't, Manning related, he called out the names of nine suspects before the entire class and had them leave the room.

He conceded that the case could have been "better handled" and that calling out the names of those accused in class was a mistake.

One of the students taken from the room was found to be innocent, he said.

EXONERATE ONE

"I tried to explain to the class at the time that it didn't mean all those were guilty," Manning told the Florida Flambeau, and I went before the class the next day to exonerate the innocent student."

The convictions were sustained by the Faculty Review Committee for Student Courts.

In one of the cases, the committee suggested the Court review its penalty to determine if there was not a lesser degree of offense in the defendant's having permitted someone to copy answers, the Chief Justice related.

PENALTY AFFIRMED

The Court, however, affirmed the penalty by a 3-2 vote.

While the giving of answers is not as violent as an Honor System violation as copying them, it constitutes "collusion" and is clearly defined in the Honor Code as an offense. Manning declared.

He said he thinks punishing both parties is an offense will strengthen the Honor System and keep FSU "from becoming a diploma factory."

Students who see or know of violations are bound to report them, he added.

Here Come The Posters!
'Legal Politicking' Begins At 5 Today

By STAFF WRITER

Candidates may begin what is legally defined as "active campaigning" for Student Body offices at 5 p.m. today.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Runners To Vie At Mass Rally

Campus politicos, who swing into high gear with the opening of official campaigning this afternoon, will be heard Thursday evening in a mass rally.

The rally, annually sponsored by Gold Key, will bring together all the candidates on the same platform for the only time during the campaign.

The meeting will be held in the Music Amphitheatre and will begin at 7 p.m. The various party organizations are doing the promotional work, attempting to have sizeable partisan turnouts from both parties.

The rallies have been sparsely attended in the past, but observers have noticed an increased interest among those who are active in party politics and expect this activity to provide a large crowd.

Gold Key, men's leadership honorary, announced plans for their sentree project with those members of the group who are graduating responsible for its production.

Candidates for all offices other than Student Body President will be allotted three minutes for their speeches. The two candidates for the presidency will be given six minutes apiece.

About the only politicking that hasn't been done already is distribution of printed and duplicated material. This is defined as "active campaigning" and can't begin until a week before the party elections, which are next Tuesday.

UNLIMITED TALK

Secretary of Elections Mitzi McCullough yesterday reminded candidates that after 5 p.m. today talk will still be the only election activity without limit.

Posters may be placed only on bulletin boards which will be placed on campus for the purpose, she said, and each candidate may have no more than one poster on each side of each bulletin board. In addition, posters are limited to 15 by 20 inches in size.

"If posters are to be placed off campus," she said, "candidates should receive permission of owners of the property before posting the placards."

HANDBILLS ALLOWED

There is no limit upon the quantity of handbills which may be distributed in residence halls, except for the tolerance of house counselors, and the statutory limits on campus expenses.

Candidates who do not file estimates of what they will spend in a body will be disqualified, Miss McCullough noted.

Six of the 14 candidates had not submitted the estimates when the campus official issued her reminder.

Traffic Ideas To Be Sent To Campbell

The Student Faculty Traffic Committee will present a list of major recommendations to President Doak S. Campbell, probably this week, the chairman disclosed.

According to chairman Karl Edwards, the recommendations will concern the possibility of stopping traffic between classes, extending the blue sticker parking zone, extending the zone where students may receive black stickers, whether motorcycles should be permitted on each new area, and re-aiming the parking spaces in the music building lot.

ALREADY DECIDED

Edwards said he couldn't disclose what action the committee had taken on the items, but admitted that a definite vote has been taken on each.

They have yet to be drawn up in final form, he said.

He did say that if the blue sticker zone is extended it will include half the blocks of the three north ends of the new library, those half-blocks closest to the library.

ALL DIRECTIONS

And an extension of the area for white black stickers would be allotted would be in all directions, he said.

In addition to Edwards, there are four students on the committee and five faculty representatives.

There has been no faculty-student split, commented the chairman.

GAX TO DISCUSS RUSH

Gamma Alpha Chi will meet to discuss plans for spring rushing tomorrow at 5 p.m. in Longhorn Student Lounge, said Joan Nicholas, spokesman for the women's advertising honorary.

Senate Muffles Loudspeaker Use

The use of loudspeakers before 5 p.m. on class days is banned by a statute passed last week by Student Senate.

In a unanimous vote, the Senate decided that loud speakers may be used only between 5 and 7:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 5 to 11 p.m. Friday's. Saturday hours are from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m.

They may not be used at all on Sundays and during examination weeks.

A maximum fine of $25 will be levied on violators and any person or club violating a provision that they register in advance with the Traffic Court clerk.

Campus organizations have frequently used sound trucks to publicize their events.

Ruge Scholarship Open To Coeds

Female undergraduates who are former students of Chipman Trail School in Apalachicola may win a $250 Fannie F Ruge Scholarship if they make application.

Mrs. Margaret Blair of Vocational Guidance and Placement announced yesterday that a freshman, sophomore or junior girl may apply for the scholarship at 203 Westcott. Applicants must be graduates of Chapman High School.

GREEK FILM—Dr. Maude Kate Whiteside as the priest of Dionysos and Helen McGhee as Maenad attendant, go through the opening scene of "Orestes," an Artist Series extra to be presented tomorrow at 4 p.m. and at 8 in Opperman Music Hall. Both shows are free.

One of the students taken from the room was found to be innocent, he said.

EXONERATE ONE

"I tried to explain to the class at the time that it didn't mean all those were guilty," Manning told the Florida Flambeau, and I went before the class the next day to exonerate the innocent student."

The convictions were sustained by the Faculty Review Committee for Student Courts.

In one of the cases, the committee suggested the Court review its penalty to determine if there was not a lesser degree of offense in the defendant's having permitted someone to copy answers, the Chief Justice related.

PENALTY AFFIRMED

The Court, however, affirmed the penalty by a 3-2 vote.

While the giving of answers is not as violent as an Honor System violation as copying them, it constitutes "collusion" and is clearly defined in the Honor Code as an offense. Manning declared.

He said he thinks punishing both parties is an offense will strengthen the Honor System and keep FSU "from becoming a diploma factory."

Students who see or know of violations are bound to report them, he added.

Kent Council Hits Discrimination

KENT, O.—(UP)—The Student Council of Kent State University recently took its first action on a motion to eliminate discriminatory clauses from the constitutions of all organizations. The motion, introduced by vice-president Jim Lewis, was referred to the Constitutions committee after long discussion and a divided vote.

It provides that no new organizations with clauses which discriminate against persons of any race, religion or color shall be recognized by Student Council. Present organizations would have until January 1, 1962, to eliminate such discriminatory clauses from their national and/or local constitutions, under-

Former Ambassador To Canada To Talk In Lecture Series

Stanley Woodward, former Ambassador to Canada, will speak to advanced public administration students at the first week in April, it was announced in the annual federal lecturer series.

Woodward will talk to classes today and Thursday on "The Problems and Responsibilities of the Position of Ambassador" and will meet informally with students Wednesday, Prof. W. V. Holloway said.

Before holding the position of ambassador from 1950 to 1952 Woodward was assistant chief and chief of protocol for the State Department for several years. Between 1926 and 1934 he was foreign service officer at Port au Prince, Brussels and Geneva, respectively.

The federal lecturer program brings specialists in a federal governmental field of the campus to discuss some of the problems of administration. This is the advanced class in studying administration of foreign affairs.

Students Can Appeal Traffic Court Verdicts

By BOB SIMMONS

Unknown to most students, there is a university ruling permitting students to appeal verdicts of Student Traffic Court to Tallahassee's Municipal Court.

According to Dr. Harry Day, director of service units, no student has ever made use of the appeal.

Dr. Day emphasized however, that the two courts are separate. The university court is independent of the city court and derives its powers from a Board of Control authorization of a year ago. The city enters into the matters only when asked by the university, he explained.

Staters Slate Rally Today

State Party will stage a rally for its candidates this afternoon at 4 in the Music Amphitheater, chairman Gerry Gordon announced.

"Everyone is welcome to come and meet those on the State Party slate," he said.

Senate May Vote Again On NSA Issue

The Student Senate is shortly expected to vote again on the question of whether or not to join the National Student Association, according to student government officials.

The Senate has previously considered membership in the nation-wide organization, but has rejected it.

An address given to the Senate by the NSA's vice president Jim Pomeroy, who is presently tourins the state acquainting various schools with NSA operation, has interested some student government members in the group.

Membership in NSA for Florida State University would cost $125 a year.

Student Body President Doyle Bachman asserted that although the NSA has its good and bad points, membership in the group might help the Senate broaden its areas in which to work.

He said, however, the decision of joining should rest with the incoming administration instead of his own.

Vice President Jim Solis told the Flambeau he had no comment to make on NSA until he addressed the Senate on the matter when and if it is brought up.

Graham Teschke, State Party candidate for Student Body president, said he was not familiar with the issue.

Bill Ernest, Party candidate for the presidency, Arnold Greenfield, said "there are a lot of factors involved and I would prefer not to comment at the moment."

The NSA does research on the campus problems, conducts a travel service for member schools, and has participated in national issues affecting students.

FLAMBEAU MUSIC CRITICS HALT FACULTY REVIEWS

Student music reviewers for the Florida Flambeau will cease writing reviews of faculty recitals, they said this week.

Flambeau reviewers Dave Wardlesteiman and Ryan Edwards, both students in the School of Music, said they have voluntarily agreed to comply with a request to stop reviewing faculty recitals. The request was made by the Music School faculty following reviews held more than a month ago.

Edwards said, "Dave and I decided we were performing a service by reviewing these events, but if the majority of the School of Music faculty want us to stop, that's what we'll do."

He added, "We think the faculty action speaks for itself—there is no reason for us to go into the reasons behind the request."

He said they will continue reviewing student events.

University's 100th Anniversary Should Be Observed This Year

Florida State University has so many celebrations of diverse nature that the absence of a centennial observation is ironical.

While it may be true that Florida State University's real founding date is 1851, the date of the chartering of the Seminary West of the Suwannee, it is an academic issue.

Classes began in 1857. The institution that grew through the years into Florida State University existed only on paper before then. It became a physical reality, an educational concern, only 100 years ago.

There ought to be some University-wide celebration this year, because a centennial, unlike other holidays, has a special meaning.

IT IS A TIME to look backward on a rich history, and then, rewarded by the accomplishment of a century, look to the future with the determination that Florida State University's progress could be unlimited.

A celebration so dependant upon the heritage of the school should mean something to students, faculty, and townspeople alike. It would provide a meaning that bicycle races, football games, and even Homecoming cannot provide.

AT PRESENT, it seems that the Senior Class will have to undertake a centennial celebration on its own, without the support of the university. Officially, it has been decided, the centennial was 1951—and we must celebrate in retrospect.

Although it is rather late in the year, we are heartily in favor of the Senior Class's sponsoring some kind of Centennial celebration. The specific plans they make, whatever they be, should have the wholehearted support of the Student Body.

How Much Further Will University Extend Requirements For Student Admission?

We are pleased to see that Florida State University's scholastic record for last semester is the best on file yet.

The increase, though slight, may be due to several factors—tighter competition for high grades, improvement in overall student ability because of stricter entrance requirements, or just that professors graded a little easier last semester.

We are inclined to agree with President Doak S. Campbell that the improvement is due largely to the stricter requirements for admission. It is true that the "tightening up" which accompanied this year's freshman class by no means amounted to a difficult barrier, but it does represent a trend toward selection.

THE STEP might be termed crucial in that it was based on a decision which has become a highly touchy issue in education today. It is whether a state university has some kind of obligation to admit the sons and daughters of all state residents who can afford to send their children to school.

The question is both a matter of economics and of philosophy. In some foreign countries, where the right to higher education is based solely on intellectual ability, as best as that can be determined by tests, the issue is almost purely economic. That's not as prosperous as the United States and simply cannot afford to provide the facilities necessary to educate a large mass of the population past a certain stage.

IN THE United States, the economic problem exists—as has been demonstrated in Florida recently as the preparation of public schools and universities' budgets for the next two years has gotten underway. But this and other states have seemingly been convinced that all youngsters of college age deserve the opportunity of higher education regardless of their intellectual status.

Whether right or wrong, the step has been taken. We are interested in seeing how much further it will be carried.

The Dissenter

Allowed Cheating Hurt's All Students

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

The Honor System is still a relatively new idea—it has not yet won cooperation from the Student Body—and in the course of its working mistakes are bound to occur.

One of these happened last Monday, when nine people accused of cheating were summoned quietly from the class in which the cheating was known to have occurred.

Eight admitted guilt, but the ninth was found unmeritorious and received public exoneration.

NEVERTHELESS, it is wrong for anyone to suffer humiliation and embarrassment on just chance he deserves it.

Chief Justice Bill Manning, who supervised the proceedings is the first to admit that it could have been handled better.

He explained to this columnist that the Court had to act with speed, that if it did not, the defendants might have manufactured alibis and brain the prosecution.

THE GREATEST danger in the administration of justice is its tendency to become overenthusiastic. The more guilty a person seems to be, the more necessary it is that his rights be given the fullest consideration. As he has seen one of the nine defendants was clearly innocent.

But before the Student Body condemns the Honor Court for ruthlessness it might well ask why the Court is left to desperate measures.

It was the professor who reported the violation.

AMONG 200 STUDENTS, were there none aware that cheating was taking place?

While cheating is primarily the concern of the person who does it, it doesn't stop there. Dishonesty is as a university what crime is to a city. It doesn't take much of it to discredit everybody.

And the student who sits and watches someone deliberately take malicious advantage of the university is just letting him cheat himself.

LOAFERS WHO can't get through college except by cheating turn the place into, as Manning puts it "a diploma mill". They drag down everyone else to their low level.

The fault lies partly with the grading system—European universities don't find it necessary—and partly with the shifting of values from the obtaining of an "education" to the "earning of a degree".

But so long as the degree does stand for something, it should stand for an honest attainment.

Conrad Horn, who graduated last year, put it well when he wrote his column concerning those who had stolen and sold tests and examinations those who bought them: "When I get my degree, that laughter I hear from the back row will be you, buddy. You, more than anyone else will know how much that degree is worth."

THE STUDENT who blindly tolerates dishonesty on the part of others is cutting his own throat and that of every other honest student and professor. He's letting the dishonest person destroy every value for which a university stands.

And there are many, many such blind people.

HOW CAN THE Honor Court deliberate on a case without having it arow stale—when there are no witnesses available, when all they have to go on is the suspicions of the professor and the comparison of test papers?

The Court hardly is that when some rare student has the courage to stand up and enforce the law, he gets rebuffed for it. And the members of Honor Court aren't exactly the most popular people either.

"We've Got To Stop All This Spending On Essentials"

State Welcomes Support

TO THE STUDENTS

To many of you, the political situation on our campus presents a problem. Which party should I join or support?

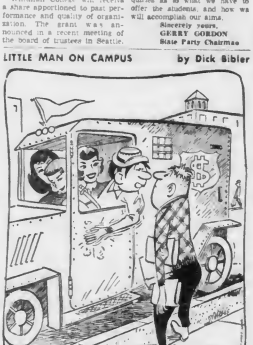
In campus politics there are no burning issues to influence a person's decision, but there are the candidates, and their stands on other things that plays an important role in a student's decision.

I AM SPEAKING of the necessity of a two party system. Until three years ago, a party nomination virtually assured a candidate victory in the election. Why? Because there was only one party on this campus. Then a group of students, who felt that this situation did not always offer the students the qualified candidates, formed the State Party. This offered the campus the privilege of choice.

Since its inception, the State Party has held many class offices and after the last election, State Party had a majority of Student Senate.

THE STATE PARTY has maintained a positive attitude as its candidates in the past have stood, election, so that they might work for the students benefits.

It is with this positive attitude that we are now entering the Student Body Elections. We welcome your support and your inquiries as to what we have to offer the students, and how we will accomplish our aims.



Sincerely yours,
GERRY GORDON
State Party Chairman

Ford Foundation Donates Million

ACLU Said 'Infiltrated'

TO THE EDITOR:

In an editorial in Tuesday's FLAMBO, the American Civil Liberties Union was praised by the editorial's author for its tendency to condemn-as the usurpation of rights in the Clinton case. Those rights belonged to the probably Fascist Kasper group.

(1) IF I FOLLOW the devious path of your logic at all, removal of all doubt as to the Union's sincerity should remove it from the category of the "left wing" a term the use of which for some reason you seem to deprecate.

2- I infer that since you speak out to establish the ACLU as an objective non-leftwing organization, as an organization whose ideas are worthy indeed, you must agree with, support, and or belong to the organization.

IN CHICAGO, recent hearings of the Illinois Supreme Court's Character and Fitness Committee for admission to the bar have illuminated the Communist-directed activities of the Chicago Civil Liberties Committee through investigation of its 20-year head, Irv Kupcinet. Former admits that he ran the CCLC with exclusive eye to Communist objectives until 1947 —when, however, he broke with the Party over issues related to the Communist-controlled Civil Rights Congress. Head of the Communist membership, according to testimony, who joined the American Civil Liberties Union, and the CCLC before it, was paper organization, National Review, Mar. 22, 1963.

Now we know that Communists join for one purpose—to INFILTRATE.

IT HAS BEEN 10 years since Hiry joined.

They've been quiet, but I'll bet busy. They weren't even mentioned.

The reader may draw his own conclusions from the facts above. The ones I've drawn are not pleasant.

Charles Mayo

Editor's Note: Golly, gee, you just can't trust those Communists. We'll have to watch every time.

Looking at it more objectively, a known Communist Latimer is quoted above as admitting he was one; would, it seems to us, have a reason for claiming the ACLU has Communist members. By thus discrediting the ACLU in the public eye he would harm one of the groups which has been the most active in thwarting the ultimate aims of communism in the United States.

Does Mr. Mayo believe the National Review to be more of an authority in locating Communist infiltration than the Attorney General? Since the ACLU isn't on the famous "List", maybe the list should be junked in favor of the Review's findings. We are inclined to doubt this.

The Florida Flambeau will print all signed letters from students except those which are libelous or insidious attacks upon individuals. Letters over 250 words may be cut at the discretion of the editor if space is limited. In some cases, where a valid reason is given, name may be withheld.

Of All Things

Membership In NSA May Be Proposed Soon

By OSCAR JOHNSON

Those students who have heard of the National Student Association (NSA) may remember reading that a vice-president of that group visited FSU last week.

Jim Pomeroy, a casual but persuasive young man graduated last year from Allegheny College, explained the operation to Student Senate—the things it does, its program for helping students in member schools and the cost per year -$125 for FSU.

Not many questions were raised by senators but Jim anticipated the query that may have been in some of their minds—NSA's stand on segregation. It is against it.

In answer to the prospect of Southern members of NSA having to stand alongside students in 43 or 43 other States on "touchy" issues, Jim explained NSA's elaborate recognition of minority group sentiment.

IT WAS abundantly evident from his outline that if FSU joins NSA the latter will have no means of somehow muzzling the free American student's expression that the dominance of students outside the South unless FSU wants to. No senator or representative has fear.

Thus even if we do join we do not have to have cranes down our throats the reasoning of college and university students from 43 states. The question is, where is there to be a meeting place for the Truth as outlined by Herman Talmadge, Sumter Lee, Mendel Rivers, Griffin, James Folsom, John Kasper, Eastland, et al.

THIS QUESTION of joining a student group despite "principle" brings to mind another organization, of which probably fewer have heard than of NSA. We refer to the Southern Conference Human Relations Conference Association (SCHRCA).

The reason nobody has heard of SUSGA is that it has done nothing, is doing nothing, and has little prospect of doing something. According to our information, this group is to be sent to its member schools a total of three letters -six counting them with a good-sized stack of material prepared by NSA for its members.

SUSGA SHOULD be familiar to FSUians. It was formed largely through the efforts of 1835-54 Student Body President Milton Carothers. Recognizing the threat to humanity inherent in anything of national scope, it conveniently provides that members of race may not be discharged by their Membership in SUSGA -$25 a year; puts all FSU students on record as believing that the problems exist in the United States. The Ostrich-head-in-ground approach doesn't get results. Failure in solving any problem and neither has SUSGA. NSA can't be sure it will solve problems at FSU either; unless FSU students want it to, but at least it democratically—by a vote at a national convention—states the viewpoints of the US students.

WE WOULD probably, in fact, have withdrawn from SUSGA before this, except that we doubted that the organization would fail it would be imprudent to withdraw from it on principle. Others feel that a lack of any member activity in NSA can benefit from our experience in student government. How much the way that we could benefit from the experience of NSA schools.

It is not our intention here to attempt to catalogue the benefits of NSA membership or SUSGA. A student who sent a most detailed factual summary may get an analysis from their campus representatives.

We expect that a movement will be brought about in Student Senate for FSU to join NSA. Tomorrow's meeting would be an ideal time for concrete steps to result from the NSA official visit.

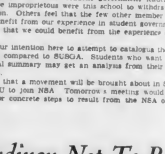
A Letter

Clendinen Not To Run

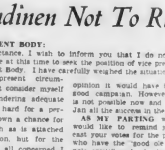
DEAR STUDENT BODY:

With reluctance, I wish to inform you that I do not feel that I am able at this time to seek the position of vice president of the Student Body. I have carefully weighed the situation and under the present circumstances do not consider myself capable of representing adequate service. It is hard for a person to turn down a chance for an honor such as is attached to this position, but for the betterment of all concerned I feel it is necessary. Now, if you feel that I would like to state the reasons for my decision:

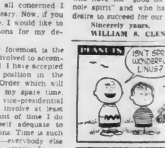
FIRST AND foremost is the time element involved to accomplish this well. I have accepted a responsible position in the Campus Alpha Order which will demand a lot of my spare time and since the vice-presidential position would involve at least an equal amount of time I do not think I would be adequate to fill both positions. Time is such a fickle thing—everybody else has it but me. I am a very humble opinion, a person who does not have time for a job and still accepts it has no chance for success like a person who accepts it's honor which accompanies a post and does his duties competing some kind of a crime against his supporters as well as against opponents.



Another portion of my decision was based on grades. I've been on the border of probation but still I have to give it some thought. The present time my grades cannot stand further punishment. I am going to put forth further effort this line and assume that each of you do not expect me to understand this situation. However, I would like to say that my past grades did not force me to this decision and it is the future that I am taking into consideration from all points.



ANOTHER FACTOR you might be interested in knowing is that the Student Party had nothing to do with my decision going the way it did. If anything I would say they are more definitive on the other side. Putting the Student Party in the position they are in is —without a candidate for that office—has been one of the chief draw-backs to my decision, but after much consultation most of them decided to back me best. Personally I believe they have the best slate of people from the standpoint Mr. Greenfield on down the line, and I intend to support them to the best of my ability.



One further factor in my decision was that the office of vice president will be filled very adequately. I refer to Jan Kennedy. She will be unopposed for the office. She is very much qualified to hold the position. I would have enjoyed very much running against her. In my opinion it would have been a good campaign. However, it is not possible now and I wish Jan all the success in the world.

AS MY PARTING word I would like to remind you to cast your votes for the person who have the "good ole determination" who have the desire to succeed for our school.

Sincerely yours,
WILLIAM K. CLENDINEN

Tighter Rushing Is USC Goal

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (UPI)—In a more stringent rushing program, living rooms where hopeful girls entertain the hierarchy of sorority sisters and the virtually unlimited parties plan now used by fraternities on the campus of the University of Southern California, is the goal of the Inter-fraternity Council here.

Main points suggested for program include requiring invitations to rushees, a rushing fee for the registration and setting up a fraternity orientation day.

Alan Whitmarsh

Durham Top FIBC Man

Though it's a little out of season, final Florida Intercollegiate Basketball Conference statistics reveal that guard Hugh Durham of the Seminoles officially won the FIBC scoring title. Durham poured 258 points through the loop in 10 conference tilts for a 25.8 average. 57 points better than forward Don Hall of Florida Southern, who was the only other conference player to average better than 20 a game in conference play.

Durham also made the all-conference team selected by FIBC coaches, along with Tobin, Gene Stapp, Dirk Brunner and Tribe pivot Bobby Waltz.

In addition, the high-flying soph made the all-state team, selected under the auspices of the Florida Times-Union, which was announced yesterday.

The Seminoles, who won the conference title during the first year of its existence, are dropping out of the basketball and baseball scene after this June to be replaced by Jacksonville University, now a four-year school.

Unofficially, Durham was the highest scorer in the state, though there are no statistics available from other schools. He had 589 points for his sophomore season, an average of 18.6 a game.

And, he also made the third string all Phi Delta Theta squad and covered basketball stars from all over the country.

TOURNEY BETTER THIS YEAR?

The second FSU Invitational Baseball Tournament, now proving more daily at Seminole Field and Centennial Field, may turn out to have even better baseball than crop in 40 conference tilts.

In any case, there are plenty of added attractions on hand—like football all-American and the man who may be the fastest man in the world, to name a couple.

The grid stars are Dennis (the Menace) Moodys, an all-pro defensive halfback for Michigan's Wolverines, and Lee Corso, who made honorable mention all-American. Moodys, who starred in the Rose Bowl-bound Wolverine grid machine this fall, also plays baseball for the Spartans this year in trying out at third base currently.

Corso, of course, is an NFL import on the baseball diamond as well as the gridiron. He led the team in RBIs last year, and is a standout in center field.

Then, for speed, there is Dave Sime, undoubtedly one of the fastest men in the world. The flashing Duke junior holds the world record for the 10 yard dash, and the 9 year tied the international standard of 9.3 for the 100.

Sime originally came to Duke on a baseball scholarship played baseball until there was too busy in various track meets to come to the diamond last season. He ranks as their starting outfielder.

THREE FAMOUS COACHES

As another sidelight, there are three of the outstanding college baseball coaches in the country here for the next week. They are Johnny Lawhon and Ace Parker.

Allen, who is a noted author on the subject of baseball in addition to coaching at Yale for many years, jumped to the Bearcats from Cincinnati from the college coaching ranks as an outfielder.

Lawhon, of course is well known to any Seminole baseball fan, and it suffices to say here that he is certainly building a tradition of strong ball clubs here.

Ace Parker is probably better known in sports fans as a baseball star for the now defunct Brooklyn Dodgers, and he has successfully taken over the baseball reins at Duke from Jack Coombs, a former pitching ace with the Philadelphia Athletics and Brooklyn Dodgers.

Parker also played some baseball as a shortstop with the Chicago Cubs, but he was forced to give up the game after receiving too broken legs.

Despite the presence of two outstanding coaches and three outstanding teams, however, the Seminoles still loom as favorites to win their second tourney.

Medley Relay Squad Seeks NCAA Crown

By TOM HALE
Flambeau Sports Writer

Four Florida State swimmers will compete Thursday in the NCAA Swimming Championships at Chapel Hill, N. C.

The swimmers who will make up a 400 yd. medley relay team in addition to swimming in their individual events are Joni Jacobs, Russ Ray, Don Lewis, and Kru Abbott.

Coach Bim Stutts of the Seminoles said, "This is the top meet of all swim meets. The competition received in this meet is unparalelled in swimming competition outside of the Olympics."

On the first leg of the relay will be Ken Abbott, last year's National Junior Backstroke champion Alter Abbott will come next. Jacobs, FSU's breaststroker and conqueror of Florida's Phil Drake in the Florida AAU's.

Don Lewis will swim the butterfly leg. Lewis is a former Jesuiter and will swim in his final butterfly competition in the national meet.

BAY ANCHOR MAN

Russ Ray will be the anchor man on the relay team. A sophomore, Ray is undefeated this year in the 50 yd. freestyle.

The relay team from all over the United States entered in the meet. The top teams in the medley relay event, according to breaststroker Jacobs, are Yale, Illinois, and Michigan.

All of these teams have done under four minutes in the event, Coach Stutts was quoted as saying that, "I would be pleased if the State team did under 4:03 for the relay."

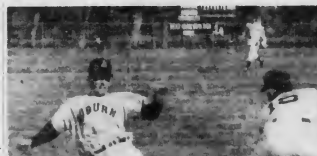
Stutts said that only Ray and Abbott have been in competition. He continued, "In national competition the tensions are terrific and we don't know how the team will do under pressure."

FSU Gymnasts 3rd In NCAA

Paced by Ronnie Amster's 21 point performance, Florida State's gymnastic team placed third Saturday in the annual NCAA gymnastic meet held at the Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland.

Penn State with 113 was qualifying for the finals, was the only team to place more performers in the finals than Florida State.

The Seminoles qualified 12 men for the finals competition on Saturday and finished the meet with a total of 62½ points, 25 behind first place Penn State. Illinois moved into the second spot with 69 points.



Army, Michigan, Western Illinois, Pittsburgh, Los Angeles State and Navy finished in that order to round out the top nine teams.

Individual championships fell for two of FSU's ranking gymnasts as Jamile Ashmore dropped the free exercise crown to Los Angeles State, and Ronnie Amster lost on the high bar, placing second to Illinois Olympian Abie Grossfeld.

The Seminoles scored best in the free exercise event where Ashmore took fourth, Cicio Fitch, Rafael Lecuona eighth, and Bob Murray 19th.

In the prized all-around competition Florida State placed Lecouna sixth, Amster seventh, and Ashmore eighth. Another 1956 American Olympian, Armando Vera of Penn State, took first.

Netters To Oppose Mich. State, Duke

Florida State University's tennis team faces successive matches with Michigan State and Duke today and tomorrow here on the varsity courts.

It will mark the first time that the Tribe has ever met either the Spartans or the Blue Devils in a tennis duel.

The netters picked up their first win of the young season Friday when they easily defeated Mercer, 6-1. Saturday they dropped a 5-4 decision to Georgia Tech for their second loss.

The Yellow Jackets won four of the six singles and two of the three doubles in an extremely long afternoon of tennis.

Winners for FSU were Lex Hester who defeated Bob Nichols "GT" 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, and Frank Bryan winning in straight sets from Mike Mehaffy "GT" 6-2, 6-4.

The doubles team of Bryan and Dave Teid defeated Mehaffy and Bob Lofbled 8-3, 8-6.

In a freshman match former national boys champion and runner-up for the national junior's crown Red Mercer "GT" defeated Howard Levy "FSU" 8-1, 8-0.

Entering the finals against Skinner and Bryant of PDT they had to beat them twice in a row. They did.

In the first match PDT took the first game 15-13 and won within a step of the title. They dropped the second 15-10 took a lead in the third 11-7 but lost 15-13.

In the extra finals LCA won 18-12, lost 11-18 and won the deciding game 15-13.

EVANS, PENZI WIN

Lou Penzi and Bob Evans of the West Hall Rebels won the dorm badminton title by beating the Hess-Rienhardt combination, representing the Lubfreans in the finals.

The scores were 15-10 and 18-14.

In the semi-final the Feds beat the Methodists in a long match 9-15, 18-16, 15-11 Spalding and Chevrette hit for the losers and Gunz and MacLeash for the winners.

The Lubfreans then upset the Feds 18-13, 2-15, 17-15.

SOFTBALL

Intramural softball opens the season yesterday, with dorm and independent teams in action. Tonight the fraternities start activity.

Games are scheduled from 4 to 7:30 p.m. this week through Friday on the softball fields near the baseball diamond.

Gama times are posted on the Student Center Flagpole bulletin board and the men's gym intramural board.

BOWLING

The Feds and Masonics arrived in the finals of the winners bracket in dorm bowling last week-end.

The Feds beat the Lutherans 818-780, 817-287. Masonics beat by the Baptists 341-247, 346-263.

Methodists defaulted to the Rebels Penthouse beat Senior Hall 308-260, 292-269.

Linksters Seek 5th Win Against Miami

Florida State's golfers go after their fifth win of the year today when they meet Miami at the Capital City Country Club.

The Linksters have won three straight since their upset loss to Florida and Florida Intercollegiate crown.

They easily defeated Georgia Tech, Alabama and the University of Georgia. The Georgia match was limited to nine holes on account of both teams due to heavy rains

The last time FSU met Miami on the links was in 1952 with the Tribe winning 11½ to 3½.

Tribe Meets Yale; Splits With Stetson

By BEN BALSER
Flambeau Sports Writer

The Florida State Invitational Baseball Tournament rolls into its second day of action today as Michigan State meets Duke at 3:00 on the East Campus field and Florida State clashes with Yale at 7:30 tonight at Centennial Field.

Duke and Yale opened the tourney yesterday afternoon and FSU, the defending champs, played on their home turf against Michigan State. Students, prizes for the tournaments are 50¢ a game or $2.50 for the whole tournament.

Jack Bristol or John Ash will start against the Bulldogs for the Seminoles. Either Ray Carlson or Bill Lithrope will open on the mound for Yale.

The Tribe lost their first game of the season last Saturday afternoon when the Stetson Hatters edged them 3-2. Jack Hawkins, Stetson pitcher, allowed the Seminoles only five hits, all singles, and knocked in the winning run in the bottom of the eighth.

SCORE FIRST

The Tribe picked up one run in the first inning but the Hatters came back in the bottom of the first to match FSU with one run. In the top of the ninth the Tribe scored another run but again the Hatters came back in the bottom of the ninth to win.

Stetson came back in the seventh to score the score at 2-2.

In the eighth Walt Mosely hit a pop fly single for the Hatters. He advanced to second on an error and scored the winning run on Hawkins hit.

Fred Twomey, Tribe first baseman, picked up two of the Tribe's five hits. The was the first loss for the Seminoles after three straight wins.

WIN 13-8

Last Friday the Seminoles blasted 11 hits which netted 13 runs on the Hatters five. Jack Bristol, FSU southpaw, went the distance and limited the Hatters to five hits.

Owen McCarton, centerfielder for the Seminoles, blasted the ninth inning homer. It was his first this year.

Bob Rowell and Dick Howser led the Tribe batting with two hits apiece. Rowell got his first in the fifth inning and Howser got his in the seventh.

Bristol, who pitched the first five innings for the Tribe, was relieved by Bob Bradley, who pitched the final four innings. Bradley gave up two hits.

DUKE SOUTHPAW. Dick Smallwood, junior southpaw, is the ace of the Duke pitching staff, as the Blue Devils seek to challenge FSU's bid for a second straight baseball tournament title here this week.

between the city and the university, students traffic violators are referred to city court, as a matter of course, only after the case has been reviewed by the Student Traffic Court and the dean of men's office.

To date, the only use the university has made of its agreement with the city court is in sending notice to campus traffic violators who ignore notices from the student court.

Funds from the campus traffic court are used to provide $100 scholarships for participating fraternities. Three scholarships were awarded in 1956 when 12 were awarded. Last year, according to Miss Margaret Bass, director of the Vocational Guidance and Placement in Teach Court Fee Scholarships were issued.

Recent totals show that $2,403 collected in fines from campus violations has been deducted in the student traffic court account this school year.

"A big company works for me . . ."

JOHN D. EVANS, University of Pennsylvania, 1953

"I began working on a training program for General Electric in the summer of '52. Right now, I'm 'Employee and Plant Community Relations Manager' of my company's new plant in Burlington, Iowa. One of the advantages I found in working for a big company such as General Electric is that, because of its size, it is able to give me, and other college-graduate employees like me, a wide variety of training and experience in any one of 159 plants all over the country. Through an extensive on-the-job training program, it is providing me with the opportunity to become one of the top men in my field, and I know that as long as I apply myself to each job, I'll keep moving up. The way I look at it, General Electric is helping me help myself. That's why I say: I'm working for a big company, but a big company works for me, too."

This wide framework of opportunity is a unique characteristic of a company of General Electric's size. 27-year-old John Evans is just one example of the thousands of college graduates at General Electric, each being given the opportunity for self-development so that he may grow and realize his full potential.

As our nation's economy continues to expand in the years ahead, thousands of young people of leadership caliber will be needed to fill new positions of responsibility in American industry. General Electric feels that by assisting young people like John Evans in a planned program of personal growth, we have found one way of meeting this need.

A Manager of Employee and Plant Community Relations at General Electric holds a responsible position; he handles employee benefits, health and safety, training, wage and salary administration, and community relations.

Prexy Candidates Speak

GREENFIELD

TESCHKE

WHY I'M QUALIFIED

The Florida Flambeau requested the two candidates for Student Body President to prepare statements as to why they feel qualified to hold student government's top spot and why they are seeking the position.

Arnold Greenfield and Graham Teschke were told they could write as substantial articles as they wished. But that it would be to their favor to write concisely so that the articles would be read.

Below are their statements, in their own words.

Attitude Important in Prexy: Greenfield

One consideration should always be in mind about the Student Body Presidency — that it is a job concerned with representing and serving the student. The students' well being and best interests must always be the object of the President's thoughts and actions.

In the past three years I have been active in the executive branch of student government. My experience has enabled me to know and work with literally hundreds of people whose friendship I cherish dearly. I can honestly say that my every effort of student government work is the hope that thousands of students may derive some benefit if your efforts as representative are successful.

During the time that I have been in the Lommen Building I have come to know that I can honestly say that I have always tried to do my best for every person in every way who pays an activity fee. If elected I will promise that I will never forget that I am a member of the Student Body, and both on campus and off campus will conduct myself accordingly.

Experience is another important factor which needs to be clearly emphasized—but factor is very important. To either a of student government work or in a position of student affairs one must be familiar with both the technical operation and the principles involved in the program.

The only way to get to know the complex duties of the office is to work with the Student Government. Two years in the office have given me at least a working knowledge of the duties and functions of the office.

Leadership Needed In Position—Teschke

The President of the Student Body must be a leader and have leadership qualifications. With this in mind I am addressing my all around experience on campus and the fact that I have been elected President, within the past three and a half years, of two student groups that have numbered over fifteen hundred each.

Direct experience is NOT essential or a prerequisite to the job. It is easily realized when we talk in the present Student Body Officers about the "learn the job" program they are planning for the last two months of this year.

THROW OFF SHACKLES

I believe that within the next few years we will feel the final shackles of a small Lime University thrown off and we must have persons in office that can win the ire and respect of the Student Body.

Next year the new officers have a very important job aside from their administrative duties. The primary job next year is one to promotion and developing the interest of the citizens in the Student Government. Now do not misunderstand me, I do not underestimate the duties of the Presidency, but if the student interest is parelled with the presidential duties, it will bring the much needed support we should have of the student policy.

CLOSE TO STUDENTS

To win this interest, the officers of next year are going to have the job of taking the government to the students. I now feel that the students are lacking in knowledge concerning the workings of student government. I will work personally with all organizations on campus to raise the level of enthusiasm. For with this support S udent Government will have the backbone it needs.

GRAHAM TESCHKE

Bachman Says Experience Best Standard

By Staff Writer

The best standard for electing a Student Body president is "experience in student government," Bachman says there are no "hard and fast rules" to go by, according to Dave Bachman.

Bachman

Bachman, whose successor will be chosen in Tuesday's campus-wide election, was asked this week by the Florida Flambeau what students could consider in deciding how to vo-

"There are many intangible qualities Leadership is one," he said.

Leadership is difficult to define, and it's hard to tell whether someone has it. It consists of ability to hold the respect of the students and university administration.

$2.3 Million Asked For Atom Center

A proposed Florida State University nuclear research center has passed a major hurdle with a Board of Control meeting which said that the site allot $2,300,000 for the project.

The Board also asked $2,800,000 for the University of Florida and $65,000 for Florida Agricultural and Mechanical University in a bid for more than five million dollars to launch a program in nuclear research and studies at Florida universities.

All requests must face the Cabinet, Budget Commission before they go to the Legislature in its final form They may by trimmed at either level.

JOINT COMMITTEE

In addition, the board will ask $35,000 to pay consultants and expenses of an interinstitutional faculty committee on nuclear studies and research.

Included in the PSU request is construction and equipping of a building to cost $1,910,000, which will house two high energy nuclear accelerators.

Chemistry, physics, medicine, meteorology, geology, food technology and biological sciences are the fields in which research will be carried on. The departments, although they are in separate buildings will work together to benefit from the center.

NEW INSTRUMENTS

A 5 MeV Electron Accelerator, is in the Florida A&M program.

a computer and a 10-12 MeV Charged Particle Accelerator will be among the equipment installed. This machine, which is a new type of Van de Graaff Linear Accelerator, will be one of four in the world. The other three are proposed for the University of Wisconsin, the California Institute of Technology and the Chalk River Laboratories in Canada. The machine is powerful enough to allow research on the nucleus of the atom according to Dr Hans Plendl, assistant professor of physics.

Dr J. Broward Culpepper, executive secretary of the Board, told members that three leading nuclear scientists studied the board's proposed program and their recommendations were incorporated.

U OF F BUILDING

A nuclear science service building is requested at $1,950,000 and included in the $2,800,000 for the University of Florida. The structure would be part of a physical science and techology center.

Senators Okay NSA After Convention Trip

Women's Vice President Carolyn Close and Senator Polly Atwater returned this week from the National Intercollegiate Association of Women Students Convention at Michigan State University, where they discussed the National Student Association with the organization's president.

The PSU delegates met Harold Bakken, NSA president, at the convention where 500 representatives from 390 colleges and universities in the nation gathered to discuss, "The Role of the Educated Woman as Student and Citizen."

COMMITTEE NAMED

The Student Senate appointed a special committee Wednesday to investigate the NSA and report back in a month on whether or not PSU should join.

Miss Close said that in discussing the organization with Bakken, she learned that policies of the NSA were not binding on member schools. When the issue was voted upon the Senate two years ago many objections were made to joining the group which has desegregation policies.

"I believe membership in the NSA would be beneficial to PSU," Miss Close declared. "After talking to the group's president I feel that there is room for minority opinions in the organization."

COMMENTATOR SPEAKS

Miss Pauline Frederick NBC commentator was the main speaker on the United Nations, was the key note speaker at the convention in which PSU has sent delegates for three years.

We discovered that schools all over the nation were faced with the same problems that we are. Close remarked.

Senator Atwater, now running for Women's Vice President, was runner-up in the office of Treasurer. Vice President of IAWS listing for the Student Union Close was asked to run for office of National Executive Secretary, but declined.

Student Lobbyists To Stress Salaries

READ LETTERS FROM SENATORS—Jan Kamins, chairman of student government "lobby committee," and Phil Knight, discuss correspondence. Other committee members are Dave Bachman and Bob Murray.

Letters Sent To Legislators

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

If there are any members of the Legislature who think students don't care about education, they're in for a surprise.

The Student Government "lobby committee" is stressing two things in the contacts with Florida's lawmakers better salaries for faculty members as well as for students and graduate assistants.

Although the Legislature doesn't meet until Tuesday, letters have already been sent to members of the Senate and House of Representatives committees backing up the salary proposals, and suggesting other things for Florida State University.

THREE POINTS

At first, according to Student Body President Dave Bachman, a member of the committee, the committee planned to ask for a swimming pool, student union building, and a school of engineering. But the pool proposal has been shelved for more important things, and the student union will not be considered and is not a possibility for this Legislative session, leaving only the engineering school as a good object.

The committee's argument, which it believes fairly represents both faculty and students, is that a more adequate salary means to Florida with an influx of industry makes an engineering school here a necessity.

"MAXIMUM EFFICIENCY"

"Our present facilities should be developed to their maximum efficiency", the group wrote to the members of the appropriations committees.

But there is a lot more chance for the faculty and student body pleas to become reality, some believe. This is because increases in total appropriations funds for wages for 1957-59 are in the budgets that have already been presented to the Legislature while a pool, student union, and engineering school were never strong in the running.

The Board of Control requested a $3,704,903 increase in salaries for the biennium a total of $14,794,024 for wages.

DIFFERENT BUDGETS

Against this however, is the fact pointed out by the Florida Cabinet Budget Commission that only $1,823,645 more be appropriated for salaries this time than last.

Dr J. Broward Culpepper, executive secretary to the Board of Control, said that "operating budgets" won't be drawn until the Legislature makes its appropriations. But he indicated he would benefit both faculty members and student assistants, he commented.

And this is what the Student Government committee is to meet - with - the - Legislature, which doesn't have a formal name yet, has taken note of.

The Leon High Boys' Chorus, directed by Harold Chapman, will be featured in several numbers in the program as special guests of the Glee Club.

The program for the evening will include "Here Ye Ambrose" a chorale from the St. Matthew Passion by J. S. Bach, Franz Schubert's "Ave Maria", and "The Heavens Are Telling" from the Creation, by Haydn.

The second group will be "The Angels Chant" from Goetze's Faust, by Schubert-Saar; and the "Consecration of a Church" by Parsifal, by Richard Wagner.

BOYS' CHORUS

For the third portion of the concert, the Leon High School Boys' Chorus will sing.

The Women's Glee Club will turn to lighter music and will do a folk ballad "Sweet Miss Mood Mountain," by Hagy-Gerachefski; with Gunter as bass soloist.

The final group of selections will include "Oh Dear! What Can the Matter Be?," by Gail Kubik, "Low Lands," a captain chantey arranged by Tom Scott, "Oh Rae Shine," a spiritual arranged by Carl Parrish; another spiritual called "Soul Away," arranged by Roy Ringwald, and "I Will Sing Ca'ed Love," by Porter Warnick and "Give Me Your Tired, Your Poor," by Berlin-Ringwald.

Thirty students from Zeta Tau Alpha sorority and Kappa Alpha fraternity helped the Capital Area Easter Seal society prepare Easter Seals for mailing Wednesday evening.

The main project of the ZTAs and KAs will be the sale of lilies, made by crippled children a fund, said Miss C. H. Ervin, president of the Easter Seal Society for the capital area.

Placement Office Tells How

Seniors—Play It Cool, Find Jobs

By DOLORES LAFFERTY

Today's prospective college graduate should have a flexible attitude in getting a job the field he has chosen he follows the right procedure, according to the college's placement office.

His first step is to contact the 339 Westcott, to fill out form for an individual placement. These files become permanent records for later references by future employers, many of them. Even if a student has a job prospects of one he should fill out the forms as they will be permanent set of credentials which could then qualify him for, said J. C. Hardy, head of placement.

The opportunity range from the good to excellent for the college graduate of 1957," he said. "It corresponds with a recent study by the government that there is an average of five jobs per graduate from schools of study.

POPULAR SERVICE

Over 80 per cent of the graduates take advantage of the service offered. Approximately 300 business and government agencies and had representatives on this campus in Jan.

Of course, any job will not do for Hardy. He is always interested in finding for the individual according to his training, aptitude, and interest.

Business and educational jobs are the most sought after by graduates, with these same two fields leading other fields in offers. While teaching is the main branch in education, business breaks down into a marketing, management and accounting, for job possibilities.

FIRST PAY

Students are unwise to stress the starting salary rather than the opportunities they will have for advancement, Hardy said.

Education is the lowest paying of the major fields, with engineering and accounting, for job possibilities.

Other fields such as accounting, showed a starting pay from $3,396-$4,008. Business majors in $3,600-$4,500 and $4,500 to $4,600; chemists, $4,300 to $5,460; geologists, $5,160 to $5,580; radio-TV and newspaper journalists, $2,100 to $3,300; liberal arts majors, $3,000 to $5,500, banking majors, $2,892 to $3,000 and social welfare workers, $2,892 to $3,400.

AVERAGES

"These are only averaged estimates, for quite often salaries run much higher and sometimes lower," said Hardy.

The college graduate of today apparently has plenty of jobs to choose from.

While the college graduate of today may have plenty of jobs to choose from, it doesn't mean that he takes what has the largest starting wage.

An Opinion Research Corporation survey in Fortune magazine said last year that seniors most often cited chances for advancement and interesting work as most important factors in them while salary, pay and other benefits ranked toward the bottom of the list.

Economist Interviewing

FSU Losing Profs Fast

By SUE LOWELL

Over 50,000 teachers a year leave the profession for industry, and Florida State University's problem is greater than that of most schools, according to John M. Scheidell of the economics department.

Twenty-two of the 28 faculty members who resigned their positions at PSU last year went to higher paying universities according to the annual report of Budget Commission.

The top salary at an FSU professor made is $8,100 a year, whereas 14 other universities pay $10,000 and above.

ASSOCIATE PROFS

Associate professors at Florida State earn $6,400 while the University of Illinois pays $7,628 and the University of California offers up to $8,940.

Illinois and California pay their assistant professors $5,764 and $6,628 respectively while an FSU will offer only $5,215 as a starting salary.

Even the higher salaries can't compete with industry however. A salary report was made by the University of Illinois chapter of the American Association of University Professors in 1956.

"This report," said Scheidell "indicates that in a survey of different colleges this cause for the constant erosion of their intellectual resources was mentioned as the most important contributor. The basis again is the salary alternatives offered by industry and government . . . with industry naturally leading the two."

INDUSTRY OFFER

"One chairman stead that a member of his staff earning $12,000 was seriously considering an industry offer of $30,000 and another professor recently contained an article in which three salary offers for inexperienced PhDs were seen as not uncommon."

In FSU a man can earn his PhD and receive $5400 as an assistant professor. This amount can be compared to the following starting salaries in other professions for people holding only a bachelor's degree accountant — $5,000, industrial relations specialists — $5,000 to $5,500, business majors—$4,500 to $5,000, chemists — $5,000 to $5,400 agriculture — $4,200 to $5,000.

PROFESSIONS

The legal, dental and medical professions add another cause for the shrinking supply of teachers, according to Scheidell.

"The average income of a physician in 1953 was $15,000, while the dentist received an annual income of $8,300 and 25 per cent of the lawyers in 1955 had received more an income bracket of $10,000 and above".

"Even the government is helpins to cut down the supply of qualified graduates, offering security and a starting salary ranging from $4,000 to $5,000, the government is able to drain off some good people because the salary offer is low."

INDUSTRY INDUCEMENTS

Service to humanity, long vacations, and many other equivalent arguments can no longer be used to bring people into the profession according to the economist.

Industry has gone all out in its campaign to recruit the intellectual and has included among its offers such benefits as greater freedom in research, greater security extended vacations, expense paid professional travel, income expense and family transportation paid, company cars, and many other benefits."

Vote 'Yes' On Amendment To Give Court Penalty Discretion

Probation of eight students who cheated on an examination has served to focus attention upon the honor system and the court that is charged with administering that system.

The Honor Court is strong but has dealt fairly with each case as it has been presented. It has gained the faith of many of those who in the past were wary and even antagonistic toward the Honor System. People convicted by the court have been heard to compliment the group on the fairness with which trials have been conducted.

BUT THE Honor Court is no better than the system which binds it. And the system, as it stands at present, is tying the hands of the court.

According to the present requirements of the Student Body Constitution, the maximum penalty for an offense is approximately the same as the minimum penalty. There is little room allowed for the court to use its discretion in meting out penalties. The degree of guilt and the seriousness of offense are matters that may be taken into consideration only to a minute degree.

UNDER THE proposed revision, the Honor Court would receive the power to use its discretion in the judgment of the seriousness of the offense, the degree of guilt, and any extenuating circumstances that might arise. This is a needed and necessary power, one that is held by civil and military tribunals.

We therefore urge every student of Florida State University, in order to make the University a better one, to VOTE "YES" FOR THE PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT IN TUESDAY'S STUDENT BODY ELECTION.

Inter-Dorm Council Formation May Help 'Independents' To Be More 'Sociable'

Organization of an Inter-Dorm Council to promote social activities among residence halls should be welcome news to these relatively inactive groups.

We do not know whether the organizers plan to develop the Inter-Dorm Council into an organization with such broad activities as the Inter-Fraternity Council and the Pan-Hellenic Council, but even if they are able to bring about more social activities, their efforts can be counted a success. As things stand now the social fraternities stage more parties, get-togethers and other events than do the dormitories.

Non-membership in social fraternities by no means implies an abstinence from social activity, and if the new Inter-Dorm Council functions well enough it should be able to demonstrate this more adequately than it has been shown in the past.

Here Is One Non-Student Activity

That Students Still Have To Finance

An important distinction exists between the playing of football and other activities of students.

Student activities other than study are usually referred to as "extra-curricular" activities. Football does not come under this category and can better be described as "non-curricular".

The difference is that the word "extra" refers to something in addition to that which is required. At Florida State University extra-curricular activities are intended to add to the students' learning. Football does not assist in the learning of anything except how to play and coach football—and one does not need to attend a university to learn these things.

To give examples, students of music participate in extra-curricular musical organizations which give them a more firm grasp of the things they are trying to learn.

Campus politicians put into practice things they have learned as students of political science. Workers on publications, though not necessarily journalism majors, get practical experience in learning newest methods of writing and editing.

THOSE HERE who make positions on football team are first of all football players and students only secondarily. When an ordinary "student" as a success at football it is a marvel indeed and one which attracts considerable attention.

Football does not necessarily prevent a player from being a student but it can do that. There are two reasons for this: (1) football requires so much time and energy that it impedes study; (2) players are brought here with scholarships for the express purpose of beating our opponents in football—they realize they are expected to become good athletes by necessity and good students (if at all) by coincidence.

If a football player during his years here acquires that kind of knowledge a university is supposed to instill into its students, he deserves commendation for this exceptional effrnts.

We have much respect for those who 'it into this category.

THE "NON-CURRICULAR" nature of football is true to a lesser extent among other sports. They do not require as much time and an "ordinary" student stands a better chance of making the teams. Those who participate are usually students first and players second.

We belabor the distinction between non-curricular activities and extra-curricular activities only because we feel it to be important to the question of the amount of money students should be required to pay for inter-collegiate athletics. Since football absorbs the largest share of what we, as students, are required to pay for athletics (in the "Student Activity" fee), we single it out in our attempt to have the amount we must pay reduced.

IF FOOTBALL could be counted on the list of true student extra-curricular activities, then the amount spent on it would be more easily justified. We have tried to show that football is not really a student activity.

It is our hope that the huge expense of big time football be borne by state money if it is intended for the taxpayers rather than students in the future rather than to so large a degree by students—on the pretense that it is a student activity.

Bring Back My Umbrellas

TO THE EDITOR:

Beware the umbrella stands at the Library!

During the past two months I have supplied a large, black umbrella to two unscrupulous students there, as they departed into the rain. How convenient for them.

SINCE MY second umbrella disappeared today (March 25), perhaps the culprits, after reading my last letter, will be moved to drop into umbrellas off at the Lost and Found office in Administration Building, after a stopover at Landis.

SECRETS OF SUCCESS

ACP)— Why do some students succeed while others fail? Lehigh University's BROWN AND WHITE asked that question and got a variety of answers from readers.

Among factors contributing to success and failure, good high school training, confidence study atmosphere, "a good beginning," much time spent on homework, "luck," lack of genuine interest, and dull instructors.

Chevie's Sebring SS May Start Real Safety Race

By OSCAR JOHNSON

Students who get a kick out of cats may be interested in Detroit's latest passtime. Unveiled in the main exhibit hall at the Sebring sports car race of last week, it is Chevrolet's SS Super Sport.

It is doubtful if we'll see any body building this super-deluxe Corvette around We're

DETROIT'S ONLY SPORTS CAR IN ACTION
Corvette 'SS' Flashes Along Sebring Straightway

not too well proven at Sebring. The blue roadster-shaped SS dropped out early in the race due to overheating and burned-out brakes.

Such a hardly the whole tale. The Corvette may not have finished the race but it has started something which may be of great importance to all American sports cars.

FIRST A BIT of background on the race. Called the Florida International 12-Hour Grand Prix of Endurance, it is one—the only one in North America—of twelve such races held in international judging for the sports car championship. The race, easily the most significant one on this continent, pits the world's top sports drivers in the best cars against each other over a 3.2 mile twisting, curving flat airport course that can exhaust even the best car during its 12-hour duration.

Last year a full-souped Corvette came in seventh. This showing, difficult to explain to anybody who hasn't seen the United States doesn't have the best in everything, did not make good advertising. So Chevrolet made a practically last-minute attempt. The SS was hastily finished when it was entered in the race, barely knew what it was to expect of it to come up with a winner this year.

FROM START-HAND observation, we can state without qualification that the car will win. From the observer's viewpoint, it seemed to be able to stick with even the rapid Maserati of world champion Juan M Fangio the car which won the race and the driver who also won last year's race.

From the shrieking bellow of its exhaust to its mechanical refinement, the SS is a true sports car—designed to win without necessarily having power seats, windows, brakes, steering cigarette lighters, ad nauseum. There's lots to admire.

IF DETROIT is in the racing business now, and we are convinced that it would not have laid out the cash required to build the SS if it were not the case, it is possible that mechanical perfection will be more emphasized in the future than gadgetry in cars.

As it stands now, the roadability, braking systems and other mechanical components have been refined and the placement of the engine of the Detroit "big three" Chevrolet, Ford and Plymouth—"one inch back, one inch closer to the center of gravity" is the main reason for the SS's success.

Such a handling job should take the Corvette all over the track. Its cornering is unbelievable for a car of its size. Its acceleration is unbelievable for a car of its size. Its braking is unbelievable for a car of its size.

Its price is unbelievable for a car of its size.

FSU's Student Senate Has No Quorum Troubl

By JIM McINTYRE

One of the favorite pastimes among the gentle folk who inhabit the FSU campus has always been rolling up the eyes of the politically minded people who haunt the chambers of Student Senate.

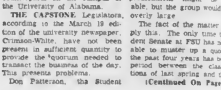
Senators have been subjected to ridicule for trying to do too much and for not doing enough. They have been criticized for living in a dream world of ideals and for being so mundane in their approach to problems that they have no imagination.

THEY HAVE received criticism from members of the student body. Some of the criticisms have been warranted, but most have been made in the light of insufficient knowledge.

One thing of which the FSU Student Senate has never been accused, however, is not being interested enough to attend the meetings of that body. In this respect the Student Senators are far outstrip the efforts of their counterparts on the campus of the University of Alabama.

THE CAPSTONE Legislators, according to the March 15 edition of the university newspaper, Crimson-White, have not been present in sufficient quantity to provide the quorum needed to transact the business of the day. This presents problems.

Don Patterson, the Student Government Association president who presides at these times, has found himself wishing to do but twiddle his thumbs for about thirty minutes a week while waiting for the legislators to show. This is to make them unhappy has been quoted as saying that the members who do not answer regularly could be expelled from the organization.



NOT ONLY are the absolutions liable for expulsion, but they may also be liable to pay fines for the non-attendance. This is most interesting part of the whole story. If the student legislator can not afford to pay a fine of $2.00 for each absence during the term Orientation this could run into money.

THE NUMBER of legislators running to succeed themselves could be, and probably will be exceedingly slim. We're thinking in effect the FSU, the best of candidates in the entire student population may not be able, but the group would be overly large.

The fact of the matter is apply this. The only time the Student Senate at FSU has not been able to muster up a quorum in the past four years has been at times between the close of sessions of last spring and the beginning of this fall.

State Doesn't Need Slander

TO THE EDITOR

Those of you who read Gerry Gordon's letter to the editor on Tuesday must have noticed his stress on the fact that the STATE PARTY is a positive party. Now in answer to the questions of some new to our campus asking, "Is STATE PARTY doesn't try to slander other candidates, we would like to say that our policy of positive thinking holds in the area of campaigning too. The STATE PARTY makes a point of picking candidates that have definite points that they can run on. We don't have to take the defensive or negative stand and pick out the small weak points of the others who are running. Dirt could be thrown but members of the STATE PARTY feel that we would be trying down the positive ideals of a clean campaign on which we proudly stand.

NOW YOU CAN see the schedules, bulletins and all that stuff. Nor to answer the phone when you are out sleeping when you want to know whether is going to rain or not for the game tomorrow. And where are the students so deep [illegible] moving. They got 'em in other spots I could mention.

YOU CAN SEE the storm in the teacup that your coffee-klatch habitation has whipped up. One unkind outlander a student from the opposite section of south . . . we have learned to be careful about our words for fear that one of your paying customers even wanted to know how that report he got away with it, been so inefficient that we got to be slandered. We were in the morning until late at night, and sometimes all night organized like some of these ch—, I mean other departments, and we do some pretty good [illegible] and save money on little bills".

IN CONCLUSION quoth a graduate student, "there are many departments in this here office that could learn from the STATE PARTY that teaching classes and running for office at the same time should involve a staff." By organization textbooks tell me so, and I'm going to be quite active in search on executivership. Why with your income you should have look at the [illegible] the . . . well any other department. Why it's a cinch to run with simple arithmetic that the salary allowed to Jo-Sporta could pay four men to campaign for her when compared to that of other "departments".

NOW YOU CAN see the pickle-meat that that front page [illegible] has gotten us in. The only solution I see is for the Flambeau to spell out very simple terms, for the benefit members of the Intramural Board just what empowers sports should have that classification and what it can do not, or vice versa. Those members of the various campus organizations who read every month to post policies and pass legislation and do their damnest to put little of the "democracy" they hear so much about into operation. That ain't a good place for you to put a little effort. It will guarantee a "rise" in classes and sports in one generation. Maybe it would even start a start among the most unclassical group of assorted students on the campus.

Yours for more emphasis on classical sports, dosn't mean Flambeau.

Student, Mathematics Instructor, and one of the [illegible] admirers and readers.

Editor's Note: As they say in the Flambeau office, "it's up, [illegible]." What else can we say, Mr. Walters, but that we're glad you're a subscriber. Only we still say no one's trying to slander anyone with our "controversial" picture.

They teach us in Journalism that a picture is worth a thousand you-know-what. At this time maybe it's the size of the picture that is the purpose of the piss was to show [illegible] and not what the [illegible] gets more money than the classics.

The Roman classic shot we admit we felt obliged to omit from the sports department; didn't show up too well in the engraving. Missing were a couple of togas and sandals, a telephone cord running from a pair of shoulder muff marks on the wall and the general run down condition as compared to a picture of the new men's gym. Important things that should have been used—any of the departments in the history or world literature. Golf campus rejected any office in the men's gym. This is where the imagination is supposed to work.

We aren't especially mad with anyone, but the above terms you asked for would help the intramurals examine. They are a higher percentage of the students' attention by far more [illegible] action and less for football and that the classics and other departments have [illegible] enough money to clean up a bit on the [illegible] of the "Flambeau books". minus, paper, office equipment, etc.).

Come to think of it don't have all "yankees" passing through the Flambeau office to make remarks like you stealing graduate students with literature. Although we could do justice in this answer to your letter. We'll just say, here's hoping that the intramurals have a littler and less football and more emphasis on classics.

The Florida Flambeau will print all signed letters from students except those which are libelous or insidious attacks against individuals. Letters over 250 words may be cut at the discretion of the editor if space is limited. In such cases, where a valid reason is given, the name may be withheld.

Tourney Closes Tomorrow Night

AS TRIBE LOST . . . THEN WON

FSU, Yale Meet; Boxer, Bristol Win

By BEN BALSER
Flambeau Sports Writer

The Florida State Invitational baseball tournament goes into the last stages today as Dudee meets Michigan State at Centennial Field at 3:00 and Florida State clashes with Yale at 7:30 at Centennial Field.

Tomorrow the final two games of the journey will be played with Yale playing Michigan State at 3:00 on the Seminole diamond. At Centennial Field at 7:30 Duke and Florida State will close out the tourney slate.

Going into yesterday's games Michigan State, Duke rad Florida State had identical 2-1 records to form a three way tie for the tournament lead.

Wednesday night, FSU southpaw, Jack Bristol won his second game of the season and also pitched his second shutout as the Seminoles downed Duke 2-0.

SHEPPARD GETS IT

Dick Burton, also a lefty, started for Du ke and held the Tribe scoreless until the eighth inning. After Carlos Hendrix led the inning off with a fly out, The catcher John Sheppard singled cleanly to centerfield.

Owen McCarron followed with a hard hit ctazie to right field which got by the Duke fielder. Dixie Bime, Sheppard scored rapidly and McCarron stopped at third base.

Burton then sut loose with a wild pitch which McCarron took advantage of to score the second and last run of the game.

Bristol allowed only four hits and only walked one batter, this one purposely. He fanned nine men, Burton eight.

Bristol was in mild "hot water" in the seventh inning when Pete Maynard singled and Lon Boncek drew a base on balls. But the next batter, George Atkinson, hit into a quick double play.

In the afternoon contest Wednesday Michigan State came from behind in a five inning game to down Yale 6-5.

Tuesday evening FSU pitcher Jerry Beaver initiated his blazing baseball to advantage as he held the Yale Bulldogs to one hit and shut them out. His teammates, in the meantime, hit two Yale pitchers for seven runs

SPOILS NO-HIT BID

The only hit came off Beaver in the seventh when Bulldog infielder Ed Donnelly lined a clean single. This was Boxer's second victory of the year against no defeats. The big red-haired right-hander struck out 11 men and gave six a free pass to first base.

Phil Hunt, Seminole third baseman, collected two hits and had three RBI's. Fred Twomey also got two hits for the Tribe Mo-Carron, the switch hitting centerfielder, got three hits including a double.

Three Michigan State pitchers were hurrerd for 17 Blu Tweday afternoon as Duke rosted them 21-5. It was the Sportsmen first loss in the tourney and they didn't help themselves by making eight errors.

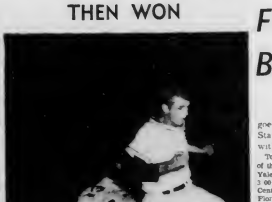
Outfielders Sime and Maynard wielded the big bats for the Blue Devils Sime drove in three runs with a single and a homer. Maynard also drove in three with three hits.

Al Lucio Michigan catche'; hit a home run and a double while driving in one run to pace the Spartan hitters.

OPENING DAY

On the opening day of the tournament Michigan State banged FSU ace second succeasive loss 9-3 Ken Perrasecki, Michigan lefty, held the Tribe to three hits while his teammates blasted four Tribe pitchers for 12 hits

The Seminoles jacked up their runs in the eighth inning on an error and three walks. The Spartans had their big inning in the eighth when five singles netted them five runs.



Duke also had a big eighth inning the same day as they beat Yale 5-4. Maynard paced the Duke hitters by slamming two homers and driving in three runs. Dixie Sherwood, Duke pitcher, also hit a round tripper.

Alan Whitmarsh What's Baseball?

Spring has sprung and Winter has whistled on its way and a young man's fancy (nearly turns to—anything, but baseball, at least, so it seems on this campus.

When the boys who named this flashing diamond sport the "national pastime," did so, they evidently failed to include Tallahassee, perhaps figuring it isn't really in the United States survey.

To say the least, attendance at FSU's several baseball games has not been any too startling. In fact, it has been a little less than last year's.

To be sure, the students can be excused for not attending the current tournament, which ends tomorrow night, in overexuberantly large numbers.

After all, it costs the amazingly, ridiculously, fantastically, phenomenonally high price of 50c to gain entrance, and any student knows that if is almost one whole shovelful of dehydration, at the Seminole Club.

Furthermore, if they went to see even all of the Seminole games in the tournament, etc. it would cost them $3, nearly a whole week's allowance for a college student.

Even the tournament special price of $2.50 was not an enjoyment to the mobs to show up for the contests, because who cares to see such paltry baseball teams as Duke, Atlantic Coast Conference champs, and Yale, Ivy league tuileholders, anyhow?

So, the afternoon contests, which don't involve Pli Eou, draw maybe 250 or 300 hardy persons and the evening contests it's so cold these nights to play baseball anyhow! lure as many as 500 (including bands, players, umpires, scorekeepers etc.),

IN THE NORTH COUNTRY

However, such is not so north of here, where college baseball is a major, well-attended sport, just a pastime for those who stroll with nothing else to do as it seems to be here.

Year for instance, has a farmer's truck which marks an any week-do minor league ball club justice and North Carolina county has long been famous for good college baseball.

When you mix baseball and college baseball, though, you must surely be not even Seminole brand, for re major-league Danny Litwhiler has done a successful job of building a fine club here.

Still 24-5 last year or no, the task of building a ball club big league not to be considerably less than that of getting very many people out to see it.

Twenty thousand people come out every now and then, to see the Seminole football team do battle with the opposition, and over 1000 turned out once this year to see the basketball team in action.

But if 8000 people ever turned out for a baseball game here, Danny would undoubtedly do cartwheels in the street, and each member of the athletic business office would make a personal thank you to each of those present.

The case is not limited to the not too hallowed confines of the Tri Capital City of the Sunshine State, however as the same problem is confronted by minor league baseball owners all throughout the south.

The rebels just aren't and never have been, wild baseball fans except where the big-league exhibition games are concerned

CIVIL WAR SPIRIT

Maybe it brings out the Civil War spirit in them more to see some brawny musclemen bruising each other on a grass gridiron than to see an average athlete bruising the cover of a poor hapless horsehide on the baseball field

Even in the booming metropolis of Miami, which is largely populated by transplanted Yankees anyhow, it took Class AAA ball, just a step short of the majors, to convince the Miami fans that they could tolerate the sport.

Both the Florida International League (Class B) and the Florida State League (Class D) have folded, though the latter is hoping to get back on the road to prosperity this season.

Part of this is undoubtedly due to the radio and television coverage of the big leagues, but it also must be pointed out that this coverage is limited to daytime activity, while the minors usually go into action after dark.

We might as well face it, baseball, sun, sand and water skis just don't mix—at least not in the summertime.

Maybe someday Miami will go big-league and overnight, there'll be a historical reawakening of diamond interest in the state.

Until then, though, the college boys will just have to play for the experience and glory in the newspaper headlines not for the paltry number of die-hard fans in the stands

Things could be worse, and we can picture the college ball fans of the future who walks out on the field to exchange quips with the opposition, glances cheerfully at the crowd and exclaims

Wow, 50 people tonight, best crowd of the season, boys!"

Lucky girl!

Next time one of her dates bring up the Schleswig-Holstein question, she'll really be ready for him.

Ready for that test tomorrow, too . . . if that bottle of Coke keeps her as alert tonight as it does other people.

BEST TIMES

Long also said that, "LSU has the best chance of winning the meet. They have a well balanced team in addition to having some excellent men."

The Seminole Freshmen team, which Long said has "good quality" will enter two relays. The team will be made up by Claude Grinnard, Ted Keen, Jack Riley, Charles Ney, and Tom Kenny

Versatile Trackster Brown Handles Four Events: Hurdles Best

By BESS WELLER
Flambeau Sports Writer

Tenney Brown, senior track man from Bradenton Beach, Fla., is one of the most versatile members of the team.

"He takes part in and does very well in several events," says track coach Mike Long Tenney participates in the high hurdles, low hurdles, high jump, and broad jump.

Tenney's best event is the high hurdles," commented Long.

The 22-year old hurdler started running in the third grade when he attended school in St Petersburg His ambition then was to be a miler. He was a member of his junior high track team for three years

IN BRADENTON

While attending Manatee County School in Bradenton, Brown gave up his ambition to be a miler when his best event was a 6' 1" for a year until it was broken by his roommate Lloyd Lassen who holde it now at 6' 3".

State Vs. Student

Parties Claim Reform Credit

Spokesmen of the two campus political parties—the State and Student—disagreed this week as to which party should take credit for reforms and accomplishments of student government.

Student Party leader and Student Body Vice President Jim Sides told the Flambeau that he felt justified in crediting 14 accomplishments to the Student Party. See below.

Gerry Gordon, State Party chairman and student senator said that while he would not claim full credit for all the legislation claimed by the opposition party, he thinks 11 of the points named by Sides were either passed through a State Party-controlled Senate or supported by it when it seemed to be for the student's benefit.

CREDIT DISPUTED

Sides strongly denied that the State Party should receive any credit whatsoever for the 14 points. He said the points originated with Student Party leaders were introduced into the Student Senate by Student Party senators, a Student Party majority senate passed the bills, and Student Party members of the executive branch carried out the measures passed.

State Party held a majority of the Senate during the period between class elections last year in May until precinct elections in November. It has been most successful in class elections, while the Student Party has elected every Student Body president and most Senators since its founding in 1853.

YOUNG PARTY

Gordon declared "the State party is a young, dynamic party which has taken great bounds in the past year. He said it was established so that "more students might have a chance to voice their opinions and ideas."

John Howard, Student Party chairman, asserted that his party is but one year older than the State party.

The points claimed by Sides and disputed by Gordon are listed below.

14 POINTS

Securing car wash facilities assisting students in obtaining homecoming concessions, acquiring a student insurance program, securing a higher minimum salary for student assistants and student employes.

Revising the honor system and Honor Court, securing appropriation of more money for Junior-Senior prom, establishment of the Student Artist Series, establishment of the Board of Publications.

Introduction and passage of bill to provide a more equitable system of student representation in Senate, establishment of a student lobbying group, establishment of a reserve fund for the financing of a ra[illegible] as imming pool.

Organization of a Student Speakers' Bureau, establishment of a "buddy system" to help foreign students adjust to the campus, and the establishment of a student travel service.

it can do and what it can't do, what it should and should not do, and is learned wisely through experience," said the chief executive.

A Student Body president should be able to view Student Government within the perspective of the entire university and think in terms of long run effects rather than short term actions, said Bachman.

WAGES

For that reason, he said, the student lobby committee shelved its plans to ask the State Legislature for a swimming pool because other items on its program—increased faculty and student assistant wages" would be more important to the students.

Bachman said the office of president is an administrative not a politicians job.

"We don't" he said, "pretend to perform a public relations function.

The speeches a president is called upon to make to civic, collegiate and school groups "come with the job. They are not the job," he said.

PROJECTS

"The president must be familiar with the many projects which Student Government administers such as student insurance plan, Buddy system, Campus Chest, and financial organization," Bachman explained.

"You're not to know the organization except the traffic situation, the Honor System, the elections system, the Student Affairs Series and how it works."

There are more delicate responsibilities as well Bachman said.

Student Party leader and Student Body Vice President Jim Sides told the Flambeau that he felt justified in crediting 14 accomplishments to the Student Party. See below.

alarmed about several of our top faculty members leaving the University for better jobs," they wrote. "Teaching loads are getting larger each year. With the State of Florida constantly growing in importance students need the top training for preparation available. I know we would ask you to approve the increased out-lay for faculty salaries.

"There is also listed an increased allotment for student and graduate assistants. At present, wages are insufficient for a student to depend on entirely. Also some of the lower paying jobs are not worth the student's time when it is considered that he should be using the time to study. However many students must work at these low wages in order to eat through school. We feel that it definitely would help alleviate the situation and would be in the best interest of our Student Body if the wage increase were approved."

PRESSURE

The student government representatives don't think of themselves as lobbyists in the sense the public does, Bachman explained.

"We don't want to apply any 'pressure' they just want to establish good relations."

Many nonresident nurseries do this, and the University of Florida student government should have representatives "on the scene" for years.

The popular conception of a lobbyist is that of a nasty, silk cadabout with a large expense account and a magnificent mercenary selfishness. The student "lobbyists" just don't match that description.

PETITE CHAIRMAN

Chairman of the committee is petite Jan Kamuie, public administration major and Secretary of State in Student Government.

On the committee are Phil Knight, sophomore, whose father is a member of the Senate; Bob Murray, whose father, the late Perry Murray, was speaker of the House and Bachman.

As a member explained it the object of the committee is good relations. "Pressure," he said, "have the best interests of the school and of higher education already at heart."

This year's work will be mostly a ground-work for future student governments, he said.

ALAN'S AISLE

Flick Is 'Friendly' But 'Persuasive Also

By ALAN KASS

At the movie front this weekend, quite by accident, we have several pictures that either have been played before, or are a bit late in arriving. The most notable of these is the Allied Artist film "Friendly Persuasion."

According to the advance publicity the actors in Jessamyn West had been in the mind of one of America's foremost movie craftsmen, William Wyler, for several years. The final results show the careful planning that separates the good movies from the bad.

The picture has everything in the way of comedy and drama, suspense and action. Since the running time is two hours and fourteen minutes, the movie is as at leisurely pace.

The episodes of the Birdwell family rise the heart and squeeze many a tear. After many arguments of family life, the story comes to a dramatic crisis bringing on the Quaker problem. A bear arms against a fellow man Climax has the son Enlisted against a Confederate invasion and the father joining the son in battle.

The role of the Quaker father, a man touched with gentle humor and inward strength, is played by Gary Cooper. He restores a measure of his true personality and interpretation.

Dorothy McGuire, an Academy Award nominee, plays the mother of the family, somewhat of a preacher of Peace who is not always able to understand the qualities of her husband.

Anthony Perkins role is scheduled to appear in seven pictures before 1958, reportedly plays the son. The scene of his leave-ask she should not leave a dry eye.

There are several songs in the score by Dimitri Tiomkin. The most popular is the title tune sung by Pat Boone whose style is a bit better than the sexy serpentine and weaving and nocturnal voice of that other Tennessee singer. The song was also up for an Academy Award.

The supporting cast is also worth mentioning. Young Richard Eyer, as the little ass stands out, especially of his scenes with Samantha, the goose. Phyllis Love and Marjorie Main are also cast well in their parts.

"Friendly Persuasion" can best be classified a family picture. It has a star cast, it is well-made and it will not offend anyone. It has appeal for any sort of an audience and is certainly one of the key pictures of the past year. Few movies, none of late, have so brilliantly captured the life of an American family.

Judging from the roars of the audience at the preview to "Invasion of The Body Snatchers," the people expect to laugh it up as well. And that the science fiction thriller is actually a fair

ACP- Staff members of the REFLECTOR at Mississippi State College timed cars going through campus. Of 30 cars checked in a 45-minute period only 2 were within the speed limit.

U.S. POPULATION CALLED DISPLACED

There are mass movements of people within United States that almost parallel the migrations of Europe's displaced, according to a Florida State University professor.

Dr Victor Mamatey, historian addressing the weekly Research Studies audience cited the movement of people from some southern states to northern cities such as Pittsburgh and Chicago.

He said the migrants, mostly from Kentucky, Tennessee Mississippi, Mississippi Alabama, and Alabama, who go north looking for better economic conditions are compressed into areas where equally conditions seem to like bare more of the bad than the good in them.

"The case of the 'Chicago hillbilly' is not new for America is historically the home of the 'uprooted,'" Dr. Mamatey observed.

Except for the very first settlers, he said, America's immigrants all come seeking better economic and social conditions.

Since the doors to immigration were closed after World War I, internal shifting within the country such as that of the "Chicago hillbilly," has continued to stimulate a condition of unrest.

The latter camp is now a very commonplace sight in any city, and is a symbol of the age," said Dr. Mamatey.

"The American who is born, lives and dies in the same area is rather unusual.

Many people, he said, fear that Americans "are becoming nomads, and that the displacement lessens values and weakens family ties, which in turn causes crime.

But it has, he observed, made for a freer individual and for the accommodation of people of "most diverse backgrounds."

He commented that American immigration restrictions were tightened at a "crucial" time— when the rise of European ta-

IT ALL ROLLS down to a statement about FSU Student Senate that should shed some light upon the reliability of that group. It seems that the lax manners and desperate eyeballs to the contrary are much more in earnest about student government than those at many other institutions.

Manners: Honesty, Conformity?

By MARGARET McLEAN

In order to vary the contents and approach of this article, today's column shall begin to deal with The Social Amenities or Manners can be Fun for Everyone?

It appears that students tend to set themselves apart from the rest of the world and as a part of their own universe they function to their own code of ethics, standards, mores, etc. This solution has its virtue because the "outside world" is vulnerable to improvement and the creation of a new sphere might alleviate a handsome lot of the errors.

It is also true that citizens of both societies are human beings and that human beings desire passionately to be accepted. Since it is inevitable that the two spheres will overlap during and after a college career, the avant-garde group and the stuffed-shirt group shall have to draw up a truce and sign it in a neutral zone at least to live together compatibly.

No one wants to fore go his personal convictions in order to conform and no one wants to be a hypocrite either. It is not also true that no one wants to be tabbed "slob", "young upstart", "pseudo-intellect", "bearded anarchist", etc. Well the answers to such questions will of necessity be yes and no, depending upon who dares to call another such names and why.

It, therefore, becomes apparent that, as in any situation dealing with more than one individual, this is no simplex thing to reckon with, because everyone must decide what he or she expects of themselves, and the most advantageous and digestable way to adjust it to particular situations if they can.

There is no need for a man or woman to have a double set of standards for themselves or for there to be a set of standards for men and one for women. Why is it the term "gentleman" sounds almost quaint and the term "lady" is usually the name of female cocker spaniel? Maybe it's because the behavior expected of the two terms is no longer in existence.

I think this is, at once, tragic and fortunate.

An amenity is only a symbol of a certain type of feeling, achievement, or pattern of behavior. For instance, when an elderly person enters a room filled with younger people, the applicable amenity in this case is to stand up until the elderly person is safely seated. The implication or symbol is that the entire group respects the age and wisdom of the elderly person enough to want to stand up for it.

The tragic thing is that the elderly person may be old but not wise, or that every young person in the group despises the elderly person, that only one of the younger set hates the elderly person but certainly does not dare to be the only one seated member of the group.

At any rate this example sites several things: (1) amenities are symbols, (2) amenities are often useless because they cannot be used in a group situation without hypocracy, (3) amenities are stupid patterns and why do we or why should we comply, (4) what's to replace them, (5) you can't win, (6) etc. . . This is an outrageous problem. Is it more important to be courteous or more important to be honest? Should personal convictions prevail or is it possible for personal convictions to be so strong and unyielding within us that we won't care what others think? Can anyone be true to themselves and still be considered a nice person?

The problem is one of my favorites but I've never really solved it. Sometimes it's very important for me to conform, sometimes I refuse to conform, sometimes I don't care, sometimes I go along with the majority.

I'd like to be able to make a concrete solution, but since my temporary solution doesn't ever satisfy me and seldom satisfies anyone else so this is the plan. If you are interested or concerned about this same thing would you please tell me personally or in care of the Flambeau what you suggest, think, or wonder? If you are willing to assist then I, as spokesman, for the collective opinion, will have more to say on this topic and perhaps even a tentative solution can be offered that can serve you and me in the happiest possible way—O.K.?

Campus Dirt To Be Covered Up

The dirt parking lots at the home economics, Conrad and new library buildings are to be paved soon, university officials announced yesterday.

They did not know, however, when the projects will be completed.

According to Rod Shaw, business manager, the State Road Department, which is responsible for roads on the FSU campus, has nearly used up the $90,000 annually budgeted for FSU streets.

Most of the money he said, has been spent paving lots at the men's gymnasium and demonstration school, and helping the entry to the Strozier Library in front of three fraternity houses.

LOTS NEXT

The home economics, Conrad and library lots are the next on the list, he said, but the budget manager indicated.

In an interview with Ray Greer Jr., resident engineer, the Florida Flambeau learned that widening Woodward Drive in front of three fraternity houses.

Front Wheel To Be Engulfed In Campus 'Pot Hole'

'POT-HOLES'

Green said new construction on campus is the prime cause of 'pot holes' in the campus streets.

He said the contractor must tear up the road several times to install gas, sewer, electric and steam systems, but when the roads are re-covered, a satisfactory job is rarely done.

Air - holes are caused by poor construction and shrinkage as it are compressed by the traffic over them, forming depressions in the road.

Green said his staff tries to patch as many holes as possible using materials stored by the contractor.

MONEY LOW

As the biennial budget period is nearing its end, however, money for the low and normal maintenance work cannot be conducted, explained Dr Harry Day, director of the Bureau of service units.

Dr. Day said the university is now constructing a road running into need repair. Work will be begun as soon as possible, he said.

Liberal Education Of Business Majors Sought By Group

EVANSTON, Ill.—(I.P.)—The Ford Foundation has approved a grant of $250,000 to the Northwest University school of business for further development of the school's program of liberal education for business.

Emphasizing the breadth of point of view required of modern administrators, the new program is designed to integrate general education in the arts and sciences with general and specialized training in business subjects.

Richard Donham, dean of the school of business, describes the educational plan as a "movement away from the fragmentation and technical specialization which have characterized traditional programs in liberal arts engineering and undergraduate business education."

The school's educational plan includes a curriculum with four major categories:

Courses interrelating general and professional subjects

General training in business through a series of core courses in each major aspect of a business firm's operation.

Intensive study of selected areas of concentration

A wide range of elective courses.

Instruction methods and materials which involve the student directly as a vital part of the new program. Heavy reliance is placed upon discussion of actual business cases and upon reports and problems which require students to work closely with others.

Classes are kept small and an informal atmosphere is maintained to encourage maximum student participation the opportunity to familiarize myself with the work. I hope that my efforts to learn will be effective in my job have been at least partially successful.

DEEP CONCERN

Just why do I feel qualified in seeking this office? First, because I feel a deep concern for the problems of the campus. Secondly, because I want to do something about them, primarily. Most important I enjoy working with people and for people. It is people who are problems, it is people who have ideas which can solve those problems, so people who must do the work of putting those ideas into action.

As I see it there are two major areas of service involved in the Presidency: on campus activities and inter-campus relations. In both of these areas it is necessary for the President to work with people as well as for people.

MET MANY PEOPLE

Through student government conferences and religious work I have had the opportunity to travel widely and meet many people while representing our University at conferences, conventions, and tournaments. This work in the area of inter-campus relations has been both enjoyable and invaluable experience for me. I hope that I have occasionally brought something of value back to FSU. I hope that I have left a favorable impression of our school wherever I have visited.

More directly important to most of us is what student government does here on the campus. There are twenty-two planks in the Student Party platform, they deal with diverse problems but have one common characteristic. They is like all problems they can be best united by people who are concerned and who know what to do about it.

MUST KNOW OPERATION

Whether the problem is parking and traffic, the infirmary, food services, how to get cars for Sophomores next year, book exchange plans, or anything else it is necessary to have experienced, capable, and concerned people in office if the problem is to be effectively solved. The President must be familiar with how FSU's student government operates if he is to get anything done. Anyone can make a glowing promise—only qualified candida es can hope to fulfill their promises.

Therefore, I ask you only to compare the experience and qualifications of the candidates and vote for the man who can reasonably be expected to do the best job if elected.

Sincerely,
ARNOLD GREENFIELD

ADVICE ON ADVISORS

Recently I made an extensive tour of American campuses, interviewing students and selling mechanical dogs, and one of the most frequent complaints I heard from undergraduates was, "My faculty advisor doesn't really care about me."

Everywhere I went I heard this same cry. Indeed, at one university I found 15,000 students jammed in the field house chanting it in unison. But I am bound to say, dear friends, that you are wrong. Your faculty advisor does care about you. The trouble is, he doesn't know you. And no wonder! How do you expect him to know you when you see him once or so a semester?

Get to be friends with your faculty advisor—like, for example, Alpine B. Sigafoos, a sophomore in timothy and silage at Texas A. & M.

Alpine R. Sigafoos appeared one night in the living quarters of his faculty advisor whose name, by a curious coincidence, was also Alpine B. Sigafoos.

"Good evening, sir," said Student Sigafoos. "I am come so that you may get to know me better and thus help me solve the vexing problems that trouble me."

"And what are those three packages you are carrying?" asked Advisor Sigafoos.

"This," said Student Sigafoos, holding up the first of the three packages, "is a carton of Philip Morris cigarettes, which come in long size or regular, and without which I never stir. It is, sir, a smoke beyond compare—full of fresh, natural, unfiltered flavor that delights the taste, salves the soul, and turns the whole world into one long vista of peace and greenery. Try one, sir."

"Thank you," said Advisor Sigafoos, lighting a Philip Morris cigarette. He puffed appreciatively for an hour or two and then said, "And what is in the other packages you are carrying?"

"I am rather a complex fellow," said Student Sigafoos, "and I don't expect that you will get to know me in a hurry. So," he said, holding up his second package, "I have brought my bed-roll."

"I see," said Advisor Sigafoos, not entirely pleased. "And what is in this third package?"

"Well sir, I know that occasionally you will be busy with other matters and will therefore be unable to spend time with me. So I have brought along my gin rummy partner, Walter M. Handzlik.

In the next two years Advisor Sigafoos, living cheek-by-jowl with Student Sigafoos, got to know all of the lad's personality traits, his hopes, his fears, his dives, his quirks, his aspirations. At the end of that time, armed with true understanding, Advisor Sigafoos concluded that Student Sigafoos's basic trouble was that he was not really college material.

So Advisor Sigafoos got Student Sigafoos a job with the North Star Hockey Puck Corporation where today he is head of the puck-packing department and a happy man.

Advisor Sigafoos is happy too. He has time again to pursue his studies of Tyrtle shagrotus robustus, the hairy frog. At night he plays gin rummy with Walter M. Handzlik.

Restrictions On Student Cars Cause Controversy In Senate

By CHARLEY POITEVINT

Controversy arose in the Student Senate Wednesday on a resolution made by Senator Fred Roberts to propose further restrictions on student cars, but a roll call vote passed the motion almost unanimously.

The resolution calls for the Student Senate "to go on record as opposing any additional restrictions on the possession of automobiles by undergraduates. It also recommends that "positive action be taken to improve driving and parking facilities."

The move in Senate was made prior to the release of certain recommendations to be made to the administration this week by the Student-Faculty Traffic Committee

The committee has been considering several possible restrictions regarding the present traffic rules and has voted upon them, according to Karl Edwards, chairman

POINTS UNDISCLOSED

Edwards would not disclose the definite recommendations at the time but under consideration were the possibilities of stopping traffic between classes, extending the blue sticker parking zone, extending the black sticker zone, and denying sophomores the use of cars.

Objections to the Senate resolution came from Senator Bob Porter, who is also a member of the traffic committee. He told the Senate "the traffic committee is well aware of the problems involved and is doing everything possible to alleviate the situation."

He said the difficulties are due to a lack of sufficient funds about which the committee could do nothing.

STAND URGED

Roberts replied that this might be true, but the Senate should take a stand on the issue and "make people realize we definitely want better driving and parking restrictions."

The Senate also passed a resolution to create the cabinet position of secretary of organizations after electing a section given the Organizations Committee power to disband an organization for Non-cooperation.

Vice President Jim Soles appointed a special committee to investigate the National Student Association and report to the Senate within a month its recommendations on whether or not FSU should join the organization.

—VOTE TODAY—

Polls Open 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., Westcott, Bus Stop, Center, Seminole

Student Body Elections will be held today from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., according to Mitzi McCullough, secretary of elections.

She said that polls will be run by members of Sophomore Council at Bryan bus stop, near the ticket booth in Westcott; at the Student Center, and just inside the front entrance of the Seminole Cafeteria.

In case of rain the bus stop ballot box will be moved to the steps of the old Library.

Miss McCullough announced that results will be posted in 404 Education Building at approximately 9 tonight.

All students, including seniors and graduate students, may vote, but they may vote only once. "If a student votes for anyone else, it will be called deception, not Honor Court offense," explained Miss McCullough.

Students must have their ID cards which will be punched when they vote.

CAMPAIGNING LIMITED

No campaigning is allowed within 50 feet of the polls.

The elections committee will count the ballots into stacks of a hundred each and IBM machines will tally each candidate's votes in each stack.

Highlighting the ballot will be the contest between Arnold Greenfield and Graham Teschke for president. Greenfield is backed by the Student Party; Teschke by the State Party.

Others seeking office are Jan Kaminis, independent, Student Body Vice-President; John G. Brown, independent, and Barbara Burkhardt, Student, Chief Justice of Honor Court; Nancy Worrall, Student, Honor Court clerk; Polly Atwater, Student, and Chris Ginocchio, State, women's vice-president; Hank McCann, State, and Bob Murray, Student, men's vice-president;

CHAIRMEN HOPEFUL

Hopeful predictions for victory in the elections were voiced by party chairman Gerry Gordon (State) and John Howard (Student) yesterday.

Both expressed the view that the race has been free of mudslinging, while it has been a hard-fought campaign.

"All our candidates, particularly Arnold Greenfield (candidate for president) have worked hard. This two parties have worked together, and there has been no unfairness," said Howard.

'POSITIVE COMPAIGNING'

"We are very pleased with the way our candidates have been conducting their campaigns," said Gordon. It has been a very positive type of campaigning that will help politics on campus.

"We hope to see a big turn-out at the polls. Tuesday is the day for the Student Body to show its interest in taking part in Student Government," Gordon concluded.

'Ugliest Man' To Be Chosen

Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, will hold it's fifth annual 'Ugly Man Contest' Monday through Saturday next week.

Votes will be taken at a penny a vote and at a five dollar bill per 1000 votes, at various places on campus, according to chairman Vivian Kalesa. The contest will be concluded with a dance and at the Student Center. April 6th when APO will announce the winner.

Three 4x8 portraits for each candidate were due in Longmire yesterday.

Proceeds from APO's annual project are donated to Campus Chest. The 'ugly men' achieve only votes mainly through make-up and nature.

Junior English Exam Delinquents Named

A list of about 200 juniors and seniors who are delinquent on the Junior English exam has been posed by the English Department, said Miss Martha G. Chapman, director of the Junior English program.

They include those who did not clear the requirement by filing for exemption, having made B or better on English 102, or passing the examination given at the end of the sophomore year.

Each will be assessed a five-dollar delinquent fee unless he presents immediately an acceptable excuse for his failure to comply," said Miss Chapman.

"Such excuses might be absence from the campus on university business or illness in the infirmary at the time of the examination. Commuters and special students are likewise excused when properly explained. A few married women may need to explain a change of name to clear their records.

The list has been posted on the Junior English bulletin board, third floor History Building.

The next examination is scheduled for May 13, 14, 15, 16 and 17.

FSU Sweeps Music Prizes At Convention

FSU students and faculty made a clean sweep at the Florida Composers' League convention at Stetson last weekend, winning all of the awards offered in every classification except high school.

David Ward-Steinman took first prize of $25 with a movement from his Piano Sonata. Mary Armistead placed second, performing a movement of her Piano Sonata, and Tony Sivo received third prize for his Suite for Clarinet and Piano, which was performed by Dixon Redditt and Ward-Steinman.

The Award of Merit, for the best piece heard at the convention exclusive of the student contests, went to John Boda, of the music faculty, who performed his Piano Sonata No. 1. This will be performed at a special program of the Florida State Music Teachers Association in the fall. The alternate selection was Roger McDuffie's Fugue for Two Pianos, which was performed by Boda and Ward-Steinman.

Boda was elected president of the League for the coming year, succeeding Dr. Rosemary Clarke of Stetson University.

Carl Kroll, Pulitzer Prize-winning composer and winner of the Prix de Rome, was the judge in the orchestra Commission on the fact that all of the prize-winners in the college division and convention were students of John Boda and Ward-Steinman. "This is evidence of the good teaching they have had."

Water Safety Course Slated

A Red Cross water safety instructor's course will start Monday in the women's gymnasium, open to persons holding valid senior life saving certificate.

Miss Frances Hall of the women's physical education department said the classes will meet from 8 to 10:30 p.m. on Mondays, Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Grid Fee Charges Said 'Exaggerated'

By JIM McINTYRE

Eddie Cubbon, athletic business manager, said this week that charges of football taking an oversized share of Student Activity money are grossly exaggerated.

"Only about 27 per cent of this year's Student Activities budget for intercollegiate athletics went to football," Cubbon said, and despite the relatively small amount allotted in the total budget for football the football allotment paid out 82 per cent of the total for the administrative personnel of Intercollegiate Athletics."

The administrative personnel with which the statement is concerned are those in the Athletic Business Office and the Sports Publicity office who must divide their time between the various sports.

THREE SCORES

Cubbon explained that the football budget derives its resources from three different areas, gate receipts, guarantees on away games, and student fees. Twenty-eight per cent of the budget total is derived from student fees.

"Two years ago," said Cubbon, "51 per cent of the money for football came from students. Last year 29 per cent was student money."

SIX DOLLARS

Figured on the basis of the official University enrollment of 6,692, the total paid into the football budget by students was approximately $6.34 per person. Cubbon explained that the budget for football might draw a higher percentage of its receipts from student fees during the coming year due to the high guarantees from Miami, Tennessee, and Florida in 1958," Cubbon explained.

BREAKDOWN

The pro rata breakdown of activity fee money for the purchase of a football ticket is as follows: $24; Matriculation: $16; University Activities $26.90; Student Activities: $15.10; Building Fund 1950: $14 Building Fund 1954: $6.

Included in the budget under the '957 series of the Building Fund was a special loan to the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics of approximately $6 per student, to be paid back into that fund when money becomes available in that department.

Dean of Students R. R. Oglesby pointed out to the Flambeau earlier that money is not allotted into allotments per student," Oglesby said.

Both expressed the view that the race has been free of mudslinging, while it has been a hard-fought campaign.

"All our candidates, particularly Arnold Greenfield (candidate for president) have worked hard. This two parties have worked together, and there has been no unfairness," said Howard.

'POSITIVE COMPAIGNING'

"We are very pleased with the way our candidates have been conducting their campaigns," said Gordon. It has been a very positive type of campaigning that will help politics on campus.

"We hope to see a big turn-out at the polls. Tuesday is the day for the Student Body to show its interest in taking part in Student Government," Gordon concluded.

Amendment Published

Here is the wording of the constitutional amendment to be voted upon in today's election:

Section 1 Article V, Section 6 shall be deleted and replaced with the following:

A. Any student found guilty of a violation of the Honor Code shall be given a penalty or penalties according to the degree of the offense as judged by the Honor Court, subject to review by the Faculty Review committee and the president of the University.

C. Any student while under penalty for a violation of the Honor Code shall be excluded from holding office, representing the University on any occasion, and holding or receiving any scholarships administered by the University, subject to review by the Faculty Review Committee and the President of the University. The Honor Court shall may recommend to any agency outside the University the denial or drawal of any scholarship awarded by such agency.

D. Any student found guilty of violating the Honor Code for a second time shall be liable for immediate suspension.

2. This act shall become effective immediately upon passage by the Student Senate and confirmation of the Student Body.

Bachman Tells 'Full Support' Of Greenfield

Student Body President Dave Bachman yesterday announced his "full support and endorsement" of Arnold Greenfield.

Bachman told the Florida Flambeau that "Arnold is my personal choice for the job of President.

He has worked very closely with me this year and has displayed a high degree of ability to cope with the many and varied problems which student government is called upon to handle," the present student government head said.

INITIATIVE

"Arnold has been on the job as attorney general constantly this year and has shown a great deal of initiative, know-how and follow-through. I have acquired the utmost respect for him because of his assembly and interest in carrying out his duties.

"Although his experience he has gained an outlook on the position of President which is most realistic and through which student government can best achieve what the students want.

Arnold has not only the muscle and qualifications necessary for President such as leadership ability and interest, but also has had the kind of preparation for the job, having worked closely with me for the past year and with me this year," he said.

JUSTIFIED

Bachman said he feels "justified in expressing this viewpoint formerly and what it can do for the students and I think if Arnold Greenfield is elected to the office of President it will continue to grow and to prosper."

PKP, West Hall Win Grades Awards

SCHOLARSHIP TROPHIES GIVEN FRAT, PENTHOUSE
Dave Rimm, Phi Eta Sigma president, Dr. A. B. Martin, Jim Nettles, Pi Kappa Phi; and Hal Smith, West Hall.

Pi Kappa Phi and West Hall's Penthouse unit were recipients of the first Phi Eta Sigma scholarship trophies awarded Thursday evening during Freshman men's Honors Night ceremonies.

The rotating trophies are presented by Phi Eta Sigma to the men's residence hall and to the fraternity having the highest percentage of freshmen men with a 3.0 average required for scholarship into the national scholastic honorary for freshmen men.

Jim Nettles, president of Pi Kappa Phi, and Hal Smith, counselor at West Hall, accepted the trophies in behalf of the winning fraternity and dormitory.

Dean Wade L. Stone, of the School of Education, presented a special award to William R. Lindsey for attaining a 3.8 average—highest of any freshman man last semester. Ernest R. Soulamire ranked last below Lindsey with a 3.286 average.

Addressing both students and deans of the various colleges, Dr. A. B. Martin, FSU vice president, praised the high scholarship evidenced by those freshmen attending Honors Night.

Mr. Byrne stressed the need for setting a definite goal and taking advantages of the vast resources that universities have compiled through the ages to achieve that goal.

Political Candidate Asks More Student Gov't News

Student Body presidential candidate Graham Teschke believes the Florida Flambeau should work more closely with student government this year, it was learned over the weekend.

Teschke said he believes the Flambeau is an asset to the campaign, but later said he has no opinion to make of publication.

The Flambeau learned Teschke had mentioned the paper frequently in speeches to sorority and fraternity members. He was contacted by telephone Saturday and interviewed by one staff member with another listening over an extension.

After answering a series of questions concerning what charges he proposed to make in the paper, Teschke said he had to answer another call, and would call the Flambeau back. Repeated attempts by a fraternity brother telephoned to say that Teschke had no statements to make and will not authorize any quotes.

Teschke said in the Saturday morning convention that the Flambeau is "undermanned" and one of the writers "is not respected by students. He also said at a meeting of the Veterans Club last Friday night he said the writers are not respected.

Teschke said in the interview that if students don't resign from some of the writers they can't respect the paper." Asked what specific changes he hoped to make in the paper, the candidate replied, "You haven't got the staff to run a full-time university paper. But this is partly student government's fault."

STIMULATE INTEREST

He added that student government must stimulate more interest among students. The paper should be a spokesman, which it is now, and even more, of student government.

He said, "The average student doesn't know beans about what is going on, and the paper should help student government become closer to the students.

Teschke said students body meetings should be held to acquaint students with their government. These would include telling freshmen what offices they can hold, the qualifications, and duties and functions to tell residents of current student government activities.

MENTIONS RALLY

Asked to state student government activities the Flambeau has not published adequately, Teschke mentioned the Civil Key political rally held Thursday night, and added "is this for a quote?" Asked if he would be reluctant to be quoted on anything he had said he replied, No.

But he added "if this is going to be used against me!" He was

FLAMBEAU EDITORIALS

Candidates Should Bring Before Public

Stands On All Issues In Elections

Interjection of the Florida Flambeau as "an issue" in the campaign for Student Body President came as a surprise to this newspaper.

The candidate who thinks we should report more news of student government never bothered to tell us of his evidently great interest—before the campaign, that is. When we invited his opponent and him to submit articles on why they believed they should be elected, he neglected to mention it there either.

Consequently we were curious as to what the candidate meant, and we began hearing reports of his discussion of this paper. This weekend we called him to ask.

THE ENSUING discussion, as may be gathered from the article on the front page, was a series of attempts on our part to pin him down to specifics. To the extent we were successful in doing this we were able to see that his plans are somewhat vague but not particularly alarming.

In fact, we would be willing to dismiss the whole thing as a difference of opinion—we think the Flambeau is already printing enough, if not too much, news about student government—had not the candidate decided he didn't want to "make a statement for publication."

ON THIS LAST note we submit that neither did Dave Beck want to say anything "in public"—but that when a public figure tries to avoid discussing an issue it may be that he has something to hide.

We are reluctant to impute any dastardly motives to the candidate's coyness; perhaps he feels he can swing a few votes by inducing whatever students are critical of this paper to believe he will effect some (unspecified) change.

IT WOULD BE ridiculous for us to deny his or anybody else's right to criticize our efforts. But we feel that it is the obligation of any candidate for Student Body President to state for the public his feelings on any issue.

The Flambeau staff realizes it cannot please everybody, and expects to receive criticism. It feels, however, that those who are really sincere in their complaints will bring them to the attention of the staff, or the Board of Publications or some other organized group. (Or wrank on the paper themselves.)

We do not receive the same impression of sincerity from a student candidate who suddenly decides on elections eve that he wants something to be done about the paper—especially when he is vague and misleading as to what he wants to do and refuses to face the voters at large.

The Helicopter Era

Use Profits To Set Up Scholarships

Establishment of three $100 voice and chorus scholarships by the Light Opera Guild represents, to our thinking, one of the most constructive way in which to use profits from student events.

The money, raised with funds from the Guild's South Pacific production, will help provide education for students talented in these areas.

The only regrettable thing is that more activities do not raise enough money to set up scholarships. Probably the situation is even novel for the Light Opera Guild.

Admittedly student groups are not normally profit-making concerns. But there must in many cases charge admittance for lack of sufficient support from other sources. When the amount taken in exceeds expenses, due to unexpectedly large attendance, then the surplus should be wisely spent.

The Threepenny Critic

Hi-Schoolers Besiege Campus

BY RYAN EDWARDS

The part week-end in the music school was a hectic one. For two days the halls of Opperman were besieged by vocalists of every size and description, of all ages, and of all levels of musical proficiency. They swooped themselves in large numbers and small numbers They were soloists, ensembles, and 75-voice choruses They were blond, brunette and red - headed. And on the other side of the fence, they were crew-cut and duck-tailed Turfs were dressed in anything from flowing white liturgical robes to Hartland kilts. For one thing they all had in common was a contagious, exhilarating enthusiasm.

BOTH SOURCE and reverent of all this intense musical activity was the annual festival of Florida Vocal Directors Ass., in which singers from most of the high schools in this part of the state competed against standards for ratings of Superior, Excellent, Fair, etcetera.

It was an exhilarating week-end, and was provided with a climax on Friday night by the annual spring concert of the University Women's Glee Club. Miss Betty Jane Grimm directs. As always the group presented an interesting and entertaining program But we feel compelled to observe that much of the atmosphere of the entire festival seemed to have invaded the Glee Club's rendition in ways that were sometimes puzzling as well as oftentimes pleasing.

PLEASING effects were very nice indeed Miss Grimm's group matched its previous counterpart in the art for quiet enthusiasm. When they swung into a spiritual like On Rise, Shine, or a zippy oratorio chorus like The Heavens Are Telling, Ben Haydn's Creation, we were swung right along by their joy of singing.

And their enthusiasm, like that of the pre-induction set, gave evidence of its musical birth to hard, conscientious work. Ah Poor Bird, Kubik's Oh! Dear What can the Matter Be?, was sung with impressive feeling. But Haydn's quality in a chorus from Wedding Festival and Mozart Arnold's arrangement of Steal Away was deliciously beautiful.

The highlight of their program, their greater experience and maturity stood them in good stead. They chose a work Alvin Gershenfeld's Half Moon Mountain, which both challenged and rewarding. Abeting by the Glee Club ensemble and the clear man Gunter for great soloist, they gave it a reading that was thrilling in variety and emotional effect. Only one complaint: we took a direct opening of a story from Time Magazine. we would have liked to have had it explained in front of the audience. Mr. Gunter's indeed relevant remarks could not be expected to cope with the complex of the so-called 'Time-style'.

THIS WAS the high light and we are grateful to have been present for it. But as we mentioned before, the high school atmosphere had some effects that were puzzling as well.

For instance, if the Presleyites had their eccentric dress, Western stage was no less extremely dressed in vivid and clashing splotches of red, green, blue, and yellow light. If seemingly are sometimes grotesquely ungraceful, What Is This Thing Called Love was punctuated with thigh-slapping finger-snapping, and Mario Lanza gestures at times.

AND IF HIGH school students are sometimes willing to accept the first idea that comes to their minds without exercising any critical discrimination. The Glee Club gave us an almost-flawless performance of the House of Liberty for a grand finale.

Now we can't very well point out that good music performed well, has absolutely no need of clever trappings, for most of the selections which brought these lusts were not the kind of music that can stand on its own feet. The point is, that Concert, aside from these matters, included several good work which were performed extremely well. We should have more of the same.

Student soloists Chris Bryan and Harriet Morrill were very pleasing and the justly well-known Boys Chorus from Leon High School provided strong proof that the whole week-end was a tribute—nonetheless, inspiring, exciting, and well worth it.

Letters From Candidates

Kaminis

DEAR STUDENTS.

A great privilege and rights has been granted to each of us. We as students are endowed with the power to vote—to choose our campus leaders through the election process. It is our duty to use this pow'r and to use it wisely. The progress and success of our student government for the coming year will be determined by these spring elections We have one of the leading universities in the South and it is up to each of us to do our part in making it 'The Leader'. Through progressive student leadership this can be accomplished. Your vote is the key to a fine student government

AS VICE-PRESIDENT of the student body, I shall do everything within my power to bring about the effective leadership of our legislative branch. Unity, harmony, and progress will be the watchwords of our senate. The student government will be truly the students' government.

Use your privilege and right—VOTE

Sincerely yours,
JAN KAMINIS

DEAR STUDENTS:

Experience, interest and ability are the key factors in choosing officers who are to serve you during the coming year. I feel that I have met these three qualifications and therefore solicit your support for the office of Women's Vice-president.

EXPERIENCE? I served as a Freshman senator, a Sophomore senator, and am currently serving as a Junior senator. During this time I have served on every major committee in both student senate and in Women's Senate. I represented you as secretary of state and national student government conference—honorable, in spring, exciting, and well worth it.

INTEREST? This has been exposed in my record of service to our student government for the past three years. I am a member of Garnet, Key, Mortarboard, Sigma Tau Delta, and Sophomore Council. This year I am a Junior Counselor and served as Vice-president of Bryan Hall.

I have worked for three years to adequately prepare myself for the office of Women's Vice-president. I hope you will give me the opportunity to put that training to work.

Sincerely,
POLLY ATWATER

DEAR FELLOW STUDENTS:

ELECT THE CANDIDATE WITH THE MOST TO OFFER! EXPERIENCE. CAPABILITY!

In record for Vice-presidency of Women's Affairs, I sincerely feel best qualified for this stratagic office. I have been active in many phases of campus life and am familiar with the problems and activities of our various groups and organizations. I am a member of Garnet Key, Mortified, Sigma Delta Pi, Circle, Village Vamps, Freshmen Orientation Committee, and the Dean's List, and am a past Sophomore Council treasurer and member of the Student Government Public Relations. I am President of Reynolds Hall, thoroughly experienced in presiding over such meetings as would be conducted in Women's Senate.

IF ELECTED, I will devote my senior year to Women's Affairs —coordinating Women's Activities advising the Student Body on Women's Affairs, and presiding over Women's Senate. I am sincerely eager to serve you and will deeply appreciate your support in this important election.

Respectfully,
CHRIS GINOCCHIO

Gardner

DEAR STUDENTS:

Many candidates are telling you what they hope to accomplish if and when elected next year. The office of Secretary of Senate falls into a different category. Though for it is a secretarial job and its duties are clearly outlined in the Student Government Statutes, it would be futile therefore, to present any type of platform.

I HAVE WORKED closely with Student Government serving as a member of the Student-Faculty Budget Committee and more important was Senate secretary to the Student Body President. I feel that I have a thorough knowledge of the mechanics of this office and that I will be able to fulfill the duties as Secretary of Senate adequately.

For these reasons, I am asking for your support in the coming election.

Sincerely,
GAYLE GARDNER

DEAR STUDENTS,

Any position in our Student Government is an important and responsible one. I am aware of the obligation included in the office of Senate Secretary and I feel that I have proven my dependability to my friends by holding an office in several organizations on campus Vice-Pres. of my sorority, Sec. Gramma Alpha Chi Sec. State Party. I feel this position, I have the interest and the experience and I will work as your Secretary of Senate.

Sincerely,

DEAR VOTERS:

The office for which I am running, Board of Publications, is one that each of you should consider carefully when voting. Through this board you have the chance to express your views concerning on university publications. It was for this reason the Board was established.

WHILE CONSIDERING the office you should also consider the qualifications of the candidates. I have been involved in various fields of communications since I was in the seventh grade—that's seven years. A lot can be learned about journalism in the length of time. More specifically, and closer to home, I've worked on the Summer Flambeau and have learned a lot about publications here at FSU. My major is journalism and I have completed seventeen hours in journalism courses. Participation in publications work, plus studying the problems which arise in the field of communications have given me the qualifications necessary for this office.

Some additions to the university publications that I would advocate are: 1) More distribution places for the Flambeau. 2) More feature stories in the Flambeau, such as the recent one about the Deans. 3) Establishment of deadline dates for Smokee Signals publication. 4) Decrease one issue of Smoke Signals as a literary magazine and give over to humor magazines, and 5) List phone numbers of residence halls, houses, and main offices in Pow Wow.

DEAR VOTERS:

I am a candidate for the office of Director of the University Recreation Association, and I feel that it is my responsibility to review my qualifications and platform for the University Recreation Association concerns every one of you.

I HAVE HELD the offices of publicity chairman, secretary-treasurer and am currently serving as vice president. Therefore I do feel as if I have the qualifications to serve myself do the job well.

If the A Ga Go'ettes a night each school year for the purpose of providing an extensive recreational program for all students enrolled in this university. I do feel that this purpose is one that I have formed the following platform:

1) 4 CANOE trips each semester down the various rivers around Tallahassee.

The Dissenter

Student Gov't Cannot Accomplish Miracles

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

The axiom that "The wilder a promise, the easier to make it," would hold true for campus politics.

An office-holder could not be held responsible for not doing many wild, women's closing hours, even if he pledged his sacred honor to do so. He would be hard to get around a promise to solve the pack-ing problem.

Enough students realize that there are certain things student government can do, and others that are virtually or practically beyond its reach, and vote accordingly to make democracy usually impracticable

SO NO ONE has ever dared to run for office on such planks as converting Western into a club and the dean of women's office into a bar. It just couldn't work.

But many students still expect too much from Student Government They think it should solve all academic grievances, reform the food services, give the Honor System the status of religion, enable the football team to beat the University of Florida, solve the parking problem, regulate the book store and the infirmary, etc., etc., etc.

THE WISE candidate may share all these ideas, but he knows that there's little hope of achieving all he promises, and he inserts the phrase "I will work for . . ." before his promise. Thus he adopts a perfectly respectable platform. If he fails, the stuck-up didn't try HARD enough.

No government can be broken to Earth Newton's Republicans nor Democrats reform the Russians or the farmers. And no government can run itself.

FLORIDA'S Legislature set up a Board of Control which is vested all power in the university, the delegates to be appointed through a university system which doesn't mean a thing. Student Government exists at the pleasure of the administration. But it doesn't mean it should be weak or inconsequential.

PAST STUDENT governments to be sure have erred in that description. Progress has been made and the current student government is an exemplary one.

By cooperating with the university, rather than fighting it, it secured an increase in student minimum wage. It created a Hungarian refugee scholarship. It reduced the Book

Larry Block Scout Explains Player Ratings

Many baseball fans do not realize the importance of a scout. It is a sure bet that any college ballplayer does.

He's the guy that looks over these possible major leaguers in future, sends in his report to the home office for the final OK, and in many cases signs the player.

During Florida State's just concluded tournament, I had the pleasure of meeting and talking with a few of the scouts present and getting their opinions on whom they considered some of the outstanding ballplayers on the field.

One such was Lou D'Ambrosio, representing the Baltimore Orioles. This is only his third year with the Baltimore franchise, but he spent 17 years with the Detroit Tigers.

He named Duke Mass and Ray Herbert for the Tigers and personally recommended Hal Newhouser, Joe Ginsberg, Billy Hoeft and Ted Gray, just to mention a few.

GIVEN RATING SCALE

Each player is given a rating scale," Lou explained. "One is excellent, two is good, three fair and four is poor."

Just then someone hit a ground ball to the infield and was thrown out. "He didn't get down that line too fast" he said. "He just timed him with a stopwatch which recorded 4.7 seconds.

"That grading scale is based on running, hitting, throwing, and fielding, but that's not all that counts."

When I talk to these boys I look for confidence and faith in themselves, plus his disposition in everything, not only baseball," he said.

Look at Dick Wakefield. I saw him when he played at Detroit. He could do everything well and how long did he play? It was his attitude that really cost him his chance of being a truly great player."

I asked him if a good high school player should go on to college or sign up immediately.

"It all depends on the player," he said. "If he's really outstanding he can go right into the minors, but if he's only average, I say get in the game, not only to get more experience but to get an education.

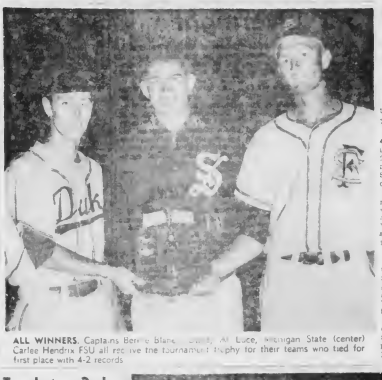
Baseball is a highly specialized organization, he chanted grimly from what. It was years ago it's big business, and college does whether he can or can't play ball.

When I look at ballplayers they must have the arm, be able to run, field and be a fair hitter. In a major league infield, except for the first baseman, hitting is not the main thing we look for.

The great majority of infielders are not the power men in the lineups whereas the first baseman and the outfields must be able to hit, 300 and supply the power. If they can't hit there's not much chance of sticking with the majors.

TEACH THEM FIELDING

If they've the power, we'll teach them fielding".



I asked him about catchers "The catcher must have a good arm. We'll sacrifice hitting for a 'ready' catcher, that is one who can handle pitchers" he answered.

"Just look around the league, there aren't more than three who are power hitters.

We usually get around to the pitchers. "A pitcher must have the fast ball, that's the scout's cherry. If he doesn't have it chances are he won't cut the mustard in the majors.

If he's not a fast ball, then we look for the curve." At this moment we were watching Bristol "Look at his footwork," he said. When he releases the ball he should finish square, facing the batter and he did."

I asked him who he liked so far in the tournament. "There are some fine ballplayers here, and I like a lot of them: Hendrix, Bristol, Boyce, Perranoski, Sime, Lamentaine and Maynard."

ALL WINNERS. Captains Bernie Blaine (Duke), Al Luce, Michigan State (center) Carlee Hendrix FSU all receive the tournament trophy for their teams who tied for first place with 4-2 records

Blue Devils Blast Tribe In Final, 8-1

BY BEN BALSER
Flambeau Sports Writer

Florida State, Michigan State and Duke shared a three-way tie for first place in the Florida State Invitational Baseball Tournament, which ended Saturday night.

All three of the teams had a 4-2 record, while Yale the other team in the tourney, had an 0-6 mark. Duke threw the tourney into the tie by beating the Seminoles 8-1 in the last game of the tournament.

The press covering the tourney picked outfielder Pete Maynard of Duke as the most valuable player in the tournament. Maynard played flawless defensive ball, and hit .308 including two homers.

ALL-TOURNAMENT

Besides choosing the MVP of the tourney the press also picked an all tournament team. Four players from both Duke and Michigan State made the list. Two players each were selected from the FSU and Yale squads.

Dave Sime and Maynard, both outfielders, Len Boncasi, a shortstop, and Dick Burton, a pitcher, made it for Duke's Blue Devils.

Al Luce, captain of the Michigan State team made the all-tourney squad as catcher, Rocco Davis, as the first sacker, and Frank Sapienza, 2nd baseman. Pitcher Ron Perranoski made the all-tourney mound staff for the Spartans.

Phil Hunt, the Tribe third baseman was chosen best at that position while FSU's big right-hander Jerry Boxer also made the favored list.

Yale while not showing much in the tourney landed outfielder Ray Lamontagne and pitcher Stan Carlsen on the all-tourney team.

Two Duke pitchers teamed up and allowed the Seminoles five hits Saturday as Duke tied up the tourney by downing the Seminoles.

The Blue Devils got a quick start as they picked up one run in the first inning and four more in the second. The four runs garnered in the second inning were helped along by the Seminoles.

Duke got three hits this inning but Jerry threw in a wild pitch and a wild throw to second which let in two runs. In the ninth the Blue Devils picked up three more runs off John Ash who had relieved starter Boxer in the eighth.

ONLY RUN

The Seminoles only run came in the bottom of the eighth when Johnny Bristol opened the frame with a clean single. Rod Mcewen ran for Bristol and Riley Seevers singled to left, sending Muchowicz to third. Both scored when Duke's shortstop Boncasi grounded to the shortstop.

In the afternoon game Saturday Michigan State blasted the hapless Yale team all over the diamond. The final score of the loosely played game was 17-8 favor of the Spartans.

Seminole Nine Faces Ithaca

The Florida State baseball team continues their torrid schedule this week meeting Illinois College tonight at 7:30 and tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 on the East Campus field.

Come into the doubleheader with Wake Forest yesterday the Tribe had a 7-4 record, behind the same set last season. The Seminoles won their first 12 games last year.

The probable starter for the Seminoles today is Jerry Boxer, while John Ash or Fred Kenney may go tomorrow for FSU.

Jerry Freeman coach for Ithaca had a long and unprecedented career behind him. He coached FSU's head football coach Tom Nugent during Nugent's football career at Ithaca.

Freeman has also coached Manhattan, coach Frank Tomey in football and basketball. In the past seven years Freeman has an overall 81-17 record in college baseball.

Friday night it took the Seminoles 11 innings to edge Yale 11-8. The sophomore-led Tribe picked up three runs in the eleventh to pull ahead and win.

It took a ninth inning home run with two men on by FSU sophomore Jerry Couch to tie up the game for the Seminoles. Rudy Eisle, a sophomore hurler, also came through by blanking the Bulldogs for the last three innings.

Mike Copps, another sophomore, had two hits including the single that started the Tribe rally in the eleventh.

PERRANOSKI WINS

Meanwhile, the ace pitcher Ron Perranoski gained his second win of the tournament Friday afternoon when the Spartans upset Duke 3-2. The Blue Devils only run came in the first inning by way of Sime's two run homer which was his second of the tourney.

The Spartans' winning run came in the eighth when Palamara singled in Gerald Stiller who had walked

Tracksters 3rd In Fla. Relays

The Florida State University track team upset all predictions as they turned in outstanding performances to help place an undefeated third in the Florida Relay held Saturday in Gainesville.

First place honors went to LSU, as they won six out of the 18 events. Second place went to North Carolina and the University of Florida finished forth.

The Kearney-Rayhan trophy, given annually to the outstanding individual of the meet, was awarded to Fred Berman, a the Georgia Tech trackster who won the shot put and discus events.

According to Coach Mike Long of the Seminoles, "Most of our boys did excellent jobs. In fact, considering the squad as a whole easily turned in the best team performance since I have been head coach here."

SCHOOL RECORDS

Behind records were broken in the pole vault and the mile relay. Dick Kwasd and Walter Strickland both went over the 12' 11" mark in the vault.

Arnold Greenfield has been chosen to be Press Attache in the current Legislative session, it was announced yesterday.

He was to assume beginning today the duties of filing Legislative bills in the Capitol press room and directing pages for press correspondence. The post was held during the last session by then—Student Body President Peter Nimkoff.

Greenfield said he had made special arrangements with one of his instructors so as to be able to take the job. His duties will end when the Legislature adjourns.

Candidate Asks More Government News

told if the paper is going to run an issue in the campaign, as he defined it, the editors were interested in having the issue brought before the public.

Shortly afterwards he said he had to answer another call.

BOTH SPEAK

Both Trachke and Student Party candidate Arnold Greenfield appeared at the Friday Veterans Club meeting.

At the meeting Trachke said his plan was to take student government to the students. He explained he would "let the students get to know me" by going to their fraternity and sorority meetings and other organization meetings.

He said he would "have Senate take its work back to the students," and he would have Student Body meetings every month in order to bring student government closer to the students.

He stressed leadership and interest as qualifications for the office.

MUST KNOW JOB

Greenfield asserted that leadership and interest were qualities essential to any candidate, but in addition the future President "must have experience and ability to do the job."

Concerning experience, Trachke said that in talking to student government officials he learned they were planning a "learn the job" program which would help orient him if elected. Greenfield replied that "at the present time I am a student government official and have not heard of such a plan."

In answer to a request from the floor for the candidates to "name their jobs they will assume if elected to the office," Greenfield said his main desire is to continue to build the Honor System.

Greenfield said he hoped to do something definite in the field of student services such as improving the food service and would continue in the field of inter-collegiate activities.

The job Trachke said he would achieve include improving the infirmary and laundry services. Asked where he thought Student Government is falling back, the candidate cited "women's regulations."

Greenfield said in regard to putting the Flambeau on a voluntary subscription basis that he is not in favor of doing so since it performs valuable services to the student body and would probably suffer financially if that is done."

Asked what they would do about lack of married student housing facilities, Trachke said that although his party hadn't thought of the problem or looked on its platform, he thinks something should be done.

Greenfield said the problem is a plank of the Student Body platform and although little can be done by Student Government to provide additional housing for married students because of a lack of funds, he will extend pressure towards achieving some solution.

Student Gov't.

gram, it created a speakers bureau. It made plans to represent the university during the Legislature which opens today.

OF COURSE, it didn't solve certain evils. Parking is still a mess, the food service could be better, and books still cost money.

Student government has however won the respect of every member of the Wescott staff. It has approached serious problems in a mature manner, has sought to cooperate with the administration for a better university, has presented resolutions that were logically constructed, and has demonstrated a desire to build a better university rather than an egotistical drive to indulge in politics for politics' sake. And it will take mutual respect, not distorting, to amend the women's rules.

DAVE BACHMAN expressed an individualist philosophy when he said that a Student Government must keep things in perspective.

"After all, the primary purpose of a university is education, and everything else must be seen in reference to that. Thus the president committee is seeking both better faculty and student assistant wages, said stands a good chance to get them. They realize that it doesn't do a student much good to get through a university if it can't keep good professors because it doesn't pay enough.

Student Government isn't a game it is a job, and a hard one.

"What's it like to be

A RESEARCH ENGINEER AT IBM?"

Two years ago, college senior Robert Thorpe asked himself this question as he worked toward his E.E. at the University of Toledo. Today, an Associate Engineer in the Applied Logic Group of IBM Rasearch, Bob reviews his experiences and gives some pointers that may be helpful to you in taking the first, most important step in your career.

"I joined IBM for two clear-cut reasons," recalls Bob. "First, the tremendous company growth obviously offered every chance for advancement. Second, the work area was exactly what I was looking for—transistors and their application to computer systems."

Bob entered IBM's voluntary training program in June, 1955, where he studied the entire organization, its divisions and diversified products. He received technical training in computer logic, programming, and components such as transistors, cores and tapes. By September, half his day was being devoted to an actual project; by the following March, he was on this project full time. "Our job was to transistorize six sets-to-amplifiers for the MA-2 bombing-navigational system," he recalls, "and we completed the project in April."

The "small-group" approach to research

In IBM Research as in all IBM, Bob works in a small group. "Our team consists of three E.E.'s and a technician. We start with analysis and synthesis work involving math and systems logic. Then we use the 'black box' approach." His group sorts up occasionally to research special phases of a project but remains in frequent sessions to coordinate activities.

Promoted to Associate Engineer

In August, 1956, Bob was made an Associate Engineer. From April of the same year, he had been working on a new Government project. This was to design and develop a transistorized radar data presentation system for MA-2 systems." Essentially, this was a research program in sample data theory and the development of a system containing both analog and digital components. Bob still works on this project—toward a completion date of April, 1957.

Shortly after this program started, Bob joined the Applied Logic Group.

Plating transistor characteristics

Here, he was concerned with research in new areas of computer technology —for example, cryogenics and high-speed memories. Bob studies systems which operate on "real time," and his immediate problem is to analyze and synthesize closed-loop sample data systems for the control of complex data processing.

Asked what his most interesting assignment was, Bob replied, "My

New areas of computer technology work on a digital-to-analog converter with a high degree of sensitivity and accuracy. This strictly electronic converter, with transistors, combines both digital and analog circuitry. It was a tough problem, and a fascinating one."

What does the future hold?

At the present time, after two years in IBM Research, Bob is more than enthusiastic about his future. He plans to continue in systems study and to develop a more sophisticated approach." Two lines of advancement are open to him: to Project Engineer, the administrative side, or to Staff Engineer, the technical side of Research. "Either way, I'm sure I'll get ahead." Bob feels. "Electronics research is really on the move at IBM. We have about 600 people at Poughkeepsie now, as against 56 in 1950. We'll need some 1,700 before 1960 to help staff a new research laboratory at Yorktown Heights, Westchester County, N. Y."

What does he like best about IBM? Probably the fact that he's so much "on his own." "There's no 'over-the-shoulder' supervision," he says. "You schedule your own program and create your own 'pressure.' And, if you feel the need for more education, IBM provides every facility for continued study. Besides the voluntary training programs, there are excellent afterhours courses offered by the IBM Department of Education. And you have a chance to work toward advanced degrees—at IBM expense."

Promoted in fourteen months

IBM hopes this message will give you some idea of what it's like to be an E.E. in Research at IBM. There are equal opportunities for E.E.'s, I.E.'s, M.E.'s, physicists, mathematicians, Liberal Arts majors, and Business Administration graduates in IBM's many divisions—Product Development, Manufacturing Engineering, Sales and Sales Analysis. Why not drop in and discuss IBM with your Placement Director? He can supply our brochure and tell you when IBM will first interview on your campus. Meanwhile, our Manager of Engineering Recruitment, R. A. Whitehorne, will be happy to answer your questions. Just write him at IBM Corp., Room 11B06 590 Madison Ave., New York 22, N. Y.

Greenfield Polls 1631 In Winning Prexy Post

DRIPPING WET, GREENFIELD IS CONGRATULATED
Supporters Tossed Prexy Winner Twice In Westcott Pool

Only 2597 Vote But Total Sets New Record

Only 2,597 students of more than 6,000 students who were eligible to vote went to the polls Tuesday.

According to Miss McCullough secretary of elections, 3,700 were expected to vote. However 2,597 did get a record-low compared with 2,947 voting in 1956 and 2,598 voting in 1955.

The largest number of ballots were cast at the Student Center. Almost 700 ballots were cast by 1 p.m., a much higher number voting in the morning than in the afternoon. The results made no assistant; no candidate received a greater majority at the polls, a clear pollen place, said Miss McCullough.

Results were declared by Roby Combs, acting attorney general and posted at 4:40 p.m.

"There were no major infractions of rules concerning campaigning reported," said Miss McCullough.

Members of the Elections Committee were J. P. Jones, Sandra Rosenberg, Joan Harmon, Tom Wilard, Rufus Jennings, and Barbara Chambers.

New officers will be installed one week after the next election in early in May, so that all officers will be installed at the same time.

Victorious candidates in Tuesday's elections must submit declarations of how much they spent in the campaign as soon as possible, Miss McCullough said.

PATS OFF BET WITH NOSE—Bucky Cannon, who bet fraternity brother Ray Hemann that State Party would win presidency, paid off Wednesday evening by pushing peanut around Westcott fountain with his nose. Gaining speed in the "home stretch," Cannon took slightly over half an hour.

STUDENT PARTY SWEEPS SLATE

Arnold Greenfield was elected Student Body President Tuesday, collecting a little more than 63 per cent of the votes cast for that office.

Chairing ballots for Student Party candidate Greenfield were 1,631 students. 906 voted for Graham Teschke, State Party standard-bearer.

Greenfield led a Student Party slate which lost no race.

In celebration of their victory, Greenfield's backers threw him twice into Westcott fountain, more spontaneously and the second time for the benefit of photographers.

His comment to a reporter was, "I'm tired; I'm happy. I'm wet."

Teschke, in an understandably more serious mood, said "It was a fine campaign with much competition all the way. I hope to be able to continue to aid the student government the remainder of this year and offer my assistance to Arnold next year in his struggle to achieve his future tasks."

Jan Kamman, an independent candidate was elected without opposition Student Body vice president.

Polly Atwater, Student Party, defeated Chris Gimocchio, State, by 331 votes, 1,482 to 1151, for women's vice-president.

Student Party candidate Bob Murray took a sizable lead over Hank McCann, State party men's vice president. Results read 1,562 and 823 votes for the respective candidates.

LARGEST LEAD

Barbara Burkhardt, Student scored the largest majority in the campaign, for Honor Court Chief Justice, defeating John Brown, State, 1,630 votes—1,630 to 505.

The closest race was between Linda Broderick, Reid, and Jack Terwilliger, Student, for University Recreation Association president. The latter won by 1,096 votes, 1,096 to 1,030.

Gayle Cannon, Student, with 1,396 votes, was elected Senate secretary, defeating Susie Parry candidate over Silas, 878 votes.

Ruth Prioche, Student, 1,583, was elected Secretary. Student Ann Faircloth, State, 1,128 were elected as the Board of publications. Madge Strum, with 1,384 votes, was the eliminated State Party candidate for the Board.

Uncontested offices were taken by Nancy Worrell, Student, Honor Court clerk; Martha Gunnels, independent, Judiciary chairman; and Bill McKenzie Student, Traffic Court chairman.

The Honor Code amendment to give the court leniency and discretionary powers in handling down sentences, was passed, 1,065 to 328.

Edwards Sees Little Chance For Soph Cars Next Year

Sophomores should be allowed to have cars next year, according to the Student-Faculty traffic committee.

But the chairman doesn't see much chance of the committee's recommendation going through. He says he has suggestion that all sophomores be issued black stickers regardless of where they live.

Ray Edwards, chairman of the committee said President Doak S. Campbell, on receiving the committee's letter report this week, believed the recommendation might not be accepted.

Edwards said Dr. Campbell told him the Board of Control may expect Florida State University to follow its no-car rule in sophomore, as has done the University of Florida.

LENGTHY REPORT

The committee presented in one of many forms embodied in a report by the nine-member group, which now urges some of the existing restrictions and a alteration of the traffic fining system.

Edwards said the committee has worked for a year on the report, with approval of the Executive Council and the president, and hopes the Board of Control will not be necessary, he indicated.

According to the committee's recommendations, the zone wherein eligible students would receive auto decals, for parking in front recommended areas of the campus would be extended up to a mile in some directions from campus.

BOUNDARIES

It would be bounded on the east by Meridian Street; one the north by Old Bainbridge Road and Brevard School; Hugh Road, Ocala Road and Lenna Road on the west and by the Seaboard Air Line railroad on the south.

The committee's report then would specify that students living within these boundaries may bring cars to the campus.

Edwards said it would be fairer if Bull students now get black stickers whereas people no further away on the town side get white stickers.

NO SOPH RULE

Other than allotting all sophomore black stickers, no other recommendations should be made at present, he suggested.

The committee recommended double streets on both sides of the library be made one-way to ease the load these areas. Besides the sidewalk that divides Landis Green and a part of the front of the women's gym, the street should remain black-and-tan.

The committee urged the adoption by a practice now in force in Gainesville: the stopping of all campus traffic during class breaks between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. except for buses and faculty members who have an urgent need to use their cars.

FACULTY REMINDER

Faculty members are reminded that class periods last 48 minutes and that it is their responsibility to dismiss classes promptly.

Edwards said faculty members who disregard the end of a period help to cause traffic problems and tardiness at following classes.

The committee recommended the administration ask the Legislature for a "professional survey" to solve traffic problems before they became acute.

Among other suggestions were proposals that bus stops be eventually marked, and that guard in front of Bull to keep the bus service on east campus to possibly provide shuttle service from West Side to the geology building, to have Seniors to parents for prospective freshmen explaining the auto restriction; that the student traffic court office be open from 10 a.m. to noon as well as from 1 to 5 p.m., the present hours, having students pay fines only at the traffic court, instead of at the student accounts office; and lining off spaces on the street next to the hockey field.

The committee urged repair of several streets, particularly those near fraternities, of Western Circle, and of the Music Building parking lot, and opposed setting aside more lots for exclusive faculty use.

It recommended a fine schedule increasing with the number of parking offenses charged to a student that semester:

First offense, 50 cents if paid within 48 hours, $3 if paid after 48 hours.

Second offense, $1 within 48 hours, $3.50 after.

Third offense, $2 within 48 hours, $4.50 after.

Fourth offense, $5 within 48 hours, $7.50 after.

Fifth: $10 flat fine and suspension of all driving privileges "by the equivalent of one semester."

Failure to register car within week after arriving on campus, $10.

False registration, $10 fine and referral to Honor Court.

Fines established last year by Student Senate are not as high, but all 50 cent fine becomes a dollar fine if not paid within 24 hours.

The committee would require a registrant to produce his title certificate or state registration slip, driver's license and university ID card.

The committee said Student Government should be asked to sponsor safety campaigns just prior to the periods of greatest accident hazards and more conscious of driving hazards before they drive home."

PARKING SPACE

The committee said, "Adequate parking facilities should be provided could newly constructed buildings as much as possible."

"Students should be encouraged to use bicycles, and the university should be responsible for construction of bicycle racks."

"All regulations and policies now in effect which are a detriment to traffic and parking should continue in effect unless superseded by any of the recommendations presented in this report."

Travel Bureau Gathers Dust

The Travel Bureau is suffering from lack of use.

According to Ruth Johnson, Travel Bureau secretary, by yesterday afternoon only five students had contacted the bureau about transportation for the coming Easter holiday.

The Travel Bureau, a free service sponsored by Student Government, has been in operation since the semester break of February, 1956. There was a great deal of student response that year, but after Thanksgiving of this year FSU students seem to have forgotten about the service.

Any student who is driving and looking for riders, or students looking for rides can call the Bureau, 7-2191, or see Ruth Johnson in 204 Lonarmire from 2 to 5 p.m. weekdays.

"This service is offered during the entire year, not just at holidays," Miss Johnson said. "There is a large demand for rides to Gainesville, Atlanta and Auburn for bus weekends," she added.

Some members of the class have had writing assignments, and will present mimeographed papers of background material on the novels under consideration to members of the audience.

The other members of the class will take part in panel discussions in presenting the three chosen novels. They will discuss the authors writing techniques, characters, and plots.

Faces Dismissal Charges

Vance Hearing Slated Monday

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

The ease of Earl Vance, journalism professor who faces dismissal on charges he refused to cooperate with his dean, will be heard next week by a faculty committee.

The Professional Relations and Standards Committee will begin closed-door hearings Monday at 9:30 a.m. according to Vernon Fish, chairman.

The committee is empowered to make a report to the president, Fish said, but the report to the faculty member involved in a dismissal action.

The hearing was called at Vance's request. Previously he had refused to appear before the committee, saying President Doak S. Campbell's request that his dismissal would be unfair did not constitute "specific" charges.

MORE CHARGES

Vance told Florida Flambeau reporters he has received "more elaborate" charges from President Campbell.

Vance, who joined the faculty in 1927, headed the department of journalism until it was made a school of journalism in 1948.

The following year Dr. Laurence Campbell, no relation to the FSU president, made out charges against him consist only of "failure to cooperate with a particular man and his program."

NO CLASSES

Vance has not taught classes for three years. He said his offers to teach were disregarded.

Vance said he had differences with Dean Campbell over what the content of journalism instruction should be but was willing to teach whatever was assigned him.

The university has made no public statement.

Vance has published a 58 page booklet, "The Complete Record in the Vance Case," containing reproductions of correspondence and reports dating from 1948

HEARD BEFORE

His differences with the administration have been heard before by the Professional Relations and Standards Committee, but never in regard to a dismissal action. The Board of Control exercises final authority in dismissal cases.

Said Dr. Irish, "The committee, in serving as a hearing body, acts neither as a defender of the faculty member nor of the administration but is essentially a fact-finding body."

Alton Wins State Piano Contest

William Lewis Alton a sophomore at Florida State University, is headed for national piano competition after winning state and regional contests for students sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs.

A piano student of Edward Kilenyi, Alton recently won the Helen Roberts State Scholarship of $250 at Florida contests held in Sarasota and Tallahassee. He later won second place in regional contests at Spartanburg, S. C.

Recordings of Alton's work have been sent to Columbia, O. where judges of NFMC will act on student work submitted from all parts of the country.

Taut Drama On In City

My borrowed copy of Who's Who in Fiction has arrived. Its author, ex-Marine officer and ex-Columbia University graduate student Herman Wouk, gets the de-Luxe Cinema Scope treatment, and the end results shape up as supervisor Limiere.

In a recent article Robert Mitchum was heard to say after reading the script and being selected for the part: "It's a bitch of a role." We assure this to be his highest compliment. His acting is also complimentary—even his lazy movements speed up.

Veterans To Meet

The Veterans' Club will hold a regular business meeting tonight beginning at 7:45, followed by a social gathering at 8:30 p.m., in the Student Center trophy room, a club official announced.

Budgeting Problems End West Hall Bus

Saturday bus service to West Hall is to be discontinued a week from tomorrow, University officials have announced.

Resulting from surveys conducted by the Administration in an effort to overcome budget difficulties, revised bus schedules were released by the office of the Director of Service Units.

Weekday bus service to the area will continue on its present schedule, leaving Westcott at 25 and 55 minutes after the hour from 7:30 a.m. to 4:55 p.m. The bus leaves West Hall at ten minutes and forty minutes after the hour from 7:40 a.m. to 4:40 p.m.

West campus bus service leaves Westcott at ten minutes after the hour, 7:10 a.m. to 1:10 p.m., and on the hour from 3:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m.

A shuttle car will leave from Westcott at 10 p.m. for the West Campus area if there are students to ride. Dr. Day said. The car will make no stops en route, he added.

Young GOPs Challenge Demos To Debate

The Young Republican club has challenged its Democratic counterpart to a series of debates run what the respective parties can do for Florida.

President John Jacobs said the Florida GOPs decided to issue the challenge at their meeting Wednesday.

Officers of the Young Democrats could not be reached to determine if they had received and would accept the challenge.

At Wednesday's meeting the Young Republicans cited Graham Teschke, who they endorsed in his unsuccessful bid for Student Body President, for "his outstanding example of leadership shown to the Student Body."

The club said it is eager to supply speakers to any organizations who would want to hear a discussion of the Republican movement in Florida.

Jacobs said the club will publish a newsletter before Easter. The "FSU Republican News," he said, will be put in post office boxes.

The next meeting is Thursday at 7 p.m. in 410 Longmire.

Club Offers Tutor Service

The State Scholarship Club which has been holding weekly "help sessions" in the library has put its tutoring service on an individual basis.

Mary Anne Turpin, president, said students needing assistance in any general education course can arrange for it by calling the office of Dr. S. T. Lastinger, 318 education building, 8338-1.

Paul Freed Grad Recital Set Tomorrow

In Switzerland Freed has studied under the Berlitz School of Languages in Zurich and also at the Conservatory in Winterthur. Before coming to FSU he taught piano at Kansas State Teachers College in Emporia.

Students To Boost FSU Around State On Speaker Trips

Students will travel all over the state this spring to discuss Florida State University with civic clubs under the auspices of the Student Speakers' Bureau.

About 22 Evans, Lona Optimist and other clubs in Miami, West Palm Beach, Tampa, St. Petersburg, Pensacola, Jacksonville, Stanford, Auburndale and Belle Worth will be visited.

Excellent participation on the the part of students and respective civic clubs throughout the state has made the organization a success," said Roby Combs, acting director of the bureau.

Fifty-five students have volunteered as speakers. They will meet Monday in Longmire at 5 p.m., Miss Combs said, to discuss arrangements, transportation, and subjects to include in their speeches.

Little Pay For Football Is The Right Attitude

When the Florida Flambeau voiced editorial opposition to the amount students must pay for football here, it did so at the risk of exaggerating the actual situation.

Consequently it prefaced its remarks with the qualification, "according to our computations." (The computations on the amount students are made to pay were derived from the $123,000 intercollegiate athletics allotment plus a $6 apiece special "loan" to athletics, with the supposition that most of the sum went to football.)

Athletics officials now say we erred in our charges: that only 27 per cent of the money for intercollegiate athletics goes to football, or $8.34 per student.

IF WE WERE wrong, the football and other athletics officials deserve our apologies, we hereby extend them on the basis

Here's Hoping Legislature Accepts Governor Collins' 1957 Program

When Governor of Florida LeRoy Collins told the Legislature Tuesday that it has the "fateful opportunity and high responsibility" to revise the Constitution, we took the trouble to look up his remarks eleng the same vein to the 1955 session.

At that time he offered the legislators alternete plans for fixing up the state's constitutional mess—(1) eppointment of a commission to draw up a new charter for presentation to the people for ratification and (2) appointment of e commission to make recommendations to the Legislature, which in turn would submit the proposed changes to the people.

Mr. Collins voiced the hope that in either case the new Constitution would be voted upon by the people in the General Election of 1956.

A COMBINATION of adverse factors got into the way and a new Constitution is still not in sight—and therein lies a tale.

The effort toward Constitutional revision is a good example of the extent of Mr. Collins' success as Governor. In 1955 and 1957 he has asked what his knowledge told him is needed end his optimism told him is possible, with his interest ranging the entire gemut of gov-

What Is Party System's Future?

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

There is much concern being voiced as to whether Tuesday's elections have ended two-party politics on this campus.

State Party won only one office which it had a candidate entered, a seat on the Board of Publications, and the Student Party lost, no race.

The election demonstrated the inherent weakness of campus party politics and the lack of clearly cut issues.

Two things can hold a party together as an effective force: It can take a stand, or leadership. The student Party unquestionably had more vigorous leadership. Its voting base was a nebulous one —the capability of handling not to hold office. This is a matter that cannot be made an article of party faith.

AMONG THE leadership of the party, however, were the candidates. The rank-and-file expected them enough to work hard et getting out the vote— and it paid off.

Student Party has held the power in student government since it was formed. Newcomers to politics will attack Somerville's more readily to the dominant group than to the supporting one. And so, each year, Student Party has had the pick of the candidates in the ranks of its members.

THE STRONGEST issue the State Party could raise is the desirability of having nearly equal parties. If one's going to have any parties at all. But this is an abstract question, not a burning enough issue to the average student to make him vote against the Student Party if he is satisfied as to the ability of its candidates. The State Party has, particularly this year, given the campus good, mature leadership and service. No one of "ours the rascals out" can be found.

Unless something is done to revitalize the State Party, it will cease to be Student Party itself. Its acts do not wish this to happen, because it would remove from campus politics much of the spirit and with the spirit much of the initiative, but about the only way they could prevent it would be to donate some of their more popular members to the other party. This is too much to ask.

THE PARTY SYSTEM, although it has no access to make it mesnnaful has one door open thing that deserves mention is has eliminated any thought of Greek-independent rivalry in student government. No one stopped to notice that Arnold Greenfield was an independent, a "coalition" of independents and Greeks elected him.

Despite this, the party system as threatened. There are Greeks on both the campus can unite and decide the issues. Or the students are nearly the same. Whatever their courses of study, if student government is the responsibility of appointing and paying professors and enacting new buildings, there might be conflict of interest.

THE PARTY system is largely machinery without a purpose other than to elect its candidates —but the students could easily take the party responsible for the election of any of its members.

But the system's in bad shape.

Ward-Steinman, Yeats Recital Joyous Event

By RYAN EDWARDS

A friend of our once stated to us rather belligerently that music cannot express meaning, being a purely mathematical art. He was ridiculously wrong, but he had a point in order to express his content, music must be projected with technical ease and intellectual clarity.

That is why when we hear a recital like that of David Ward-Steinman and Margaret Yeats last night, in which both of these elements were present, we are moved to do a little rejoicing.

IN NO PLACE was Ward-Steinman's technical skill more evident than in his performance of the former of Beethoven-Liszt's two Sonata Fantasia. Alternately mellow, serious, thrilling or gay, robust and joyous, the pianist never left his audience behind in the quick sentimental transitions implicit in the work's subtitle. So occasionally, he was sound in some of the climactic moments was forgotten in the total brilliance of the whole performance and the adagio. All in all, the work was a perfect vehicle for Mr. Ward-Steinman's capacity for direct, honest musical expression.

This perhaps explains why we somewhat prefered the pianist's reading of the Debussy, for the impressionistic members of the audience found the latter work the most indirect expressions in the history of music.

SOMEONE HAS recently said, regarding Ward-Steinment's piano playing, that he is not a so good probably the pianists of the state's population, as evidenced by his recent unprecedented Fulbright victory. Perhaps now he has enough popularity end influence to earn a better Legislative average.

WE ARE SOMEWHAT dubious about a few of his proposals—removal of sales tax exemptions on clothing under $10 seems aimed too directly at the less prosperous citizens; requirement of county matching funds for school construction would harm the smaller counties too greatly (as would elimination of under-assessment— but we somewhat doubt that the small-county dominated assembly will approve of these things.

All in all, it appears that the old obstinent gridlock has left this Legislature. If Florida's legislators don the Seven-League boots he proffers, the state has an interesting future.

Congrats To Winners

AN OPEN LETTER:

Congratulations to all the candidates on their positive and progressive campaigns.

I AM SLAGGED however at the vicious attacks hurled against the winning candidates I and my predecessors in State Party have been marked with a strong two party system on this campus, so that a party which would not mean certain victory. We have done this so that politics on this campus would be held in the high esteem which they deserve.

We will continue to offer the closest example and qualified candidates for them to chose from in the coming class elections and in the future elections.

Paper Slays Fair Ideals

TO THE EDITOR:

I wish to congratulate the Flambeau on its objective and rational coverage of the newly elected Student Body officers (more than Arnold Greenfield is — shall we say—left) nothing to be desired.

THE FLAMBEAU has demonstrated by said coverage that it is content to play the role of spokesman of all "Equality" is the byword of newspaper writing on the campus of Florida State University—no favoritism shown. By the way, I notice that the Flambeau is not just another "tabloid" susceptible to the pressure of politics, but a sword carrying hero who slays all that naughty dragon partiality at every turn.

Congratulations again,

'Bilge Pump' Needed

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to suggest an item which the Morgan company could use to improve the food service in our campus.

ONE "bilge pump" to be used to pump the water etc. out of the service trays. I have one thing false, as here countless others, of having my clothes soiled many times because Morrison's does not take the trouble to wash and dry their trays.

What do you say to this suggestion?

Editor's Note: We say you've missed the point, John. You're supposed to sail model boats in the trays while waiting for the serving line to move.

FELLOW STUDENTS—

I want to express my deeply felt gratitude to all of you who have made my election possible and my campaign a pleasant one. Seemings I want every member of the student body to feel free at all times to bring any problems that student government might solve to me. Unless all actively participate at least through suggestion or complaint student government can never reach maximum effectiveness. Although the election is over I am still anxious to meet and speak to as many of you as possible, and that I am now and will continue to be "at your service."

Liberals Allied With Commies

TO THE EDITOR:

The following paragraphs appear in the April 6 1957 issue of National Review.

"The U.S. Communist Party is making segregation its No. 1 issue. In spite of decades of effort, the party has never won much support from U.S. Negroes. It seems probable that the present line on segregation is a political flank maneuver aimed primarily at white liberals and do-gooders rather than at Negroes."

"The No. 2 issue is Civil Liberties, with specific objectives of repeal of the Smith Act and the Internal Security Act and removing the Party from the Attorney General's list — or having the list itself abolished. More generally, the Party aims to relegitimatize its activities and to return its members to public forums. The Civil Liberties Union, New York Times, New York Post, along with nearly the entire Liberal phalanx look the position, in effect, that Communist leaders have the right" to speak at will in any and all colleges."

Now I, whom you seem to believe mistaken in my consideration of the connection existing between Liberal Intellectualism and Undercover Communism, believe these statements to be true. "And the Truth shall make you free." Bible

If you do not please put unicorn in this issue facts or reliable quotations to disprove above, instead of the senseless demonstration of uninformed malicious and biased opinion whereby you last week insinuated that I am the Party's belief that Ira Latimer testified under oath that the HUAC was infiltrated "Chilly Gee"'! It may interest you to know that Mr. Latimer is a friend of mine, and that they are out to get him. It is another attempt on the Liberals in the Illinois Supreme Court's Fitness Committee that has resulted in Latimer being admitted to the bar in 1957.

CHARLES MAYO

Editor's Note: We think reader Mayo presents a challenging argument. It must be in turn ignores. National Review is not the most objective observer, but it is true that the communists have given much attention to segregation. Why? Because segregation is the weakest spot in America's socio-political pattern. History has proven that die-hard communists are more "interested" in anything but Communism itself, in its power. The United States in America they have selected segregation for one of their whipping posts; in the Philippines it was a condition of peonage among most of the people; in Asia and Africa it has been western imperialism.'

Communism is amoral: it has no values except itself. So it is unfair to attribute the "taint" of communism to people who share ideals that are "avowed" by communism—tolerance, free speech, etc. Nations professing the same religion have, historically, slaughtered each other.

Mr. Mayo asks for authority: seemingly he accept as authority conservative authority. Let him refer to the writings of Lenin Badens, who stressed the opportunistic character of communism. Badens, a former communist, became a vigorous anti-communist.

There is no political connection between "liberal intellectualism and undercover communism." To assume there is is to impute something far worse than guilt by association; guilt by existence.

Males Have Only One Symbol Left: Beards

By DON HEIDEL

At freecrest intramural male students are seen on campus sporting beards. These walking advertisements for Smith Brothers have mergy and diverse answers when questioned: How come?

Answers range in profundity from "I like it" or "My fraternity makes me" to "Can't afford Mobile." It is obvious these are only coverups for the true reasons. Getting to the root of the matter is difficult under these circumstances, but a longer view of the matter offers a clearer picture.

RATHER THAN smoker and point at these stalwart individuals as the shortsighted members of future modes of male fashion. It is possible that in ten or twenty years no adult male will dare appear in public without whiskers of some sort. It is reported evidently that many who are in the know make frequent trips to their friendly dooming barbers.

There is no denying that the aggressive model female has forced the male gender to resort to beards. The beards will be used as the last remaining symbol of male superiority. Women, in their quest for social equality with males and subsequent drive for complete emancipation, have taken away or performed many of men's masculine personalities that they originally held dear to symbolize male superiority.

ALL THAT used to be associated with the male—smoking, drinking, telling dirty tales, wearing coats for social equality or even wearing trousers—has been taken over by females, and in many cases performed it better. It exceeded the male in quantity and quality. Women have invaded many male domains and there are now lady bus drivers, lady firemen, lady mercy police politicians, and ROTC students.

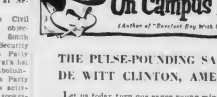
Women's drive for emancipation, with the resulting emasculation of the male, has left few symbols of masculinity. Smoking, chewing and beards are two obvious remaining tokens.

VERY FEW women chew tobacco, it is true, but I hardly believe that chewing could become a universally acceptable symbol of masculinity.

Beards, however, have a singular uniqueness. They are one thing that females cannot encroach on. Most women, with few exceptions, cannot grow hair on their chins, cheeks, jaws, upper lips. Here the male has one natural symbol that cannot be taken away or destroyed by women. And remember, Samson's beard was always been a strong masculine strength until Delilah got to him.

BEFORE EVERYONE takes this as gospel and begins a general revolution in Dunn and Bradstreet, let me warn of several notable drawbacks.

First, it must be realized that the Lasher and Lorillo lobby is still strong. The Gillette Safety Razor Company might cancel the broadcasting of the World Series—too large a sacrifice most males to face.



Then, a rapid conservatory effort to pass that women, frustrated in the superior appearances of the opposite sex, will grow beards. Simone de Beauvoir's ubiquitous gondola lasse beards will be taken away or forced to grow long and will wrap their faces around their faces clamping them to their sides in order to hide it. I hardly think this is possible, or is it?

THE PULSE-POUNDING SAGA OF DE WITT CLINTON, AMERICAN

Let us today turn our eager young minds to the inspiring story of De Witt Clinton, one of the greatest figures in American history and — unaccountably — one of the most neglected.

De Witt Clinton (sometimes called Aaron Burr) first made himself known to fame in 1736 when Governor William Penn commissioned him to survey the forests of the Western territory. (The Governor wonder why in the world Governor Penn could have been thinking of. De De Witt Clinton were a seventh-grade kid at the time.) However, the little chap did remarkably well. He surveyed so far west as Spokane, having mistaken English for more than twelve million Indians living there, and then tired but happy, he became Johnny Appleseed.

Later, he became a lawyer and sailed home to enter politics. He first ran for the Comstock Party, but his back wasn't green enough, so he joined the Whigs.

He was offered the Whig nomination for the presidency, but declined it on the grounds that he wasn't 21. "I nominated I will not run; if elected I will not serve."

But the Whigs only nudged each other and said, "That old fox, he's just trying to get us to beg." So they nominated him anyhow, and sure enough he did not run, but he was elected anyhow, and sure enough he did not serve. In fact, he was elected to a second term, which he also did not serve. However, every few top Whigs knew there was nobody in the White House. The rest of the country thought that the President was confined to his room with a wretched sore. For a long time, signs saying "Get Well" cards, but soon everyone forgot and turned their attention to important matters like the Erie Canal, inventing the buffalo, and the Black Tom Explosion.

After two terms as President, De Witt Clinton entered Yale and took up smoking. He tried several brands of cigarettes and finally settled on one that pleased him in every particular—Philip Morris, of course!

(You knew I was going to say that, didn't you? Well, of course you did, especially since Philip Morris is a smoker, for if you are, you know what a sweetheart of a smoke Philip Morris is. One is mild, one is natural flavor, one has natural and mellow, how long size and regular. And if you are not a Philip Morris smoker, you've got a treat coming. Light one up today. Light either end.)

Upon graduation from Yale, De Witt Clinton became commissioner of he-shall and smoked and loved Philip Morris Cigarettes for the rest of his long and distinguished life, and when at last he was called to his reward, his friends delivered a fitting eulogy from the floor of the Senate end said, "How sad that De Witt Clinton must now be consigned to the cold ground," said Philip Morris.

"Nay!" cried Pitt, the Elder (Henry Clay), bounding to his feet. "We need not separate De Witt Clinton and Philip Morris! Let them now to keep them together always."

And, sure enough, if you will look at the blue federal tax stamp on your pack of Philip Morris, guess whose picture you'll see. De Witt Clinton's! That's whose!

Tourney In Red?

Circling the Bases:

Attendance for FSU's recent baseball tournament was down [illegible] from last year's, although the baseball was no better [illegible] . . . It's a sure bet that financially, the event went in [illegible] for the second straight year . At that about 700-800 [illegible] showed up for the final fiasco Saturday night. . . . Some [illegible] after two innings.

[illegible] seems to this observer as if something could be done about [illegible] of the umpiring in local college games. . . . Friday [illegible] arbiters for the FSU-Yale contest did a particularly bad [illegible] from most viewpoints. . . . To say the least, the umpiring [illegible] exactly make a super impression on visiting teams and [illegible] . One coach swore he'd never bring a team back here, [illegible] the men in blue had an exceptionally bad day

There's a rumor going around that the University of California [illegible] be invited here for next season's tourney . . . or that FSU will [illegible] a tourney in California—nobody's sure which . . . we'd [illegible] to see Duke back here next season or any other North Carolina team . . . we understand Wake Forest has quite a ball club and it's too bad Jupiter Pluvius wiped out Monday's sched[illegible]-bill with the Deacons

[illegible] SCHOLARSHIPS

Yale's poor showing in the tournament might be attributed [illegible] the fact that the Ivy League school has no baseball scholar[illegible] . they're given in New Haven for scholastic excellence . . . Still, Ethan Allen has produced some of the best college [illegible] teams in the east in past seasons . . . Speaking of the [illegible] one of their relief pitchers the final day, Dick Sheinbaum, [illegible] picked up from intramurals which is baseball at Yale, not [illegible] as here and in other parts of the south. . . . Seems to be [illegible] acquisition to a weak pitching staff he chucked five [illegible] in the finale conceded only two hits and an unearned run.

[illegible] was no surprise that Duke's Pete Maynard was named the [illegible] most valuable, though this writer preferred hurler [illegible] Perranoski of Michigan State. . . . Maynard incidentally is [illegible] soph, in his first year of varsity ball . . . He hit 538, in[illegible] eight RBI's and two homers for the tourney . . . Perrano[illegible] the tourney's only double winner beating both of the [illegible] winners, FSU and Duke . . . Spartan sports publicity [illegible] Fred Stabley considers him the best southpaw in the [illegible] Ten

What's wrong with Dick Howser this year? . . . The depend[illegible] Seminole shortstop hit 422 last year, is barely over 250 [illegible] season . . . He rallied for three hits against Yale Friday [illegible] couldn't buy one, the rest of the tourney. . . . Every ball [illegible] hits a slump, though, and we doubt if Howser's is too [illegible]

Duke track star Dave Sime, who hit over 400 as an outfielder [illegible] tourney, is in the envied position of many sports stars. [illegible] that he's run 9.3 three times in the 100, nobody seems [illegible] if he does anything worse . . . After he ran his 9.6 in the [illegible] Relays we heard remarks that "he had a pretty bad [illegible]" Babe Ruth and others have had similar difficulties [illegible] strike out, or only get a single etc

Cheer Leaders Ask Support Tonight

Tonight's baseball game between FSU and the University of Florida will represent another good indication as to whether FSU is ready for the high caliber competition that is demanded for entrance into the Southeastern Conference, which we are certain all are eager-ly awaiting

Day in and day out, our athletes and coaches in every sport, are spending hours of tremendously hard work strain and pressure, preparing themselves for various games, meets, matches and championships with one purpose in mind—to make their fellow students and themselves proud of the university they represent and attend

Our intercollegiate competition with Florida is by far the most important of all This is the most significant way that we can be recognized as a more popular school than that which they represent

We, of course realize the important role the athlete plays in this program, and we the students want to do our share too. Our share can only be in one form, that of representation as spectators. The important thing to an athlete is to be supported by those students he represents.

It all boils down to one thing We are not asking the students to spend three hours, six days a week four weeks a month, nine months a year straining and sweating in some rigorous sport. All we want you to do is show them you appreciate what they are doing for all of us.

If they are participating without being supported, they naturally feel that the student body doesn't care, so why should they? No one will tell them what a bad game they played if they lose, because no one was there to witness it. So, therefore, no pressure was put on them to win.

The Gators will be on Centennial Field at approximately 7:30 p.m. tonight, and we are going to be on hand to kill every ounce of spirit they may have brought with them. We know you will be right there with us, supporting the Seminoles. It is up to us to show these Gators what support and spirit really is Otherwise, they will journey back to Gatorland to tell their friends that our stands were empty because the "girls" in Tallahassee don't go in for sports. sports.

Everyone be sure to come early so that we will occupy all the center bleachers There is room for all of us, and if not we will make room—Right? This is one you don't want to miss

Tribe Sends Conley, Elwood, Terwilliger To Texas Relays

Three FSU trackmen, Jack Terwilliger, Mike Conley, and Dick Elwood, begin competing today in the Texas Relays, held annually in Austin, Texas.

The three left Wednesday for the two thousand mile trek out to what is regarded as the "Best track meet in the Southwest."

Terwilliger will be competing in the 100 yd. dash against Bobby Morrow, world Olympic champion, and Ira Murchison, third place finisher in the Olympic 100 yd. dash.

Coach Mike Long said, "This will afford the best competition available for Jack and will be an experience he'll never forget "

Mike Conley, holder of the school mile and two-mile marks will run in the mile event. Conley is also expected to see some Olympic competition

Elwood, a Junior transfer student from the University of Florida, is a co-holder of the school pole vault record broken jointly with Warren Strickland last week at the Florida Relays

The next dual track meet will be against the University of Florida next Saturday.

Kennedy Signs Two

Florida State basketball coach Bud Kennedy has announced that he has signed two outstanding Chipola Junior College stars for next season

The two are Bert Dekle and Dan Boltz, both of whom were regulars for the Chipolans last season

Dekle is a 6-5, 180 pound guard from Louisville, Ky., who averaged better than 22 points a game for Chipola last year

Boltz is a 6-6, 230-pound center, from Alton, Illinois. He averaged better than 16 a game last year.

Kennedy has not yet announced his 1957-58 schedule, but such teams as Army, Oklahoma City U., Memphis St., and Oregon are slated for Tallahassee appearances.

Netmen Win, 4-3 Over Murray State

Florida State's netters tripped Murray State College of Kentucky last Wednesday afternoon, 4-3, to snap a four match losing streak.

Murray State jumped to a quick 2-0 lead in the singles matches as John Powless and Johnny King dumped Florida State's Fred Serrett and Sonny Sellars, 6-0, 6-0, and 6-4, 6-3

Coming back to tie the match up for the Seminoles were Frank Bryan and Jackie Crew who defeated Larry Henson and Bill Dunery, 6-3, 6-3, and 4-6, 7-5, 6-2.

Then, Bill Counts clipped Bill Sloan in the finale of the singles matches 6-3, 6-0 after dropping the first set 6-4

The clincher for the Seminoles came in the first doubles match as Serrett and Bryan teamed up to defeat Powless and Henson of MSC in the last set, 6-3, 2-6, 6-4

MSC rallied to sweep the last doubles match 6-3, 6-1 as King and Sloan defeated FSU's Jim Maddock and Dave Tiedt.

SET TO THROW. Florida State's veteran third baseman Pfil Hunt is one of the main reasons for the Seminoles' success during the current season. He's hitting .350 with 10 runs batted in.

Hitting .350

3rd Sacker Pfil Hunt Wields Powerful Bat

Pfil Hunt, 20 year old third baseman is one of the leading hitters on the 1957 Seminole baseball team.

The friendly junior attended Sidney Lanier High School in Montgomery, Alabama, his home town He lettered three years in high school baseball and basketball

Chosen captain of both teams his senior year, the versatile third baseman was elected to the all-State baseball team.

Playing also for the American Legion, Pfil was named on the all-State Legion team his freshman year.

TWO TITLES

Sidney Lanier High School was known for its baseball team During Pfil's senior year the team took the state and southeastern championships for the third straight year

Hunt was offered several baseball scholarships and decided to accept that of Florida State

In the 1956 season Pfil and Lee Corso led the team in runs batted in with a total of 25. Hunt holds the FSU record for the most assists in one season—a total of 90, which he set in 1955.

Thus far this season he is hitting .350, with 14 hits in 40 trips to the plate He has driven in 10 runs, and owns the only home run hit out of Centennial Field this year.

He blasted that lone round tripper Tuesday night to beat Ithaca With two down in the last of the ninth he lined a 1-2 pitch into the left field seats to beat the Ithacans 7-6.

A geology major, Pfil wants to try pro baseball for awhile, then go into the petroleum phase of geology.

Bowling Finals

SAE and the Feds rolled into the campus bowling championships in their respective divisions last week.

Half the campus may be at Gainesville for Spring Frolics this weekend but for a good majority of the students' memories of last weekend and of the elections are vivid enough to necessitate Jetes Frolics. Pi Phi Deb's Theta, Delta Delta, Kappa Sigma, Lambda Chi Alpha, Sigma Chi and Sigma Kappa competed with one another for weekend honors. The newly elected student body officials were honored at an informal reception Wednesday afternoon at the Alpha Chi Omega sorority house. The candidates, friends and members of both parties and independents joined Alpha Chi in paying tribute to the new Presidents and student body officials.

Broward Hall's annual Student-Faculty Tea is set for next Wednesday afternoon at 4:30. The tea, which is Broward's major social event of the year, is planned to give students and faculty members an opportunity to meet informally and become better acquainted. All faculty members and students are invited to attend.

The "Treasure of the Delta Moon" was the scene of the Tri Delt's formal during their weekend festivities. Naturally the theme was Oriental. Highlight of the evening was the naming of Durbee Marshall as the "Tri Delt Man" of the year. Rounding out the weekend was a coast party Saturday afternoon and a buffet luncheon Sunday.

Some thing new is on tap for tomorrow night. It's a Street Dance! The street between Gilchrist and Broward Hall is being blocked off and transformed into a dancing floor by the girls of Gilchrist Hall. They are offering an invitation to the entire campus to attend.

Kappa Delta was the guest of Phi Delta Theta last night for an informal party at the Phi Delt house. Needless to say everyone had a ball.

Kappa Sigma went all out preparing for their weekend. They constructed a lake, campsite and patio and bought new furniture for the living room and playroom just to set the scene for the Black and White Ball Friday night. Jane Allen was crowned Sweetheart of Kappa Sigma at the Ball. A wall of fire greeted everyone on Saturday night as they entered Dante's Inferno transferred to the Kappa Sig house. Bona fides and secret rush lists set the background for the elaborate smorgasbord. Prizes were awarded for the best costumes which ranged from Robin Hood to the Devil, himself. A combined barbeque and beach party officially ended the weekend.

Calypso was King at the Lambda Chi Alpha first event of their weekend Saturday afternoon Justice Campbell Thornal a Lambda Chi alum, was the featured speaker at a banquet honoring the new officers who were installed at the banquet. Saturday night Mary Margaret Andrews was pinned as the 1957 Crescent Girl. Sunday all went to the coast for swimming and a picnic.

Phi Kappa Tau men will be scarce around campus this weekend. National domain conference is at the University of Georgia this weekend and most of the men are traveling up for the big event.

Linda Rollins was crowned Sweetheart of Sigma Chi at the annual Sweetheart Dance Friday night as Sigma Chi began its weekend activity. Saturday the chapter and their guests went to the coast for an afternoon of sun and a Shrimp Fry and dance that night.

Sigma Kappa weekend was held in a atmosphere of Jamaica in hospitality. The Plantation Ball opened the festivities Friday night. After the presentation of the new initiates and the pledge class, Tommy Dunn was presented as Sigma Kappa "Plantation Boss." Saturday afternoon saw the Sigma Kappa party clad in Calypso costume and majoring on mass in Silver Lake. The mid-evening supper was followed by dancing and a floor show in the style of old Trinidad.

Harry Belafonte's newest album, An Evening With Belafonte, promises to be another best-seller. His selections are varied coming from folk music of many different countries — England, Ireland, and the West Indies, among others.

And Nat "King" Cole also has a new album. Gordon Jenkins' orchestra provides the background on Love Is the Thing.

Capitol has re-recorded A Bared is Born, and the old Billy May record is now on a 12-inch LP.

Incidentally if The Robin's Nest doesn't have the particular record you want, they'll gladly order it for you at no extra cost.

Eddie Heywood at Twilight features two of the foremost pianists in popular music today. Eight of the selections on the album are by Eddie, four others are by Joe Bushkin.

One of our personal favorites, Terry Gibbs, tries something new in Vibes on Velvet. The velvet consists of five harmonized saxophones. Those plus the regular members of the Gibbs Quartet make for very nice listening.

If you consider yourself a real connoisseur of jazz, listen to Pithecanthropus Erectus. It's a jazz tone poem by the Charlie Mingus Jazz Workshop, in four movements — Evolution, Superstition-complex, Decline and Destruction.

AN OPEN LETTER

To The Board Of Control
And The Students Of FSU

Some students would like to know what position the Student-Faculty Traffic Committee has taken on the question of whether or not Sophomores should be permitted to bring cars to campus next year. It is hoped that this letter will clarify the committee's position.

The committee recommended that all sophomores be permitted to bring cars to campus next year. This recommendation was passed unanimously after having been carefully considered for more than a year.

When we presented our report to Dr. Campbell, however, we reminded us that all traffic and parking recommendations are subject to the approval of the Board of Control. He further stated that the Board of Control probably would not accept our recommendation permitting the use of cars next year, but that if F has found it necessary to ban them next year at Gainesville

For editorial comment on the Traffic Committee's report, see lead editorial on page two.

CAN'T PREDICT

It is impossible for us to forsee what action will be taken by the Board of Control on this matter, but I personally hope it will take the following points into consideration before making a decision:

1) The traffic and parking problem at the U of F and FSU are identical. Though the U of F has found it necessary to ban Sophomore cars in order to alleviate the problem on its campus, it does not necessarily follow that a Sophomore ban is necessary at FSU. The traffic and parking situations at the U of F and FSU are different in many important respects.

2) The FSU Student-Faculty Traffic Committee has considered its recommendations for more than a year and has unanimously concluded that a ban on Sophomore Cars is not the solution to our traffic and parking problems. To impose a Sophomore ban at FSU would simply mean that the Board of Control has substituted its opinion for the recommendation of a committee which has studied parking problems at FSU for many months

ALL OPPOSED

3) The students and faculty of FSU are opposed to a Sophomore ban. Both student and faculty opinion has been represented on the committee which has made the recommendation. Since public sentiment is an important factor in determining what policies should be put into effect in a democratic society,

4) A committee at the U of F asked the Board of Control to approve its decision to ban Sophomore Cars. The Board approved the committee's recommendations. A committee at FSU asks that the Board approve its decision not to ban Sophomore cars. Should not the Board endorse the judgment of its FSU committee as it did the committee at the U of F?

For the sake of argument let's ever look the previous points and raise another question. Would it be fair to this years freshmen to impose a Sophomore ban next year when they came here with the understanding that they could have cars as Sophomores? In my opinion the answer is "no." If the Board decides to ban Sophomore cars next year, it should announce its decision two years in advance To impose such a decision next year would certainly be an act of gross injustice to the freshmen who are now enrolled at FSU.

It is hoped that the Board of Control will carefully consider these points before reaching its final decision.

Sincerely,
KARL EDWARDS, CHAIRMAN
Student-Faculty Traffic Committee

Honor Court Convicts Five

Honor Court convicted five students for cheating violations Friday night, Chief Justice Bill Manning announced yesterday.

Four were reported by a fellow student for cheating in a general educational examination while the fifth was from another class.

All were given grades of "F" in their courses and placed on probation running from a semester to one calendar year, Manning said.

He declined to comment on rumors that several promines of the student body asked a recent examination be invalidated.

Coach Tom Nugent, contacted yesterday afternoon about the rumors before Manning issued his statement, said he had heard nothing officially, but understood that possibly two of his squad were concerned.

Of the four convicted together, three were accused of cheating and one of "tolerating and failing to report" the offenses. The three were given a year's probation and the one a semester's probation, said Manning. He said the Court was certain that the latter was aware of cheating going on about him.

One of the three confessed voluntarily to having cheated before he was convicted. The other two, Manning said, by the Chief Justice said, pleaded guilty.

He said all persons tried Friday had confessed to the charges against them.

The student convicted from the other course had made a voluntary confession to a professor when he found himself under suspicion, Manning said. The student had not, he continued, been accused or questioned when the admission was made, and was given an "F" in the course and one year's probation.

NEWMAN TO REPORT

Professor Charles Newman will report on the findings of the Governor's Committee on Public Delinquency, of which he is a member, at the Social Welfare Club meeting tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. in the student lounge, Longmire.

Honor Code Change To Aid Honor System

By ETHEL CALHOUN

The Honor Code Amendment, passed in the recent student elections, unites the hands of the Honor Council, and should result in a greater respect for the principles of the Honor System, according to Bill Manning, Chief Justice.

Previously the minimum penalty for all honor violations was mandatory honor court probation for the remainder of the student's stay at the university.

Honor court now forbade the offender to hold any student office or to play on any athletic team. The court also recommended to the granting authorities of state aid often to out-of-state scholarships, that any scholarships held by the offender be discontinued.

In short, the offender was stripped of practically all participation except that of attending classes

NO DISCRETION

The court itself could do little more than determine guilt and impose the penalty, with no allowance for extenuating circumstances. Manning explained.

The new system permits the Honor Court to use its discretion in meting out penalties to offenders Penalties may now be prescribed according to the severity of the offense and upon the personal merits of the offender, the Chief Justice said.

MANY FACTORS

Many factors may now be taken into consideration, including whether or not the student reported his breach of the honor code.

Honor court probation may be imposed, and the student, while under penalty may not represent FSU in any way. The student may however, be returned to good standing if he has proved to the satisfaction of the Honor Court that he has made a "clean break" and will be a valuable member of the university community.

The court, Manning continued, plans to review the cases of all offenders who still attend FSU and were tried and placed on honor court probation prior to the amendment of the Honor Code

COMMITTEE MEMBER

An ex-officio member of the Honor Committee, a joint committee of students and faculty, Manning had advocated the adoption of the amendment to the Honor Code since last year.

To Honor Hungarian Refugee

Fellowship Schedules 'Man Of Year' Banquet

Westminster Fellowship will hold a "Man of the Year" banquet Friday to honor Balint Vazsonyi, Hungarian refugee student whom the group hopes to bring to this country from Austria.

Tickets are on sale by members of the Westminster Committee for purchasing them is tonight. The proceeds will be applied to Vazsonyi's expenses

Vazsonyi, a piano student, studied at the Budapest Academy of Music for 11 years, Fellowship President Greta Sims said. The Presbyterians have been making arrangements to sponsor his study at Florida State University.

BEGINS P. M.

The banquet will begin at 6 p.m. in the Westminster House recreation room. Dr. Andrew Trumper, nephew of Dr. Ernest von Dohnanyi, will tell of his experiences in escaping from Budapest during the Revolution, Miss Sims noted. Dr. Trimmer, an accomplished pianist, has lectured States since December and has learned to speak English during that time.

A letter from Vazsonyi, printed in the April 5 edition of the "Westminster Chimes," Presbyterian newsletter, is reprinted as page 2.

Miss Sims said the Fellowship's "Man of the Year" banquet is patterned after the "Man of the Year" choice of Time magazines, and a movement from the Philharmonic piano concerto by Rachmaninoff-Frederic Fishberg as "Man of the Year" for 1956.

'Signals Smothered Under Critics' Blast

Publications Board Is Scene Of Struggle For Editorship

By OSCAR JOHNSON

The future of this year's Smoke Signals was cast into doubt last week as editor Marcella Truzzi underwent a crossfire of criticism from the 1958 staff, the advisor to student publications and Dean of Students R. O. Oglesby,

Editor Truzzi said it was "a third-degreed attempt at impeachment."

Developments were like this all over the second issue of the controversial magazine was published.

The Board of Publications met Thursday and heard an eight-item attack on Truzzi's magazine by the "staff for 1957-58." It also received a letter from publications advisor R. H. Montgomery recommending that the magazine be turned over "now" to the 1958 staff.

WORK HALTED

Dr. Montgomery Friday sent instructions to Rose Printing Company, Tallahassee firm which prints the Smoke Signals, that they cease work on the third issue, some of whose copy had been sent in by last week

During an interview Friday with Dean Oglesby Truzzi was told he may be subjected to administrative action even if the Board of Publication does not fire him

The Board set a special meeting to be held Thursday at 5 p.m. in the Senate Room in Longmire Building to consider matters pertaining to Smoke Signals.

Almost overlooked in the Publications Board Signals fracas was the passage of 1957-58 budgets for the three student publications.

ADVISOR ATTACKED

A volley of criticism fired by Dr. Montgomery, publications advisor, included statements that the content this year has been contributed by only a small group of students, of whom "two were not on the campus at all the year," and one was absent from school a quarter the second semester. The failure to publish the remaining issues could result in an advertising loss, Truzzi may be required to refund advertising errors, "the second issue has been questioned as to its good taste and general value."

Dr. Montgomery said the Board has the power to shoot, "suspend the magazine this year and hope for improvement." He said the unfinanse over to the 1958 staff now and let it begin on its plan for a "clean break" and will be a valuable member of the university community.

The 1958 staff's letter went into more detail, but asked only that the fourth issue be turned over to them. It mentioned mis-handling of advertising, poor quality of proofreading a "low literary level, combined with material of questionable taste," and an inability to solicit material."

The letter said that "we—rep-

Arlena Ries

resenting the cause of a high quality general interest magazine —have received and have under consideration enough material to produce the fourth edition . . . One stipulation of enrollment was that our membership—including writing, art work and photography—be received by the exclusive use of the 1957-58 Smoke Signals staff."

RIES, SIMMONS SIGN

The letter was signed, 1957-58 Smoke Signals, Arlena Ries, editor-elect, Bob Simmons, managing editor. Ralph Peckham, business manager." Miss Ries and Peckham were named in their positions by the board its previous meeting and were to take over the magazine next year.

After a brief discussion the Board called a special session for Thursday

In his visit Friday with Dr. Oelesby at the latter's office in Westcott, Truzzi said he thought that only the future of the fourth issue was under question Dr. Montgomery, present at the visit, said he felt it his duty to issue the order stopping work on the third issue and that the Board should decide what further steps to take.

OGLESBY CRITICIZES

Dean Oglesby told Truzzi that of "the decision were mine to make, you'd be out," but that he will gave the editor opportunity to state his side if administrative action is considered.

Question of administrative action was brought up when Truzzi said he had asked Dr Montgomery for advice on how he should publish an article concerning a fraternity initiation.

REMOVAL HINTED

Dean Oglesby said if Truzzi is guilty of violating "an administrative order," he may be removed from his position

Budgets passed by the Board include $36,000 for the Flambeau, which includes $22,000 in student activity fees, $3,000 from publications and $600 from yearbook reservation fees, $2,000 for the Florida Flambeau, which includes $1,000 from student activity fees and $1,000 from advertising and $7,300 for Smoke Signals, including $3,815 from activity fees and $1,500 from advertising.

Tally-Ho salaries would amount to $1,000, including $100 a month, $50 a month and $50 a month for photographers, $450 yearly for the editor, and $600 for the business manager.

FLAMBEAU SALARIES

Flambeau salaries would include $410 per issue for the editor, $1.50 an issue for the managing editor, $1.50 an issue for the advertising manager and $8.50 an issue for the business manager, along with lesser amounts for eight other positions

Smoke Signals salaries would include $450 for the editor $315 for the managing manager and $270 for the managing editor

CABINET NEXT

Before the budgets were approved Board chairman Don Hetherington said the attorney general's committee had already prepared budgets for the publications Student Body President Dave Beckham, attending the meeting, said that he was "backwards" and that the Board should pass its budgets for submission to the cabinet group

The cabinet approves all budgets from student organizations and which receive money under the Student Activity Fee Its recommendations are considered by the Student Senate the Student Body President, and then referred to the university finance committee.

Traffic Committee's Requests Show Careful Consideration

The Student-Faculty traffic committee's report to President Doak S. Campbell is a thorough document showing the group's careful analysis of the campus situation.

The members are to be commended for their painstaking attempt to arrive at fair and reasonable accomodations to a situation which can be most diplomatically described as horrendous. With no funds available for parking lot construction somebody has to be left out — and in trying to decide who should get for be denied parking, the committee is bound to displease someone.

RECOGNIZING this, the committee has still made an effort to avoid an indiscriminate, wholesale banning of cars to students. In its report the body asked that Sophomores be allowed to have automobiles next year, a request which noone from Westtott indicate is not wholly endorsed by the powers-that-be.

Theory would have it that the Board of Control, or President Campbell, will initiate steps to ban cars to Sophomores, following a similar action taken in the case of the University of Florida.

This, however, seems to us to be unreasonable. We agree with the committee that it should not be done.

THE ACT OF banning cars to students presupposes that this will eliminate an impediment to study—why else would the students' right to own cars be different from the right of university employees?

We do not grant the assumption. Many students who drive automobiles have high scholastic averages. A more reasonable step to take under the impediment-to-study theory would be to ban cars to students with low grades, a recommendation made last year by Student Senate.

BY FAILING to recognize this the powers will admit to banning student cars simply for selfish motives. They drive they have the power of choice, so they make a decision favorable to themselves.

If the Board of Control changes any of the traffic committee's recommendations, we hope that it will be along a more adjudicious line than banning cars to student groups simply because they are students. After all, the students do have at least some importance at a university even if less than that of the administrators.

Publications Board Faces Big Task In Deciding Smoke Signals Future

This Thursday the Board of Student Publications will have to decide a serious matter—whether to take the editorship of Smoke Signals from the present Editor, Marcello Truzzi.

The alternatives, as stated by Advisor to Student Publications Dr. Reid Montgomery, seem to be these: (1) That the Board take no action and hope for improvement in the mazazine; (2) That present Editor Marcello Truzzi be removed from office and the magazine be turned over to next year's staff; and (3) That Smoke Signals be discontinued this year.

WE WILL NOT assume a point of view favoring any of these alternatives until they are sufficiently debated at Thursday's Board meeting. But since opinion seems to be swinging toward the removal of Mr. Truzzi, we would like to point out several objections to this alternative.

Last November the Board of Publications passed a resolution charging Truzzi with the responsibility of putting out one future issue which would be entirely devoted to literary matters. Mr. Truzzi says this issue has been almost completed and is nearly ready to be printed.

IF THIS IS true Mr. Truzzi has gone a long way toward complying with the Board's wishes. It would seem unduly capricious for the Board to suddenly decide to throw out an issue which the Board previously asked him to publish.

It would be another matter were the Board to determine that the literary issue which Mr. Truzzi says is now all but ready for publication is of low quality. This would seemingly indicate that he is incompetent to be Editor.

Even if it is decided that Mr. Truzzi should no longer edit the Editor, however, this would not necessarily mean that the 1953 staff should take over.

MR. TRUZZI has issued statements many times, to the Board and otherwise, that he is quite willing to accept any material offered for publication. It would appear that anybody who sincerely wanted to have literary material published could have done so through Mr. Truzzi.

In its brief for the Board of Publications, next year's staff asked that Mr. Truzzi agree to step out of office in "a spirit of good will and cooperation." We ask, how much good will and cooperation" have been shown Mr Truzzi by those who would take the magazine from him?

Freed Recital Was Ingratiating

By DAVE WARD-STEINMAN

The graduate recital of Paul Freed Saturday night presented an ingratiatins evening of polished, meticulous piano playing.

The program was an ambitious one, consisting of the Mozart Fantasia in C Minor, Beethoven Op 101 Sonata in A Major, Schumann Kinderszenen, Prokofieff Sarcasm, and two Preludes by the Swiss composer Frank Martin.

The opening Mozart was played very cleanly and formally, and in accord with immaculate control. The Beethoven was for us, the high point of the evening. One of the most beautiful, virtuous pieces and Freed played them very brilliantly. Indeed, his technique is remarkable, and his performance of these pieces left nothing to be desired in the way of agility or vitality.

The concludiuis Prokofieff Tocenta, as felt, was something of a let-down after an evening of such brilliant piano pianos. While we have never approved lithinine-fast tempos for the sake of mere virtuosic display, we did feel that Freed's tempo in the Toccata was too slow for consistent the architectural design being observed by what was really painstaking illumination Freed laid bare the bones of the piece, and this is a piece that cannot afford to have its bones bared.

In retrospect, an evening of very finely controlled piano playing with much musicianship in evidence.

Commies Like Apathy

TO THE EDITOR:

The following appeared in the Tallahassee Democrat Sunday, in George Sokolsky's column:

"The United Front ... makes it possible for the Communist to use non-communists as an umbrella for action. Communists find it easier to recruit new members through united front organizations than to attract them directly into the party without the cutting involved in an intermediary step.

It is often possible to find dupes who lend their names to head Communist organizations because they agree with the announced purposes of particular committees or organizations. The dupes have served the communists often more ably than some Party members."

Anti-Communists are aware of the need for eternal vigilance, but the hope of the Communists is that a general antipathy to enforced conformity to any pattern such as constitutionalism will work in their favor." (My insert of parenthesis)

That is what I mean when I say that there exists a connection between the Liberal intellectual and the undercover Communist.

I wonder what you mean when you say "There is no connection between Liberal Intellectualism and undercover Communism"?

Please give me the facts. Quote me some Sidney Hook.

Sincerely,
CHARLES MAYO

Education Majors Waste Their Time

LETTERS to the EDITOR

TO THE EDITOR:

On April 1st Sen. L. K Edwards Jr., of the Florida Legislature and chairman of the Senate Education Committee gave out opinion on Florida teacher certification requirements. He pointed out that he believes that lowering the number of courses required in professional education would allow the prospective teacher to take more courses in the subject matter in which he will teach, thus increasing his ability as a teacher. To substantiate his statement he also said, "I have received no evidence that professional education courses increase the teacher's proficiency."

I CONGRATULATE Sen. Edwards for insight into one of the most fundamental problems facing educators today. Many potentially great teachers are prevented from teaching simply because they don't have credit for education courses equivalent on the FSU campus to Education 105 or 205. For example, I am a history major and am adjudged deficient with either of those courses realizes the relative insignificance and unimportance of them and most often would give a "Nothing" answer to any question trying to determine if anything was learned. But that itself is unimportant compared to the crux of the matter—that that valuable time could have probably been better spent concentrating on the subject which the prospective teacher will teach. When I completed my student teaching internship the general consensus after who came back pointed to this: that we would have been more self-assured and capable if we all could have had been allowed to further study our specialties instead of spending that time in courses like those mentioned above—and they are not the only ones.)

I'M SURE many of my old internship classmates and many of those before us all agree with Sen. Edwards. When students and teachers who are directly involved in the certification process agree that some teacher preparation time could be better spent, might not the educators themselves re-evaluate their teacher certification requirements? A critique like this could go on for pages, but I'll have to end with the profound hope that Florida and other states will agree with Sen Edwards and effect his ideas.

Sincerely,
A STUDENT

Parrish Incident Only The Start

By DON MEUDEL

A long and friendly athletic rivalry with our sister institution, the University of Florida, at Gainesville, is a goal which many people desire. The desirability of such a healthier relationship is obvious but its feasibility is a coming dimmer with each passing athletic event between the two schools.

Friday night at Gessell's Field in Tallahassee. It was the first engagement of the year between the bitter rivals of the respective schools.

FLORIDA STATE was heated 13-2 but it was the roughhouse play of Florida Gators' right fielder Bernie Parrish which did the damage. Mr Parrish, also the halback of the Florida football squad, took particular delight in bowling over Seminole infielders on his trips around the bases.

His aggressiveness reached its climax when, on a play at the plate, Parrish and Jack Shepard, 12 feet, he hit Seminole catcher John Sheppard with such force as to knock-out the latter. Shepard had to be removed from the game and Parrish was greeted with enthusiasm by his mates for his feat.

AFTER THAT incident the simmering rivalry broke. The Gators contempt for the rules of fair play and sportsmanship coupled with the Parrisan fans npprobrious abuse of the home crowd and atmosphere of unbounded hospitality on hatred.

The atmosphere for clean competition was destroyed forever last Friday. The Gator nine saw to that. That was proven the following Saturday afternoon in a return battle between the two clubs Parrish and his teammates found themselves targets for such a fusillade of abuse that it became overwhelming. They are human beings and not accustomed to such.

IT WAS HAD to suffer many grievances as the weaker sister institution. Feeling is running too high and is too deep-rooted to be salved over by even an FSU performance in the so-called minor sports

There are too many scores to be settled and too many near revelations between the two schools to be healed over by occasional scores over Florida in baseball, swimming, track, tennis, golf or basketball. It is likely many more Parrish incidents will occur in the future.

THAT FLORIDA rooters will be satisfied with only one achievement in the field of athletics. It is a contest where each team will really be able to engage in tactics used by Parrish—The 1952 FSU-Florida football game. Seminole fans' wrath will be cooled only with a clear-cut victory over the Gators

That FSU has come a long way since 1947 is recognized by all. However most Seminole fans feel we must effect one accomplishment before we can say we have arrived as a full-fledged major university.

Victory over Florida in '53!

The game is becoming that important!

'Old Times (Here) Aren't Forgotten

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Last week the Florida House of Representatives resolved that a decision of the United States Supreme Court should be resisted by Florida. The measure now awaits action in the Senate, where it may face opposition.

Opponents of the interposition resolution say it would be useless in resisting the Court's decisions on segregation.

It is worse than useless, Florida's lawmakers condemn hope to turn back the clock, but what they will have done is to encourage an ideological setback among the people of this state

One can understand the deep emotional attachments many southerners have to segregation. But whenever love for an institution becomes stronger than patriotism, the country is in danger.

IMAGINE THE anarchy that would result if each state had the power to declare null and void decisions of the Supreme Court and legislation of the Congress.

Texas, a state controlled by oil interests, could nullify all federal laws and regulations pertaining to oil.

THE TIMBER interests in Washington state, fearful of the theft of federal forest reserves. Any state with a demagogue of fire-holders could impede selective service.

Impossible? No less outrageous than the idea that a federal legislature can control national legal decisions according to its own prejudices, or those of its constituents.

JOHN C. CALHOUN represented South Carolina the years when the doctrine of "nullification" was a fine thing, propagandized by the "reserved rights theory" — that interpretation depended upon the state they lived in, all any state could "veto" a law.

Political scientists insist since made fun of that theory that a South Carolina cotton cropper would have more in common with a South Carolina banker than with a Kansas cropper.

The interpositionists, it is back to Calhoun and to Thomas Jefferson, misrepresented as he does.

JEFFERSON thought only the states could protect freedom to the individual.

A REPRINT

'Feel So Relieved . . .'

Editor's Note: The following letter was sent to Miss Miriam ("Aunt") Wilson, director of the Westminster Fellowship organization on campus. It is from a Hungarian refugee student whom the Presbyterians hope to bring to FSU. It is reprinted here because of its general interest. The letter was received early this month.

A story about the author appears on page one.

DEAR MISS WILSON:

Thank you very much for your most welcome letter brought me much happiness and I certainly look forward coming to you to study in America. I feel so relieved find someone who will make me truly at home here. I'm Hungarian suffering from homesickness and having been for a great joy to come to you. I will be a stranger for fear something might happen and I would lose the ship. I am looking forward to begin studies at FSU as the Austria is very difficult both financially and for purposes.

AT PRESENT I am very calm for the first time in months. I am studying English as much as I can and I say it is improving.

I would like to tell you something about my family experiences. My grandfather's brother was the last Minister of Justice in the Austro-Hungarian Monarchy. He founded the "National Democratic Party" in Hungary. My father was in the leading section of the Hungarian concentration camp in Austria in 1945.

MY BROTHER finished his studies in the Presbyterian Gymnasium in 1949 he wanted to study medicine. However, he was unlikely and was imprisoned in Hungary for 4 years and 3 months. He could only have labor work. He is not allowed in the Medical University and he is not allowed to finish his training in the Teacher's High School and is qualified nowadays as a worker.

My mother must work after my father's death. She is now 51 years old. My brother is 28 years.

I HAVE STUDIED piano since the age of five and I have been at the Music Academy in Budapest since 1946 I have given concerts in the radio America House and a Nations' club. Unfortunately since October I haven't been able to practise properly because it is very hard to work systematically when I have not the possibilities to work daily.

MY BROTHER teaches here. There are so many illegal Hungarians in Austria and there are very limited possibilities of entering Austrian schools—of course, this is provisional work.

Once again I thank you so much for all you have done for me. I wait patiently for the time to pass quickly and hope that it will be long before I meet you and am able personally to thank you.

With very best wishes to you and my kind regards to all my newly made friends in your circle.

Critics Destructive

TO THE EDITOR:

Last Friday's Flambeau con tained two letters regarding the Smoke Signals. The first of these was a case of humor. I wish that more persons with such talents would submit articles for the magazine. I think that if more campus critics would do the same there would be much less need for their criticism.

The second letter appears to be vicious in its comment and critically is not constructive. I still welcome any criticism of Smoke Signals which will aid in the improvement of the magazine. It merely saddens me that anyone would expend their energy in this worthless manner.

Once again the Smoke Signals extends its open arms to anyone and/or friendly suggestion which will improve the appeal of Smoke Signals.

Very Sincerely

IT'S FOR REAL! by Chester Field

Seminoles Per(arr)ish, Gain Split

Alan Whitmarsh

The Gators Have It!

What have those Gators got?
What is that indefinite something that seems to give them the edge over Seminole athletic units, no matter how much support better are our teams?

At the beginning of the various athletic campaigns, the experts looked them

In basketball, Florida rated a definite favorite, they won, but in a fantastic one-hand heave after the buzzer sounded.

Gator teams split swimming meets, each winning at their own pools in nerve-racking affairs. Both times they announced out that several of the Seminoles were far off performance in that loss in Gainesville.

The big mystery, though, comes when you look at golf and golf links. Coach Don Veller's Seminoles seemed to have everything wrapped up beforehand. They had downed the Gators last year, had virtually the same team back and could lose two or three top men.

What happened? The Gators came up here and downed the Tallahassee course. The return match was rained out, will be played before the Southern Intercollegiate in Athens, Ga.

In baseball, likewise, the Seminoles had all the advantage, as we are prone to think, a good measure of overconfidence, which we feel to them last year, there was no reason to think couldn't take them twice on the home diamond.

Gators didn't make monkeys out of the Seminole nine to the tune of eight straight. The 4-1 win Saturday was hardly sweet revenge on the basis of our 10-4 mark and their 5-7 record.

The Gators evidently have the desire, and the Seminoles, who should certainly have all the incentive, don't have it when the Golor chips are on the line.

Tomorrow's contest is still to come the clash on the gridiron of long-awaited November day in 1958.

Gators are well liked when it comes to beat 'em with. Chances are tonight we won't beat 'em

The Seminoles still appear to be at the half-way mark. They can beat the little fellows now, but still can't handle the big boys.

Get off this neutral ground. And let's go up, not down.

CHANCES LOOK SLIM

The Gators and Seminoles will meet three more times this season in conference competition. The golfers tennis squad team have one meeting each with Florida.

Chances are hardly feasible that FSU will come out even on that competition with Florida. We stand 2-5 in varsity competition.

The rollers by all rights should win, but they should have won last time. The track team has a good chance of victory, but teams team practically no chance at all.

On the basis of the recent Florida Relays, Coach Mike Long's thinclads will give all the ink in the world of downing Florida a week coming Saturday here.

With the exception of one or two men, the Seminole track team is virtually the same one which lost to Florida 90-41 last year.

The Gators, on the other hand, had several costly losses, which they still have a powerful unit.

Again, they've still got that extra something. That little "extra" that "we've got to beat those girls" from Tally and "them we're still superior."

The Seminoles have got it if they haven't yet proved it.

Gymnasts Win Georgia AAU

Florida State's Gymkana took five first places of the nine events to romp by Georgia Tech 149.5 to 54 and win their sixth Georgia AAU title in Atlanta Saturday.

The Pensacola Naval Air Station finished third with 25 and the University of Florida rounded out the top four.

The Seminoles landed the top three men in the meet for all-around. Jack Miles was first, Rafael Lecuona second and Larry Mainlin, third.

Miles picked off three first places. He won the high bar, flying rings and tied for first with Jamile Ashmore in the long horse.

OTHER WINNERS

Other winners for the Tribe were Ashmore, long horse, Rafael Lecuona on side horse and Don Holder on still rings.

Still rings provided the only complete sweep for the Seminoles. Other point makers besides the top-placed Holder were Jamile Ashmore, Miles, Lecuona and Mainlin.

Also picking up points were Laird Anderson, second in rope climb, Holder and Lecuona in long horse, Holdey Fernando Lecuona and Joe Taylor on side horse.

Holder and Joe Guzie as parallel bars, B. Lecuona and Mainlin on the high bar, Mainlin and Ashmore in free exercise, Don Preisser and Ashmore in tumbling, Preisser in trampoline and Taylor, Ashmore, Holder and Anderson in flying rings.

"This was our last until the Nationals later this month and we stressed the routines that the gymnasts must use in this event. I'm satisfied with the results" said coach Price.

LCA Victors In Wrestling

Lambda Chi fraternity won the first annual intramural wrestling tournament here last week. LCA won 36 points to outdistance second place SAE's 33 and the Sigma Pi's and Rebels who finished fourth with 32

Wrestling instructor John Chevrette reported the tournament attracted 60 entries, who competed in 60-30 matches in the four nights span.

Chevrette calls wrestling "potentially one of the best intramural activities." Points in this interval did not count as part of the regular intramural program.

The possibility of adding wrestling to the intramural program has been considered earlier this year, but no formal action taken.

Other southern schools, such as Auburn, Emory, Tennessee, Chattanooga and Suwanee now have intercollegiate wrestling squads.

The winners in the various weight classes were:

Frosh Baseballers Meet Troy State

Florida State's freshman baseball team will meet Troy State here tomorrow in a doubleheader, beginning at 1:30 p.m. at Seminole Field.

The Baby Seminoles split a doubleheader in Jacksonville this past weekend with Jacksonville University, winning the first one 11-8, losing 2-1 in five innings in the nightcap.

HOME PLATE CONGREGATION. The whole Seminole bench turned out to greet Phil Hunt Friday night after the slugging Tribe third sacker belted his second home run of the year. It gave FSU an exeremely short-lived lead over the Gators Florida won, 13-2

Boxer's 2-Hitter Provides 10th Win

By BEN BALSER
Flambeau Sports Writer

The Florida State baseball team gained its 10th victory of the season as it split two games with the "aggressive" University of Florida Gators last weekend.

It marked the first time any FSU team has beaten any Florida team in a major sport since they started athletic relations last year.

Jerry Boxer, the Tribe baseball ace, was the guiding light in the beneficent win as he pitched two-hit ball and got one of the Tribe's two hits last Saturday when the Gators tasted a 4-1 defeat.

For six innings neither team got a hit as Gator pitcher Bucky Williams matched Boxer in a nursing a hitless spell over the batters. Florida broke the ice in the seventh when outfielder Charlie King singled to short left. He was stranded, however, as Boxer settled down to strike out the next batter.

BIG EIGHTH

In the eighth, Riley Sievers started off the inning with a walk. Bob Rozell then drove him to second Rozell then stole second and Jim Bowser singled to short to get the scene for Boxer as he came up to plate for the so-far hitless Seminoles.

Jerry picked out a high outside pitch and blasted it off the right-field fence just beyond the reach of Gator outfielder Bernie Parrish. Rozell rounded third and reached home just about the same time the ball did.

He did not break stride as he rammed into Florida catcher Charlie Rawlings, who dropped the ball and allowed the first run of the game. Boxer pulled up on second.

Owen Kitchen then bat a long fly which brought in Bowser. Florida Coach Dave Fuller then pulled Williams and inserted a southpaw, Tim Twomey.

Carlee Herald, the second sacker, also a left hander drilled Twomey's first pitch over the right-field fence, scoring Boxer.

SECOND HIT

In the ninth King got his second hit off of Boxer and was left on the Gators' lone tally. The final totals showed Boxer with 13 strike outs and only four walks. Williams allowed five walks and had only one strike out.

Friday night at Centennial Field Florida outfielder Parrish caused a lot of hard feelings as he led the Gators past the Tribe 31-2. This was the worst beating the Tribe has had all season. It was their fourth loss.

Parrish, undoubtedly endowed with plenty of spirit, ran haves like a whirlwind, leaving FSU players sprawling in his wake.

The payoff came in the fifth inning when Parrish tried to score from third on a ground ball.

John Sheppard Tribe catcher, had the ball and stood waiting for Parish in front of the plate. In the next instant Parrish crossed the plate standing up and Sheppard lay motionless as the ball dribbled slowly out of his hand.

Parrish was called safe and Sheppard was helped from the field amid yells of the fans and his own teammates From then on Parrish was greeted with boos and catcalls wherever he came out of the dugout

BRINGS IT UP

Although that was only one run it served to blast the game wide open as the Gators went on to score seven more runs. Jack Blalock started the game for the Tribe and received his first loss of the season. He was followed to the mound by Fred Kenney, Frank Slusser and Rudy Egle, who finished the game.

Burt Touchberry held the Seminoles to seven hits. Pat Hunt and Owen McCarron both had two hits for the Tribe One of Hunt's hits was a home run deep 2cf. Sievers got a punch hit triple in the last of the ninth and scored on Coppe long fly

All during the game the Tribe had runs on base but could not bring them in FSU stranded eight men on the bases.

He Wanted To Play Soccer . .

Levente Ovsath wanted to play soccer, the favorite sport in his native Hungary.

So he checked out a soccer ball from the men's gymnasium and ambled up kicking it around alone.

However, a few other students have joined with the lone soccer player from Hungary, and they now "work out" every Saturday morning at 10 on the hockey field near the women's gym.

Ovsath said the eight enthusiasts represent Peru, Germany, Italy, America, Canada and India.

He told the Florida Flambeau that if there are enough students here who would be interested in the sport, intercollegiate competition with soccer teams in the north might be done possible. And in the meantime they can hold intra-squad competition.

There are eleven men on a soccer team and just a few reserves. If a player is hurt he draws himself over to the sidelines and the game goes on.

They are Alton Wagner, zoology; Otto B. Mundy, zoology; Robert J. Strickey, chemistry, and William H. Graham, chemistry.

The students, Graduate School Dean Milton W. Carothers said, are among 845 selected by the Foundation from among 3,028 applicants.

Engineering Studies Set

Plans were announced by Florida State University last week for a four-year program of studies in engineering science.

In announcing the new curriculum, which already has the approval of the Board of Control, President Doak S. Campbell said: It is designed to fill three principal needs.

One purpose, he said, is to help alleviate a nationwide shortage of engineers which will be particularly felt in Florida with its rapid industrial expansion and development.

Another is to fill a demand by Florida high school students for engineering training. This is indicated, he said, by the expressed intention of the students and by the fact that 800 leave the state every year to enter schools of engineering.

Still another purpose is to meet the demands of industry, particularly of industry in the most recently developed fields, for engineering scientists and schooling somewhat different from the traditional pattern of engineering education. Instead of graduates trained specifically as civil engineers, chemical engineers or other types of engineers many industries want persons with a broad scientific training whose knowledge and skills can be channeled into a specific field after graduation.

"For the students who come to FSU and elects during his freshman year to take engineering science it will mean an emphasis during his entire college course on mathematics, physics and chemistry courses, along with some thing on the application of these basic sciences to engineering problems," said Dr. Charles Davis, dean of the college of arts and sciences. "There will be none of the traditional technical curricula in engineering but certain basic engineering courses will be included."

opposed a strong national government for that reason. Jefferson, those observations of his times were those of a statesman, could not see into the future.

His colonies grew into a nation which in every significant aspect is one, not many. Its business and commerce operate on a national scale, it conducts foreign affairs and wages wars as a nation. The economies of the states depend upon the national economy and in the eyes of the world America is a single state.

PARADOXICALLY, it was Jefferson who initiated the growth of his country, buying the Louisiana Territory over the objections of those who said it was not within his power to do so. It was then that the United States began to expand.

All the problems that confront us are national problems, and the concept of state sovereignty is hopelessly outdated.

Intrastation is still a thing of the future; the Court asked only for good faith on the part of the states, but if Florida resolves upon interposition, it will be the first step toward forcing a showdown that could bitterly rend our nation at a time when solidarity and patriotism are more important than ever before.

HONOR CODE

He said he believed that a law, like the fixed penalty for honor offenses, which takes power away from the deciding group, is too strong.

Viewing the amended FSU Honor Code as compared to the honor systems of such institutions as the University of Virginia and West Point, where suspension is mandatory for any honor offense, Manning said he does not believe FSU penalties need be so strinsent, if at the present.

The FSU Honor System, established seven years ago, cannot be expected to have the strength based upon tradition as is found in the of the University of Virginia and West Point. Manning FSU, Manning continues places a greater faith in the integrity of the individual, than do most schools of comparable size.

For instance, he said, in four courses where there are as many as 175 students in section, the instructor keeps attendance by noting students sign their names on pieces of paper and drop them in designated box. It is a common practice for an instructor to leave during a test or e

Bill Asks Restriction Of Student Activities

House Measure Would Provide Expulsion Of Members Of Groups Flaunting Law

A bill to expel state university students who take part in "demonstrations or riots promoting any violation of the laws of Florida" was put before the Florida House of Representatives this week.

The bill, introduced by Rep. J. W. McAlpin, of Hamilton County, would affect also any member of any organization whose aims and principles include a course of action that would involve a violation of state laws.

It provides that a student taking part in such actions or joining proscribed organizations "shall be immediately dismissed and permanently expelled as a student of the state institution he is attending."

ANTI-NAACP

Rep. McAlpin told The Florida Flambeau he intended the bill as an anti-NAACP measure. He said he is "strongly opposed to intergation."

Asked if the bill was written to also affect students who attend meetings of pro-segregation groups whose activities might include the incitement of violence, Rep. McAlpin replied in the negative.

"It's strictly an NAACP measure," he said.

COMMITTEE

Introduced Monday, the bill was referred to the House Education and Higher Learning Committee, which was to meet this morning at 8:30.

Rep. J. Emory "Red" Cross of Gainesville, chairman, said the committee would hear any students who cared to testify concerning the measure. He said if enough students appeared a special hearing on the bill would be scheduled.

TEACHER BILL

Rep. McAlpin also introduced a bill providing for "immediate" dismissal of any school teacher, university professor, school or university employee or supervisor who is a member or becomes a member, of any organization, whose principles or activities include a course of conduct on the part of its organization or of any person or group which would constitute violence or a violation of the laws of this state, or would be inimical to the well being and orderly pursuit of their personal and business affairs by the majority of the citizens of this state."

Young' Prexy Best-Collins

By CHARLET POITEVINT

Governor LeRoy Collins said this week the new Florida State University president "should be a young man with a future."

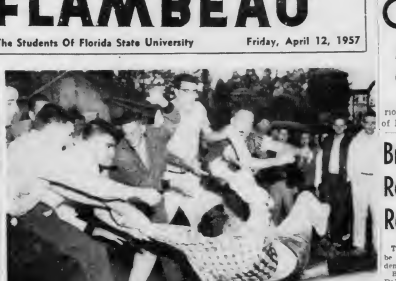
Collins told the Florida Flambeau his opinion on the qualifications of the new president as Board of Control officials announced they "are making substantial progress" toward selection of a man to replace retiring Dr. R. B. Campbell.

Collins issued the following release to the Flambeau:

"I believe the President of Florida State University should first be a man of real capacity, earnest purpose, integrity and faith. He must be knowledgeable in the field of education and public administration. He should have a deep abiding love and respect for leadership. He should be a young man with a future. He should have at least a keen understanding of the role a university can play in the development of a state. He should command the respect of a majority of his profession. And there is no means least, he should be a fine, gracious and charming wife."

Lt. Gov. Broward Culkeepper, executive secretary of the Board of Control yesterday the Board will not complete a new president at the next meeting in Tallahassee this coming Thursday.

He said a faculty committee has picked nominating recommendations but he didn't know when the choice would be made.



"This is something which takes very careful consideration," he said.

A meeting will be held Monday afternoon beginning at 3:30 for persons interested in being Tally-Ho photographers, said Chief Photographer Dick Parks. They should bring portfolios to the meeting, which will be held in the Tally-Ho office, fourth floor Longmire, said Parks.

Silence Reigns On Vance Tiff

The faculty committee investigating the pending dismissal of professor Earl Vance recessed this week after two days of hearings.

Dr. Marian Irish, chairman of the Professional Relations and Standards Committee, said it heard witnesses and arguments Monday and Tuesday.

She said the group will vote upon a recommendation whether Vance should or should not be dismissed but could not predict when the decision would be reached.

Vance was notified in December by President Doak S. Campbell he would be dismissed as professor of journalism for "failure to cooperate" with the dean and curriculum of the School of Journalism. He has been on the faculty since 1927 and headed the Department of Journalism before it was made into a School in 1948. Vance has not been assigned a class to teach in three years.

The committee is empowered by the university constitution to hear the cases of faculty members against whom dismissal proceedings are brought and make recommendations to the Board of Control and president of the University.

Bermuda Clad Romeo Shooed

It happened at a nearby state college for girls where an informal "moonglow" dance was being held on a school patio.

A young Lothario clad boldly in saudy tartan plaid bermuda shorts was summarily whisked his partner-of-the-moment around the dance floor when an elderly and motherly-looking chaperone strolled up to the court.

She approached the couple and said the self-assured chap on the shoulder and exclaimed in a paternal tone: "Look sonny, if you're not old enough to wear long pants, then you're too young to be dancing with our girls. Now scram!"

And the astonished red-faced Romeo beat a hasty retreat to the sidelines. —Bob Simmons.

STATE'S MONICKER NOW 'COLLEGIATE'

The State Party has changed its name to the "Collegiate Party", chairman Gerry Gordon announced Wednesday.

The action was taken, he said, because the party's leaders feel the name, State Party, "has carried us as far as it can." The changeover is effective immediately, he added.

Gordon said the executive committee voted unanimously Tuesday night to make the change. "This long-contemplated change was felt to be a step toward the future.

"We feel that if the party is to be a true representative of the students' opinions on candidates and issues we must bring ourselves closer to the students, for as it has been said on many occasions, a prime purpose of campaign political parties is to stimulate interest on the part of the students so that they will have the facts and the candidates before them when they vote."

Gordon added that the former State Party "has made many gains since its inception. We held a majority of men's and women's class offices after last year's elections."

He said, "We felt that the name of 'State Party' has carried us as far as it can; but now with our new leadership and fresh ideas we intend to live up to our new name—Collegiate Party—by bringing campus politics to the students."

Bread Loaf Talk Set Over 'Hour'

The program of the annual Bread Loaf Writers' Conference will be discussed today by Mrs. Olive Cross at the weekly English Coffee Hour.

The Coffee Hour, open to the public, is held at the Westminster House from 4 to 5 p.m.

Mrs. Cross, a member of the English faculty, said the talk will be of special interest to students concerned with creative writing.

Established more than 30 years ago by a group of American literary men, including Robert Frost, Bernard DeVoto, and Theodore Morrison, the Conference is held for two weeks every summer on the Middlebury College campus at Middlebury, Vt.

Flambeau Runs Poll

Are Education Courses Necessary?

In response to requests from students, the Florida Flambeau is sponsoring an opinion poll on the question of teacher certification requirements.

A bill has been introduced in the State Legislature to eliminate many of the certification requirements that now exist, but such action has been opposed by State School Superintendent Thomas D. Bailey.

The Flabeau realizes that most students, including Education majors, will not take enough interest in the problem to make the three check marks required, sign their names, tear out the box and drop it in a campus mail box. Nevertheless the poll is offered for the convenience of those who have an opinion on the matter and would like to make it known.

Names and student numbers are required, but will definitely not be made public. The box will be run in Tuesday's edition of the Flambeau also, and results will be announced after the Easter holidays.

It is not necessary that the respondents be enrolled or be instructors in the School of Education, but it is expected that they will be the most interested in the problem. Results will take into account the number of Education majors currently interested.

'Symphony To Feature Mozart Music

The final University Symphony concert of the season will be presented Monday in Westcott Auditorium beginning at 8:15 p.m.

The string section of the orchestra will be featured in a performance of Mozart's serenade, "A Little Nath Music," according to Robert Bodiford, conductor. This selection has four movements.

Also to be presented are "Roman Carnival Overture," by Berlioz Suite from Strauss' Der Rosenkavlier; Symphony Number 3, by Prokofieff and Debussy's "Afternoon of a Faun," which will feature Dale Jensen as solo flute.

Cheer Squad Tryouts Set

Jim Julian has been named head cheerleader for 1957-58, graduate chief Bucka Stenberg announced.

He said tryouts for the new cheerina squad will be held during the first week of May.

New uniforms stressing an Indian theme are contemplated, said Stenberg. Plans for a great deal more student participation such as bonfires and pep rallies are being made, he added.

Problem Of Education Requirements Deserves Our Careful Consideration

Senator L. K. Edwards aroused education's most burning issue when he questioned whether Florida's teacher training is producing the best teachers.

Many educators have insisted that the education school approach, of giving students a multitude of teaching methods courses, left them uneducated.

Others have maintained that there is so fine an art in the imparting of knowledge to others that method is equally important with knowledge.

But the essential question has been unresolved: is method over-emphasized?

The Flambeau is conducting a poll, in today's and Tuesday's editions, whether students and faculty both in education and in other courses, think too much stress is placed upon method.

The question is not academic. Many of those young people who would make the best teachers because of their love of learning, are discouraged by that same passion from spending time in dull courses.

They may be wrong. But the question deserves — indeed, demands — examination.

Legislature, Florida Clearing House Offer Demonstrations Of Democracy

Politics—it is a word scorned by some, loved by others, but vital to all.

The old proverb, "Rock 'n' Roll is here to stay" could be applied to politics also, for so long as this country exists under its Constitution the workings of government will affect its citizens' daily lives.

As a form of government, democracy is particularly political. Winston Churchill once quipped that it is the worst of all forms of government—except that it is superior to any others yet devised by man. Clearly there is something about democracy that deserves study and consideration.

STUDENTS WILL have a chance next week to take a look for themselves at the politics of democracy, in two very good showcases.

One is the state Legislature, which has been in session for more than a week, and the other the Florida Citizenship Clearing House. Both are well worth attending.

The fact that two such excellent displays of practical politics should occur at the same time in Tallahassee is of moment to those interested in the operation of their government. And who should not be?

WE CAN THINK of few things so colorful to watch as the assembly of the Florida Senate or House of Representatives. From the floral displays and handshakings of opening day to the hustle and bustle of anxiety when an important bill is under consideration, the Legislature can provide many grand moments.

The Clearing House, though its name may not be particularly inspirational, offers to the students the eloquence and knowledge of men experienced in the campaigning, election and actions of "politicians"—and, indeed, there will be "politicians" themselves to hear.

THE LEGISLATURE itself should not be missed by any Florida State University student. A trip downtown to see it in action is not necessarily more proper next week than any other week, but to avoid seeing it at some time during its 60-day session is to ignore one of the most accessible yet educational benefits of Tallahassee.

It is through knowledge of the functions and actions of their government that citizens can best realize democracy's basis. For when politics is fully understood by the individual, then he will realize that in truth we—all of us—are "politicians". Then he will also realize that the time of democracy's demise is that time when the people lose sight of their government.

3-Day Political Session Set On Campus

Tuesday will be Dean of Students R. R. Oglesby. He will talk on the subject, "Why Politics?" Chairman for the program will be Gilbert Richardson, professor of history at Florida Southern College and associate executive director of the Clearing House.

Participants will include three persons active in the successful campaign of Governor Collins in 1956. W. Robert Fokes, his administrative assistant, Dr. W. Judd Chapman of Tallahassee, and former House Speaker Ted David of Hollywood. Volie A. Williams, former representative from Seminole County and once the manager of the gubernatorial campaign of Brailey Odham, will also participate.

O'CONNELL TALK

Justice O'Connell speaking on "Your Opportunities to Serve" will speak at a breakfast at 7 a.m. Wednesday as the conference draws to a close. Dean J. A. Battle of Florida Southern College will be chairman for the program.

The final panel discussion, at 9:30 a.m. that day, will be concerned with "Party Politics in Florida: What of the Future" with Dr. Roady as moderator. The participants will be James Milligan of Orlando, chairman of the Democratic State Executive Committee, Edward Turville of St. Petersburg, Republican state committeeman from Pinellas County, William A. F. Stephenson of St. Petersburg, chairman of the Pinellas County Democratic Executive Committee, Victor Cawthon of Tallahassee, member of the Democratic State Executive Committee from Leon County and W. J. Oven Jr. of Tallahassee, chairman of the Leon County Republican Executive Committee.

Mass Learning Will Befuddle Youths' Minds

TO THE EDITOR:

The NEA Journal, propaganda organ of the exponents of mass, low-quality education, contained the following paragraph (p. 255, April, 1957 issue):

"Research studies have shown that authoritarian methods of control induce pupil attitudes of self-concern and of competition with others. Democratic leadership, however, causes other pupil attitudes to emerge, such as concern for the welfare of the group, for the individuals within a group, and for effective working relationships among group members."

(1) "Self-concern" also implies self-control, independence, and self-reliance. It is exactly this placing of the burden on the individual student, not the group, which forces him or her to learn. This is the method used by college professors, and by the teachers in European high schools, graduation from which is about equivalent to competion of FSU's General Education requirements.

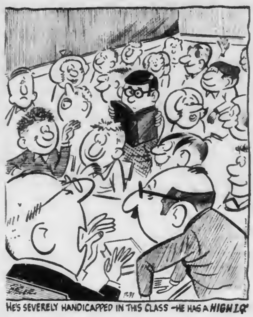
(2) COMPETION is the basis of American Free Enterprise, all true scholarship, and of the much-maligned "grading on the curve." It is this competition that is the basis of American freedom.

On the other hand, "concern for the welfare of the group" aids complacent "drifting with the tide," mass conformity, and, above all, a low level of learning, all three of which are prerequisites for the establishment of Communistic or totalitarian rule.

HOW CAN ONE be "their brother's keeper" in the sense of "concern for . . . the individuals in the group" when the basis unit upon which learning evidently not Education) depends is the responsibility of the individual mind, and the growth of the mind's ability to think for itself, and not, as is usual in U. S. Education, to not think, within the safety of the "group." Seminars in college are for Graduates. When will the U. S. Educators realize that the young, the intellectually immature, if allowed to choose between "individual study" and "group welfare" will take the easiest route. And anyone who has ever taken an Education course knows that the theories of U. S. Education place "group" values first, think of education as a "process" instead of learning as an ideal) and generally achieve the low quality that mass production gives when managed by the wrong methods. It can give good results! Witness the German "folkschool."

The Bible says: "Study, to show thyself if approved unto God . . ." THIS WAS NOT DIRECTED TO A GROUP BUT TO THE INDIVIDUAL MIND.

U. S. EDUCATION has not produced enough engineers or scientists because math and science are "rough" and without discipline and respect for learning, these courses can not be taught effectively.



U. S. Education will, sooner or later have to revise its methods and find ideals. Let us hope that it does this by itself, before the harm it has wrought in crippling young American minds enables the forces which take advantage of mass ignorance to undertake that revision amid the revocation of the fundamental American freedoms.

A STUDENT

Editors' Note: As theoretical ideologies, democracy and socialism (which emphasizes "group" values) are not of necessity any more incompatible than democracies and private enterprise are necessarily compatible. Since the interjection of such political-oriented terminology leads to this confusion, along with arousing semantic obstacles, it would seem that the question of individualistic versus undisciplined education should be limited to discussion of the purely educational worthiness of these particular systems.

'Slosh - Sliding' Very 'Enjoyable'

By OSCAR JOHNSON

"Slosh-Sliding" is a sport immensely enjoyed by Florida State University students.

This unique pastime is ideally suitable to the Tallahassee area since much of the topsoil is composed of clay-like material. During a rain this topsoil combines with the water to form a slick, slippery "slosh" unmatched anywhere.

Recognizing the unparalleled potential of FSU "slosh", university officials have conveniently planned to let students take full advantage of it. By merely neglecting to construct sidewalks at selected points they have created numerous natural "slosh" areas where students can "slosh-slide" to their hearts' content.

THESE UNIVERSITY-provided "slosh" areas come in many forms but they can roughly be divided into:

(1) The straight paths. These are walkways used to such an extent by students that the grass has been worn away, exposing the potential "slosh" material. When it rains the natural depression of the path fills up with eroded "slosh."

Hence many of the straight paths offer the deepest and most enjoyable stretches of "slosh" of any to be found. A good sprinter with little neck resistance often finds himself carried away with the enjoyment of the straight path "slosh."

(2) THE HILLS. A more advanced form of "slosh-slide", these areas offer greater obstacles to the sportsman. They range from mild downgrades to extreme drop-offs.

One of the best "sloshing hills" on campus is found on the short walkway between Cawthon Hall and the Cawthon parking lot. On this stretch someone with big shoes and flat feet can attain a speed of 15 miles per hour for a short distance. Needless to say speed is reduced if the student finds it necessary to assume a seated position on his way down.

The "hills" offer even greater competition when one must travel UP them. Many, however, have developed a churning action of the legs which is fairly efficient and also a great conditioner.

(3) THE TOBOGGAN slides. This type of "slosh-sliding" is primarily for the purist. It provides the greatest risk, but a student who is master of the slides experiences a great feeling of superiority over normal students.

A student who begins to slide, whipping around trees and corners of buildings at great speed, may find himself suddenly about to run head-on into a student making his way up the slide. This situation calls for even more coordination, another advantage of the tobog-

A Letter

Join, Not Enjoin

TO THE EDITOR:

This is to concern itself with a certain letter that appeared in the FLAMBEAU on Friday the 5th of April, in which the author unmercifully dissected the campus humor magazine SMOKE SIGNALS. Since I am a staff member of the magazine, a fact that bears me no shame, I feel obligated to say an objecting phrase.

THERE IS, of course an element of truth in the gist of the criticism that claims, in essence, that the SMOKE SIGNALS is not a triple "A" magazine. The facts behind the deficit are regretable but true.

The staff members of SMOKE SIGNALS are students who give freely and voluntarily of their not-always-spare time in order to compile a campus humor magazine. Unfortunately, compiling material is only too simple—there is no material to compile. Repeatedly, cordial invitations are extended to the student-body to contribute material, suggestions, advise, or assistance. The indifference is rather appalling! The staff is left with the frantic task of making a literary-humorous masterpiece.

WE ARE NOT employees of LIFE magazine, we are voluntary leisure time workers. We simply do not have sufficient time to singly-handedly produce enough superior quality material to fill 30 pages or so of a magazine.

Being on the inside of the scene, as a staff member does not render one blind of an objective glance. The format of the magazine is not wholly disgusting, the articles are after all not wholly distasteful, and the editor is futhermore, not even slightly a "dictator", "imbecile", or "pseudo-intellect". May it be also be emphatically said that the SMOKE SIGNALS is not "trash."

Such accusations are uncalled for, said ad ignorantum and reflect discredit on one who choses to utter them. If the SMOKE SIGNALS doesn't please you, then it's your fault, chastise yourself. It is a campus and not a staff magazine.

Survey Would Show Education's Waste

TO THE EDITOR:

Congratulations to the student who wrote Tuesday's letter about the time wasting Education requirements! Not only do the students of Education think the courses are useless, but those in-service teachers with whom I have discussed the matter hold the same opinion. I am convinced that if an unbiased survey were made, most teachers in the United States would be of the same opinion.

TO THOSE people who are not enrolled in the Schools of Education but are interested in what quality teachers their children will have in the future, I refer to an article on page 6-B of last Sunday's Tampa Sunday Tribune.

Sincerely,
A DISGUSTED EDUCATION MAJOR

Editor's Note: The Flambeau has withheld the author's name because he will need recommendation for a teaching job. It will do the same for any others who wish to voice an opinion but have the same reservation, provided they sign their letters.

The article to which reference is made tells of a move underway in the state Legislature to eliminate many restrictions now required to qualify college-educated persons for public school teaching careers. Essentially, it is a debate between State School Superintendent Thomas D. Bailey, who thinks the requirement of many hours of Education courses is necessary, and Rep. James Moody (introducer of the bill) who believes that they are a waste of time.

TO THE EDITOR:

I read with considerable interest content of a letter published in your editorial column with respect to courses required for a degree in the college of education. I am most interested in receiving any and all comments and suggestions from education majors, together with arts and science majors. U.S. Music Program Shows Art's 'Sharing'

By RYAN EDWARDS

Contemporary music being what it is nowadays, a complete program of it presents quite a problem to the listener. In what frame of mind should he go to such a concert? For what expectations may he anticipate fulfillment? Is the old cliche about "keeping an open mind" sufficient? Why should he put himself in such a quandary, anyway?

We believe that last Tuesday night's Program of American Music, sponsored by Phi Mu Alpha, both answered and explained the reasons for some of these questions. Because of this it was an immensely valuable event in our musical life. But in order to both answer and explain, it was perforce pretty erratic.

For instance, who can question a listener's sense of futility when confronted with a composition such as Barney Childs' Fragment for Oboe and Piano, which completely obscured one or two rather nice musical ideas in its prolonged attempts to make the oboe sound as ugly as possible? The same composer's Sonata for Bassoon and Piano, heard later in the program, was about the same thing, only longer and minus the nice musical ideas.

TO US, THESE two pieces were perfectly indicative of what is most wrong with "modern" music. They were frightfully clever; indeed, we might have guessed from hearing them all the intellectual attainments recounted in the short program note about the composer. But although intellectual cleverness may be very rewarding to contemplate on the printed page, in the concert hall it is completely dead unless accompanied by a very definite and continuing emotional attitude. Contemplation is well and good in the static arts, music is primarily a temporal art, and as such must draw its listeners through time in a vital, "happening" experience.

Now, some contemporary music does this, and when it does, it is in our opinion the most exciting music to hear. This is the reason the listener should be willing to gamble on a program such as last Tuesday's. At least two works included on it illustrated our point dynamically.

THE FIRST OF these was Dr. John Boda's new Sonata for Piano. Here was music of the utmost intellectual control, but stamped through and through with sincere conviction. Things happened in it, such as the breathtaking return, subito piano, of the theme of the second movement, or the thrilling martial octaves in the bass halfway through the third movement.

Dr. Boda was never willing to rely upon his intellectual technique to lend interest to less exciting ideas than these, rather he proved himself eminently capable of intellectually motivating and pursuing such ideas.

Also we felt that David Ward-Steinman's Wedding Music was compounded of honest musical ideas set forth with unselfconscious naturalness and ease. As one of the more modest and less intellectually demanding works on the program it reaffirmed our basic conviction as to what music really is, with simplicity and clarity it elicited in us a feeling of deep and innocent devotion, probably very like the feeling which originally brought this music into being.

This is what music can do—it can enable us to partake of another human being's experience of the beauty and sorrow of life, and thus add to our own souls' dimensions of elation and humility that they might not have known—without music.

Of the other works on the program, James Gunn's ballet music from A Door Ajar was interesting, sometimes startling clever, but never really affecting. As we remember its original performance with choreography, it benefited from the added dimension provided by the dancers.

WALTER PISTON'S Flute Sonata was hampered by poor handling of the instrument, and Larry Zingale's Sarabande, though it featured marvelously graceful handling of tonal qualities and an appealing harmonic idiom, was hardly long enough to produce a definite effect. We would very much like to hear its companion movements in the Partita.

All of the performances were good, particularly those of the wind ensemble, which always displayed remarkable intonation and a rare sensitivity to beautiful sound. Also, Bill Tatro, bassoonist, Carol Terpening, flutist, and Charles Alley, oboist, demonstrated as soloists that FSU possessed of some unusually excellent instrumentalists.

Soph Netters Hester, Serrett Outstanding Players Of Team

Lex Hester and Fred Serrett are two of the outstanding players on the 1937 tennis team," says Coach Keith Pichford. Hester, a 22 year old sophomore, is from Jacksonville Beach, and will be attended Fletcher high school.

Leaving school in the 10th grade, he later took the state equivalency exam in order to enter Florida State.

Serrett is a native of Little Rock, Arkansas. Attending Little Rock Central High School, he joined the tennis team and lettered one year.

STATE CHAMP

Competing in many tourna ments Serrett became state Arkansas junior champion. He received a tennis scholarship to FSU before he wanted to play tennis in college.

Influenced by Don Wiley, a good friend of the Florida State tennis team, Hester decided to attend FSU. Outstanding on the freshman squad he was also offered a scholarship.

Hunt Leading Tribe Stickers

Only three members of Florida State's baseball team who have played regularly are hitting over .300 after 14 games of the current season, Seminole statistics released this week reveal.

Third baseman Pill Hunt at .354 center fielder Owen McCarron at .317 and outfielder Riley Rose, who has not played as much as either of the other two, at .313, are the only Seminoles in the .300 class.

Contrasting this with the finish of last season, the Seminoles at the end of last year had two men over .400 (Hunsee .422, Rosell .413) and two more over .300.

However, pitching has held the Tribe up thus far, and they have won 10 of 14 games despite an enemy team average of .252. Last year, what was basically the same team, had a .295 team B.A.

PITCHERS HOT

The Seminole pitching staff has four men who have earned run averages of better than 3.00: Jerry Boaze, 3.1; 2.57 John Rivers, 3.38; Frank Davis, 1-0; 1.64, and Tom Garcia 1-0; 2.06.

Besides Boaze, who has struck out 48 men in 35 innings, the other money pitcher on the Tribe has been southpaw Jack Bristol with nine a 3-1 mark and a 3.11 ERA.

Batting leaders Hunsey and outfielder Bob Rosell, .422 and .402 respectively last year, are hitting .370 and .324 respectively right now, as an example of the over-all team slump.

Hunsey powers along the team RBI lead with Hunt, both with 11. Three men have two home runs each, Hunt, Carlos Hendrix and pitcher Boaze.

Hunsey also leads in runs scored with 15 and in triples with two. McCarron has the most hits 19; Hunt the most doubles 13, and Lee Cooper leads in stolen bases with six.

ONLY 50 RUNS

The Seminoles scored 244 runs last year, but with over half of this season gone have tallied only 50. The pitchers have given up only 82 runs thus far in the young season however.

Tuesday and Wednesday, the Seminole baseballers will close out their home campaign against the University of Miami Hurricanes.

TOP DASH MAN Jack Terwilliger, left, and miler Mike Conley will be counted on heavily to pile up the points in tomorrow's track meet with Florida at the Florida High field.

Baby Seminole Nine Battles Pensacola

By MIKE PLATTIS
Flambeau Sports Writer

Florida State's freshmen baseballers will be seeking their sixth win of the season tomorrow as they host Pensacola Junior College at Seminole Field at 1:30. Chuck Collier is slated to start on the mound for FSU.

The baby Seminoles tripped Troy State Teachers College of Alabama Wednesday, sweeping both ends of a twin bill 9-4 and 8-0.

Frank Davis and Paul Benson both went the distance for the frosh, Davis giving up eight hits in the opener, while Benson blanked the Teachers with two singles in the seven-inning nightcap.

Davis, a former American Legion All-Star from Miami, was behind from the start. He was touched for three quick hits, while his mates helped the Troy cause with two errors as the Alabamans tallied three in the first two innings.

RODGERS HOMERS

Charlie Rogers lashed an inside-the-park homer in the fifth to tie the count. Davis smoked in two men later in the inning to put the Tribe ahead for good.

Gene McCormick added two insurance runs in the seventh when he slammed a 2-2 pitch over the right field fence. Before the big seventh was over, the freshmen had crossed the plate four times.

Neil Martin paced the frosh stickmen as he scored Troy pitching for a double and two singles. Davis, whose record now stands at 2-0, helped his own cause with a two bagger and a single good for four more.

In the night cap, rangy Paul Benson was most sparing with his hits giving only a single in the fourth to Bill Phelps, and another in the seventh to Bill Hixon.

Rogers, frosh first sacker, was

In mid-season softball, DTD won a close one from SN 3-1 on only a trio for each team. Wallis and Bris contributed to the Delt victory.

PKT and PDT battled to a 1-1 tie until the last inning when 3 hits and a walk got 2 runs for PDT and with it a 3-1 win.

KS came to life with a vengeance and won their first game of the year, beating LCA 13-3. PKP plastered FKA 16-7 and SC won a wild game from TEP 9-8. TC won from SPE 13-5, and lost to SC 11-3.

The Parchesiere "Pests" went on their slaughter way, beating the Feds 16-7 and BSU plastered Massolia Hall 18-5. Pre-league outlasted Senior Hall 8-6 and the Playboys beat the Rebels 3-1.

Because of Easter vacation games are scheduled only Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

The golf championships will get under way after the Easter Holidays, with medal play rules at the Country Club course.

Seminole Tennis Team Hosts Powerful Hurricanes Tomorrow

Florida State's tennis team plays host to Miami's hurricanes, the best in the south and possibly the finest in the nation, tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 at the varsity courts.

The Hurricanes' 72 match-winning streak was snapped two weeks ago by Presbyterian 5-4, but the Canes came back next day and won 7-2.

Seminole coach Keith Pitchford has all his regulars in shape with the exception of Fred Serrett who is still recovering from a virus attack.

However, Serrett will see action according to Pitchford.

There's not much to hope for against Miami; but we're gaining experience with every match" says Pitchford. "Don't forget we're predominately a sophomore team with only one senior in our starting line-up.

VETERANS BACK

Coach Bill Loffler of Miami has practically an all veteran team back again this year headed by Captain Ed Rubinoff, the only left-handed player to perform for Miami in the past ten years.

The number two man will probably be South African Davis Cup player Johann Kupferberger. Last year he alternated between the number one and two positions with the now departed Al Harum.

But the younger Harum is still around in the person of Dave, recently the number four man. Harum is also one of the U. of M.'s strongest doubles players.

Junior Allen Quay is Loffler's third strong starter. The former St. Petersburg junior champion was the only sophomore to gain a

Thinclads Seeking Revenge Triumph

By TOM HALE
Flambeau Sports Writer

Florida State meets its arch rival, the University of Florida tomorrow when they tangle in a dual track meet at the Florida High track.

The Gators, conqueror of the Tribe last year by a score of 90-41, will bring a team that has yet to be beaten this year in dual competitions.

Florida has beaten Mississippi Southern 105-31 and Georgia Tech 91-46 in addition to placing fifth in the Florida Relays.

The Seminoles, winner of the Atlantic Coast meet non-conference title earlier this year will be looking for their second dual victory of the year.

BFAT SOUTHERN

In their only dual meet this far the Tribe whipped Mississippi Southern by a 101-35 score. Florida State also placed third in team standings in the Florida Relays.

Coach Mike Long of the Seminoles said, "Our boys are in top shape and we have been looking forward to this meet ever since last year. It's going to be a good meet and I am very optimistic about it."

Heading the list of Seminole thinclads will be Jack Terwilliger, Joe Davis, and Mike Conley. These three account for over half of Florida State's points consistently and are expected to lead the Tribe against the Gators.

Terwilliger will run the 100 yd dash along with the 220 and the mile relay. He has had four times this year of 9.7 in the 100 and 21.6 in the 220.

Running against Terwilliger from Florida will be Jim Smith and Ellis Goodloe. Both are capable of running about the same times as Terwilliger, but recently they both have been ailing from pulled muscles.

Conley's opponent in the mile will be Bill O'Dare. Conley's time of 4.28 in the distance is a little better than O'Dare's 4.32. But O'Dare is a fine runner and might give Mike Conley a close race. Both are entered in the 440 in addition to the mile relay and the broad jump. Davis has had an unofficial time of 48.3 in his leg of the mile relay in the Florida Relays which betters the school record of 48.4 in the quarter-mile. Dave Jones of Florida has been clocked in 49.6.

The pole vault has Dick Elwood Den Avves and Bill Strickland, all of FSU, capable of arcing over 13 ft. The best mark reached by a Florida man this year is 11½ ft.

According to Long, "We appear strong in the pole vault, the mile, and the 880, while Florida seems to have the edge in the shot put, hurdles, and discus."

Long went on to say, "It will be a tremendous job to upset them, but I believe we can do it."

The FSU freshmen will also compete against the Florida Frosh as part of the regular meet.

Seminole Linksters Face Tigers Away

Florida State University's golfers play a return match with Auburn Monday without the services of three of their top linksters.

Bob Shaw captain Ed Jenkins and Bunk Berry are all competing in the Florida state amateur tournament at Sarasota, which began yesterday.

Transfer Bill Thornton from the University of North Carolina and set eligible for varsity competition is also playing in the state amateur.

The Seminoles are seeking their ninth win of the season as against two losses. They nosey overwhelmed the Tigers 20-1 here March 2.

West Hall Faces Parking Crackdown

By RUTH FRITCHIE

The Student Traffic Court has ordered the campus and student police to "crack-down" on a "serious traffic problem at West Hall." Don Zuchelli, acting chairman, told the Flambeau yesterday.

As a result of this crackdown, approximately 35 West Hall residents have been ticketed. They were guilty of a "lack of consideration" when parking their cars, according to Zuchelli. He said that the charges included parking in a space not provided for two cars, blocking loading and fire zones, and parking along yellow curb areas.

About twenty of the men appeared in Traffic Court a week ago and processed the tickets for which 50 cent fines were levied. Zuchelli, chaired, "Parking violations are not heard by the Court only on appeal of the student."

The West Hall defendants claimed the parking lot was in a state of disrepair, the painted markings faded and covered with gravel and mud.

Traffic Court designated a committee to visit the parking and discuss the problem. Zuchelli said. Investigation of the lot showed the residents' charges were true of the conditions of the lot behind the dorm, but the lot in front was found in a fairly good state of repair. Zuchelli said.

Dr. Harry Day, director of service units, issued the stipulations for the crack-down. The court and Dr. Day "did not know of the faint lines," explained Zuchelli.

CASES DISMISSED

After the committee which included Zuchelli, two policemen, Dr. Day, and all the members of the Traffic Court examined the lot, the cases against the students whose cars had been in the back of the dorm were declared invalid and their cases dismissed.

The court ruled that the lot in front of West Hall was in a "state of good repair" and tickets issued there valid.

The court suggested that the lines in the back lot be painted where they are too faded to be visible and that concrete bumpstops be put in alignment as placed at the end of each row in the front lot. Orders for the installation of the concrete bumpstops were issued from Dr. Day's office Wednesday afternoon.

TO CONTINUE

Zuchelli warned that the "crackdown will continue at West Hall until a time the buses can freely get in and out and the fire lanes are free."

"Each student is responsible for legal parking within the white lines on each side. Tickets will be issued to anyone illegally parked and the ticket will be upheld by the court," he continued.

Hungarian Student Group Makes FSU Area Center

"We will not let the conscience of the world sleep .... We proclaim to you and to the whole world that our cause is not yet lost."

This is the creed of the American Hungarian Student Association.

Florida State University has become a regional center for the Association, through the presence of Levente Orvath, former Freedom Fighter who is here now on the Student Government SHARES scholarship.

TO ORGANIZE

He said his job is to organize others in Florida who were students before they escaped from Hungary.

Among the 18 schools named as regional headquarters are the University of California, University of Chicago, Notre Dame, John Hopkins, Dartmouth, Princeton, and University of Vermont

The Association is closely related to similar groups in Switzerland, France Belgium, Great Britain, the Netherlands, Austria, Canada, Italy, and Germany.

The Association has begun issuing a bilingual newsletter. In a recent issue it outlined a six point program aimed at liberating Hungary, maintaining independence of "any party, political group or organization," and achieving its goals within the ideals of freedom and Justice of the United States."

A simple proclamation in the newsletter said:

"Tragic circumstances forced us to leave our country. We have been delivered from privation and persecution but our flight is not yet finished. There are duties imposed upon us by our country's fighting for national existence and independence. Those who died did not take our ideals with them into their graves; they have been burned into Hungarian souls forever.

"We must continue the fight and the young Hungarian refugee can escape from it. Do not forget that we are responsible for the fate of a nation. We cannot let our country be totally destroyed, and the world cannot remain satisfied with merely shedding tears of sympathy. If we about-face, our voices will be multiplied and they will not let the awakened conscience of the world sleep. We proclaim to you and to the whole world that our cause is not yet lost.

"We ask all of you, our friends, who speak different tongues but who are one with us in spirit, to help us so that our words may find a hearing and our work bring results."

Frosh Debaters Rated Tops

Two Florida State University freshman debaters, Melvin Peters and Lloyd DuBroff, were among nine outstanding speakers receiving awards for excellence in parliamentary debate at a convention last weekend.

The awards were made at the Southern Speech Association Congress of Human Relations in Athens, Georgia, sponsored by the University of Georgia continuing education center.

Also representing FSU was L. A. Hester. More than 300 students from 15 colleges and universities in seven southern states attended the Congress, according to Dr. Grega Pulley, associate professor of speech.

Dr. Phifer said Peters' bill providing for better treatment of American Indians was passed by the Congress. A bill sponsored by DuBroff, providing scholarship assistance for students of soil conservation, was passed by the Senate but defeated in the House

Phi Theta Chi Business Sorority To Organize Here

Phi Chi Theta, a national professional business sorority is to organize a chapter here consisting of women in the School of Business.

Mrs. Margaret Brinker, Tallahassee member, said an organizational meeting for interested persons will be held tonight at 7 p.m. in the Longmire Club Room.

Mrs. Ordery P. Rae, of Augusta, Ga., national president, and now national advisor, will be present. Mrs. Brinker said.

The sorority was founded in 1924 in Chicago. There are now 30 chapters in the United States including one at the University of Florida.

Qualifications for membership in Phi Chi Theta, the first national women's business group here include above-average academic standing, enrollment in the School of Business, and intention to obtain the bachelor of science degree in that school.

PHI BETA KAPPA TAKES IN 15

Fifteen students have been selected for membership in Phi Beta Kappa, the highest honorary in the College of Arts and Sciences, Dr. Victor R. Boswell, head of the local chapter, announced yesterday.

The students, most of them seniors, will be formally initiated in cap and gown ceremonies in Lonamire auditorium Friday, April 26, Dr. Orlebeke said. A banquet in the Suwannee Dining Room will follow the installation at 6:30 p.m.

Membership in Phi Beta Kappa, of which the FSU chapter is Florida's oldest, is based on outstanding academic achievement and interest in scholarship. In recognition of their membership, members are awarded a Phi Beta Kappa key.

Those selected for membership were Crystal McRae, Berta C. Horton, Gary Nahrstedt, Elton F. Hensley, Richard W. Ervin III, and Marvin Walters.

ALAN'S AISLE

It's A 'Bundle Of Joy'

By ALAN KASS

In the last few days the Florida and State theatres have been on a musical and dramatic kick. So mash your drums and w shall see what we shall see. Of all the entries, the most notable cellulod is "Bundle of Joy."

In this re-make of "Bachelor Mother," crooner Eddie Fisher, Debbie Iserly of Dean Martin's quick retreat, proves an interesting new personality in "Bundle of Joy." His singing voice ranks with the best, but his speaking tone is very light, which should prove a handicap in later pictures.

Producer Edmond Grainger, who is a new hand at musical comedy, shows a few major faults such as weak dialogue and a liking for old, used jokes, but on the whole comes up with a good tight comedy backed by a very talented cast.

Miss Fisher, Debbie Reynolds, has never been better as the leager-beaver mother, who finds the title on the front steps of a foundling home. At that point complications begin for all the cast.

The little baby who steals the picture, my publicity informs, is really a set of twins. Others that help are Tommy Noonen, Nita Talbert and Robert Harvis. The music is also singable, performed mostly by Mr. Fisher.

THUMP, THUMP, THUMP!!

About this time last year, we received the first dose of motion picture Rock 'N' Roll in a production called "Rock Around The Clock." Since then we have received other quickies with the comets, the cyclones or some silly shivering guitarist.

Now, for the holidays, we get yet another, entitled "Rock Rock Rock." A better title might be "Thump, Thump Thump."

The picture is poor and looks pasted together, the only plus being the big New York Rock and Rollers. The Teenagers" and Le'Verne Baker. For some reason Alan Freed is also here, backing a band that can hardly play a note.

In case you're interested, here are a few of the songs: "I'm Not a Juvenile Delinquent", "Lonesome Train" and "The Little Blue Wren". I think the ushers all have a package of tums on hand.

Even in the dramatic pictures, we have music as a big factor. Take for instance "The Night Runner", a class B drama, dealing with a mental case who on the outside is still a trifle batty.

It's certainly remarkable that in some 70 minutes he only musders one person. This picture stars Fred Dannin a fine chance to love all his fans. The music score is the highlight since by use of modern techniques in a dissmet fashion we knew when all the violins would come in. At that moment, we got popcorn.

The number three man at U.I. after Hudson and Curtis, Jeff Chandler, proves a good lawyer in an intriguing drama entitled "The Tattered Dress." If you're in the mood for a picture with a message, this might be your dish. As a bad aberrif, Jack Carson is superb. The big New York Lawyer is framed in a small town and the usual attitude persists

Senior Group To Nominate 'Who's Who'

A bill to legalize the present method of selecting seniors for "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities was passed Wednesday by Student Senate Incorporated is the system used this year in the "Who's Who" selection. It calls for the student body president to appoint a committee of seniors from various areas of campus life" to nominate a list of seniors upon whom the whole class would vote.

FSU's annual quota in "Who's Who" is about 30.

A section which would have provided for nominations from the entire student body was deleted, and a move to set up a honor class nominating committee was defeated.

A Senate resolution that the time between 5 30 and 7 p.m be made "activity-free classes" was passed against litt's opposition.

Introduced by Senator Orvis Lawrence, the protest was aimed at discouraging ball games, tests, classes and other activities between 5 and 7 30 p m.

'Slosh Sliding'

gan slides.

This summary of "sloah-sliding" has failed to mention some of the more important aspects of the sports such as the additional sport-appeal possible for students carrying arms-load of books, history dissection kits, bowling balls, etc.; but it bons at the potentialities of this great sport. Whenever it rains, every student must do at least some "sloah-sliding". This will enable him to better understand the game.

Who rates what for performance and smoother riding in the low-priced three? Chevrolet has laid the answer and the proof on the line!

First, Chevrolet won the Auto Decathlon over every car in its field, and over the higher priced cars that were tested, too. This rugged ten-way test (right, below) showed Chevrolet was the champ in handling ease, braking acceleration, passing ability, smoothness of ride and other driving qualities you want in a car.

Then, Chevy won the Pure Oil Performance Trophy at Daytona (left, below) as "best performing U. S. automobile."

It's quite a feeling to know that you are driving a car that performs so well, responds so beautifully and is so finely built. You feel proud, of course. But you also enjoy a surer, smoother, steadier way of going, a keen cat-quick response of power, and the easiest handling you've ever experienced behind a wheel. Just try this Chevrolet (V8 or Six) and see!

Is House Reading Clerk

FSU Student 'Heard' By Millions

By CHARLES COX

"Clerk, please proceed to call the roll."

Upon these words J. Morgan Sherwood, a Florida State University graduate student, was introduced to millions of Floridians via television cameras, radio microphones, and newspaper columns.

J. Morgan Sherwood is the reading clerk of the 1957 Florida House of Representatives.

According to Florida law, every bill in the Legislature must have three readings before it can be voted on by the multitude of bills their individual readings. But he has other duties also.

OPERATES BOARD

Sherwood must be forever on the alert to the speaker's orders and wishes, he must operate the electronic equipment that records the "yeas" and "nays" whether on roll-calls or votes.

All that responsibility made Sherwood a little nervous the day before the Legislature convened.

But when the speaker protem of the House Representative Mack Cleveland, called the House to order last Tuesday morning, and asked for the roll call, Sherwood's voice rang out in the newly brought-to-order chamber with the authority of a lawyer in a courtroom.

SPEECH STUDENT

Sherwood, a 23-25 candidate in speech, was an undergraduate at Baker University, Baldwin, Kansas, and received his master's degree from Kansas University.

The latest thing he's acquired records for the clerkship is a wife, Barbara, whom he met at Kansas University on a "blind date." She is currently enrolled in the School of Social Welfare as a second semester junior.

MOVIES

Sherwood said he plans to enter the field of industrial and movies pictures following graduation. He has already done some work in the field, and expects to work as a producer, director, and actor in industrial films.

But right now Sherwood is one man who hopes that the Legislature does go into extended session on consolidation-al revision. Why?

It's that old vicious circle of money, college student, new wife, money . . .

Action Slow On Car Mess

By ETHEL CALHOUN

No official action has been taken by the Administration on the Student-Faculty Traffic Committee's proposal to allow sophomores to have cars next year, according to President Doak S. Campbell.

The committee's report, Dr. Campbell continued, will be referred to the Administrative Council for consideration sometime this week.

The four man council, composed of the President, the Vice President, the Business Manager and the Dean of Students will study the traffic recommendations and if the matter can be put on the agenda for the next meeting, they will state the issue before the Board of Control next Thursday the President said.

NO PREDICTION

As an administrative stand on the proposed changes has not yet been taken Dr. Campbell made no statement of how the Student-Faculty Traffic Committee's proposals might fare before the Administrative Council or the Board of Control.

Viewing the present traffic congestion in relation to the 15 year master plan formulated in 1947 for the academic and physical expansion of the campus, the President maintained that in 1947 it was never assumed that the future parking problem could be completely taken care of.

A high concentration of people in a small area creates definite parking problem, since there is not sufficient paved area to accomodate all student automobiles, he said.

The master plan has provided that each new building project will be provided with a parking lot at least large enough to take care of vehicles belonging to employees working there.

Also enumerated on the Master Plan is the construction of a perimeter street skirting the north, west, and south sides of the campus, starting at the Carroll building and running parallel to Tennessee Street. The proposed perimeter street would take care of a great deal of intra-campus traffic, and would provide additional parking space.

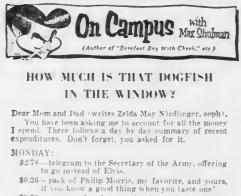
HOW MUCH IS THAT DOGFISH IN THE WINDOW?

Dear Mom and Dad (writes Zelda May Nordlinger, soph),



You have been asking me to account for all the money I spend. There follows a day by day summary of recent expenditures. Don't forget, you asked for it.

MONDAY:

$2.75—telegram to the Secretary of the Army, offering to go in stead of Elvis.

$0.26—pack of Philip Morris, my favorite, and yours, if you know a good thing when you taste one.

$0.50—sorority fine for over-leaping and missing my first hour class twelve days in a row.

I bought a rooster named Ralph

$2.95—I bought a rooster named Ralph to wake me in the morning. (I can't sleep with an alarm clock ticking all night.)

TUESDAY:

$0.50—sorority fine for not cleaning my plate at dinner. I just couldn't. Dinner was Ralph.

$0.50—sorority fine for dating undesirable boy. Rodrigo is not undesirable! Some people say he is "Tatt" and a "devil" but I say he is just insecure. Why else would he go Greek with eight girls?)

$0.26—pack of Philip Morris. What joy! What zest!

WEDNESDAY:

$507.24—a motorcycle for Rodrigo. (He is giving up all his other girls for me, but they are so widely scattered that he needs a fast conveyance to go around and tell them all goodbye.)

$0.26—pack of Philip Morris. (Have you tried them yet? If not, you've got a big treat coming. Light one soon. Light either end.

THURSDAY:

$0.50—sorority fine for staying too long in the shower. (See Mom, a girl gets mighty dirty polishing a motorcycle!)

$0.52—two packs of Philip Morris—one for Rodrigo. (Don't Rodrigo!)

FRIDAY:

$0.26—pack of Philip Morris—a happy smoke for a happy day. Yesterday Rodrigo broke up with the last of his girls, and today he is mine, all mine!

$6.37—new dogfish for zoology. I was dissecting a dogfish in zoology when I happened to look out the window and see Rodrigo riding by with Mary Ann Beasley on his buddy seat. I got so upset I threw the dogfish at them.

SATURDAY:

$2.39—a carton of Philip Morris, one pack for me, the rest for Rodrigo. I was foolish to be angry about Mary Ann. Rodrigo explained that she meant nothing to him—just helping him with English lit. Similarly, Grace Kroniger is helping him with Spanish, Betsy Pike with econ, Marsha Notkin with psych, Lola Tweet with phys ed, etc. The least he can do is give them all Philip Morrises.)

Well mom and dad, you can see how expensive college is. Send money. . . . Love and kisses, Zelda May

© Max Shulman 1957

The price may vary from place to place, but Philip Morris continues to be a natural smoke that delights no purse, however small. It is made in regular and long size by the sponsors of this column, and is ignitable at either end.

At Art Symposium

Students To Rock Ringling?

By DON HEIDEL

The white marble pediment statues almost seemed to come to life as reverberations from a swinging jazz band rocked the cloistered arcades of the Ringling Museum. Students and art devotees jitterbugged and clapped to the wild rhythms filling the Sarasota evening.

"John and Mable (Ringling) must have turned over in their graves," mused Professor James V. McDonough, head of the FSU art department.

The event McDonough referred to occurred at last years Art Symposium at the Ringling Museum in Sarasota. The jazz concert was not unusual for this unique and valuable event. For the uninitiated, the Symposium is an annual Spring conclave held in Sarasota in conjunction with Florida State University and the Ringling Museum. It features a week of lectures, slides, movies, panel discussions, concerts, plays, and exhibits involving a wide variety of the fine arts.

EXPECT THE UNUSUAL

In announcing that this year's Symposium will be held from Tuesday, April 23 to Saturday, April 29, Dr. Mc Donough did not promise another similar spectacle for the venerable art museum bus added, with a twinkle in his eye, "we can promise surprises for those who attend. Most students have learned to expect the unusual."

The word "symposium" usually leaves a dry taste in the mouth of one who savors the idea. A symposium in ancient Greecian times was very exciting, a "drinking swether usually following a banquet with music, singing, and conversation." A more modern dictionary describes the event as a conference at which a particular subject is discussed and opinions gathered.

Actually, the Sarasota symposium has encompassed both definitions. Ideas are presented and discussed in an atmosphere on free expression, informality, and conviviality. Shorts and beach clothes are the order of dress and the heated discussions often sparkle with intensity.

NO SPEAKER LIMIT

In honor of the fact that this is the tenth annual art symposium McDonough has eliminated the practice of naming a central theme for the speakers. They will be free this year to speak on any subject they desire or enjoy the most."

In the past the seminar has heard speakers on almost every phase of the creative and appreciative arts. Virgil Thomson composer and music critic, sculptor William Zorach, Edmond Bouchon, jazz authority, painters Doris Lee Julien Levy, Arnold Blanch, and Fletcher Martin, industrial designers Brooks Stevens and R. S. Latham, art historian Alfred H. Barr, John Coolidge and Henry Russell Hitchcock, and New York Times art critic Dore Ashton, are representative of some of the cultural leaders who appeared at the Symposium.

SYMPOSIUM IN THE SUN. Students in informal dress discuss art treasures with Professor James McDonough at last year's Art Symposium at the Ringling Museum in Sarasota.

"This year we are expecting Aaron Copland American composer and musicologist, Jacques Lipschitz, contemporary sculptor, and John Bauer, Director of the Whitney Museum of Art. The Ringling Museum is collaborating in obtaining these people," revealed McDonough. FSU has obtained the services of Dr. Rainer Wenk Tallahassee archeologist and Lawrence Schmeckebier head of the Syracuse University Art School in addition to FSU's Karl Zerbe, Adolph Karl, and McDonough.

McDonough said that the Symposium is open to any student at FSU. To attend a student must obtain permission from his department head. Students will be officially excused from class for the week of the seminar. He warned this should be done before next Tuesday.

Deep sea exploration in Gulf of Mexico for untapped fish and shrimp resources will be shown in colored movies at a special Oceanography Institute seminar, today at 1:30 p. m. in the lecture room of the new Library.

The movie will feature the work of U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service scientists on the research vessel Oregon who have been systematically exploring the Gulf for new fishing areas for five years.

Leon Legislators Urge FSU Engineers' Program

By CHARLET POITEVINT

Leon County's legislative delegation will introduce a bill in the House to establish a "school of engineering science" at Florida State University, according to Richard Mitchell.

The delegation will also introduce or support other FSU legislation coming from the appropriations committee.

This will include proposals for several new dormitories, classroom buildings, a multi-housing unit for married students, and an addition to Doak S Campbell stadium.

BACKGROUND

Mitchell said of the bill sponsored by himself and Rep Mallory Horne is passed, it will provide a basic background in science for engineering students to all fields.

He said the school would not be a duplication of the University of Florida engineering school, in that it would not offer courses in specific fields such as civil, chemical, and aeronautical engineering.

SEEN OPPORTUNITY

"This program would be the beginning of a plan to give FSU the opportunity to become a professional school," Mitchell said.

He explained that the proposed four-year program in engineering science would enable graduates to prepare themselves for employment by learning basic skills. He said these could be applied later in learning more specific fields while working in the job.

Mitchell asserted it would be a relatively inexpensive course to add, since the university already possesses "fine instructors" in physics, chemistry, and mathematics.

ANNOUNCED

Plans for the program were announced last week by President Doak S Campbell, but controversy has already arisen as to whether the new curriculum will duplicate courses at the University of Florida.

Campbell named three needs the program will fill: to help alleviate the nationwide shortage of engineers, to fill Florida high school students' demands for engineering training and to meet the growing needs of industry.

Rep Mitchell, commenting further on the capabilities of FSU professors, said it was thought at first that Florida should receive almost three times more funds for atomic research than FSU.

RECOMMENDATIONS

He said, however, that consultants called in for advice on the project were so impressed with the caliber of FSU scientist professors they recommended giving the schools almost the same amount as "At the present time it looks like we will have no problem to use the requested amount, $3,000,000, to conduct basic atomic research," he added.

The Leon delegation will ask the House to appropriate funds which combined with federal funds will be used to erect an engineering building, dormitory, and multi-housing unit.

'NOT SATISFIED'

"We aren't completely satisfied with the 17.7 million dollar request for the operational growth of the university, but we can't be entirely hamstrung Mitchell said.

He said the proposed Campbell stadium is separate from the other program in the bill and will not come out of the same funds.

"Besides it needs will come first, but if funds are also we hope the stadium can be enlarged to insure a crowd so be able to host the eastern Conference teams" he said.

The Tallahassee legislators will introduce the bill to establish a four-year college at Tampa with possible subsequent schools at Miami, Jacksonville, and Pensacola. The bill will be introduced next week.

'Signals To Rise Again

Board Proposes Magazine Mutual Assistance Pact

By CHARLEY POITEVINT
Smoke Signals' Editor Marvin Truzzi successfully thwarted criticism from the 1957-58 staff and attempts to "impeach" him at Thursday's meeting of the Student Board of Publications.

The Board directed next year's editor Alfieda Rice and managing editor Bob Simmons to cooperate with Truzzi in putting out the fourth issue of the controversial humor magazine.

Publications advisor Dr. Reid Montgomery was appointed to settle any disagreements that might develop between the staffs and, if necessary, bring these disagreements to the attention of the Board.

Truzzi presented the Board with a brief affidavits, and witnesses in defense against an eight-item charge made on the magazine by the newly appointed staff.

SHOWS NEXT ISSUE

He also presented comprehensive material for the third issue, which printing was stopped by Montgomery last week. It was to be done out in several weeks, Truzzi said.

Truzzi told the Board he had complied in full with his request

My salary was stopped

Flambeau Art Tom Sawyer

. . . "they want a general magazine in which they are generalist"

to publish a literary issue and that 20 people had worked on it. He said it was "a good issue containing poems of good caliber although maybe not for poetry."

After reviewing copy and pictures to be used in the third issue the Board moved that printing of it be resumed and recommended Truzzi's salary which was stopped by administrative action, be reinstated.

Truzzi's salary was held up because he was accused of violating an administrative order by Montgomery who advised Truzzi not to print an article co-authored by John Boardman, a student not allowed to re-enter the university this semester.

NO INDICATION

The Board didn't take me any indication that administrative action would be taken, or that I had to comply with Montgomery's advice, the editor said.

Truzzi said he felt there was no conspiracy against him by Montgomery and the 1957-58 staff, but that Rice and Simmons influenced Montgomery's feelings.

Criticism of the magazine came shortly after the second issue was published. Montgomery in a letter to the Board, and the staff was composed of a small group, of whom two were not enrolled here this semester, and Board man, who was not permitted to re-enter.

He claimed failure to publish the remaining two issues would result in an advertising loss that Truzzi may be responsible for advertising errors, and "the second issue has been questioned as to its good taste and general value."

He recommended in the letter that the magazine be turned over to the 1957-58 staff and let it be seen if it plan to convert Smoke Signals into a general interest magazine, but be withdrew this statement Thursday.

DROPPED PROPOSAL

"I will not continue the recommendation, but would like a plan to be worked out guaranteeing the next issues will be handled in a satisfactory way," Montgomery told the Board.

Miss Rice and Truzzi asserted they have only the interests of the magazine at heart.

At one point Truzzi said of his critics, "They want a general interest magazine in which they are the principals."

Miss Rice and Simmons asserted Truzzi's claims that they filled not worked on the magazine personally with accusations that Truzzi had told them he didn't need any help.

Engineering Science Program Up To Legislature

Whether Florida State University can have an engineering science program without duplicating courses offered at the University of Florida is to be decided by the Legislation.

A 1947 State law prohibits "unreasonable" duplication of courses at the two major universities.

The controversy is whether a four year program on the undergraduate level conflicts with Florida's graduate school, the only engineering school in the state.

President Doak S. Campbell asked a legislative appropriations subcommittee last week for $189,400 to establish an "engineering science course" at FSU.

Rep. Turlington of Alachua County (Gainesville), a member of the subcommittee brought up the arguments that such engineering courses at FSU might be the foundation for a school duplicating Florida's.

He asked Campbell if the course is "an attempt to establish an engineering school at FSU." Campbell replied he did not regard it as such, but wouldn't predict that within five years there wouldn't be one here.

The program has been approved by the Board of Control, which administers the state universities, but the Budget Commission has not been presented a request for funds to set it up according to President Campbell

He explained to the subcommittee that the proposed engineering program would attract more science aspirant and would include only an introduction to engineering.

He said FSU decided to establish the course because of the demand in Florida industry for college graduates with a firm scientific background.

Flambeau 1957 Editorial Page Best In Florida

U of F Paper Is Second Best

The Florida Flambeau was announced Saturday as winner in a contest to select Florida's best collegiate editorial page.

The contest was begun this year by the Florida Society of Editors, of the Alpha Epsilon president, President Flambeau Editor Oscar Johnson with an engraved plaque for "Best Editorial Page 1957" at the group's convention in Tallahassee last weekend.

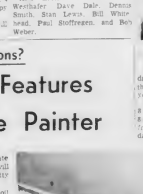
Second place was awarded to the Florida Alligator, semi-weekly paper of the University of Florida.

JUDGE



Judge for the contest was E. L. Holland, associate editor of the Birmingham News, who has had 15 years' experience as an editorial page writer and editor. Holland was editor of the campus newspaper at Birmingham Southern College and was a Nieman Fellow at Harvard.

His report said, in part, "The two top papers are the Flambeau and the Alligator. The difference between these two is so slight as to make a decision difficult, especially with respect to the quality and liveliness of the editorial articles and with respect to the ability of the writers to get into a subject, especially one of controversy and likely to provoke controversy."

'MEANS MORE'

So the judgment comes, perhaps, to simply a matter of which of these two editorial pages I feel means more to me when considering all the points of quality, of editorials, the letters and columns balance, and the general appearance of the page.

On that basis I choose the Flambeau, with a very special honorable mention to the Alligator."

By DON HEIDEL

A One-man show by graduate art student Robert Schuler will open tomorrow at the University Museum in the Dining Hall.

The show features large oil paintings in abstract-expressionist style. Schuler, who also majors in Masters Degree in Painting in June, critiqued a history by not attempting but admitted he would can loosely be considered as abstract-expressionists adhering on impressionism.

The style "abstract-expressionism" is at least 50 years old but the general public still finds it baffling to behold. However, its attitude of contemplation the paintings for what they are and not what the spectator thinks they should be still and to understanding.

Schuler traces his main influences to William de Kooning, Roman Bloom, and Karl Zerbe FSU painting professor.

Schuler came to FSU to do graduate work from Wisconsin State College at Milwaukee where he obtained a teaching degree. He previously graduated from the University of Wisconsin, majoring in Philosophy.

New Ruge Chapel Dedication Slated

Episcopal clergymen from all parts of Florida are expected to be in the FSU community campus Wednesday, April 24 to join the Episcopal students and faculty of FSU in the consecration of the new Chapel of the Resurrection. The service is scheduled for 3 p.m.

The Rt Rev. E. Hamilton West, Bishop of Florida, will consecrate and confirm at this service. He will be assisted by the Rev. Benjamin Waller, Episcopal Chaplain. The Rt. Rev. Henry I. Louttit, Bishop of South Florida, will be in attendance.

An all-student choir will take part in the service under the direction of Donald Michel of the School of Music. Joyce Cayard will be organist.

Two students will be tapped by Chaplain Waller at the service. Eight-teen persons will be confirmed by Bishop West.

Governor and Mrs. LeRoy Collins and all Episcopal members of the state legislature have also been invited to the service and have expressed plans for attendance.

Because of the name, Chapel of the Resurrection, the Easter season was select ed as the most appropriate time for the consecration, said Chaplain Waller.

Serving FSU Episcopal students and faculty members the chapel has been in use since the opening service on November 28. It was built at a cost of about $90,000 from the Ruge Trust Fund. The money was given by the late John G Ruge, a member of the Trinity Episcopal Church in Apalachicola, as a memorial to his wife. A quarter century ago money from the same source built Ruge Hall, the first religious center established at FSU.

Business Drop Hits Morrison's

A drop in business caused by Florida State University students dismiss several student workers last week, according to reports from the office of the secretary of student welfare.

The students were laid off without any previous notice and then were offered substitute employment only.

The secretary of student welfare, Bob Elting said he has learned some of the workers are now having "financial difficulties as a result of of their sudden dismissal.

Jack Lana student employee directed by Morrison's to take a customer count which led to the dismissal of an entire line said the lack of business was the reason for the dismissals.

Collegiate Party 2nd Convention Set Tomorrow

The newly named Collegiate Party is holding its first convention tomorrow night starting at 7 in the Tallahassee Building auditorium.

"In the class elections last year the former State Party took the majority of the men's and women's class offices and with the quality of candidates that are seeking the party nomination I see no reason why we can't repeat or better last year's record of success," stated Gerry Gordon, Collegiate Party chairman.

The convention is open to all students and we hope that as many as can attend will do so. Through the parties' conventions the students themselves have an opportunity to voice their opinions and make the choice of candidates," Gordon added.

All dorms, fraternities, and sororities that intend to send delegates should contact Gordon at the Sigma Chi house.

Gov. Collins' Advice On Prexy Brings Up Issues At Stake

Governor LeRoy Collins' suggestions regarding the new president of Florida State University should, we feel, be carefully considered by the Board of Control in its current effort to recommend a man for the job.

Not only does Mr. Collins have considerable legal influence over the selection—he is chairman of the State Board of Education—but as the elected representative of nearly half a million voters his opinions must be accepted as representative of majority view.

THE NEW president, Mr. Collins said, "should have a deep, abiding love and respect for scholarship." It follows that scholarly pursuits, as aside from studies involving professional training, would be highly valued by the new president. A faculty member said earlier this year, "The whole purpose of a liberal education in the university is to give the student time and opportunity to develop a systematic philosophy which will guide him him through life." Mr. Collins, sometimes referred to as "Mr. Education," must certainly share this view to at least a considerable extent.

". . . should be a young man with a future."—This is a point of special importance because the university is a young one (in terms of its aspirations) and its future will depend to a large degree on the future of its next president.

". . . A KEEN understanding of the services that a university can render in the development of a state."—The word, "service," has a broad meaning indeed in this context, and can refer to anything from giving a boost in the development of nuclear energy in Florida (one of Mr. Collins' pet projects) to providing educational materials for the state's high schools. In connection with a university's "services," it is interesting to note that Gover nor Collins has recommended against setting up football programs in Florida's projected junior college system. When football is mixed with education, he said, it often becomes "the tail that wags the dog."

". . . command the respect of the leaders of his procession . . . Since education is mainly a cooperative endeavor, this point is important. But in addition to this, worthy teachers cannot be attracted to FSU if the philosophy of the president would produce conditions they would consider undesirable.

AT THE RECENT convention of the Florida Society of Editors, State School Superintendent Thomas D. Bailey said the best teachers are those who somehow project lasting principles into their students. If the new president cannot command the respect of such inspirational instructors, the students at FSU will have been done an injustice.

In elaborating on these points brought up by Governor Collins, we have not sought to put words into his mouth, merely to outline some of the thinking which we feel to be behind the proposals. Whatever the merit of our analysis, we feel the Board of Control must take into consideration some interpretation of Mr. Collins' views.

Sales Tax Expansion Unfair To Citizens

Citizens should be alarmed by a pending legislative measure that would apply the sales tax to nearly everything.

In a state where many people cannot buy enough food to eat, the suggestion of taxing food is unthinkable.

The people already pay enough in taxes on most retail items and on widely-used "luxuries."

The industries whose business it is to take minerals from Florida's soils and cut trees from her forests have been relatively untaxed. This is not the case in other states.

Before extending the sales tax, Florida should make the burdens fair and establish severance taxes on her natural resources.

A Letter
Group Cordial With Campbell

TO THE BOARD OF CONTROL AND THE STUDENTS OF FSU

Just a brief note to clarify my letter which appeared in Tuesday's Flambeau. The first part of this letter was written as an explanation of the Student-Faculty Traffic Committee's position on sophomore cars next year. The second part of the letter, which set forth five points that the Board of Control might consider before deciding whether or not sophomore cars should be permitted on our campus next year, should not be considered as an official statement of the committee.

THE SECOND part of the letter set forth my own personal opinions, not necessarily the opinions of each member on the committee.

Also I should like to point out that Dr. Dean Campbell has not taken an official position on this question of sophomore cars. He has simply stated that the Board of Control would probably expect FSU to so along with the U of F next year on their ban of sophomore cars.

THE RELATIONSHIP between Dr. Campbell and the committee has been most cordial and I am sure that this relationship will continue.

Sincerely,
KARL EDWARDS

STUDY GRANT

The Atomic Energy Commission has extended another year a contract with Dr Alex E S Green of Florida State University for a theoretical study of explosions nucleus which he has been making since 1950.

The AEC will contribute $16,225 in new funds to be the $28,150 cost of the additional year's study.

Cut Some Requirements

TO THE EDITOR:

Any person who would argue that prospective teachers who are wasting time in basic education courses are supposed to make up the lost time on the subject-matter they will teach by doing additional, informal study either forgets a few things or is ignorant of them. Basically, there are two prominent and glaring factors which stand out in opposition to such a person : 1) Basic Human Nature Needing to say, most people tend to lose interest constantly prodded by any of several forces. Does this factor need any further elaboration? and 2) Basic Human Intelligence Assuming Basic Human Nature can be avoided, who am I kidding?—it takes exceptionally high IQs to absorb the material which is necessary to learn in this short period of college in order to become competent teachers. However, there are few people, no matter what their college major or future vocation, who have the basic high intelligence necessary to gain the desired material in such a short time. In other words, human frailties prevent a prospective teacher, as stated above, from adequate preparing of himself to teach a particular subject. But I want to make it clear that I refer to the majority of people and not all of them.

Without doubt, the more undergraduate and knowledge a teacher holds with her subject will help that teacher become more capable—and respected still another facet of discussion. We can take a forward step in one direction by eliminating some of the basic education courses necessary for teacher certification.

Sincerely,
FRAGMATIST

You also ran a previous PSU requirements for any Florida State University merely cooperates with the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education (there are approximately 300 schools which are members of this association), and the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, which is the accrediting agency for 29 or more Southern states. Most states require not less than 12 semester hours in professional education courses over and above the general requirements. It would seem logical for certification requirements to be based on the experience of 300 years of teaching and training in America, including some of the best leaders in the country rather than to poll the opinion of students who have had no experience whatever in the profession.
